Hollywood Previews

"One Wild Night"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, May 9.—A cast dominated by such veterans as Sidney Toler, Andrew Tombes, Romaine Callender and Lyle Talbot furnish lively comedy background for the unstressed romance played out by June Lang and Dick Baldwin, who are given top billing in this flippant and frequently very funny treatment of the plot about the girl reporter and the policeman. Miss Lang is quite effective as the witless newspaper gal and Baldwin gives a passable performance, but the laughs, which are plentiful, are obtained by the more seasoned performers in their experienced execution of some decidedly novel gag situations and incidents worked into the screenplay by Charles Belden and Jerry Cady or, perhaps, by Edwin Dial Torgerson, who supplied the original idea. The film is genuinely diverting most of the way, weak only at start and finish.

Tombes is police chief of a small city shocked by unsolved abductions of three prominent citizens. Toler is his assistant and Baldwin is a son home from detective school to help his father unravel the mystery. Miss Lang is a bungling newspaper reporter and Callender her editor, who fires her every few minutes but can't keep her fired. Ransom money pops up in possession of all the town's best people and the boy detective suspects everybody. J. Edward Bromberg is the town banker who turns out to have been responsible for a frameup to cloak his shortages by inducing the missing persons to pretend to have been abducted. It's funnier, as worked out, than it sounds.

John Stone was associate producer. Eugene Forde directed with considerable skill. The picture contains a good deal of shooting, all for comic purpose, and is clean in every particular.

Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

"Gun Law"

(RKO)

Hollywood, May 9.—In a plot cut to the pattern of the Lone Ranger radio programs, but a deal more snugly contrived and intricately planned, George O'Brien gives the western fans an hour of brisk entertainment. His feats are less incredible than is par for the course and the production, save for the setting in of a swing music session such as the stagecoach drivers of the period probably didn't have to cheer them up between trips, is commendably in key with the time and tone of the story. It's a far better than average western.

O'Brien, a United States marshal, disguises himself as a notorious bad man, whom he buries in the desert, and arrives in Gunsight, crime ridden cow town, intent on finding out who's doing all the killing and robbing. The audience is let know right off that Robert Gleckler, who runs the saloon, and Paul Everton, respected mayor, are the galoots doing the dirty work. O'Brien joins the gang and is persuaded to pose as the marshal he really is. Ray Whitley, a supposed itinerant entertainer, is his accomplice on the side of justice. Everybody but O'Brien and the audience gets confused about the marshal's real identity, but he finally gets the goods on the mayor and closes in with his deputies. Rita Oehmen plays a girl who thinks O'Brien's pretty nice and vice versa.

Story and screenplay are by Oliver Drake and the picture, produced by Bert Gilroy, was admirably directed by David Howard.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Hold That Kiss"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, May 9.—This is a new treatment of the plot wherein a middle class boy and girl mistake each other for idle rich and prolong the deception as long as possible. As produced this time by John W. Considine, Jr., and directed by Edwin L. Marin from story and screenplay by Stanley Rauh, it generates plenty of auditorium laughter.

Maureen O'Sullivan is the girl in this version and Dennis O'Keefe the boy. She's a mannikin and he's a travel agent. They meet at the swank home of George Barbier, millionaire, mistake each other for guests and pursue the delusion throughout various subsequent dates. Mickey Rooney plays one of her brothers, Frank Albertson and Phillip Terry two others, Fay Holden her mother, and Jessie Ralph an aunt. Edward S. Brophy plays O'Keefe's race-happy roommate. These and a St. Bernard dog figure vitally in a series of unfamiliar and divertingly executed situations.

Dialogue is especially well done. Some of the gags, notably those having to do with operations of a motion picture theatre in which one of the characters is employed as usher, made the preview audience laugh loudly and long enough to drown out substantial sections of wordage. Mickey Rooney's performance as juvenile leader of a swing band and household terror kept the preview crowd in stitches.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

NLRB Avoids Row of Producers, Directors

the complete result of which was to cover the same ground gone over four months ago when the guild filed before the regional labor board a petition seeking an election under N.R.L.B. auspices, Darryl F. Zanuck late last night charged the guild with bad faith in conducting negotiations.

Dr. Nylander, after unofficially being informed of guild attempts to negotiate, suggested to the N.L.R.B. that a hearing on the petition be held now instead of waiting until the board has decided in the Screen Writers Guild matter, but was advised today not to enter the current case. The guild, meanwhile, has scheduled a mass meeting of directors, assistants and unit managers for Thursday night and has announced that the group will remain intact and will not negotiate separately —as the producers desire—for pacts governing conditions for each of the three classifications.

Capra Answers Zanuck

The main point in the controversy is the divorce of assistants and unit managers from directors, the producers having made an offer to talk to representatives of each group separately.

Frank Capra, chairman of the guild committee of Edward Sutherland and Gregory LaCava, in a letter to Zanuck, likewise charged the producers with bad faith in breaking off negotiations and insisting that the guild be split up.

Other groups claiming jurisdiction over the scenic artists are Local 37, I. A. T. S. E., Scenic Arts Association of America and United Scenic Artists.

New York Preview

"The Charm of La Boheme"

(Artcinema Corp.)

Based on the Puccini opera, "La Boheme," and recounting the opera's story and the film's story virtually as one, this European picture, produced in Vienna by Inter-Gloria Films, offers much to those who appreciate fine music, instrumental and vocal, and excellent acting. The language is German, but there are ample subtitles to make for ready understanding of the story.

Many metropolitan audiences here will be familiar with, and attracted to the names of the two stars, Jan Kiepura, noted Polish opera singer and screen star, who has just completed a season at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, and Marta Eggerth, Hungarian film star, who has an excellent voice and is an attractive and highly competent actress. The rest of the cast is adequate, but unimportant to the American audience.

The story aptly blends comedy and tragedy. Perhaps many in this country will be dissatisfied with the tragic end of the film but it is nonetheless in keeping with the story of the opera. Many of the outstanding arias from "La Boheme" are sung by either or both of the leading players. Actually, the tragic operatic story of Mimi, a consumptive, who sacrifices her life for the success of her lover on the opera stage, has its actual counterpart in the picture. The strongly emotional character of the story is skillfully handled, with a careful avoidance of overplaying, which might have been disastrous.

Loew "Lynton" Damages Fixed At $587,604

for the appeal. O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, attorneys for the plaintiffs, will file their motion to have the report confirmed after 20 days. The Auchincloss report showed only a minor reduction in the amount of the Loew's liability from that set forth in the special master's preliminary report, which was issued about six weeks ago, subject to revision after briefs had been submitted on it by attorneys for both sides.

The 87-page report found that Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corp. was liable for profit in the amount of $268,861; that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corp. was liable in the amount of $68,603; Loew's, Inc., in the amount of $97,466, and Culver Export Corp. in the amount of $152,673.

Covers Only Loew Houses

The liabilities cover only distribution and film rental profits from showings of the Joan Crawford picture in Loew's theatres. A separate finding for the plaintiffs on profits from the engagement at the Capitol, here, was made some time ago. Although the Federal court has held that the plaintiffs are entitled to all of the profits from the picture, it is doubtful whether an action will be brought to obtain an accounting of the rentals and profits from theatres other than Loew's. However, no decision on this has been made yet, according to plaintiff's attorneys.

The Auchincloss report noted that in arriving at the findings of profits a liberal deduction was allowed for overhead, a deduction of 20 per cent was allowed for distribution costs and deductions were allowed for print costs and Erpi royalties. Credits were allowed where losses were sustained.

Hearings before the special master were held from Sept. 9, 1936, to March 16, 1938, and a total of 1,240 pages of testimony was taken here and in California. The infringement case itself has been in the courts for more than four years and was carried to the U. S. Supreme Court.

San Francisco, May 9.—A local chapter of the Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers Union has been formed here by Hal Oliver and Joe Silverman, national organizers. E. O. Bondeson has been named local representative with 26 charter members. Permanent officers are to be named soon.

This is the ninth local union in the country. Another unit is to be formed in Denver, it was stated.

DON'T GYP THE BACK SEATS
THEY GIVE YOU YOUR Profits

Already more than 5000 theaters have installed high intensity projection. With high intensity projection in one theater out of every three, audiences are rapidly becoming aware of the difference. They are seeking out the theaters that provide better picture quality on the screen, more comfortable seeing and more pleasant general illumination. With old style low intensity projection there is seldom enough light on the screen for good, comfortable seeing even in the best seats. At the back of the house screen brightness is so much reduced that pictures are dim and unsatisfactory.

Modern fast action and the new color pictures call for Simplified High Intensity projection. "Simplified" means new type lamps and "Suprex" Carbons. These have so reduced the cost per light unit on the screen that any theater can now afford high intensity projection.

The illustrated booklet, "The Eternal Triangle in Picture Projection," will tell you about it. Write for a copy.

Warners Will Announce 60 For 1938-39

opened the three-day convention yesterday morning with the assertion that "Warners is planning for action."

Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, conducted an open forum discussion and roused the delegates with the statement that "the company will not flood the market with reissues of old features." The conventioneers agreed with him unanimously.

"Warners is in a strong position to release a strong lineup during the summer months, so that we see no point in bringing back past pictures during this period," he said. "Having foreseen a production shortage, we have prepared ourselves to meet it. Our men feel that a blanket policy of reissues by all the companies may have a negative effect in that it may serve to keep the public away from theatres. The marquees will be billing all old pictures at a time when the public is shopping for a new supply of entertainment.

Will Heed Public Demand

"The only time we will reissue one of our films is when we feel there is a definitely manifested public demand for that picture."

During the morning session, Haines introduced the following speakers: Ben Kalmenson, southern and western sales manager; Robert Perkins of the legal department; Sam Schneider, home office executive; Sam E. Morris, vice-president in charge of foreign sales; Carl Leserman, assistant general sales manager; Arthur Sachson, head of the contract department; A. W. Schwalberg, supervisor of exchanges; H. M. Doherty, auditor of exchanges, as well as Sears, Moray, Einfeld and Blumenstock and Albert Warner, vice-president and treasurer.

Leserman, at the afternoon session, discussed the remaining films on the current schedule. Haines introduced the district managers in his division, including: Wolfe Cohen, Canadian district, Toronto; Bob Smeltzer, central district, Washington, and Ed Schnitzer, eastern district, New York.

Drive Winner Canadians

Haines announced Wolfe's Canadian district as winner of $12,500, first prize, in the 16-week Sears Drive which ended April 16. Leserman, as drive coordinator, presented the check to Cohen, who will divide it among the personnel at the following branches: Montreal, M. J. Isman branch manager; Winnipeg, Gordon Simmons; Toronto, H. O. Paynter; St. John, Lew McKenzie; Vancouver, Joseph Plottel.

It was announced that the drive was the most successful in the company's history, with billing and collections topping previous campaigns by 37 per cent. More than $1,000,000 was collected in the final week, Haines said, this exceeding the biggest business week during the past 10 years by 45 per cent.

Other prize winners in the drive will be announced at the southern and western convention, to be held next week in Dallas.

Prominent exhibitors and circuit buyers from the metropolitan area and Canada have been invited to attend today's sessions. Among them will be Ike Libson, Maurie White, Edward Rugoff, Harry Shiffman, Sam Rinzler, Louis Frisch, J. J. O'Connor, head of RKO theatres; Max Fellerman, Joe Eagan, Eugene Picker, Al Suchman, Dinty Moore, Harry Brandt, Charlie Moses, W. F. Marshall, Ted Schlanger, Nat Feliman, W. C. Patterson, Harry Goldberg, Joseph Bernhard, I. J. Hoffman, Don Jacocks, Moe Silver, Harry M. Kalmine, Harry Feinstein, Walter Reade, Leo Justin, Irwin Wheeler, Louis Notarious, Fred Schwartz and A. J. Kearney.

Remaining films on this season's schedule discussed by Leserman included "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Crime School," "Little Miss Thoroughbred," "Gold Diggers in Paris," "When Were You Born," "White Banners," "Cowboy from Brooklyn," "Men Are Such Fools," "Four's a Crowd."

Sears announced that 13 featured players will be elevated to stardom during 1938-'39, as follows: Anita Louise, Priscilla and Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris, Ann Sheridan, Claude Rains, Jane Bryan, Gloria Dickson, Bonita Granville, Dick Foran, John Litel, Gale Page and Dick Purcell. Miss Granville has not yet reached her 15th birthday.

Warners Start Convention With a Tremendous Bang

Song," which Warners are planning to make, and a tuneful number from "The Cowboy from Brooklyn."

Sid Rechetnik ushered us into the room and carefully to one side. We were told something about sparks and the possible danger to the most important part of our trousers if they should become ignited. We added our insurance with lightning-like rapidity, and stepped nonchalantly behind a pillar—a big one.

The men quieted down under the benign hand of Roy Haines, who was presiding, gavel in hand.

"Boys," he said, after a brief word of welcome, "you want action. You've been praying for action (with considerable emphasis on the words), and by heaven, you're going to get action."

The last word was accompanied by a sharp tap of the gavel, and that was the signal for pandemonium to break loose. A half-dozen tommy machine guns, loaded with blanks, and hidden in various parts of the big room, let go all at once, and the air was filled with sparks, the smell of powder and a plentiful supply of noise.

It all ended with a dull boom, as a curtain at one side of the room fell to reveal a 15-foot high gilt replica of an "Oscar," Academy award statuette, only this was no "ette."

The tumult and the shouting died, and Sid ushered the trade paper representatives toward the door with a kindly but definitely firm hand, while Haines started to call the roll in the background.

Sid explained, "Haines is calling the roll to check on casualties—but that's just a gag."

Rogers and Baxter

Ginger Rogers will make one for Warners this year, and so will Warner Baxter, but when that became known yesterday, Warners were not ready to release the information. It happened this way:

The reporter at the sales meeting glanced at the wall and there was a big picture of Ginger Rogers. Questioning brought out the fact that she will make one for the company next season, and the remark: "Look around, and you'll see Warner Baxter's picture up there, too."

Sarnoff Asks Air Policy Be Decided

WASHINGTON, May 9.—David Sarnoff, president of RCA, today told a Senate Interstate Commerce Committee that Congress should declare a national communications policy. He urged that such a policy be formulated after a careful investigation by a Congressional Committee or the Federal Communications Commission.

Sarnoff made this proposal as a result of his opposition to the Wheeler bill which would require the communications commission, as a fixed policy, to consider competition in the foreign communications field as being in the interest of the American public.

Sarnoff said that the Wheeler measure, if adopted, would place American communications agencies "at the mercy of foreigners." He asserted that the proposed legislation was inspired by the refusal of the F.C.C. to grant an application to the Mackay Co. for a radio circuit to Oslo, Norway. In previous hearings the Mackay Company charged that RCA Communications was operating a monopoly in foreign radio communications.

The RCA president told the committee that Mackay, by duplicating RCAC's circuit to Japan in 1934, brought about a decrease in revenue to American investors. To meet the Mackay terms, he testified, RCAC was forced to make a contract giving a major share of the revenue to Japan.

Buy Rights to Cartoon

Stuart Erwin and Una Merkel have purchased the radio rights to the King Features cartoon strip, "Blondie," by Chic Young, and are now seeking a sponsor to place it on the air. It is understood they are now engaged in trying to induce Fannie Brice to play the part of the baby.

FCC Ordered To Reconsider Station Plea

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Reconsideration by the Federal Communications Commission of an order denying an application of the Pottsville Co. for permission to construct a broadcasting station at Pottsville, Pa., was ordered today by the U. S. Court of Appeals.

The commission's denial was based on testimony that subscriptions for stock in the company were contingent on the approval of the Pennsylvania Securities Commission and that Charles D. Drayton, Washington lawyer, who subscribed to all but 75 of the corporation's 2,625 shares, is not a resident of Pottsville and not acquainted with the needs of that area.

In its decision, the court pointed out that the approval of the Pennsylvania commission is not necessary for issuance of the stock, since the corporation was chartered in Maryland. It was held, further, that the F.C.C. has not heretofore laid down a policy of refusing construction permits to nonresidents, and should reconsider the case, the court adding that if the commission should desire to establish such a policy and refuse to issue a permit on the ground of non-residence, it might do so.

The sextet includes "Boy Meets Girl," "Brother Rat" and "Yes, My Darling Daughter," all successful comedies, as well as "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," brought over from London to Broadway; "Blondie White," another English import, and "Chalked Out" by Warden Lewis E. RKO Selling "Snow" Away From Saenger

RKO will sell "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" away from the Saenger circuit in New Orleans and other situations in the Louisiana-Mississippi area as a result of the circuit's inability to agree with the distributor on playing terms, it was learned yesterday.

The Walt Disney picture will open this week in three independent neighborhood first runs in New Orleans, the Laurel, Fifth Avenue and Peacock, and will play other neighborhood and suburban independent houses subsequently. The picture had its New Orleans first run at the Orpheum, an RKO house operated by Mort Singer. Statewide deals outside of New Orleans are also being set by RKO on the same basis. The deals are among a very few to be made on an outstanding picture outside the Saenger circuit in that territory.

Olympe hadn't seen Uncle Fred and Aunt Ella in years and years and she confided to Tom Waller of the Paramount publicity department that she was lonesome. So Tom arranged it.

In three limousines filled with photographers, some assorted trade and daily press writers and Olympe's mother and her secretary the party slipped away from the Warwick about 12:30 and landed at the circus grounds about the time the matinee audience was filing in. Without attracting attention they slipped in the main entrance and down the left side of the tent in front

A total of 47 titles of the 60 features scheduled by Warners for release during 1938-'39 was announced at the company's eastern and southern convention at the Roosevelt yesterday. Metro Launches Radio Show To Boost Its Short Product

M-G-M last night inaugurated over WHN what is intended to be a series of Tuesday night half-hour programs devoted to dramatizations of its short product.

The program, which started at 9:30 o'clock, dramatized "The Man in the Barn," one of the "Historical Mysteries" which on the screen are narrated by Carey Wilson. A cast of 42 took part. Frank Nugent, Times film critic, urged more attention to shorts by the exhibitor and the public.

The program was conceived and arranged by Herb Morgan, short subjects publicity director. Morgan said that at the start films that will average a year in age will be dramatized, the chief purpose being to promote the cause of shorts generally. Listeners were told that if they enjoyed the air program, and would like to see other shorts of the same type, they should contact the local theatre manager.

The M-G-M shorts department is making a strong effort to boost its product. Six months ago it launched its Shortstory magazine, a monthly, which now goes to list of 15,000, including the company's shorts accounts, newspaper editors, women's club members and others.

Condor Holders Sue B. E. Buchman & Co.

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—Thirty-seven stockholders of Condor Pictures, Inc., now undergoing Federal bankruptcy act reorganization, today filed Federal Court suit against B. E. Buchman & Co., Wisconsin brokerage firm, its officers and Condor executives seeking return of $20,000 investments and $10,000 exemplary damages. Charging that the Buchman firm was an unauthorized underwriter of the Condor stock and that misrepresentations made in the S.E.C. registration caused that Government body to cancel the stock selling permit, the plaintiffs said they bought 5,780 shares of common stock upon illegal statements made by brokerage concern.

Named in the suit were the Buchman firm, B. E. Buchman, president of the brokerage company; George Hirliman, H. J. Van Beuren, Michael Hoffman, Frank M. Snell, Albert Lieberman, Max Forest, David Brown, Harry J. Rothman, Glenn Stephens, William Siegel, Thomas Hutton and Louis George.

Condor was not named as the business is tied up in Los Angeles Federal court in its reorganization proceedings which come up again this month.

The Kentucky Derby has the lead osition in this issue. The filming horoughly covers the race, the crowd nd contains candid glimpses of peronalities. Foreign affairs, always a ood filler in a dull session, accounts or other interesting screen news. But here isn't any Lew Lehr.

Hitler is seen leaving Berlin, ariving in Rome to be greeted by the ing of Italy, Mussolini and Count iano and then in the welcome proession. The King and Queen of ngland open the Glasgow Fair. A 6-year-old high school boy explains is artificial radium discovery. King og of Albania and his bride are seen their civil wedding ceremony. Helen Vills Moody arrives in England. The resident of Ireland, Douglas Hyde, oses for his camera portrait. Woolen ashions in dresses and bathing suits re presented in the Vyvyan Donner nanner and the reel closes with shots f a Batavia, N. Y., youth who asends in a balloon, does a few acroatic maneuvers aloft and comes down o earth in a parachute. It is different nd amusing. Running time, 10 mins. P.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 267
M-G-M)

The balance of interesting home afairs, sport, foreign events and other lm news is nicely maintained.

The marriage of King Zog of Alania to the Countess Geraldine Aponyi in a civil ceremony opens the eel. It is followed by a glimpse of Douglas Hyde, the new president of reland. The "Snapshots" division ffers scenes of the banding of wild eese to study their migration; two ongressmen who depart for Jersey ity with dramatic speeches and then ail to show up; the activity in Journal Square in Jersey City. In another ivision Adolf Hitler is seen arriving n Rome and the King and Queen of ngland open a fair in Glasgow. The Sporting Page" offers good coverage f the Kentucky Derby and the Engish soccer classic, the cup final, at Vembley. Running time, 9 mins. P.

Paramount News

Paramount)

This issue covers a lot of territory. t opens with a tremendous crowd at soccer game in England. The crowd nd the game are both impressive.

In the "Names and Events in Europe" department the highlight is Hiter's visit to Mussolini. The Italians ut on quite a show, with some of the hotography done at night. The lightng effects are striking. Other Euroean subjects of lesser interest are the edding of King Zog and Countess pponyi, a speech by King George of ngland at the opening of the British mpire Exhibition, and Princess Juana sitting in a window with her aby while subjects place flowers on he grounds outside.

After showing shots of Jersey City rowds parading in protest against the invasion of two Congressmen, the reel shows Representative O'Connell of Montana saying he will speak there yet in spite of Mayor Hague.

The closing number is the Kentucky Derby—a subject of interest to the losers as well as the winners. Running time, 9 mins. J.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 84
(RKO)

The accent is on sports in this issue, with three of eight subjects devoted to some phase of it, thus imparting a good portion of action to the reel. The important soccer finals in England, attended by the King and Queen, the Kent School crew preparing for international competition ahead, and the running of the Kentucky Derby, which always is good for a fast clip are the sports subjects.

The rest of the reel shows President Roosevelt returning from his vacation cruise, the crowds in Journal Square, Jersey City, waiting for the excitement of a defiance of Mayor Hague which never quite happened, Thomas Mann explaining that he intends to make the United States his home, Administrator Harry Hopkins insisting over the air that every WPA worker is entitled to vote as he desires, despite reports to the contrary, and a Fascist parade in London which broke up in a riot, and which is an excellent bit of camera reporting. Running time, 8 mins. A.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 665
(Universal)

The 64th running of the Kentucky Derby, treated lightlv for a few laughs, stands out as the most interesting event offered in this issue. The balance of the material is run-of-the-mill stuff picturing personalities, a publicity stunt, a factory fire and political problems.

A G. A. R. parade in Santa Monica opens the reel. Thirty-nine veterans of the Civil War are seen. Three are able to walk. The others ride. Edouard Daladier, Premier of France, is shown boarding an airplane for London. May Day is celebrated in Prague. A factory burns in Kensington, Conn., with toppling walls and all the necessary coverage. Jersey City and Washington supply pro and con in the Hague affair. Two women die when a seaplane cracks up at Seattle and there is a beauty contest featuring cows at Sabetha, Kan.—Running time, 9 mins. P.

Olympe Bradna and Mother Visit Uncle Fred at Circus

of the grandstand seats while the band played, and then out through the big entrance, where the parade lines up, into what?—a sea of mud.

Uncle Fred was glad to see her. He sloshed across the goo onto a pathway made of hay. The hay covers the mud so the pedestrians don't know what they're walking in, except that it's soft—a psychological effect. Uncle Fred led the party to wagon No. 59 and Aunt Ella came out dressed in fluffy white. She rides a white horse in the circus.

Clowns, Chinese acrobats, Hindus, Moros, dwarfs and others gathered around—some with autograph books. Some of the cameramen stood in wheelbarrows marked ELEP: Things went along swimmingly. It wasn't raining very hard. And then the Bengal Lancers answered a bugle call with some high class splashing. A uniformed attendant standing beside Herb Berg shouted: "Look out!" Herb glanced behind him and leaped away from the horn of a yak, bouncing as he did so into a trained goose in the arms of a clown. The goose aimed his bill at Herb's left ear and missed.

By that time the camels were coming out. They may be ships of the desert, but they don't like mud. One of them bucked and kicked like a broncho. In the meantime the women performers who weren't working continued to do their washing and hung their clothes on the line. Olympe took it very calmly until her secretary came running out of a white tent and shouted: "It's colossal!"

Even the photographers had to have a look. Inside was a glass cage with its own air conditioning system and a big black gorilla with a spare truck tire for a teething ring. It's a young gorilla, they say.

Frank Buck went by on an elephant and waved to the photographers, but they had no telescopic lenses with them. Lunch was served in a tent standing up. Jack Harrower, who was dieting, had two pieces of apple pie followed by a pork chop. A couple of zebras tried to horn in despite the big spread of hay. It developed later that their keeper wanted an autograph and couldn't leave the zebras wandering around.

Uncle Fred went into the big tent and did his act and came back.

The exit was made unostentatiously. Olympe and the photographers walked half the length of the tent again with the band playing soft music and eight riflemen following Gargantua and his white cage.

On the way back across the Williamsburg Bridge Waller confided to the trade press that "Stolen Heaven," in which Miss Bradna and Gene Raymond are starred, opens this week at the Paramount. Gene missed something.

G. N. British Plans Are Discussed Here

Ben Henry, general manager of Associated British Film Distributors, which distribute G. N. product in Great Britain, said yesterday that his company's future relations with G. N. have not been definitely determined and that he plans to return here in six months for further conferences.

Henry recently met Edward Alperson, G. N. president, in Chicago for a discussion of mutual relations considering G. N.'s 77B status. He said that while current problems have been ironed out, nothing has as yet been determined for next season.

A.B.F.D. plans to make from six to eight features at its studio. Some of these may be designated as G. N. quota films, he said. With Mrs. Henry, he will sail on the Queen Mary today.

Utility Holding Company Act, but no suggestion was made that the legislation be confined to such concerns.

Because of the failure of corporate managements in the past to make full and informative disclosure of the scope and operation of proposed voluntary plans and their effect upon both investors and management, the S.E.C. recommended legislation requiring full disclosure in the case of substantially all plans of reorganization or readjustment effected without resort to judicial proceedings.

The commission suggested the use of the Federal taxing power in a manner to render more difficult and less attractive the migration of corporations to states whose corporation statutes are noteworthy for their liberality to corporate organizers and their disregard for the interests of security holders.

pecuniary interest of $3,000 was involved. The case was argued 14 months ago and the court had it under consideration since. Two other Federal statutory courts in similar cases involving Nebraska and Florida anti-Ascap laws granted injunctions to the society, although Florida officials will appeal the decision in their case to the U. Official in Dallas On Interstate Case

Dallas, May 10.—Assistant Attorney General B. W. Henderson arrived today from Washington to participate in the hearing Wednesday before Federal Judge W. H. Atwell to determine conclusions at law in the Interstate Circuit case which was sent back from the U. S. Supreme Court for that purpose. George S. Wright, local attorney, will represent the circuit and distributor defendants at the hearing.

After Judge Atwell has completed the findings of fact as directed by the high court, a new decree will be entered in the case and the circuits and distributors will bring a new appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court which will be heard next fall.

The Supreme Court returned the case to Judge Atwell three weeks ago with the statement that it could not review his decision holding that the distributors and circuits conspired together in making contracts regulating subsequent run admissions without the lower court stating its findings and conclusions of law in accordance with accepted practice.

Al Fields Sues Warners

Albert H. Wolffield, known as Al Fields, orchestra leader, filed a bill of particulars in his suit for an injunction and accounting of profits on several Warner shorts. The bill of particulars alleges that the plaintiff was the originator of the type of music known as "tic toc music" and that Ted King, orchestra leader, plagiarized this style of music and termed it his own in shorts which he made for Warners.

The suit is also against Stanley-Mark-Strand Corp., owner of the Brooklyn Strand.

K.R.S. Suspends Plan on Grading

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, May 11.—The vigorous fight of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association against the grading plan of the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) came to a dramatic end today when the distributors offered to suspend the grading policy. Exhibitors had insisted the scheme was designed solely to increase rentals, an assertion which was denied vigorously by the K.R.S.

Pending arbitration of the problem, it was agreed by both sides that no films will be classed as "A" or "B." Following the K.R.S. offer on Monday to submit the matter to impartial arbitrators as a proof of their innocence of any reason for the plan other than to eliminate excessively long theatre programs, it was decided at a joint meeting to suspend the plan pending a decision.

Theatres Not the Place for Advertising, Joseph Bernhard Tells Sales Force At Convention Session Here

Commercially sponsored films will find no place on the screens of Warner theatres, Joseph Bernhard, head of the Warner circuit, told the company's eastern and Canadian sales convention at the Roosevelt yesterday.

"In our judgment the film theatre is not the place for advertising," he said. "It is unfair to draw the public into a place of amusement and then confront them with the surprising fact that they have paid at the box-office to be subjected to advertising matter on the screen."

Bernhard said that the Warner company considers daily newspapers "primarily the proper place for paid advertising." There are other appropriate media, also, "but the motion picture theatre emphatically is not one of them," he declared.

In this connection, Bernhard praised newspapers for their value as an advertising medium.

Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, told the delegates that the company now has its largest talent roster under contract, including 20 stars, 50 featured players, nine players who will appear in special pictures, 14 directors, eight dialogue writers, 43 writers, six song writers and eight associate producers.

The convention wound up last night with a beefsteak dinner at the Tavern. Today branch managers will meet

Scully to Preside at "U" San Francisco Convention

Los Angeles, May 11.—William A. Scully, Universal general sales manager, left here for San Francisco today where he will open a three-day regional sales meeting for the company's Pacific Coast and far western exchange managers at the St. Francis Hotel on Friday. Scully was accompanied to San Francisco by representatives from the company's Los Angeles branch.

Attending the meeting, in addition to the San Francisco and Los Angeles representatives, will be managers from the Portland, Denver, Salt Lake City and Seattle branch offices.

Assisting Scully in conducting the four scheduled regional meetings is F. J. A. McCarthy, assistant general sales manager. The two will acquaint the western sales forces with Universal sales policies for the new season and will detail the 40 features, four serials, 12 westerns and 81 short subjects which were announced yesterday for new season release. The San Francisco meeting will be followed by a Chicago meeting, May 19, 20 and 21; a New Orleans meeting, May 23 and 24 and a final meeting to be held in Washington, D. C., May 26, 27 and 28.

"The regional meetings," Scully said, "were decided on because we believe the sales problems and plans for each section of the country can be easily and informally discussed with the men in their individual territories."

Conciliation Moves Hinge On Neely Bill

Washington, May 11.—Senator Neely and Majority Floor Leader Barkley fell out over the former's efforts to secure consideration of the block booking bill today, following disposition of the merchant marine legislation.

Rising to his feet, Neely found himself sidetracked when Senator Truman (Dem.) of Missouri was recognized in favor of a bill he wants considered. Later Barkley asked that Truman's bill be set aside, and Neely protested.

After a brief interchange, Neely withdrew his objection, but announced he would seek tomorrow to have everything else laid aside in favor of the film bill. Barkley replied that he would insist upon the regular procedure.

The distributors' course on conciliation of trade disputes hinges on passage of the Neely anti-block booking bill. Should the measure pass, the companies will abandon present efforts to gain industry acceptance of conciliation boards, but if it goes by the board at this session, a move will be put under way to set up the contemplated procedure along lines previously suggested.

That is the major distributors' pres-

Showmanship Need Grows Greater, Asserts Zanuck

luncheon at the Victor Hugo Restaurant.

Zanuck said, "In our business, where nothing can be successful without showmanship, it is fitting that we of Hollywood should honor these two theatre managers who have distinguished themselves by their showmanship ability. I think all of us owe a vote of thanks to Martin Quigley for originating this annual honor.

"We all recognize now that a picture is not actually completed until it has played every account throughout the world. Many a picture has been harmed, and many a picture has been aided and helped by the personal touch of a theatre manager."

Both Films Unusual

Zanuck pointed to the significance of the fact that the two pictures with which the winners won the awards were "off the beaten path," and stressed the necessity of the showman exercising as much cleverness, in many cases, as the Hollywood producers themselves.

"Probably less applause falls to the theatre manager than to any other individual in our industry. He should get a lot of applause. All you have to do is to examine the records of various types of houses to find that there is a very great deal to the job of properly putting over a picture in the theatre," Zanuck said.

Kirkmeyer Talks Briefly

Kirkmeyer, in responding, said, "Every exhibitor and manager in the industry owes it to himself and his profession to come to Hollywood and see the wheels go round. It is easy to take too much for granted from a distance. Only through first hand observation of the efforts made by producers and their staffs to weave showmanship into the fabric of their product can the practical showman come to realize fully his responsibility for getting the utmost box-office return from its exhibition."

Paul Muni, star of "Zola," who presented the Bronze Plaque to Seltzer, said, "It seems to me a very healthy thing that an award of this kind is being given. We in Hollywood are accustomed to awards for producers, actors, directors and all sorts of other things, but an award of this kind is as much deserving as any of the others, perhaps more so."

A-Mike Vogel, chairman of the Managers' Round Table of Motion Picture Herald, and acting host to the winners, defined the function of the Quigley Awards to rousing applause from the luncheon guests.

Feted at Studio

The party was entertained by executives of 20th Century-Fox at that studio today. They will inspect the Warner plant tomorrow and are to be the guests of M-G-M on Friday. ITOA Sounds Call To Fight on Duals

The I.T.O.A. at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Astor instructed the board of directors to wage a "militant fight" for the elimination of double features, but decided that it is up to the large circuits to make the first move.

This followed a discussion of the effects of the organization's attack on "the waning power of Hollywood stars" published last week.

With Harry Brandt, president, in the chair, discussion brought out the members' view that duals are "at the root of the evil" of asserted industry conditions. It was also said that if exhibitors could get sufficient quality product for single bills, they would put showmanship into their operations and this would result in the elimination of giveaways.

It was reported at the meeting that a committee headed by David Weinstock had negotiated a light and power reduction for exhibitors in Queens.

The regular nominees for officers, headed by Brandt, were elected for the coming year.

McCarey Says His Success Comes from Making Shorts

By IRENE KUHN

RKO Director Leo McCarey owes his success to shorts.

He thinks apprentice directors should cut their picture teeth learning to tell camera stories in 18 minutes. He credits his short subjects training for the pace and movement of his own picture story-telling. Timing made "The Awful Truth" one of the season's best pictures and was largely responsible for McCarey's just-blotted signature acceptance of a two-year producing-directing contract with RKO, he says.

Under this contract he will produce four pictures and direct two. He has the final say on writers. He's heartily in favor of the idea because he sees better entertainment value emerging for less cost.

"Sometimes a studio loses a great deal of money by working a long time on a story before it calls in the director. Frequently, when the director comes in, he doesn't like the story setup at all, and it all has to be done over."

A two-man script job, he believes, makes for unity of thought which produces fluidity of story continuity instead of a compromise when mass production of ideas in story conference is stitched into a patchwork of shooting script.

McCarey, 20 years in pictures, is a young-looking 40. Picture-making may have given him headaches, but as yet he has escaped grey hairs. An easy conversationalist, a man who thinks before he utters, he ranged the gamut of topics of current interest to picture men. He trod eggs diplomatically ("I'm a producer now, I have to be careful") in commenting on the recent "box-office poison" blast of the I. T. O. A.

"They're slightly in error," he said of the exhibitors. "Stars often work in bad vehicles and get lost or forgotten through no fault of their own. Marie Dressler didn't work for 10 years and then was rediscovered and secured lasting stardom."

McCarey feels the screen can make pictures of social significance with entertainment value as well. He admitted he tried consciously to give "Make Way for Tomorrow" social significance. He deprecated the danger of blanketing the screen with propaganda by pointing out that, in his opinion, there has always been propaganda on the screen. "The Big Parade," for instance, glorified war. And there's been propaganda for the army and the navy in feature pictures, too.

He'd like to see more originals written directly for the screen and is considering two for his first assignment. He prefers the short story, filled in with natural, inevitable incident to the top-heavy plot novel or play.

Color, as yet, is slightly disillusioning, he thinks, and he believes the public is more interested in good stories, well told by the camera, than in new, technical advances.

He will leave for the coast Wednesday by train so that he may have three days for reading picture material.

RKO Sticks to Dual Ban on "Snow White"

RKO has adhered to its policy of selling "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" for single feature programs only, with the result that the picture has not played a double feature engagement anywhere since its release, the company stated yesterday.

Maintenance of the policy has prevented closing deals with several theatre organizations in some instances, it was said, but the company points to the results achieved as one of the outstanding contributions of the season to the single feature policy in theatre program planning.

Hollywood Previews

"Cocoanut Grove"

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—"Cocoanut Grove" is a first-class package of screen entertainment done up in fancy wrappings which looks like a front-runner in all houses, from de luxe down. It is full of the elements general audiences look for; rife in exploitation ideas that should make the selling job easy. Comedy, peppy music, a romantic story, specialties and light drama are welded into 90 minutes of speedy entertainment.

The film gives Fred MacMurray one of his best opportunities. Harriet Hilliard is featured in the human interest romance and the Yacht Club Boys, Ben Blue, Eve Arden, Rufe Davis, Harry Owens, Dorothy Howe, George Walcott and Red Stanley are given many chances to shine often. Also featured is little Billy Lee as a star snare drummer.

Opening smartly, the story shows MacMurray's band as it loses another job. The will-o-the-wisp possibility of playing at the famous Los Angeles night spot, from which the title is taken, is the pin that holds the troupe together. Their feeble chance is pointed out by Miss Hilliard and is eagerly grasped by MacMurray. The problem of transportation is overcome when Stanley wins a trailer. The journey west is a hilarious picturization of things going wrong and the comedy content is accentuated when Davis is picked up. They arrive on the coast for an audition and the orchestra is chosen, but by mistake one headed by Walcott gets the contract. Davis uncovers a plot. MacMurray goes off seeking Miss Hilliard. He discovers her after making a comic loudspeaker tour of the city. Meanwhile Owens is holding the fort at the Grove with Blue, Miss Arden and the Yacht Club Boys turning in their specialties. Later Miss Hilliard and MacMurray walk into the scene. She sings the theme song and the band is assured of a long engagement when everything is finally straightened out.

Sy Bartlett and Olive Cooper turned out the snappy original screenplay. The music was composed by Ralph Freed, Frederick Hollander, Harry Owens, Frank Loesser and Burton Lane. Al Santell's direction masterfully understands showmanship and exploitation values. George Arthur produced.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

"Swiss Miss"

(Roach-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy stage some of their best comedy moments in the course of this Alpine foolishness. In the stretches between these high spots Della Lind and Walter Woolf King go through the motions of a pattern musical comedy without making it seem more than filler. Eric Blore has scant opportunity to display his brand of humor and the other principals walk through. Where the Laurel-Hardy appeal is strong the picture should do quite well, elsewhere less so.

Hal Roach and Associate Producer S. S. Van Keuren gave Director John G. Blystone plenty to work with in the budgetary sense, but the five writers credited with the story and screenplay did not overburden him with plot material. They cast the comedians as mousetrap vendors who go broke in the Alps and work out a dinner check as hotel survitors. They cast the moderately comic Miss Lind and the somewhat more impressive King as prima donna and composer working out a minor temperamental conflict at the same inn. Music by Phil Charig and Arthur Quenzer and dances staged by Val Rasset possess a distinction in themselves without vital relation to the core of the production.

Laurel and an unbilled St. Bernard achieve one of the funniest sequences ever filmed. Laurel and Hardy get peak results with a lofty skit having to do with the conveyance of a piano across a rope bridge spanning a chasm. There are perhaps a half-dozen sequences good for solid outbursts of laughter.

Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

March of Time, No. 10

(RKO)

This issue of the Time reel co tains three subjects of wide gener interest, which, combined with t quality of execution expected of t release, makes an admirable adjun to any theatre program. Methods of deception, methods detection and educational efforts the fight against the short-measu crooks feature the first subject. T second describes the manner in whi the British peerage suffered fro taxation after the war, and how, wi the 1938 armament taxation, st more are losing their ancestral hom and lands, and many of the most i portant names in "Burke's Peerag have gone to work. Good pictori quality adds to this subject. The fi episode should stir considerable i terest with its "candid" camera stu of a Congressman at work. To jud from the portrayal, the Congressm works long and hard, and the study extremely interesting. Atlas to Present Revised Plan on RKO Next Monday company may be a fact by next winter. The rate of progress will depend to a large extent on whether or not the revised plan is sent back to a special master for hearings, prior to the final hearings in the U. S. District court, and to the amount and character of opposition which the amendments encounter from RKO creditors. The ability of the reorganizers to make progress on the plan during the summer months is expected also to be a factor.

Atlas Corp. will abide by its agreement in the original reorganization plan of November, 1936, to underwrite a sufficient amount of stock at a price to be set by the court to provide $1,600,000 cash. This, however, is designed primarily to meet reorganization expenses. Provisions considered earlier for the flotation of an additional $5,000,000 debenture issue to provide approximately $3,000,000 for the purchase of M. J. Meehan's block of Keith-Albee-Orpheum preferred stock and to provide a cash reserve to meet fixed charges and provide additional working capital for the reorganized company have been abandoned. Whether or not they will be revived as amendments to the plan in the event of a market recovery during next fall is, of course, unpredictable.

Abandon New Issue Idea

To offset in part the failure of the plan to provide new cash, the reorganizers have eliminated, also, earlier provisions in the plan for the issuance of $12,718,500 of new 5½ per cent debentures to the holders of the company's old debentures. This will result in a saving of approximately $700,000 annually in fixed charges of the reorganized company. Instead, holders of the old debentures, if the revisions to the plan are approved, will receive one share of new $100 par 6 per cent cumulative convertible first preferred stock and five shares of new common stock for each $100 of their claims. The five shares of new common are issued in payment of accumulated interest of about $30 on the debentures and as a bonus to the holders for stepping down from a secured to an unsecured creditors' position. In addition, the new first preferred will pay no dividend for the first year after reorganization, thus effecting a one-year saving of more than $760,000 in fixed charges. There will be $12,718,500 of new first preferred outstanding on consummation of the plan, and approximately 2,150,000 shares of new common.

General creditors of RKO whose claims are appraised at a total of $8,000,000, exclusive of the $9,150,000 Rockefeller Center claim, will receive 10 shares of new common stock for each $100 of their claims, or a total of 800,000 shares of the new common. They will also have a subscription right to the new common to be underwritten by Atlas Corp. Rockefeller Center, as originally proposed, will receive 464,000 shares of the new common for its claim. Indications are that the claim has a potential market value on this basis of more than $5,000,000.

The common stockholders have had their participation in the plan shaved again. The 1936 plan provided for an exchange of new common for old on the basis of one-half share to one. Intermediate revisions provided for first four shares of old, and then five shares, for one of new. The proposal now is to offer one-sixth of a share of new common for one of old. Common holders would also be given a warrant to subscribe for the new common at $10 per share for a five-year period and at $15 per share thereafter.

Approximately 1,017,500 shares of new common will be reserved for conversion of the new first preferred, it is proposed. The conversion rate is set at eight shares of common for one of preferred.

Eight Laboratories Asked to Conference

With a view to negotiating new agreements, Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians Union, Local 702, has asked eight laboratories to send representatives to a meeting scheduled for Monday afternoon.

Included is De Luxe, with which negotiations were broken off recently when salary demands were rejected. The others are Ace Film Laboratory, Warners' Cellulose Products, Consolidated, Paramount, Paramount News, H.E.R. and Du Art.

Richard Walsh, I.A.T.S.E. vice-president, and Vito Marcantonio, attorney for the union, will attend the meeting with committees representing the employes.

ent position as explained by a spokesman. Lack of action on the Neely bill or its defeat may result in the establishment of local conciliation boards within a few weeks, it was said.

Revival of the conciliation idea has been featured in recent weeks by assertions of distribution executives, as well as S. R. Kent, president of 20th-Century-Fox, that they would support such a move. To date William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M, has been in the forefront of distribution heads placing themselves on record.

Views Due at Allied Meet

He will have an opportunity to present his views fully when he speaks at the Allied States convention in Pittsburgh next Wednesday. Also scheduled to speak on the subject are William Sussman, 20th Century-Fox eastern division manager, and George W. Weeks, Monogram sales head. It is understood that Allied has invited the distribution heads of all companies to address the convention.

Allied's stand on conciliation is also said to depend on passage of the Neely bill. While the conciliation machinery will be local, and some of the organization's units are said to favor the proposal, there is no doubt that the national policy as formulated at Pittsburgh will influence the local units.

Provided that the destiny of the Neely bill is pretty well known by next week, the Allied convention is expected to take a stand on conciliation. In fact, the policy may be set at the directors' meeting which will be held Monday night, on the eve of the actual start of the three-day convention.

U.A. to Release 2 Monthly—Schaefer

ander Korda, David O. Selznick, Walter Wanger and Edward Small are already committed to contributions to the 1938-'39 schedule, Schaefer said that "it is anticipated that within a short time additional product will seek the United Artists' outlet as a result of the company's new policy of reduced wordwide distribution charges and its profit sharing plan for producers."

Schaefer and Mulvey, who entrained at midnight, said that details of the company's new season schedule and arrangements for the company's "sales meetings" would be completed during the studio conferences, thus indicating that United Artists will have regional sales sessions rather than a national convention.

Bar Foreign Policy Attacks on CBC Net

OTTAWA, May 11.—Attacks on the foreign policy of Great Britain and other friendly nations will not be permitted on the network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., it was indicated today by Prime Minister MacKenzie King in the House during discussion of a general overhauling of the Radio Act.

T. L. Church of Toronto protested against a radio attack on British foreign policy by G. V. Ferguson, managing editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

One of the great difficulties in Europe, King said, was the continual broadcasting by one country of its views on another. The British Broadcasting Corp., he said, had quietly taken the view that it was not proper to carry broadcasts reflecting on another country where the criticism was likely to embarrass the Government.

To Speak on Short-Wave

Frank E. Mason, NBC director of short-wave operations and assistant to Lenox Lohr, NBC president, will speak at the Broadcasting Day Luncheon at the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce May 17. He will discuss international short-wave radio, and his address will be carried by the Cleveland stations.

Pearce Is Signed By General Foods

Al Pearce and Gang have been signed by General Foods Corp. for a year's run on NBC to begin late in October. They will replace Burns & Allen for Grape Nuts.

This new pact sets at rest rumors of the past few weeks that the Pearce troupe had been signed by the American Tobacco Co. for Lucky Strike cigarettes.

Pearce had been negotiating for the Lucky Strike show, but he chose the General Foods contract because not only will he earn more money with General Foods, but he will be broadcasting from the west coast, from which section he moved on to radio fame, and where, in all likelihood, he will double in picture work and on the radio.

The Pearce contract with the Ford Motor Co., his present sponsors, holds until the end of the year, but by mutual consent it will be abrogated in July.

Young & Rubicam negotiated the deal for General Foods, while Fanchon & Marco, through Sam Dembow, acted for Pearce.

NBC Plans Test of Television Lessons

The first classroom television lesson to be presented by NBC, with a group of science students around receivers putting questions to an instructor in a different studio, will be conducted by the network in cooperation with New York University May 19 at Radio City. Dr. C. C. Clark of the University faculty will lecture on, and demonstrate the use of, the photo-electric cell.

The demonstration, conceived by Dr. James Rowland Angell, educational counsellor to NBC, is one of a series of NBC experiments in the use of television for educational purposes.

Plan Music Boxes

Cincinnati, May 11. — If scientists want to know how butter and chilled lettuce react to music and news comments, they're going to get a chance to find out. The Crosley Radio Corp. is turning out a new line of refrigerators equipped with radios.

Now housewives can stop wondering whether the light went out when she closed the icebox door and start pondering about jazz with a chill.

Senate and House in Race for FCC Probe

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The Senate and House today appeared to be headed for a race to see which body will investigate the Federal Communications Commission.

Approved yesterday by the committee which has control of the Senate's expenditures, the resolution introduced last year by Senator Wallace H. White, Jr. (Rep.), of Maine, is ready for Senate action at any time. In the House, the rules committee tomorrow will give consideration to a similar resolution introduced by the late Representative William Connery (Dem.) of Massachusetts.

Members of Congress in recent weeks have received a large number of letters urging that some investigation of broadcasting be undertaken, particularly since the controversy within the commission in March over its own study and over a resolution "welcoming" a Congressional probe, which Chairman McNinch succeeded in quashing.

"Valentine" Back on Air

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," which faded from NBC last month after a run under the sponsorship of a smoking tobacco, will return to that same network on the Blue, June 6 from 7 to 7:30 P. M., for 26 weeks. This time it will be sponsored by R. L. Watkins Co. in the interest of Dr. Lyons Toothpowder. Blackett-Sample-Hummert is the agency.

New Shows on the Air

"Selected Shorts"

The short film came in for a bit of less than expert radio treatment over WHN Tuesday evening at 9:30 with the debut of "Selected Shorts," a new half-hour radio series devoted to dramatizations of short product. Metro operates WHN, and the broadcasts will be confined to M-G-M's short output. The first production was "The Man in the Barn," which deals with Lincoln's assassin, John Wilkes Booth.

Sight unseen, there is little doubt that the "Man in the Barn" on the screen was far and away a better job than the radio production, considering the general high quality of the Metro films.

To begin with, the continuity of the radio production was jerky to the point of being confusing. Also, the sound effects left much to be desired. That may appear to be a trivial factor, but in radio, a medium in which the ear supplants the eye, expert sound effects do much to enhance the quality of a dramatic offering. The cast, however, was uniformly good and did much to save the production.

Special speakers on hand to launch the series were Frank Nugent, film critic for the New York Times, and Arthur DeBara of the M.P.P.D.A. Both said that short films had a definite niche in the picture business and they urged more attention be paid to shorts by exhibitors and public. They held that shorts may yet be the instrument of solving the double bill problem.

Star Salary Blast 16 Years Old—And Time Marches On

There may be something new under the sun, but it isn't complaints about high salaried stars.

Sixteen years ago—Jan. 4, 1922, to be exact—William Brandt, president of the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce, and brother of Harry Brandt, now president of the Independent Theatre Owners Association, let loose a blast about the huge sums being paid stars of that day—Mary Miles Minter, Katherine MacDonald, Wallace Reid, Rudolph Valentino and William Farnum.

The Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce is still in existence, but it is so inactive that no meetings are held. The banner of Metropolitan New York exhibitor leadership is now being carried by brother Harry Brandt at the head of the new organization, but the strategy is strangely reminiscent.

This is from the New York Times of Jan. 5, 1922:

> The salaries these stars receive are wholly out of proportion to box-office receipts, according to William Brandt, president of the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce, who spoke at a meeting of that body in the Hotel Astor yesterday.
> "Almost everything concerned in the making of motion pictures from the salaries of extras, carpenters and laboratory men to the price of raw film has been reduced except the salaries of stars," said Mr. Brandt. As a member of a committee recently appointed to investigate the reason for the "excessive" cost of productions, he learned, he said, that pictures could be considerably reduced if the stars would accept less money. He believed that if the producers would inform them that theatre receipts were out of proportion to their pay that they would accept less money.
> Mary Miles Minter receives $60,000 a picture, said Mr. Brandt, and Katherine MacDonald $50,000. She makes about four a year. Wallace Reid gets a salary of $4,500 a week, Rudolph Valentino $3,500 and William Farnum $10,000, he said.

Back in 1922 exhibitors wanted to get big returns from cheap pictures. They still do. The producers are in the same boat, but they haven't exactly figured out how it can be done.

In 1922 exhibitor leaders told the world about it. In 1938 Harry Brandt impersonates history in its well-known act of repeating itself.

Industry Able To Solve Own Problem: Kent

20th-Fox Head Hails End Of Grading Fight

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, May 12.—"I have still an abiding faith in the good sense of the motion picture business to be able to settle its problems without recourse to the Board of Trade or other outside bodies," Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, declared here today, commenting on the amicable settlement of the serious grading dispute between the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association and the Kinematograph Renters' Society.

Mr. Kent spoke at the opening of the company's new offices here in Soho Square, in conjunction with the English sales meeting. In attendance were Francis Harley, in charge of English sales; Walter Hutchinson, foreign sales head, and Ben Miggins, Continental manager.

The 20th Century-Fox president told MOTION PICTURE DAILY it is still possible the company may rejoin the K. R. S., but on conditions. "We pulled out of the K. R. S. because we disagreed with certain policies. When these are amended we should rejoin,"

Press Books Pay

Lewis Alexander McKenzie, Warner branch manager in St. John — he was named Lewis because he was born on the Isle of Lewis in the Hebrides—here for the company's convention, told of a theatre in Nova Scotia which received a feature print with the last reel missing. He went on the stage and after apologizing to the audience read the synopsis of the missing reel from the press book.

Seasonal Film Buying Dying, Says Montague

after a national sales convention to do their buying for the ensuing season. They now buy product for a year or more at advantageous periods to guarantee themselves a continuous supply of films. Consequently, a great deal of selling continues throughout the entire year. Leading exhibitors buy on the basis of a company's ability to produce, rather than on seasonal announcements."

Mr. Montague will also advise the sales force that the company's decentralized sales control plan, established five years ago, will be broadened now to give increased sales authority and responsibility to the men in the field—district and branch managers and salesmen. Exhibitors have been found to favor this policy, and it has increased the flexibility of the distributor's operations, the company said.

Cohn Will Open Meet

The session here will be opened by Jack Cohn, vice-president. Mr. Montague's address will follow and will include, in addition to his discussion of sales policy, conferences on current product. The 1938-'39 production program will be presented to the meeting tomorrow.

Other speakers today will include Rube Jackter, assistant sales manager; Maurice Bergman, advertising and publicity director; Joseph McConville, foreign sales manager; Lou Rosenfeld, Canadian sales manager; Lou Weinberg and Louis Astor, circuit sales supervisors; Max Weisfeldt, short subjects sales manager; Al Seligman, accessories; Sam Liggett, non-theatrical activities, and Maurice Grad, sales promotion.

Madison Square Sues Universal Over Film

Madison Square Garden, Inc., filed suit yesterday in N. Y. Supreme Court against Universal for a permanent injunction, damages and accounting of profits of the picture "Idol of the Crowds," released here in December, 1937.

Madison Square Garden claims that Universal sent circulars to various exhibitors suggesting that they exploit the picture as being and containing authorized scenes of professional hockey games taken in Madison Square Garden. Universal, the plaintiff charges, further attempted to rent lobby space in the Garden in December, 1937, when the picture opened at the Central Theatre, in order that they might further deceive the public into believing that there was a definite tieup. The plaintiff contends that the pictures shown are unauthorized newsreel shots taken in the Detroit Arena, showing the Red Wings in action.

Hear Warner Plea Today

Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo will hear an application today of Warners to take written interrogatories in Los Angeles of F. Hugh Herbert, Erwin Gelsey, Jerome Kern, Oscar Hammerstein, II., Hal Wallis and Mervyn LeRoy in the $250,000 damage suit brought by Harry Armstrong and Richard H. Gerard, alleged composers of "Sweet Adeline," against Warners and M. Witmark & Sons, Inc., music publishers.

Bank Night Cause of Arrest in Wisconsin

FORT ATKINSON, Wis., May 12.—Walter Baier, operator of the Fort Theatre here, has been arrested on charges of conducting Bank Night. Warrants were issued by District Attorney H. M. Dakin, Watertown, and trial is scheduled for October.

Issuance of the warrants is the first indication that district attorneys intend starting prosecutions against exhibitors since an opinion by Attorney General O. S. Loomis a month ago in which he held Bank Night to be a violation of the state lottery laws.

Egypt, China Lead Drive

Egypt and China are leading the RKO foreign exchanges in the Ned E. Depinet Drive. G. E. Gregory manages the former and Leon Britton the latter. The two have piled up a lead of more than 40 per cent over quota, with one week to go. The Dutch East Indies office, headed by Louis Lioni, is third and Holland, managed by Max Westabbe is fourth, followed by Panama. Brazil and the Straits Settlements have billings of over 90 per cent.

Margaret Smith Dies

Private funeral services will be held today for Margaret Smith, stage veteran and recently an organizer and member of the headquarters' staff of Actors Equity Ass'n, who died suddenly on Wednesday at her Manhattan residence, 2020 Broadway. Miss Smith was prominent in wartime stage activities and was associated with the late Charles Frohman for many seasons.

Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 70
(20th Century-Fox)

A good variety of subjects, sprightly narration and discriminating editing make good entertainment of this release. In the lead position is the parade of New York's Chinese in celebration of their countrymen's war victories. Following in order in the "world events" section are pictures of California rice growers sowing their fields by airplane; Italian youth brigades in trial guard service, and Maine log drivers in action.

Ice skating on a Broadway night club stage gets a play in this release. Preliminaries of the Army air force eastern defense maneuvers are included, and the sports section delivers some shots of Max Schmeling and Joe Louis, of a new British speedboat and of the opening of the Pacific northwest yachting season. The latest in women's fashions is described by Vyvyan Donner and Helen Claire, and Lew Lehr finds whimsical inspiration in a bathing beauty sequence. Running time, 10½ minutes. F.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 268
(M-G-M)

Interest and entertainment are represented in this release. The Army air force maneuvers over New York City in advance of war games at Mitchell Field holds first position. There are shots of the Chicago baby whose affliction may cost its life or its sight; of New York's Chinese in a war "victory" celebration and collection drive; of Long Beach, Cal., bathing beauties in their own and grandma's beach styles; loggers in spring action on the Maine rivers; the proof that Walter Winchell was wrong when he said there were not pretty girls working for Uncle Sam in Washington; Joe Louis and Max Schmeling paving the way for their heavyweight title bout; society girls as jockeys at the Pimlico track, and Irene Dare, the youngest figure skater, in an exhibition of her skill.

Well photographed, narrated and edited, the reel is of average release merit. Running time, 8½ minutes. K.

Paramount News
Issue No. 81
(Paramount)

The Colan baby's operation in Chicago is built up as an interesting feature in this release, which handles a variety of subjects well. The Colan incident is made controversial, with views presented on similar occurrences in which two mothers decided against operations for their children. Shots of the baby itself must have been taken under difficult circumstances.

This issue has an "exclusive" on the training of a submarine crew which is swell. Other interesting clips are the Chinese anti-aggression parade in New York, young Italian cadets on sentry duty, Lindbergh's new home on the French coast and Joe Louis and Max Schmeling signing for their big fight. The only sports clip is one of the society girls racing at Pimlico. Running time, 9 mins. F.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 85
(RKO)

This issue is an agreeable assemblage of news events which have a particular interest for audiences in this country. A few of the items are unimportant but nevertheless diverting. Walter Winchell gets a bouquet of scallions from a dozen Washington girls who give him repudiating proof of his statement that there are no beautiful girls in the Government service. It is a good laugh.

The other material ranges from a freight train wreck on the Rock Island system to scenes of an ice-ballet at a night club on Broadway. In between there is a parade by residents of New York's Chinatown to raise funds for the conflict in the Orient; a marble-shooting tourney at a Tennessee school where the professor takes over the school champ; digging of the San Jacinto Tunnel in California; the food crisis in Cleveland with the needy waiting on lines for emergency food supplies; the Army Air Corps maneuvering above New York City and girl jockeys pounding the bangtails home at Pimlico. Running time, 8 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 666
(Universal)

Three spectacular subjects make this issue unusually interesting. One of these is a parade of Chinese residents of New York downtown, with girls carrying a tremendous flag and with varied Oriental floats for decorative effect. Another is a flight of Army planes over New York photographed from the air, and the third is a night fireworks display as a preview of the World's Fair.

There is plenty of variety in the remaining nine clips of the issue. Navy, Army and Interior Department officials are shown leaving the White House after the helium conference, the start of a slum clearance project at Youngstown is presented, the oldest and newest electric locomotives on the New Haven Railroad move on adjoining tracks, Government girl office workers prove to Walter Winchell they are good looking, a streamlined auto turns from an open car into a closed model while running along a mountain road, a five-year-old girl does some fancy skating, Max Schmeling and Joe Louis sign for their next fight, and women jockeys race at Pimlico.

The closing number is extremely funny. It's a wrestling match between two tremendously fat men. Running time, 9½ minutes. J.

Hollywood Preview

"Blind Alibi"
(RKO)

Hollywood, May 12.—Soundly blending theatrical elements which make for interesting entertainment, possessed of an emotional quality which plays upon the more sentimental sensibilities and introducing a novel idea, "Blind Alibi" looks like a picture that should attract considerable attention. Not a big picture, but one that treats a subject that has rarely been touched, the story is well written, competently acted and intelligently directed.

Learning that his sister, Frances Mercer, is being blackmailed because of indiscreet letters which she has written, Richard Dix determines to save her honor even if its costs his own reputation and freedom. An attempted burglary, a murder and the plottings of two rival gangs animate the early action, which occurs in Paris. Dix learns that the letters have been secreted in a consignment of art objects destined for a Los Angeles museum. Following and being followed, he decides the only way he can get them is by a ruse. He poses as a blind sculptor who can work only through the sense of feeling and is guided by a seeing-eye dog, Ace, a remarkably trained animal whose talent is displayed in sequences illustrating how such dogs are trained and function. The dog is almost as important as Dix and the other human principals in working out the melodramatic and suspenseful details of the plot, which, of course, has a romantic contrast involving Dix and Whitney Bourne, a museum employe.

Dix gives one of his better performances and the dog is a continual source of interest. The other principals, Miss Bourne, Miss Mercer, Eduardo Ciannelli, Paul Guilfoyle, Richard Lane, Frank M. Thomas, Walter Miller, Tommy Bupp, Solly Ward and George Irving, contribute convincing performances. Based on a story by William Dowan, Scenarists Lionel Houser, Harry Segall and Ron Ferguson, and Director Lew Landers, addressed their efforts not only toward turning out a film that would be uniquely entertaining, but one which includes unusual exploitation possibilities.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Svenska Mileage

When Sam Cohen of United Artists warms up his air cooled typewriter equipped with an asbestos ribbon the resultant verbiage is terrific. Here it is.

There is no stopping that raging "Hurricane"! The havoc the picture creates on the screen pales into insignificance alongside the wreckage of broken records the Goldwynner is piling up in the theatre around the world.

In the town of Ostersund where "The Hurricane" was being shown with conspicuous success, a villager who had heard and read about the film was fired with such enthusiasm that, in order to see it, he walked 24 Swedish miles—the equivalent of 150 English miles. Shades of the ancient Marathon runners!

Industry Able To Solve Own Problem: Kent

he declared. He also said 20th Century-Fox has no intention of opening its own theatre here, commenting that the British trade already has more than enough theatres.

A general feeling of intense relief pervaded the industry today as a result of the armistice in the grading fight. A more stable and lasting peace between exhibitor and distributor is confidently anticipated as a result of the joint conferences which will be carried forward. The role played by Mr. Kent in holding aloof from the grading squabble and in talking plainly to both exhibitors and distributors is credited in many quarters with having exerted a strong influence in bringing about the settlement.

Griffiths Asks Joint Drive

D. E. Griffiths, president of the K. R. S., today expressed the desire for a joint trade campaign designed to attract a larger percentage of the public to the theatre. He declared his belief that the common good of both branches can be assisted by collaborative action.

No date has been set as yet for joint conferences. Following Mr. Kent's lead, the exhibitors will seek a lasting settlement. It is felt that the conciliatory move of the distributors in part at least was impelled by a desire to avoid the publicity attendant upon the arbitration of the problem before the Films Council.

Ken Nyman, president of the C. E. A., declared, "I am happy at the results, not so much because of the suspension of grading as because the trade has found a way to settle its differences in negotiation and discussion. I join with Sidney Kent in hoping that the peace will not be a Versailles Treaty but a permanent settlement."

speed as black and white negative and with no requirements for special lighting.

Several of the scenes presented yesterday were outdoor shots made under varying light conditions. Others were indoor camera tests, some with strong colors and others with tints. The effects were pleasing, but some of the backgrounds seemed to be slightly fuzzy at times.

Mr. Brewster and Judge John Evans, his counsel, intend to leave for the coast today to show the films to producers and negotiate for construction of a laboratory on the coast.

Revolving mirrors, instead of prisms, are used in the cameras. The pictures on the positive film are printed photographically and then developed to form silver images, which are converted, chemically, into transparent mordant images. These are then treated with basic dyes. At present all the processing has to be done at Newark.

Ad Films Expected In Australia Soon

American advertising films will be shown in Australia in the near future, it was said yesterday by Clyde Wilson Reid. Mr. Reid recently was appointed Melboure representative of Alexander Film Co. Following a three-month visit here Mr. Reid will return to Australia and handle the introduction of commercial screen advertising. It was also learned yesterday that the method of handling screen advertising matter abroad is to have a representative contact theatres and obtain bookings. Mr. Reid shortly will leave for Hollywood and will embark for home from there.

Delay Neely Bill Pending Aviation Measure Disposal

aviation measure is disposed of, which may be tomorrow.

Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney of the M.P.P.D.A., pointed out in a statement issued yesterday that inaccuracies, omissions and unsound elements which entered into the drafting of the Neely bill four years ago never have been corrected and remain in the body of the measure.

Referring to the voided order of the Federal Trade Commission of 1927, which was incorporated almost verbatim in the Neely bill, Mr. Hess declares that "is a clear reason for refusing to enact their proposal into a criminal statute."

He cites, as well, the admissions of those who drafted the measure that they had no experience with the industry, consulted no one connected with it and had no advice on the practices of the industry, and points out that errors in the language of the bill which were identified two years ago have not been corrected yet.

In view of this, Mr. Hess contends, copies of the testimony at the subcommittee hearings on the bill two years ago are useless to present members of the Senate, many of whom were new to that body this year. New hearings on the Senate bill, he states, are required now.

Guild Split Aim of Producers—Capra

gaining pact were started anew by the producers themselves. Outlining various meetings of producer-director committees, Mr. Capra said: "We had no intimation you desired to commence negotiations only upon the condition that assistants withdraw from the guild, or desired to utilize the discussion merely for the purpose of forwarding to us a carbon copy of an ultimatum rejected by us some eight or nine months before."

Mr. Capra referred to last year's talks of guild groups with producers in which studio heads expressed willingness to negotiate a pact only on condition that directors divorce themselves from assistant directors and unit managers and each classification bargain separately. Mr. Capra's letter climaxed several days of statement issuing. The next move is due at a meeting of junior guild members with the outgoing senior board, at which time junior members who include assistant directors and unit managers are expected to reaffirm their stand for complete unity. New officers are to be chosen Sunday night by the senior guild.

Bernarr MacFadden in today's newspapers will insert paid advertising "regretfully" announcing that the broadcast originally scheduled for tonight's True Story Magazine program on NBC will not be presented because of the network's ruling which "prohibits controversial subjects on commercial programs." The program was to have been based on a story in the magazine entitled "Our Money-Mad Doctors." A substitute program will be heard tonight.

At NBC it was said that the network had known that the advertisement would be inserted in the papers, having been told by Mr. MacFadden himself. The network said that it would have been impossible to present "Money-Mad Doctors" on the air because of its subject matter.

Congress Considers Propaganda Station

Washington, May 12.—Senate and House committees today turned their attention to the establishment of Government radio stations to broadcast propaganda to South America, with a hearing on the Chavez-McAdoo bill for construction of a $3,000,000 Government station near San Diego before a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee, while the House Naval Affairs Committee announced it would hold a hearing next Monday on the Senate bill for a Government station in Washington.

A struggle to propagandize Latin America is being waged by European nations, it was declared by Albert K. Dawson, cruise lecturer, who related his observations of radio activities both in Europe and the Far East. The United States, he said, "is missing a very good bet if we do not get in with a Government station and start pounding away."

Ninety per cent of motion pictures shown in Latin America are the product of this country, which has given us an enormous advantage and prestige, of which Europe is highly envious, he pointed out, providing a basis for propaganda broadcasts. In the East, Italy has supplied free receivers in Syria and Palestine which are "fixed" so that only the programs of Italian propaganda can be received, he told the committee.

Others who appeared at the hearing were Lieutenant Commander Jennings Bryan Dow; Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio section of the National Bureau of Standards, and Lieut. E. K. Jett of the F.C.C..

Mr. McFarlane claimed to have information proving the existence of criminal conspiracy as charged by him at today's hearing. He drew from Chairman O'Connor of New York an admission that a radio monoply exists, and he also asserted all 40 of the cleared channels and almost all the regional high power stations "are owned, controlled or operated in the interests of the radio monopoly."

A TRAVELER returned from the hike to Hollywood to cover the opening of the KNX studios tells how Jo Ranson, radio editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, became the fashion plate of Hollywood by virtue of M-G-M's wardrobe department. Jo took along little else but a toothbrush, intending to stock up upon his arrival. But Perry Charles of M-G-M, a pal of the New York scribes from the days when he was publicity director of WHN, refused to allow Jo to spend a dime on clothes purchases. He turned him over to M-G-M's wardrobe department, where Jo was outfitted with a couple of dozen sport, dress and business suits, and all the necessary additional accoutrements, including shoes, hats, socks, golf clubs and tennis racquets, etc.

Mr. Kenny, while journeying westward, learned that the party of service was to stop in Chicago to attend a party arranged by WBBM, at which Edgar Guest was to be the "em cee." Thereupon Mr. Kenny was up half of the night on the ride to Chicago, writing poems by the dozen, which he subsequently read to Guest.

"Information, Please," is to be a new presentation on NBC. The program will be a quiz series, but it will differ from others in that a jury of noted figures will be asked to supply the answers to questions, not the audience. The foreman of this noted jury will be Franklyn P. Adams of newspaper column fame.

At the audition, one of the NBC program heads, testing the reputed all-comprehensive knowledge of the jury, addressed several lines of a poem to "F.P.A.," and asked him to name the author of the verse. Adams finally admitted he was stumped.

The author of the poem, in case you haven't guessed it yet, was "F.P.A."

Columbia Sets Record Budget On New Films

Cash Reserve High, Cohn Tells Sales Meeting

Columbia's production budget for the 1938-'39 season will exceed by at least $2,500,000 the company's highest previous expenditure for product, Jack Cohn, vice-president, told the company's eastern regional sales conference which opened at the Warwick yesterday.

No rigid budget limitation will be set, the meeting was told, but the company's cash reserve for production purposes will be ample to provide sufficient financing at all times for any picture which merits a supplementary outlay in excess of its original estimated cost.

"Because many an excellent story idea has been ruined in an attempt to conform to a definite budget measurement," Mr. Cohn said, "the company's policy will be based on the merit of individual films. Their box-office worth will be the guide for the studio

'Ridiculous,' Says Schenck, Of ITOA's Attack on Stars

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox, struck back at the I.T.O.A. attack on Hollywood stars "who are poison at the box-office," on his arrival from Florida last night with Nicholas M. Schenck, president of M-G-M.

"The exhibitors' statement was ridiculous," he said. "How can any exhibitor, on the basis of what a picture does at his theatre, know how it does generally? He has to have more information than his own box-office receipts to gauge the drawing power of stars.

"Why, the very stars that they attacked have made money for them, and the pictures, too. 'Stage Door,' for example. Try to take those pictures away from them and see how loudly they will squawk.

"Statements of that kind don't do the business any good and they harm those who make them. They boomerang."

Mr. Schenck said that his company's business is improving and that "the second quarter is better than the first." He said he plans to sail June 1 with Darryl F. Zanuck, head of 20th Century-Fox production, and that they will visit London, Paris and Budapest. Mr. Zanuck is due to play some polo matches in England. Mr. Schenck said they will be abroad two months, but he was not certain whether he would return with Mr. Zanuck.

Nicholas M. Schenck returned with Mrs. Schenck after closing their Miami home for the summer. He said he was "feeling fine." The party was met upon its arrival at the Pennsylvania Station by C. C. Moskowitz of Loew's and Joe Moskowitz of 20th Century-Fox.

RKO May Not Hold Sales Meet—Levy

RKO may hold no new season sales meeting this year because of the continuing contact between home office sales officials and the men in the field during the past several months in which the Ned E. Depinet sales drive has been in progress, Jules Levy, sales manager, said yesterday.

Mr. Levy returned this week from eight weeks of visits to branches in all parts of the country. The drive closed yesterday. Walter Branson, drive manager, and Cresson E. Smith, district manager, returned with him. Mr. Levy said that while he did not see the necessity for an annual sales meeting at this time conferences might be held late in June if the situation was changed by then. He pointed out that RKO still has 14 pictures to deliver on current season's contracts before work begins on the 48 planned for 1938-'39.

His releasing arrangement with M-G-M will be formally ended with the completion of two more features starring Laurel and Hardy.

The second will be "Topper Takes a Trip." Four Laurel and Hardy films will be produced each year under the terms of the new contract.

Bank Night to Seek Stay on Mailing Ban

The appeal procedure by Affiliated Enterprises, copyright owner of Bank Night, in the case in which the Post-office Department barred the company from the use of the mails, is being worked out with the department in Washington, and the papers are now expected to be filed by the middle of next week.

John M. Keating, attorney for Bank Night, had planned to ask for a rehearing, but under the procedure being formulated an application for an injunction may be filed instead. Whatever method is decided upon, it will be by mutual agreement between Affiliated and the department.

Goldstein to Sue 20

Edward Goldstein, local Bank Night ditsributor, said yesterday that he has instructed counsel to proceed with suits against 20 exhibitors in New Jersey to collect royalties due. The first action, expected to be brought early next week, will be against a Newark exhibitor. Subsequent actions, he said, will be for copyright infringement.

Mr. Goldstein said that when an attempt was made to file such suits against New Jersey exhibitors in the New York courts, they were rejected on the ground of lack of jurisdiction. The contemplated actions follow a decision of a New Jersey court holding Bank Night not a lottery.

Ask Full Court to Hear Case

Kansas City, May 13.—Charles M. Miller and Fred Bellemere, attorneys for R. W. McEwan, Bank Night distributor, have filed a motion in the Supreme Court of Missouri asking the court en banc to hear the McEwan Bank Night case. Earlier this week the court's second division turned down a motion for rehearing. That divison previously had delivered an opinion in which Bank Night was asserted to involve the element of consideration and therefore to be in violation of the lottery statute of the state. In delivering the opinion, the division reversed the decision of Judge Marion D. Waltner's Circuit Court here.

Only one theater in the Kansas City area is using the promotion.

Mexico City, May 13.—"Mad About Music," Universal film, established a new gross record for an opener, $3,500, at the select Cine Teatro Alameda. The film is now in its second week and may go into a third at the same stand.

Warners Intervene In Labor Board Case

Los Angeles, May 13.—Further complicating the case and delaying the long awaited National Labor Relations Board decision on the petition of the Screen Writers Guild for an election to determine film writers' bargaining agency. Warners have received permission to file written briefs supporting the company's contention that the NLRB has no jurisdiction in film matters.

Nathan Witt, executive secretary of the national board, has given the company's attorneys until May 19 to file the briefs.

The case was reopened last week in Los Angeles to permit the guild to enter additional information concerning its recent incorporation as a California organization and on its new by-laws under which it has been granted complete autonomy from the Authors League of America.

Seek London Strike End

London, May 13.—New moves have been started aiming at an end to the projectionists' strike. The Electrical Trades Union wants the men returned to work, and has offered to meet the C. E. A. on condition the union be recognized and the 48-hour week be discussed. The exhibitors insist that the strike be called off and the men returned to work prior to arbitration of the dispute. No theatres were closed during the strike.

Cuban Producer Here To Secure Equipment

Dr. Oscar Zayas, editor and publisher of Avance, Cuban newspaper, and produce of "Sucedió en Habana," all-Cuban production, is at present in New York.

Dr. Zayas' trip is for the purpose of purchasing studio equipment for the plant he is erecting in the outskirts of Havana.

"The future of the Latin-American motion picture," states Dr. Zayas, "is the typical Cuban, Argentine or Mexican product. We should never attempt to compete with Hollywood in producing international subjects, but, instead, if the three leading Latin producers concentrate on vernacular stories, there is no doubt that the interchange will reach considerable proportions in the near future."

"Sucedió en la Habana," a musical featuring an all-Cuban cast, headed by Rita Montaner, Cuba's outstanding singing star, has been produced at a cost in the neighborhood of $80,000, and will be ready for release next month.

expenditure. This elastic budget will permit Columbia to spend sums in excess of its highest expenditures of the past, knowing that a good picture has never yet found its top at the box-office."

Mr. Cohn urged the necessity for production of pictures which "entertain," declaring that "preachment" and "propaganda" should be shunned by the producer.

"The American film industry is fortunate," he said, "in that it has no other obligation than to produce pictures for entertainment. They need fear no edict from officialdom that Government propaganda must take precedence over entertainment. There is no 'must' from on high, except the industry's self-imposed obligation to produce the best in entertainment, in good taste, for every member of the family. In it, there is no hint of despotism or fear."

Montague in the Chair

A. Montague, Columbia general sales manager, presided at the meeting which is attended by about 80 sales representatives from the home office, eastern branches and Canada. Current releases and exchange operations were discussed during the day and the entire delegation attended last night's performance of "Golden Boy," which will be made into a picture for new season release by Columbia.

Mr. Montague will announce the company's 1938-'39 production schedule at today's meeting. The sessions will close tomorrow with district managers' conferences.

The film is scheduled for Columbia release.

Comment at Columbia

JACK COHN is beginning to feel like an absentee landlord, he's been away from his Katonah farm so long. And it'll be another two weeks or so before he gets back to the cows and the chickens upstate.

ABE MONTAGUE was wishing he'd brought his Leica along to take some candid shots of the boys. Incidentally, Columbia's general sales manager is getting professional values into his pictures, judging by some he showed around.

RUBE JACKTER was over early to greet the arrivals from out-of-town and to put across a couple of personal pep talks to get the boys in trim for the goings-on during the sales sessions.

Not because he likes golf less, but because he likes a Columbia convention more, LOUIS ASTOR gave up his weekend on the course without a grumble.

MAURICE BERGMAN, the ad specialist, made many new friends and met a lot of old ones at the meeting.

ART LEVY, the Pittsburgh branch manager, took a good look at the sun—after weeks of Pittsburgh fog—and said: "So that's what it looks like!"

LOU ROSENFELD and DAVE COPLAN, coming in from Canada, had a couple of Canuck stories that hit the spot with most of the boys.

The busiest man at the Hotel Warwick was HANK KAUFMAN, who again handled the arrangements for the various sales meetings. Hank's diplomatic assignment of rooms to the visiting sales staffs had the boys cheering his thoughtfulness.

AL SELIGMAN, the philatelist, offered to exchange stamps with any other stamp collector in the crowd, if any.

AL SHERMAN and BILL BRENNAN went into a huddle to determine the relative merits of a bacardi and a martini. Both lost.

MILT HANNOCK was a figure of sartorial elegance, featuring a tie that looked like an exploitation tieup with Ireland.

MORT WORMSER and W. C. SHARPE, comptroller and assistant comptroller, came over from the home office to renew friendships.

JOE MILLER, unlike his famous namesake, didn't spring an old joke all the way down from Buffalo to Manhattan. Instead, Joe had a couple of new gags that should be around Broadway in no time.

$3,000,000, which would make it the best in the company's history. He said that the only major circuit with which RKO had been unable to close a deal for the picture was the Saenger Circuit and asserted that it was not being double featured anywhere. As soon as he learned that several houses of the Sparks Circuit, Florida, were double featuring "Snow White," he protested and the practice was stopped at once, he said.

Laboratories, Inc., Garrison Film Distributors, Inc., and Alladin Pictures Corp. with a $5,000 damage suit of Gustave Schwab against the same defendants and ordering a join trial for both actions was upheld by the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. At the same time a decision denying the dismissal of the Schwab action was also upheld.

Says President Roosevelt Favors Short Wave Station

WASHINGTON, May 13.—President Roosevelt is behind plans for the construction of a Government broadcasting station to counteract European radio propaganda in Latin America, it was said today by Representative Carl Vinson (Dem.) of Georgia, chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, which on Monday will begin hearings on the Celler bill authorizing construction of such a station by the Navy Department at a cost of $700,000.

The President on Tuesday discussed the South American radio situation with Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Communications Commission, which is preparing a report for submission to the White House in which it is said the need for American propaganda broadcasts will be strongly stressed.

The President is understood to have been told by McNinch that the report will make no recommendations as to whether the Government or private interests should operate the proposed propaganda stations. However, committee members said, he may indicate his approval of plans for a Government owned station operated under Federal supervision.

Construction of a Government station is also proposed in bills pending in the Senate, on which an interstate commerce sub-committee held a hearing yesterday and will receive further testimony next week.

Grumbling in IATSE Ranks Reported Here

Some Say It Will Reach Convention Floor

A rank and file attack on the executive administration and policies of the I.A.T.S.E. is reported to be gaining momentum and, according to reports circulating in New York union circles, is scheduled to flare at the organization's biennial convention to be held in Cleveland during the week of June 6.

It is probable, however, that the incipient "rebellion" will be squelched prior to the convening of the 1,000 delegates from more than 700 locals in the United States and Canada. In fact, those who are talking about a "revolt" are saying that they do not expect it to have much chance of getting anywhere at the forthcoming conclave, but they feel that it will "start

Revision of Plan for RKO Will Require New Hearings

The amended plan of reorganization for RKO, which will be presented to Federal Judge William Bondy today, is expected to be referred back to a special master to be designated by the court for new hearings, it was stated by principals in the reorganization on Saturday.

The extent of the amendments brings into being what is virtually a new plan, thus nullifying to a major extent the hearings and their results which were held on the original plan of November, 1936, before Special Master George Alger last year, it was pointed out. If the reorganizers succeed in obtaining sessions throughout the summer before a special master, the reorganization should be well advanced by next fall, it was said.

With the elimination by the plan of any secured indebtedness in the form of new RKO debentures, and the suspension for one year after the company's reorganization of dividends on the new six per cent preferred stock, a saving of approximately $2,150,000 in fixed charges against the new company is effected during the first year, and of approximately $990,000 annually thereafter. Dividends on the outstanding preferred stock after the first year will amount to approximately $1,112,000. This, however, will be progressively decreased in accordance

Industry Linen Hanging Out, But It's Better That Way, He Says

By IRENE KUHN

Monday, being the proverbial washday, another mess of motion picture socks and cuffs was hung out on the line today by Harry Brandt, president of the ITOA.

Last week it was the stars; this week it's double features. Next week, "What Everybody Knows."

Mr. Brandt explains the reasons for his crusade.

"The 240 and more theatres in the I.T.O.A. are doing the worst business since they've been in business; worse even than 1933 when everyone was feeling the bumps.

"We're not obstructionists nor Bolsheviks, but business men who are trying to maintain business at a proper level. Anything that hurts the business hurts us. So we decided on this course."

Queried on whether he didn't consider it poor psychology to invite an already sales-resistant picture going public into a family fight, Mr. Brandt declared that he neither expected nor intended that the row should spread out into the newspapers, but that so with the conversion of the preferred into common stock, at the rate of one for eight, during the eight-year period proposed in the plan.

The consent of the secured creditors, that is, the holders of RKO's present debentures, to stepping down from a secured to an unsecured creditor's position, makes the plan possible. If these creditors had insisted upon receiving new debentures for their present holdings there is little likelihood that a plan could have been completed at this time. For relinquishing their secured position they will receive a bonus of approximately two shares of new common, with an indicated market value of $8 to $12 per share for each $100 of their claims. They will also receive an additional three shares of new common in payment of back interest of about $30 on their old debentures.

Their acceptance of an unsecured creditor's position in the reorganization also averts what might have been a prolonged legal contest over the present debentures' claim to a secured position. The RKO debentures have a second lien only on assets pledged to secure the company's outstanding gold notes. The legal question was raised some time ago as to whether the debentures would continue to enjoy a secured position after the gold notes have been finally retired next Sept. 1. Insistence of the debenture holders on a secured position probably would have provoked a court contest over the question which would have indefinitely delayed reorganization.

the ball rolling" for the eventual establishment of reforms.

Union men are aroused over what they call lack of "democracy" in the administration of the union, which has a total membership of some 50,000. They want the I.A.T.S.E. "streamlined" and young blood infused into key positions. They also want a greater voice for the locals in the conduct of the International.

Talk to that effect is being heard among members in New York and Hollywood. There is something of a controversy between those who would retain the status quo and those who would change it. The matter, too, seems to be involved in intra-union politics.

George E. Browne, international president, is said to be fully aware of the situation. The criticism is being leveled chiefly at him and his policies.

Call I. A. Undemocratic

Mr. Browne's critics charge there is no democracy in the I.A.T.S.E. because elections of officers are held only once every four years, with the rank and file given a voice only through their elected delegates at conventions, which are held every two years. In between time the president and the executive board run the organization.

In New York, members of Operators' Local 306 and Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians' Union, Local 702, predict a demand for more democratic procedure will be made on the convention floor. Some of the men would like to revamp the executive board setup and the method of elections.

Autonomy is another issue that is expected to come up at the Cleveland convention, on behalf of four locals on the west coast which were taken over by the I.A.T.S.E. following last year's studio strike. These are the Studio Mechanics, Local 37; Cameramen, Local 659; Laboratory Technicians, Local 683, and Sound Technicians, Local 659.

Seek 16mm. Unionization

Local 306 delegates are expected to insist that the International back up its efforts to unionize 16mm projectionists here and elsewhere as a means of relieving the unemployment problem among members. The I.A.T.S.E. executive board started a move in this direction last winter, but it has been ineffectual, it is claimed. Local 306 has long demanded control of non-theatrical projection, including schools, exhibitions, the showing of industrial and commercial films, and the like.

The New York local also wants jurisdiction over projectionists employed in film laboratories, a dispute having arisen with the Laboratory Technicians' Union here. The latter concedes jurisdiction to the operators' group over projectionists employed where audiences are present, but reserves for itself control over men who are members of laboratory staffs, despite the operators' claim to every worker who mans a projector.

Brandt Shifts His Attack From Stars to Dual Bills

long as it was out he wasn't going to retreat. He gave the impression that he was glad to have the fight kicking around in public view, for he spoke enthusiastically of the thousands of letters he has received commending the I.T.O.A. stand as 90 per cent right and gratuitously adding a public grievance against double features.

In an attempt to find out who killed Single Feature Cock Robin, Mr. Brandt was asked who started the double feature.

"Loew's circuit started it," he said. "They'll say that they did so only after a few independent theatres had begun it in 1925."

At this point we'll jump across from Mr. Brandt's large picture-hung office in the Globe Theatre Building on Broadway to C. C. Moskowitz's office in Loew's.

"The Loew circuit, as a circuit, was the last to go to double features," said Mr. Moskowitz. The date was September, 1935. I wish everyone in New York had single features for the reason that shows would be infinitely better. I have advocated, and this company has advocated, single features in this territory for years. But so long as everyone else plays double features we will, too.

Loew's Would Kill Duals

"We'd like to do away with them. How? There's only one way to accomplish it—a united front, but I don't know how to get a united front."

It is a well known fact that repeated efforts to eliminate dual bills in this territory have been made by circuits and have been blocked by the independents. The circuits have always said they were willing to join any agreement. On one occasion, the I. T. O. A. and some of the smaller circuits refused to go along unless Loew's and RKO reduced admissions on the ground that the smaller theatres couldn't compete with the prior runs of the circuits. Some time back Loew's made an effort to make the "giveaways" useless to the independents by running drawings with high-stake prizes for groups of their theatres. The police stepped in.

Returning to the energetic and articulate Mr. Brandt:

"Double features have forced a competitive situation which has brought the New York City admission price down to the lowest anywhere in the United States—17¾ cents average. Until a short time ago it was as low as 17¼ cents."

In the Audubon, which Mr. Brandt operates, the 20-cent admission price at night (a dime during the day) goes to 15 cents, beginning today.

Where do we go from here, Mr. Brandt?

Brandt Asks Cooperation

"Our group has decided that we'll diligently and aggressively go after the elimination of the double feature. The I. T. O. A. members can't do it unless the others join in. If we can get Loew's and RKO to start it, we can get every other circuit in New York to go along."

And about the future?

"I'm going to do something a good deal more drastic than the Neely-Pettengill bill, if something doesn't come out of conciliation. I intend to go a good deal further. Our action will have protective ability so that the exhibitor will know he is going to be able to live.

"We'll continue this advertising and we'll try to keep up serious discussions with producers, distributors and allied exhibitors. These conferences should eventually provoke some plan to eliminate the double feature. Throw it out and you'll throw out 75 per cent of the box-office woes. The other 25 per cent can be shown by showmanship. No independent exhibitor is afraid of showmanship. I say if an exhibitor can stay in business under present conditions, he's one hell of a good showman. Excuse it, please."

Muto Skeptical of Rift in the Ranks

WASHINGTON, May 15.—"They have all the democracy any labor union ever had or ever will have," was the comment of Tony Muto, publicity aide to George E. Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E., on reports that a move to democratize the Alliance is brewing.

While admitting that he "knew nothing of intra-union politics," he scouted reports of a rift between the executive officers and the rank and file.

Regarding the defeat of James Brennan for reelection as president of Theatrical Protective Union No. 1 in New York, Mr. Muto said that local disputes entered into the election and that the result could not be taken as indicative of the members' feelings toward International officers or policies.

Mr. Muto said that the Hollywood locals operated by the Alliance "had a chance to get autonomy" but turned it down by a referendum in which 13,000 ballots were cast, only 82 affirmative.

Paramount Sues for Income Tax Excess

Shea as administrator of the estate of Charles W. Anderson, former Collector of Internal Revenue for the third New York district, has been named defendant.

In its consolidated report for 1931 Paramount included a $1,335,452 profit which represented distribution [illegible] the parent company by the Canadian Paramount Corp., Ltd., of the stock of Famous Players Canadian Corp. It is claimed that the Canadian subsidiary included the profit in its return and that duplicating taxes were paid.

The 1931 consolidated report of Paramount showed a gross income of $125,393,526, with $15,639,934 net. A tax of $1,741,045 was paid. The suit seeks the return of the overpayment with interest from December, 1931.

BBC to Let Theatres Hear Command Show

LONDON, May 15.—The British Broadcasting Co. has agreed to permit command performances on the radio to be heard in film houses. The radio company also has agreed to the replacement of the customary evening command radio show with Saturday matinees, but royal assent will be necessary before that becomes a fact.

Exhibitors throughout England have been objecting vigorously for a long time to the command radio performance, generally held in the evening. It invariably occurred that, on the evening of the broadcast, the great majority of the public remained at home beside the radio, instead of taking its entertainment via the theatre's box-office.

Chorus Election Set Pending Merger Talk

Despite plans now in work for the amalgamation of Chorus Equity Ass'n. with Actors Equity, which is expected to be completed within the next few months, the chorus organization has scheduled its customary annual election of officers June 3 at the Center Hotel.

The ticket prepared by the nominating committee consists of Paul Dullzell, for chairman of the executive committee, and Gerald Moore, for recording secretary. Nominees for three-year terms as councillors are Jack Barnes, Mary Brent, Margaret Henzel, Lili Mann, Helen Sanford, Norman Van Emburgh and Jean Woods. Nominees for council replacements for one year are Thomas Scott and Phil Shaw.

A basis for the amalgamation of the chorus organization will be discussed by its members at the meeting. Indications are that it will become a chorus division of Actors Equity rather than being completely absorbed. Dorothy Christianson, executive secretary of the chorus unit, plans to resign when the amalgamation has been completed. The chorus group's loss of jurisdiction of night club and presentation house performers to the American Federation of Actors this spring impelled the merger.

Friction Is Reported on Policy at Studio

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—Clarification or definition of his production authority will be asked by Charles R. Rogers at the special meeting of the company's board of directors in New York on Thursday, it was learned here today on good authority. The meeting was called at Mr. Rogers' request.

Griffis Says No Change at Para. Studio

Quiets Rumors Zukor to Return to New York

No executive changes of any kind are contemplated by Paramount at the studio, Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, reiterated yesterday in answer to persistent reports that Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board, would return to New York to make his headquarters at the home office again.

The reports were denied in advance of the departure of Mr. Griffis and Barney Balaban, Paramount president, for their three-week visit at the studio, from which they returned on Sunday, but were revived again recently.

Plans for most of the balance of the company's new season production schedule were completed during their studio visit, and with several of the company's more important pictures set to start immediately, activity at the studio will reach its highest peak in months this week. Eight pictures will be in work within the next few days, among them being "Men with Wings," "If I Were King," "Spawn of the North," and "Sing, You Sinners."

Mr. Griffis said that the subject of production costs was studied thoroughly and that, as a result, economies are expected wherever they can be realized without sacrifice of picture quality.

Hollywood Preview

"Holiday"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—With inspired acting, sensitive direction and high production values, Philip Barry's "Holiday" comes to the screen again as excellent entertainment. It is perhaps not a film to bring cheers from those preferring blood and thunder action, but it should win the approbation of all those appreciating a fine thing finely done.

Preserving the full spirit of the original play in the picture, following the same situations, and retaining large portions of Barry's dialogue, Donald Ogden Stewart and Sidney Buchanan, who did the screenplay, nevertheless have introduced lines which have modernized the story.

Produced and directed in the impressive style for which Everett Riskin and George Cukor are noted, "Holiday" is in the nature of a personal vindication for Katharine Hepburn, who turns in the kind of performance which first brought her to public attention. Excellent support is afforded by Lew Ayres, Cary Grant, Doris Nolan, Henry Kolker, Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Jean Dixon and Henry Daniel.

The theme concerns two rebellious, free souls, who refuse to worship the sacred cows of respectability and narrow tradition. Deeply in love with Doris Nolan, Grant wants her to marry him and enjoy life while both are young. Halted in his effort to convince Kolker, Miss Nolan's father, Grant finds a kindred spirit in Miss Hepburn, the older sister, and a sympathetic ally in Ayres, the brother. While Miss Barnes and Horton supply comedy material, Grant breaks with Miss Nolan and Kolker, and Miss Hepburn, whose love for her sister's fiance has always been evident but never obtrusive, rushes to join Grant. The catchline, "She went on her sister's honeymoon," still is entirely descriptive of the film's entertainment character.

Smart showmanship should impart considerable popular appeal to the film.

Running time, 95 minutes. "G."

Loew's Stockholder Suits Consolidated

A decision consolidating the seven separate stockholders' actions against Loew's, Inc., was granted yesterday in N. Y. Supreme Court by Justice Aaron J. Levy. The consolidated actions are to be tried on the suit brought originally by Bernard Epstein against officers and directors of the corporation.

Emil K. Ellis, Epstein's attorney, is to act as attorney for all the plaintiffs. Epstein's case will hold its original position on the calendar. The suit was brought for an injunction and an accounting to restrain the officers and directors of Loew's, Inc., from paying themselves salaries and bonuses.

The personal service agreements were ratified Jan. 25. The stockholders claim that the salaries and bonuses were excessive and unreasonable, and suit was brought to set aside the agreements.

In addition to Mr. Epstein, the other stockholders suing are Arba Dike Faxon, Nicholas Lowy, Charles Alpert, Pearl R. Ginsburg, H. W. Goldstein and Hannah Helfer.

Justice Levy at the same time granted a motion for an examination before trial of the officers and directors of Loew's and for an inspection of the corporation's books. No date has been set for this, but it will be set in a few days.

Other members of the board are: Herbert Biberman, John Cromwell, John Ford, William K. Howard, Leo McCarey, Rouben Mamoulian, Lewis Milestone, Phil Rosen and William A. Wellman.

We just had to let 'em GO TO TOWN!

making motion picture musicals make SENSE and DOLLARS!

(An Advertisement for Paramount's "Cocoanut Grove")

• Recently there has been widespread criticism in the trade of "clambake musicals" "Clambake musicals" are big vaudeville shows with lots of music, lots of girls, lots of gags... but practically no human interest, no heart punch, no real story. What this industry has been demanding, needing, is a new formula for motion picture musicals. And Paramount, ever a pioneer in picture enterprise, has succeeded in discovering that formula, creating that kind of picture.

Paramount's "COCOANUT GROVE" has music, a good share of it among the finest tunes turned out by Hollywood's musical colony in the past two years. "Says My Heart" and "You Leave Me Breathless" will definitely rank with such hits as "Thanks for the Memory". "COCOANUT GROVE" has a strong marquee lineup . Fred MacMurray, Harriet Hilliard, one of the top names of radio, the Yacht Club Boys, Ben Blue, Rufe Davis, Billy Lee, Eve Arden. "COCOANUT GROVE" has the necessary elements for a big time musical picture.

But "COCOANUT GROVE" is more than a musical picture. "COCOANUT GROVE" has story, one of the finest human interest stories the screen has seen this year... the true-to-life adventures of a swing band, a kid they adopt, and the girl who adopts them. From start to finish, "COCOANUT GROVE" holds your interest by the heart tugging story itself. The dances, the tunes, the music are not just tossed in. They are natural parts of the plot itself. At no time does any song or act seem unreal or "just stuck in" to pep up the show.

We have screened "COCOANUT GROVE" for hardboiled exhibitors, many of whom have been frankly skeptical about the possibility of creating a new and more successful musical motion picture formula. To a man, they have praised "COCOANUT GROVE". Audiences at public previews have said the same.

"COCOANUT GROVE" marks the beginning of a new era in the musical motion picture. Book it and you'll soon see why.

COCOANUT GROVE

In "Cocoanut Grove", the new Paramount comedy-romance with music, starring Fred MacMurray with Harriet Hilliard, The Yacht Club Boys, Ben Blue, Rufe Davis, Billy Lee and Eve Arden, we tried something completely different in musical shows. We decided that plot and characterization, in short—one whale of a good story—came first. And we made tunes, gags, dances fit neatly and convincingly into our plot structure... That is... until the last reel. Then the Yacht Club Boys and Ben Blue got a few ideas of their own. The Yacht Club Boys showed up on the lot dressed as Four of the Three Musketeers, and started putting the heat on Ben Blue. Well, frankly, it was too funny to leave out of the picture. So be prepared, when you screen Paramount's "Cocoanut Grove", not only for the first musical show to make plot, story, human interest the central points of the picture... but for one terrific laugh session with America's favorite comics in what you'll be the first to agree are the laughingest antics they've ever devised.

Allied May Settle Conciliation Row

freely discussed the possibility that Allied will take a stand for conciliation with provisos for "the preservation of the independents' rights" and are interested in the major distributors' apparent endorsement of such a program, but leave national policy up to the steering committee.

The directors, with Abram F. Myers, chairman of the board and Nathan Yamins, president, met tonight in private session to lay convention strategy. What that will be will be disclosed as the convention progresses.

The distributors' viewpoint on "conciliation and arbitration" will be given Wednesday afternoon by William F. Rodgers, M-G-M general sales manager, who is expected to hold out an olive branch. This will be one of the important addresses.

Yamins Asks "Propaganda"

In his message published in the convention program, Mr. Yamins declares that among matters "of utmost importance" is the "launching of propaganda that our problems are industry problems to be settled within the industry and not by Governmental regulation, and that industry leaders have expressed a willingness to set up conciliation boards or other machinery for the purpose." Independent exhibitors, he says, must "give expression to their conception of what rights they feel they are entitled to and, if we are to have 'conciliation boards,' how they are to be instituted and administered."

Mr. Yamins declares he is "firmly convinced" that at this convention "will be determined once and for all whether the independent exhibitor is to be allowed to continue in this industry with a due regard and respect for his rights as an exhibitor, or whether his rights, or what little is left of them, are to be further abridged to the point of extinction."

Myers, in his message, charges that "the highly organized producers-distributors are all set to pass on to the workers and the exhibitors the entire burden of the present calamitous business slump by the simple expedient of reducing production costs on the one hand and raising prices on the other." This alleged condition, he says, "calls for a plan of action which is the product of the best brains in exhibitor ranks."

The conclave will open tomorrow with an address of welcome by Mayor Cornelius Scully, and the presidential address by Mr. Yamins will follow. Other talks are scheduled by William Sussman, 20th Century-Fox eastern division manager; W. A. Steffes, Minneapolis, and H. M. Richey, Detroit.

Following, there will be an open forum on percentage, preferred playing time, double bills and independent poster exchanges. At night there will be a cabaret supper and dancing with entertainment provided by Warners Stanley Theatre.

pany stockholders yesterday. Dr. Kalmus also reported April business to be very good with shipments totaling 7,500,000 feet.

He also told the meeting of a new color process called Monapack, to be ready in a year and a half, which will eliminate the need of special cameras. The process at present is in laboratory research stages, he added. The Monapack process is being developed in conjunction with the Eastman Kodak Co. which has perfected it for 16mm. use.

The company has expanded its production activities so that it now can handle between 90,000,000 and 130,000,000 feet of film annually. So far this year 70,000,000 has been ordered. Dr. Kalmus said that a contract with Eastern Service Studios had recently been signed which will put a Technicolor unit into the Long Island studio. The service will be available in the east about July 1.

expiring United Artists commitment, he said. Seven or eight, in all, may be made for next season, he said, among them "Gone With the Wind," which will go before the cameras early next fall.

Henry Ginsberg, general manager of the company, also arrived in New York yesterday, coming from the coast by train. He described his visit as "routine" and said that he planned to return to the coast in "about a week." He added that Mr. Whitney was aware already of the recently approved profit-sharing participations for United Artists producers and the reduced charges for world distribution, declaring that his trip had nothing to do with these. These new arrangements, however, are regarded as influential factors in the reopening of Selznick International's negotiations for a new distributing deal with United Artists.

Hollywood Preview

"Hunted Men"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—One or all of the persons responsible for putting this picture together must have been good and tired of seeing gangsters represented as supermen, supermugs, super this and/or that, and determined to do something about it. The something he, she or they did is a fine microscopic study of the gunman as to cause, effect, temperamental motivation and end result. The enterprise was conducted with rare discrimination and full application of the motion picture's power to dissect a character, yet the treatment is unfailingly dramatic, honestly theatrical and, although in complete sense a study, never studied. It equals solid entertainment.

Associate Producer Stuart Walker and Director Louis King had in hand a screenplay by Horace McCoy and William R. Lipman based on a play by Albert Duffy and Marian Grant. To its performance they assigned Mary Carlisle, Lloyd Nolan, Lynne Overman, J. Carrol Naish, Anthony Quinn, Larry Crabbe, Johnny Downs, Dorothy Peterson, Delmar Watson, Regie Toomey and Louise Miller. They could have substituted a half dozen first line marquee personalities and turned out a more exploitable picture, but not a better one. Nolan's handling of the gangster, Overman's delineation of his unwilling host and Quinn's performance of the brutish underling are outstanding, yet in whole harmony with a masterfully matched ensemble portrayal.

The story is strong in its simplicity. Nolan commits a murder and hides out in the home of a small town hardware dealer who, under threat of death, gives him shelter but shields his identity from his daughter and son. During the gangster's stay he comes to see himself as he really is and, when police arrive, solves his problem in unforeshadowed but wholly logical manner.

point, the views of the home office officials have prevailed and Mr. Rogers is represented as feeling that a definition of the extent of home office authority in production and studio operations should be had.

No predictions are available as to what course Mr. Rogers will pursue in the event that the board holds that final authority on studio as well as other company operations is vested in Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president. However, the possibility that Mr. Rogers may be designated head of studio business affairs, thus relieving him of responsibility for production on which he was given no final authority, has been reported.

It is known that Mr. Blumberg plans to spend a great deal of his time at the studio in the immediate future.

Mr. Rogers is en route to New York, where he will arrive on Wednesday.

Universal home office officials again yesterday declined comment on the Hollywood story of Charles R. Rogers' purpose in requesting the calling of a special meeting of the board for Thursday. The officials reiterated their statement of Saturday that Mr. Rogers had not specified his reasons for asking the meeting either at the time or since.

Eva Fox, his wife, is president of the corporation and claims to own all the stock, although it stands on the books in the name of William Fox. The circuit court held the Bankruptcy Court had no power to compel the corporation to submit the books to examination.

Jury Patriots

Dallas, May 16.—Karl Hoblitzelle, head of the Interstate circuit, and Charles O'Donnell, president of the Southwestern Life Insurance Co., both of whom accepted calls for jury service here, today were complimented by Judge W. L. Thornton, who said:

"I hope the appearance of you gentlemen on this jury will serve as an example to the public and as evidence that it is the duty of every citizen to serve when called for jury duty."

U. S. Judge Bondy Orders Hearings On New RKO Plan

C. Rickaby, attorney for Atlas corp., proponent of the plan, were characterized as "optimistic" by Judge Bondy. Mr. Rickaby assured the court, however, that the amended plan "has substantially the same, if not more, support than the original one had."

Opposition to the new plan was voiced at yesterday's hearing by independent stockholders' attorneys; by Nathan Rosenberg, attorney for an investment organization which holds $200,000 of RKO debentures, and by John Stover, attorney for Ernest W. Stirn, owner of a large block of old RKO Class A shares. Others at the hearing reserved expressions of opinion on the new plan, explaining that they had not had an opportunity to study it yet.

Jurist Tells of Protests

Judge Bondy related that he had received a number of letters from RKO stockholders, protesting that the amended plan was "unfair." He said he favored the return of the plan to Mr. Alger for full hearings for that reason.

Mr. Rickaby informed the court that there still is some dissatisfaction "on minor points" among the reorganizers, despite the fact that nine revisions of the plan were made prior to its submission to the court. He said that oral assurances only have been received from the leading creditors' groups on their consent to the amendments.

Mr. Rickaby credited Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas Corp., for the completion of the plan and described its principal advantage as leaving RKO free of debt upon reorganization.

Mr. Leserman presented checks to the winning district managers.

Roberts Wins Shoot

In the skeet shoot yesterday Doak Roberts was first, William Grant, Minneapolis salesman, second, and Mr. Sears third.

The midwestern contingent pooled quite a bit of money and bet it on the prowess of Mr. Grant. Mr. Roberts, however, was sure of eye, and just blew those skeets apart. The Chicago and Minneapolis boys are "unhappy about the whole thing." The latter part of the evening was devoted to a picnic and barbecue.

Joan Blondell and Dick Powell had been scheduled to make an appearance at today's session, but failed to do so. It was announced that they were sick. No other stars have been sent in their place.

No "Winkle" but More "Melodies"

Hollywood, May 16.—With the cartoon quota increased from 36 to 42, Leon Schlesinger today dropped, temporarily at least, his plans to produce "Rip Van Winkle" as a full length cartoon for Warners.

Warners have increased their quota of "Merrie Melodies" from 20 to 26 for next season.

Court Approves Two Tex Ritters for G. N.

The sum of $1,500 is said to have been paid for each of the two Tex Ritters. The court also approved the purchase by G. N. of "Held for Ransom" from International Pictures Corp. for $17,500.

Negotiate for New Air Show ByParamount

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—Negotiations are underway here between Paramount and a group of California industries for a new radio series which will utilize the film company's acting, writing and production talent. The series, if negotiations are successful, will begin some time in September or October.

The plan, in its present form, calls for participation by 13 industries, each to have four programs on a 52-week with a sustaining series over NBC, and CBS have been contacted for time clearance. Motion pictures being a major California industry, it is believed that Paramount itself will sponsor four weeks of the series, while the other sponsors will be drawn from the fields of banking, citrus fruit growing, lumbering, dairying and other major California industries.

Paramount tried radio a year ago with a sustaining series over NBC, but after a few broadcasts discontinued the program. Since then, however, M-G-M and Warners have assayed network radio shows, the former quite successfully in a tieup with General Foods; the latter rather unhappily because of conflict with the American Tobacco Co.

Short Wave Station Hits Congress Snag

bring grief to the Administration because of the diplomatic "incidents" which inevitably would follow the official programs.

The attitude of the committee was evinced after Congressman Celler of New York, author of the measure, declared that private broadcasting "cannot cope" with the situation arising out of German and Italian efforts to propagandize South America Both Democratic and Republican members of the committee questioned Mr. Celler closely.

Mr. Celler asked the committee to delay action pending publication of the report of the interdepartmental committee which is studying the problem. Chairman Carl Vinson indicated he would suspend the inquiry until the report is available after hearing broadcasting officials.

Mark Ethridge, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, said the United States would be in a constant state of embarrassment if the station were started. He said there were not more than 2,000,000 receiving sets in South America and only about 10 per cent can receive short wave broadcasts.

Plan Television Scripts

The Script Library, a division of Radio Events, Inc., starting Wednesday, will issue a weekly series of dramatic scripts planned for television presentation. The series is designed to fill a threefold purpose: to enable production executives to study the problem, to permit actors to change their technique, and to build public acceptance for the new medium.

Senate Passes the Neely Bill; House May Not Act

Slight Prospect Is Seen For Concurrent Action At This Session

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Senate today passed the Neely block booking bill, with little likelihood, however, that the House would take the concurrent action necessary to make it effective.

Passage of the bill, approved without a record vote, was hailed by Senator Matthew M. Neely of West Virginia, its author, as a reward for the bitter campaign he waged to secure consideration of the measure by the Senate.

Industry members in Washington tonight did not appear unduly perturbed by the Senate action, confident that the measure would die in the House, where similar legislation has been pigeonholed in committee all this session, but independent exhibitors were highly gratified, pointing out that this was the first time a block

G.N. Abandons Its Producing; Will Distribute

Deals for 62 Films Set, Say Co-trustees

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—Grand National will drop its identity as a production organization and remain solely a distributing firm, according to Loyd Wright and Edward Alperson, co-trustees, who today told a creditors' meeting here that three deals to provide a maximum of 62 pictures from outside production groups will be signed this week.

Since entering trusteeship, Feb. 21, when G. N. was forced to undergo Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act reorganization, Mr. Wright said that $115,000 in new business, most of which is on old pictures, has been underwritten, approximately $75,000 paid on producer claims and $81,000 cash remains in bank.

Production deals expected to be signed this week include one with a group having $25,000 finances already

The production budget, originally set for 60, will be kept for the 52, it was stated. Mr. Sears explained this by saying: "This will allow for a proportionate increase in the production budget on each of the 52 releases. It will enable the company to produce a consistently high grade attraction

Licenses for the application of the photoelectric cell to film sound reproduction and radio transmission, among other arts, must be obtained from the Polytechnic Development Corp., New York, according to Leonard Day, head of the company. The contention is based on the control by the firm of the patent granted last month to Albert A. Radtke, Chicago inventor.

As a result, there is industry speculation on the possible revival of sound patent litigation. Engineers are awaiting examination of the patent as issued. The patent is claimed to represent all applications of the cell to the conversion of light energy to electrical energy. Mr. Day said his company would ask only "reasonable" fees in granting licenses. Warners and Herman A. DeVry are understood to have been licensed already.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 71
(20th Century-Fox)

Important from a news standpoint and for its general significance, the pictures of Mussolini showing off his war machine for Hitler are the chief clip of the reel. The battle fleet, complete with air units, submarines and target practice, and the display of land strength, all combine to make a fearsome picture in our intelligent modern civilization.

Mrs. Roosevelt accepting new air mail stamps in Washington, a gyro landing on the roof of the post office in Chicago and Shirley Temple sending a letter serve to introduce National Air Mail Week photographically. England tests a net of cables about London, designed to trap enemy planes, and the liner Lafayette burns at its French drydock to complete the "World's Events" section.

The rest includes women's beach fashions, Lew Lehr with amusing comment on the man who is shot from a cannon, Dauber wading to victory in the Preakness, Jimmy Hines capturing a golf crown in the rain, and Wellesley girls rowing like veterans. Running time, 10 mins. A.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 269
(M-G-M)

The greater part of the footage in this reel is devoted to scenes of the display of Italian fighting strength put on by Dictator Mussolini for visiting Dictator Hitler, and it is a brave and noisy show of military strength on land and sea. Good closeups of the two war lords are afforded, and little imagination is required to perceive that Mussolini is happy in the impressive display, while Hitler is mentally calculating and comparing what he sees with what he has at home.

Air Mail Week is ushered in with ceremonies in Washington, at which Mrs. Roosevelt accepts a sheet of new air mail stamps, and an auto gyro lands on the roof of the Chicago post office, then takes off again. The marriage of a former German prince at Doorn, Holland, is pictured, with a shot of the former Kaiser. A jumping contest for pet frogs in California does not quite stir the pulses.

In France a new tank, of almost incredible strength, mows down large trees and tears through brick walls. A photographic trick is used with pictures of the man who earns his living by acting as a cannon's projectile, and the winning of the Preakness by Dauber in the deep mud ends the reel. Running time, 9 mins. A.

Paramount News
Issue No. 82
(Paramount)

All the men who lost money on the Preakness can figure out why by watching this issue of Paramount News. At the close of the race some of the jockeys are shown in closeups, their faces plastered with mud. Only the winner, the rider of Dauber, has white skin showing under and around his eyes.

Some neat camera work has been done in getting angles on the 70-ton French tanks which push posts down into the ground and go through concrete walls. In the Names and Events in the Headlines department the Kaiser's grandson is shown at the Doorn wedding, there is some clay pigeon shooting at Travers Island, and King George inspects his air forces. Not very stimulating.

National Air Mail week is duly celebrated with pictures of Mrs. Roosevelt and Government officials around a plane, with 1918 scenes of President Wilson starting an early air mail flight, and with an auto gyro landing on a roof in Chicago. The youngsters will go for this. Running time, 9 mins. J.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 667
(Universal)

Although a few of the events offered in this issue are dated, the reel as a whole holds the interest. The material is a fair pictorial cross-section of recent national and international news.

Airmail Week takes the opening position with appropriate aviation stunts which, include an auto gyro landing on the roof of the postoffice in Chicago. England's protection against air raids is demonstrated with balloons that have wires suspended from them. A hotel burns in Atlanta. The Lafayette is seen smoldering at her dock in Havre. Polish flyers en route to Warsaw take off from Burbank, Cal. A 70-ton French tank smashes its way through the walls and roof of a house, drives piles into the ground and levels trees.

Hope Hampton leaves on the Century for Hollywood. The Cotton Carnival in Memphis gets interesting coverage. Chicago again enters the scene with a kissing meter. Frogs jump at Angel's Camp, Cal. There is an auto race in England and the Preakness with Dauber on top to round out the sports section. Running time, 9 mins. P.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 86
(RKO)

The camera's reporting of Dauber's victory in the Preakness at Pimlico on a muddy track is the outstanding subject in this release and wins it the lead position. A good novelty subject is made for National Air Mail Week, now being observed, in a pictorial record of air mail handling from the time of its posting in New York to its landing in Los Angeles.

The remaining material is of secondary interest and includes views of the Lafayette after being ruined by fire at her dock in Le Havre; the start of a 16,500-mile flight of a California-made plane for delivery in Poland; the Bonneville Dam's "salmon ladder" in Oregon; Government fire tests at Washington in an effort to determine the Pacific Clipper's fate; scenes of the Memphis cotton carnival; a Chinese crew takes over a ship and Japanese scrap iron consignment in San Francisco harbor, and pictures of France's new high power tank in action.

Photography, makeup and narration are excellent. Running time, 9 minutes. K.

Paramount Men Set For Dakota Hearing

Austin C. Keough, vice-president and director of Paramount; Louis Phillips of the company's legal department; Thomas D. Thacher and A. C. Bickford of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, Paramount counsel, will leave for Fargo, N. D., late next week to participate in the trial there on June 1 involving the state's affiliated theatre "divorcement" law.

A three-judge Federal [illegible]utory court will hear Paramount's attack on the constitutionality of the law, which is being defended by the state attorney general's office and Allied States counsel in Minneapolis. Paramount's attorneys will also be assisted by attorneys for its Minneapolis affiliate, Minnesota Amusement Co., which operates the only affiliated theatres in North Dakota.

L. J. Ludwig and John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement heads, are in New York for conferences with home officials on the impending litigation.

Order "Blockade" Prints

HOLLYWOOD, May 17.—The United Artists answer to the reported attempts to change the story of Walter Wanger's "Blockade" through fear of retaliation from abroad because of the film's current Spanish war background was the announcement today that 350 prints have been ordered for simultaneous bookings. This is a record number for a Wanger film.

Yamins Lists Conditions to Conciliation

representing all major distributors, and that committee in its invitation must give reasonable assurance that it is willing to negotiate a solution of the major as well as the minor problems of the industry." Until such a formal offer is made, the Allied head continued, "Allied must carry on" its program of legislation and "there must be no letdown. "This convention must resolve to continue its present campaign, for only by continuing our present fight can we gain our ultimate goal—independence for the independent exhibitor."

Mr. Yamins thus struck the keynote of the convention, which is to be further amplified by Abram F. Myers tomorrow. Myers is expected to discuss the Neely bill, which today was passed by the Senate in Washington.

M-G-M, Fox Mentioned

It is not enough, said Mr. Yamins, that M-G-M and Fox have given assurance of supporting conciliation, since the position of the other six of the "Big Eight" has not yet been clarified.

The only other significant address of the session was by William Sussman of 20th Century-Fox. He committed his company to "any workable scheme that may be envolved by either side" to conciliate grievances. Commenting on Mr. Yamins' speech at the conclusion of the session, Mr. Sussman declared his commitment was for his own company. William F. Rodgers of M-G-M also has indicated he speaks for his company only and not for the distributors generally.

News of the passage of the Neely bill came during the course of a cocktail party and threw the delegates into an uproar of jubilation. Mr. Myers wrote out and handed to press representatives the statement:

"In a Congressional fight I would rather have a good bill than money any day."

To this statement, Pete Wood added, "This is only the beginning." While Mr. Yamins beamed his satisfaction, Mr. Rodgers refused comment. Mr. Yamins wired the Senator inviting him to attend the convention and receive the thanks of the delegates.

Registration Exceeds 300

M. A. Rosenberg, convention chairman, estimated registration as more than 300 and attendance at the opening session at about 400, including the ladies.

Allied's president opened his address by reciting grievances such as high percentage, allocation of delivered pictures, increase in percentage films, the selling of unknown quantities, forcing of shorts and newsreels with features and the score charge, for which, he said, "There is no legal or moral justification but is just another racket to milk money from the helpless exhibitors." The latest effort to "add to the exhibitors' burden," he charged, is the announcement by some of the companies that "they will make no more B pictures next year and perform this miracle without any mention of it in the contracts."

During the open forum, J. Unger, Allied of New Jersey official, and Col. H. A. Cole of Texas mentioned the 50 per cent terms for "Snow White" as "one of greatest abuses of past year" and expressed the fear that unless protested this would serve as a precedent for other companies.

Mr. Sussman's pledge on conciliation was warmly applauded and on motion of W. A. Steffes the convention gave a vote of thanks to him and to 20th Century-Fox for designating him as its spokesman here.

Mr. Yamins then spoke about "inflated" film rentals despite lowered production costs," declaring that companies raised prices 10 per cent last year.

Committees Named

Mr. Yamins announced committees as follows: Resolutions—Martin Smith, Ohio, chairman; Maurice Rubin, Indiana; Irving Dollinger, New Jersey; A. W. Lilly, Texas; Frank Hornig, Maryland. Grievances — Aaron Saperstein, Chicago, chairman; Charles Philbrook, Western Pennsylvania; P. J. Wood, Ohio; Lee Newbury, New Jersey; Max A. Cohen, New York; E. F. Maertz, Wisconsin; Bernie Berger, Minnesota; Ray Branch, Michigan.

The Allied board of directors went into session following adjournment to decide on tomorrow's procedure.

Allied is in good shape financially and no effort will be made to raise a war chest this year, it was said by the directors who attended the board meeting last night.

For Conciliation

Pittsburgh, May 17.—Regardless of how other major distributors feel about establishing conciliation procedure, M-G-M is wholeheartedly for the idea and not fearful of any consequences from the direction of the Federal Government, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, told Motion Picture Daily today. This coincides with the views of S. R. Kent.

Rodgers says he understands virtually all majors will back conciliation, but claims he has no official information to that effect.

Testimony Ordered In "U" Film Action

Robert H. Cochrane, Willard S. McKay and Charles B. Paine, former officers of Universal, were ordered by Justice Samuel I. Rosenman in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday to appear for examination before trial on June 2 in connection with the $600,000 breach of contract action brought by John D. Tippett, Inc., against Universal. Justice Rosenman ordered books and records of the defendants to be produced for use by the witnesses, but denied the plaintiff the right to inspect the books.

Tippett claims that a five-year contract made in June, 1932, under which Universal allegedly agreed to purchase one-half of its positive film raw stock from the plaintiff was breached in February, 1933.

set up, another whose banking arrangements were completed today and another with a producer now releasing through a major studio.

According to Mr. Wright, nine pictures are now being distributed and commitments are made for six additional ones. Mr. Alperson said the trustees are working on the premise that most desirable is the outlay of the least cash possible.

The disclosure was made that Monogram and G. B. both offered to take over the companies and liquidate the exchanges and the distribution end but the trustees turned down the deals. Mr. Wright said the net returns to the company at present total $7,000 per week.

Grand National Studios, Inc., will be operated as a studio rental company, production deals to include use of the property by producers, the creditors were told.

The minimum program needed to break even on costs requires 24 features and 16 westerns, Mr. Wright said.

in 20 houses and substitute vaudeville for the second feature. Mr. Brandt qualified the newspaper story by saying he intended to put vaudeville in Aug. 15, but has not yet concluded "united front" negotiations.

C. C. Moskowitz of Loew's said: "We'll just continue to run our business. We watch our business. If a change of policy is required we'll know when and how to make it."

Abraham L. Suchman of Consolidated said: "We'll see what happens in Mr. Brandt's theatres when August comes around. At present we have no idea of eliminating the double bill. We'll run double bills so long as the first run circuits do it. We're flexible and if they switch to single features, we will, too. I'd gladly single 'In Old Chicago' and I hope we can single 'Robin Hood' became here are two pictures with such box-office values that they can well stand alone. There's nothing that can be put with either of them on a double bill that will add anything to the show."

Monroe Stein of the Cocalis Circuit said: "So long as we have to buy as many pictures as we do, we'll run double. There's no change in our policy yet, with respect to going single feature in our houses."

"Hood" Albany Smash

ALBANY, May 17.—"Adventures of Robin Hood" is topping all recent figures in the Strand, first run Warner theatre here. The gross is expected to exceed $10,000. The picture is being held over for a second week, the first time this has been done in years.

Fr[illegible] Gillmore, head of the Four A's, and Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, sought and were given the reassurances of William Green in Washington that no action would be taken by the A. F. of L. executive council but I. A. officials subsequently stated that the matter would be considered further at the Cleveland convention in June.

At present, however, there appears to be a definite inclination on the part of I. A. officialdom to "forget" the claim at this time.

Ascap's Committee On Royalties Named

Ascap's new classification committee, which will study the organization's present method of distribution of royalties to its publisher members for the purpose of recommending improvements in the method, was named yesterday.

Members of the committee are Gene Buck, E. C. Mills and John G. Paine of the society's executive staff; Henry Spitzer of Chappell & Co.; Lou Diamond of Famous Music Corp.; John O'Connor of Words & Music, Inc., and A. Walter Kramer of Galaxy Music Corp.

Dissatisfaction of publisher-members with the present method of and basis for royalty distributions impelled the naming of the committe for the study.

Uphold "Children" Ban

ALBANY, May 17.—The Court of Appeals today upheld the decision of the Appellate Division banning the picture, "Tomorrow's Children," from exhibition. The sex sterilization film was refused a permit originally by Director Irwin Esmond and Dr. Frank P. Graves, Commissioner of Education. Foy Productions and Principal Film Exchange appealed their ruling and lost in the Appellate Division by a 3 to 2 vote.

Court Gets Plan for Reorganizing Condor

exchanged for shares in the new company. A new issue would be floated for other investors.

Under the procedure outlined by Albert Lieberman, who described himself as an important stockholder, $50,000 in new capital is needed for continuing production. One-half the assets, as he proposed it, would be for administration costs, the other half for working capital. He assured the court returns from pictures already made and the paring of expenses would enable the corporation to continue on a profitable basis with pictures budgeted between $20,000 and $30,000.

The plan would provide one share of Peerless common for each share of Condor common and five shares of Condor common for one share of Peerless preferred.

were open to the Government without cost for such broadcasts.

Frederic A. Willis, assistant to the president of CBS, said: "Our short-wave facilities are available for presenting programs in full cooperation not only with our established educational institutions, the Latin American Embassies and Pan American Union, but with all of our various Government departments."

The report of the Interdepartmental Committee on International Broadcasting will not be ready for submission to the President for several months, it was disclosed today by Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Communications Commission, head of the group.

Following a conference with the President on the subject today, McNinch announced further studies of the situation had been ordered and, as a result, he would not be prepared to testify before the House committee on the Celler bill.

Celler yesterday had urged the committee to suspend action on his bill pending publication of the committee's report, which, he said, was due within a day or two.

FCC to Hear Argument

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Oral argument on the application of the Food Terminal Broadcasting Co. for a 1,500-kilocycle, 100-watt daytime station at Cleveland will be held before the Federal Communications Commission June 2.

The commission also has scheduled for examiners' hearings July 1 the applications of the Civic Broadcasting Corp. for a 1,210-kilocycle, 100-watt station at Syracuse; Sentinel Broadcasting Corp. for a 620-kilocycle, 1,000-watt station at Salina, N. Y.; KTBS, Shreveport, La., for change of frequency from 1,450 to 620 kilocycles and increase of day power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts, and WHJB, Greensburgh, Pa., for increase of time from day to unlimited.

WHO Withdraws Plea

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Federal Communications Commission today granted station WHO, Des Moines, authority to withdraw its application for experimental authority to broadcast with 500,000 watts power.

The application was withdrawn at the request of the station. With that of WLW, Cincinnati, for continuance of its authority to use fifty kilowatts, the WHO application had been slated for hearing following the conclusion of the general conference next month on revision of the broadcasting station regulations.

'Twas War In Air and Upon Ground, But Press Took It

By JACK BANNER

The radio correspondents, two busloads of them, who were taken to Farmingdale, L. I., by CBS to observe how radio covered the war game maneuvers of the Army Air Corps, survived the air raid without a casualty, but more potent than the shot and shell and the bombs was the grog dispensed at the roadhouse close by the Seversky air field.

The two and a half hour wait for the zero hour, following the excellent dinner of officers' rations, proved too tedious for the scribes, and when the burly sergeant who spoke with a lisp volunteered to serve as our escort, the trek to the roadhouse was on. On the way back we knew how Napoleon must have felt during the retreat from Moscow.

Chaperoned by Top-Kick

The sergeant, who has been in the army 25 years, after inquiring our wants, announced to the waiter—"24 Scotch and sodas, and one beer for the sergeant."

On the third round—it was still "24 Scotch and sodas and one beer for the sergeant"—the scribes, now a bit green around the gills—gave up the elbow bending, and the sergeant reluctantly took us back to the field.

Our side wanted to join the army following the dinner, served in a tent. It was officers' rations we got, and Uncle Sam certainly dishes out a swell table. Boiled ham, roast beef, mashed potatoes, mixed vegetables, macaroni, lettuce, tomatoes, celery, coffee, crackers and jam, sliced peaches, and a sponge cake with vanilla icing. The trade press, smart guys, were in, seated and scoffing before the general press, and the boys from the newspapers let out an awful yowl when they saw how we had massacred the victuals, but the yowl quickly died when the orderlies came in with the replenishments. Champ eater among us, and the lad who made the real hit with the cook, who hovered about to see how we were taking to his food, was Sam Kaufman of Radio News, with four servings of practically everything. Jack Harrison of Hollywood Reporter, ever the reporter, was observed turning over the enamel cups and plates to see if they were of the "made in America" variety. They were.

"Attack" at 10:25

The bombardment of Farmingdale and the rise of the defending planes to meet the attack provided one of those once-in-a-lifetime thrills. At about 10:25 the defending planes, nine, roared across the field, and took off, circled, and their tail and wing lights quickly were lost among the stars as they made off to await the attackers. Two minutes later every light within a radius many miles of the Seversky factory blinked off—the "blackout"—and a moment later, just as the roar of the oncoming bombing planes became audible, the beams of eight giant army searchlights stabbed the heavens.

Attacks Realistic

Three bombers made the first attack. They were flying at about 5,000 feet, dropping flares which lighted the field brilliantly. The searchlight beams quickly picked off the planes, flooding their silver bellies in vivid detail. Once caught by the lights, the big ships, like whales harpooned, were trapped, for they are too big to try aerial acrobatics. Meanwhile, on the field, three anti-aircraft guns were coughing orange flame and smoke as the gunners tried to get the range. However, the attacking planes were late in coming in, and even a novice in warfare was able to sense that the invaders had scored a victory. Some minutes later six more attacking bombers came over, flying at about 15,000 feet, and the searchlights were able to locate but one.

Following the spectacle, an army private grumbled into our ear that "radio had lost the war for the defense." Explaining, he said that the generals had been so busy talking into the network microphones that their orders to the defending planes had been delivered late.

Three Webs Represented

CBS and Mutual had commentators aloft, while NBC covered only from the ground. John Reid King for Columbia and Dave Driscoll for Mutual gave an account of the attack as observed from the air, while Bob Trout, for CBS, George Hicks for NBC and Tom Slater for Mutual broadcast from terra firma.

Hicks gave the onlookers an unintended laugh when he broadcast that the sky was starlit but moonless. George couldn't see the moon because of a wall near him, but a round, orange moon, as big as a pumpkin, was hung on the ceiling all right.

Another amusing sidelight was provided by one of the army officers, who, reading from script, announced to the air audience that the invaders had been defeated by the defending forces—this after everyone on the field, including the officer who made the optimistic broadcast, knew that the opposite was true.

The war game maneuvers provided colorful material for the newsreels, and full crews of all the companies were on the field cranking away.

Senate Passes Neely's Block Booking Bill

booking bill has been given the approval of either house.

As[illegible]sed, the bill was amended in tw[illegible] respects. The first, resulting from a letter from Walt Disney to Senator Vandenberg of Michigan in which the effects of the bill on shorts were pointed out, was the inclusion, on a motion of Senator Minton of Indiana, of a provision exempting films of less than 2,000 feet from the block booking ban as well as from the synopsis requirements.

Borah Change Accepted

The second, offered by Senator Borah of Idaho, struck out the provision that if a picture differs substantially from its synopsis the exhibitor may cancel the lease without liability and recover damages, or may retain the lease and recover damages, it being pointed out that the provision was additional to the penalties for violation of the act and might lead to difficulties in enforcement, while it gave no remedy which was not already available under common law. Despite Senator Neely's contention that the legislation was of vast importance to millions of people, members of the Senate showed little interest in the bill, there frequently being less than a score in the Senate chamber, of whom, at one time, but two were paying attention to the Senator's remarks.

Marked by frequent tirades against the "moving picture trust" and the Hays organization, Neely's argument largely was a rehash of the speeches he has made on the subject of block booking in the past. Enactment of the bill, he said, would have much to do with elimination of objectionable scenes from pictures and would give the exhibitor and his patrons a freedom of selection they have never before enjoyed.

Calls Opposition Small

While organizations — many of which he named, including the various Allied groups—representing millions of people are in favor of the measure, he said, the "entire opposition does not exceed 200,000 persons," mostly members of the eight big companies and their employes.

Passage of the block booking bill, he assured the Senate, would make unnecessary legislation for Federal control of the industry which has been proposed from time to time. The distributors would have a period of 12 months in which to accommodate themselves to the new conditions, and no difficulty was foreseen in putting the act into effect.

Asked by Senator Pope of Idaho to comment on a letter from an Idaho exhibitor complaining that passage of the bill would have an adverse effect upon him because he would have to spend so much time previewing films, Senator Neely declared, "the author of this letter has stated what someone has convinced him is true" but asserted there is nothing in the bill to prevent an exhibitor from buying as many pictures at one time as he desires.

Protesting against the bill, Senator Copeland of New York charged it would lead to censorship, since local organizations would have the say as to what an exhibitor should show, but Senator Neely denied that such a result would ensue. "There is no law of common sense which justifies block booking," he declared.

Senator White Dissents

The only determined effort to defeat the bill was made by Senator White (Rep.) of Maine, who criticised Senator Neely for reporting a bill on which no hearings had been held, and while admitting Senator Neely's claim that the matter had been investigated in 1936, pointed out there "have been substantial changes in the personnel of the Senate" since that time.

Senator White also criticised the penalties provided in the measure as being entirely too severe, and read copiously from Governor Milliken's defense of block booking. He was unable to round up any support, however, and when a vote on the bill was called for it was passed without a roll call.

KRS Approves Deal Ending Grading Plan

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, May 17.—The Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) today ratified the agreement reached recently with the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association to suspend the K.R.S. plan to grade all features and calling for joint discussions of the problems of the two major trade organizations.

The decision to suspend grading followed a bitter fight in opposition to the plan waged by the C.E.A., which had insisted the plan was designed solely to bring about increases in film rentals, a view denied vigorously by the K.R.S. The first of the joint talks between representatives of the two groups has been scheduled for next Tuesday. The general council of the C.E.A. will hold a meeting this Thursday.

Mr. O'Donnell said that he has formulated no definite method for raising the money, but added that he felt certain it could be done and that he would gladly assume the job of doing it.

Yamins, Cheered by Vote On Neely Bill, Says New Moves Near

By AL FINESTONE

PITTSBURGH, May 18.—Allied will drive for "full completion of its program of legislation and litigation," Nathan Yamins, president, told the annual convention here today. He also made a formal statement on the Senate passage of the Neely bill and declared the legislative campaign would be broadened.

The convention approved a Governmental investigation of the industry under the O'Mahoney resolution pending in Congress preparatory to strengthening of the anti-trust laws next year. A resolution to this effect was adopted unanimously at this afternoon's session.

In discussing the Neely measure Mr. Yamins said "particular thanks are due Abram F. Myers, who has sacrificed everything in the last few months and has neglected all other Allied business to get a favorable vote in the Senate."

"Even if the bill goes through the House and is signed by the President," he continued, "that is nowhere near a partial solution of our problem and we will continue our campaign to obtain full completion of our program. Further announcements along this line will be made, but I don't know how soon."

In a formal statement to the press Mr. Yamins said: "The passage by the Senate of the Neely bill to prevent compulsory block booking and blind

"Yellow Jack"

(M-G-M)

From the successful stage play of 1934 by Sidney Howard, who had as his collaborator Paul de Kruif, M-G-M has woven a telling narrative in this story of the manner in which the dread "yellow jack," or yellow fever, was stamped out in Cuba, after the Spanish-American War.

It is a warm and human story, telling of the fight of the men of science, the courageous doctors, who never gave up the battle to learn how yellow jack was transmitted, of the young men attached to the medical experimental unit, lacking schooling and knowledge, who gambled with their lives that the truth might be found. It is tense drama very often, but not to the exclusion of all else. Production values are of the highest, the film has been built with care, and the result is that there is compensating amusement, compensating romance.

The narrative has inherent appeal, for sacrifice, especially that to aid humanity, sounds a responsive chord anywhere. It is fortunate that Edward Chodorov, in his screenplay, and George B. Seitz in his direction, tampered little or not at all with the expert, gripping play which Howard wrote for the stage. It was a great play then, and, with the additional scope permitted by the screen and a fine cast, is a splendid picture.

Robert Montgomery offers a smooth performance as the young Irishman, a sergeant under the famous Major Reed, who makes a double sacrifice for his officer, and who falls in love with a nurse, and through it all, displays a wit to match his courage. Virginia Bruce is adequate, but necessarily subordinate, as the nurse, and Lewis Stone as the sorely beset but persevering Major Reed, gives another of his long series of brilliant portrayals. Andy Devine contributes comedy, and full praise belong to the rest of the boys who volunteered to gamble with their lives that Major Reed's work might not fail, Buddy Ebsen, William Henry, Alan Curtis and Sam Levene.

Equally finely etched performances are offered by Henry Hull and Stanley Ridges as Major Reed's associates, and by Charles Coburn, as Dr. Finley, the Scotchman whose research in Cuba really led to the mosquito as the carrier, who had been laughed at years before, and who supplied Major Reed with the needed assistance.

In these days of war and danger of war, this tells of soldiers who volunteered for a different kind of fight, and who won for the health of the world, and as such it might be the more readily sold.

Running time, 83 minutes. "G."

Allied Plans New Campaign On Law Moves

buying is most gratifying. This association has sponsored such legislation ever since it was organized. Allied's support of the legislation has included not merely work among exhibitors, but the rallying of public support for the measure, also. This work has been intensified during the past three months and the action by the Senate yesterday was a happy culmination of the efforts expended."

The investigative petition to the Government will call for a five-point probe, including:

"The industry's organization, financing and practices."

"Causes of concentration of economic power in eight great corporations bound together in a common trade association."

Would Investigate Pricing

"Effect of existing distribution methods, especially pricing policies and leasing terms."

"The effect of the invasion by the producers-distributors of the field of exhibition and the preferences and advantages granted by them to their affiliated theatres and denied to independent theatres."

"The effect of existing copyright laws on competition, prices, profits and general economic conditions."

A legislative committee was directed to present the petition "to the appropriate Government agency" and to cooperate with it "to develop the facts" regarding alleged combinations and conspiracies.

Speaking in behalf of the resolution for the Federal investigation, Col. H. A. Cole said that trust-busting legislation will get under way in Congress after a thorough study of many industries and "we want them to include ours."

Myers Predicts Probe

In his address Mr. Myers said that an investigating of the film industry along with others is "in the immediate offing" and urged the convention to establish facilities to make its side available to the investigating committee which will launch a wide probe pursuant to the President's message last month on concentration of economic power.

Mr. Myers began his talk in conciliatory tone, saying the fact that Mr. Rodgers spoke so frankly is a "hopeful augury of future goodwill and understanding." He spoke of misunderstandings on both sides and said "A new day is in store for this business in which the barriers of misunderstanding, misrepresentation, intolerance and political maneuvering that have isolated earnest men in the several branches of the industry from a free interchange of ideas is drawing to a close." He predicted restoration of "contacts" between exhibitors and distributors.

"For nine long years anti-block booking bills have been pushed by Allied, since it was organized in 1929," Mr. Myers said. Declaring the Neely bill is intended to give independents selectivity of films and "put them on a par with the circuits," he said circuits "are operating under the Neely bill very satisfactorily, since they don't buy blindly or in blocks."

W. A. Steffes' motion authorizing the directors to meet with distributors at their discretion was challenged by Fred J. Herrington, secretary, M.P.T.O. of Western Pennsylvania, who contended that further Congressional action on the Neely bill would be prejudiced by such a conference. If any overtures are made, he said, let them come "from the other side."

After a floor debate in which J. Unger of New Jersey, Max A. Cohen of New York, Col. Cole, Mr. Herrington and others took part, Mr. Steffes' motion passed.

Query Two Resolutions

Two resolutions were questioned by Harry G. Kosch, counsel for New York Allied, these being condemnation of the 50 per cent rental on "Snow White" and distributors' alleged demand for admission price increases on the film, and another recommending that exhibitors ask price adjustments on the current season's contracts and "not to act hastily in signing for new production." The resolutions were referred to Myers for an opinion.

Another resolution condemned "unconscionable" salaries of top industry executives, no one named specifically, with instructions to turn details over to government investigators.

Also adopted was a resolution condemning sales drives.

Sidney Samuelson told the convention that the Neely bill vote would serve as a lesson to independent exhibitors that "everlastingly keeping on the right track will ultimately bring success."

Martin Smith of Toledo, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, offered a resolution expressing Allied's "gratitude" to Senator Neely and declaring passage of the bill "will give encouragement to independent exhibitors and independent merchants generally." The resolution was adopted by rising vote.

Samuel Goldwyn and Harry Brandt, president of the I.T.O.A., were excoriated for "silly statements" by Edward Golden, Monogram vice-president.

Golden Advises "Retailers"

On behalf of all smaller companies Mr. Golden urged exhibitors not to close up all their playing time, "since as good businessmen and retailers it behooves you to support the small wholesalers."

Introducing William F. Rodgers, Mr. Yamins said: "I want you to feel that despite anything that may have happened yesterday Allied has been, still is, and always will be sincerely devoted to a constructive solution of the major problems of our industry. We hope other companies will see the light of day and steer their course in the same direction that Metro is willing to steer its course."

Delegates listened attentively to Mr. Rodgers' talk and gave him loud applause at the close.

All sales managers were invited to address the convention.

The New Jersey unit is compaigning for the national convention in Atlantic City next year, probably around June 15 shortly after the World's Fair opens. Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana is supporting the New Jersey bid which will be voted on by the executive board next January. In return, Indiana has Jersey's endorsement of Indianapolis or French Lick Springs for the 1940 convention, which would be late in May to coincide with the Memorial Day auto races.

Industrial harmony keynotes were sounded at the banquet tonight which was attended by 500 persons. On the dais were William Sussman, William F. Rodgers, Nathan Yamins, Abram Myers, Eddie Golden, Col. H. A. Cole, Fred J. Herrington, M. A. Rosenberg and Lewen Pizor of Philadelphia, most of whom spoke, as did former Senator Frank J. Harris, who pleaded for tolerance in industry relations. Deputy Attorney General N. M. Katz was toastmaster.

Rodgers Promises to Back Conciliation Before Allied

erence to Conciliation boards, he continued, "To be successful the members of such bodies should be so selected and elected that those whose interests they represent will be satisfied. . . . Further it is our belief that these bodies in principle should be guided by a governing headquarters board to whom anyone may appeal if dissatisfied with a local decision. It is important that those who sit in judgment on important matters have the unqualified confidence of the trade as a whole."

Referring directly to the Neely bill, which was passed by the Senate yesterday, Mr. Rogers declared, "To refute suppositions, rumors and propaganda to the contrary that distributors are awaiting the outcome of the Neely bill before committing themselves on conciliation, let me say for one distributor that no matter what disposition is made of either or both of these bills (Neely and Pettengill) we will actively support any movement for the creation of and functioning of such conciliation or trade bodies as may be decided upon."

Mr. Rodgers quoted from statements he made in March, 1936, before a House sub-committee with reference to the Neely and Pettengill bills, in which he, for his company, expressed willingness to participate in any industry conference, and said the measures "can only result in confusion, a partial paralysis of an industry perfectly capable of managing its affairs from within," and that "to change the present system of Federal regulation is a very sure method indeed to stifle the small man and will mean the certain elimination of many."

"It is my belief that this industry can be a solid one," Mr. Rodgers said.

Warners Conclude Meeting in Dallas

DALLAS, May 18.—Warners' western and southern regional sales convention concluded here today, and sales executives who attended will return to their territories tomorrow. The three-day meeting was presided over by Ben Kalmenson, southern and western sales manager.

Today's session was addressed by Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, who discussed prospects for next season. He said that Warners have set eight features for national trade previews for exhibitors of the country during the month of August. The films are "Boy Meets Girl," "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," "Brother Rat," "Dodge City," "Racket Busters," "Valley of the Giants," "Sally" and "Garden of the Moon."

Mr. Sears also read a wire from Jack L. Warner and Hal B. Wallis from Hollywood stating the Burbank studios were geared for action with the first three months' releases either completed or in work.

Sales Policy Outlined

Mr. Kalmenson outlined sales policy and Carl Leserman, assistant to Mr. Sears, indicated what was wanted with respect to sales force morale.

In addition, W. E. Callaway of the west; Fred Jack in the south, and Rud Lohrenz, midwest, held individual meetings with their branch managers and salesmen.

Home office executives who will leave tomorrow for New York include: Mr. Sears, Mr. Leserman, Mr. Kalmenson, Roy Haines, Norman H. Moray, Clayton Bond, A. W. Schwalberg, Arthur Sachson, R. W. Budd and Joe Bloom, vice-president of the Blaine-Thompson Advertising Co.

Protest Stars on Air

TORONTO, May 18.—Members of the Independent Exhibitors' Association of Ontario have gone on record as resenting the receipt of a circular letter from Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., Toronto, regarding a radio broadcast of the "Lux Radio Theatre" featuring several film celebrities as guest stars. The exhibitors claimed that the broadcasting of such programs is opposition to the theatres and is hurting the box-office.

Warners Dissolve Holding Companies

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Dissolution in March of holding companies owned by the three Warner brothers has been disclosed by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The semi-monthly summary of transactions of officers and directors in the securities of their corporations shows they took over into direct ownership 3,767 of the 4,267 shares of Warner preferred which heretofore had been carried through a holding company, while Renraw, Inc., the group holding company, disposed of 11,300 of the 12,800 shares of common stock which it had held.

At the close of the month, in addition to the small volume of stock still in the hands of the holding companies, Albert Warner held 59,648 shares of common, 14,384 shares of preferred and 1,759,000 debentures, together with 5,460 debentures held through another holding company; H. M. Warner had 62,860 shares of common, 14,385 shares of preferred and 1,379,000 debentures, and Jack L. Warner held 88,060 shares of common, 14,384 shares of preferred and 1,183,000 debentures, the S. E. C. reported.

The only other film stock transaction carried in the summary was the acquisition of 10 shares of Pathe Film common by T. P. Loach, New York, officer, who held 31 shares at the close of the month.

Reports from men elected to office showed that John Dabney Penick, New York, held no securities in Universal, of which he was made a director April 1, while Gurdon W. Wattles, New York, held 1,200 shares of Pathe common when he became a director April 26.

Quebec Exhibitors Criticize Contract

MONTREAL, May 18.—Dissatisfaction over the present standard exhibitor contract with distributors was voiced today at the annual meeting of the Quebec Allied Theatrical Industries held in the Mount Royal Hotel here. The meeting, however, closed with no definite course of action on the matter reached.

Prohibition of children at theatres and "burdensome taxation which is placing the industry in a serious economic position" were also taken under advisement by nearly 100 exhibitors from all parts of the province.

Reelected to the presidency was B. E. Norrish, while E. N. Tavah and D. A. Burpee were renamed treasurer and secretary, respectively. The executive committee chosen for the year includes C. O. Auclaire, Montreal; T. W. Trow, Three Rivers; George Ganetakos, Montreal; L. K. Jones, Verdun; Arthur Hirsh, Montreal; N. Lawand and D. A. Burpee, Montreal.

J. J. Fitzgibbon, general manager Famous Players Canadian Corp., and Henry Chauvin, Montreal lawyer, addressed the meeting.

"Snow" Paris Hit

Paris, May 18. — "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," in the French version, is doing outstanding business at the 1,800-seat, first run Marignan of the Pathe circuit. With estimated first week receipts of about $20,000, the film is doing better business than any since "Mayerling," which played in March, 1936.

"Snow White" is expected to run three months at the Marignan and the circuit has booked it for six.

Cummings to Issue Monopoly Case Data

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Plans for the issuance of explanatory statements of film and other anti-trust prosecutions, to serve as a guide to business men, were disclosed today by Attorney General Homer Cummings.

Acting on the suggestion of the new Assistant Attorney General in charge of anti-trust activities, Thurman Arnold, the department, Mr. Cummings said, will issue a formal statement at the outset of every investigation or prosecution undertaken, which will explain the conditions which the department believes to exist in the particular industry which create monopolistic control or restraint of trade; the reason why the particular procedure was adopted, and the economic results which are expected from the action.

Lehr to Start Series

Production on a new 20th Century-Fox series of one-reel shorts featuring Lew Lehr, to be known as "Lew Lehr's Kindergarten," will start next Monday at the company's studios on 54th St. No definite number of productions has been set, but it is expected to be between four and six. Lehr is writing the scripts and supervising production. The cast for the initial film includes John Palace, Charles Jordan, Dave Loweree, Dan Gautier and Eddie Parks.

Montague Has Kind Word for Exhibitor

CHICAGO, May 18. — The much maligned — of late — exhibitor was given a pat on the back for "smart showmanship and ability to sell pictures to the public" by A. Montague, Columbia general sales manager, in addressing the company's three-day regional sales meeting which opened at the Drake here today.

Asserting that an analysi[illegible] theatre campaigns on his company[illegible] more important pictures proved that "showmanship is not a lost art," Mr. Montague urged closer cooperation between sales forces in the field and the local exhibitors in developing campaigns for the better productions. He intimated that the distributors' part in theatre campaigns does not end with the work of the home office advertising department.

Jack Cohn spoke to the more than 50 delegates present, predicting boom business for the summer months and expressing satisfaction with the new plan of holding regional meetings rather than a single national convention.

Mr. Montague, discussing the Neely bill, said that its passage will cause most injury to the small exhibitors. He said that many exhibitors are asking for deals that would run from three to five years as protection against the possibility of the Neely bill becoming law.

Other speakers at today's session included Rube Jackter, Max Weisfeldt, Lou Weinberg, Louis Astor, George Josephs and Maurice Grad. Most of the session was devoted to an analysis of the company's new season production schedule. Branch managers' meetings and individual branch salesmen's meetings are to follow.

Rogers' Status At "U" Will Be Decided Today

that of Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president.

Mr. Rogers, according to coast reports, will ask the Universal board of directors to define his authority as the ultimate on all studio and production matters. There was apparent evidence yesterday, however, that the board is not disposed to qualify the authority of the president of the company at the studio any more than in any other department of company operations. It was intimated, as well, that if Mr. Rogers was reluctant to accept home office supervision in production affairs he might be relieved of production responsibility and offered, instead, the supervision of studio business operations.

Pact Has 2 More Years

Mr. Rogers' contract with Universal is said to have more than two years to run at a salary in excess of $2,000 weekly. He is represented as feeling that his position as studio head was abridged during the planning of the company's 1938-'39 production schedule, on which the decisions of Mr. Blumberg and other home office officials prevailed; by recent changes made in studio personnel in which he did not concur, and that it will be further abridged on the return of Mr. Blumberg to the studio shortly.

Mr. Rogers was accompanied east by his assistant, William Pierce.

Freddi Is Retired From Job as Head Of Italian Films

Premier Mussolini, may take, or already has taken that position.

It will be remembered that young Vittorio Mussolini paid a visit to the United States some time ago, spent a few days in New York, then went to Hollywood.

Signor Freddi, a Grand Officer of the Order of the Crown of Italy, which entitles him to the abbreviaiton: "Gr. Uff." after his name, dates much of his rise to a dominant position in Italian Government circles to the fact that he was a boyhood chum of Benito Mussolini. They worked together on Mussolini's newspapers, he was beside Mussolini in the "March on Rome," and went from there into various Government posts.

Replacement Expected

It is understood that young Mussolini, with his interest in the screen, and following his visit to the United States, came to have more and more of an interest in the conduct of Signor Freddi's department, with the result that those familiar with the situation have expressed no surprise when apprised of the fact that Freddi is no longer the industry's chief in Italy.

A follower of Marinetti, he was arrested in 1914 for agitation against Austria. He was with the newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, from its inception. He won a medal during the war and participated in the first Fascist rally in 1919. A Fascist organizer, he was called to the paper by Mussolini, and after the "March on Rome" he held various party and Governmental posts until he received the appointment as dictator of the film industry on Sept. 12, 1934.

Omit Rome Display

RKO Pathe News omitted all footage on the Italian military show staged by Premier Mussolini for Reichsfuehrer Hitler from the issue of the reel released to theatres Tuesday. Pathe was supplied with 2,000 feet of film on the Italian war show, all of which was placed on the shelf.

"Exhibitors tell us they've had enough of Hitler's and Mussolini's military displays," Allyn Butterfield, in charge of the reel's makeup, explained. "Most of them delete the stuff when it reaches the theatre, anyhow, so we saved them the trouble."

No Universal Cinderella

HOLLYWOOD, May 18.—Universal has shelved, temporarily at least, its plans to produce "Cinderella" with Deanna Durbin. Reasons given were exhibitor protests against fantasy and the fact that Walt Disney controls the title.

HOLLYWOOD, May 18. — Charles Reisner, director, has registered objections to Charles Chaplin's plans to speak in his next picture. Reisner insists that he continue only in pantomime. No story has been chosen.

Among the new films now in production, the most important are "Remontons Les Champs Elysees" ("Walking on the Champs Elysees"), a new Sacha Guitry production along the lines of "Pearls of the Crown," "Le Joueur D'Echecs" ("The Chess Player"), an historical film; "Drama of Shanghai," directed by G. W. Pabst; "Katia," directed by Maurice Tourner, and in which Danielle Darrieux will co-star with the British actor, John Loder; "Werther," from Goethe's famous drama.

The action of the sub-committee was taken at the request of Senator Dennis Chavez (Dem., N. M.), who, at the opening of hearings this morning informed Chairman Homer T. Bone (Dem., Wash.) that "It is not the purpose of the sponsors of the bill to ask the committee to take action on the matter this session."

With this in mind, the sub-committee heard witnesses who had come to Washington to testify and brought its hearings to an end.

The keynote of the broadcasters' opposition to a Government station was voiced by Mark Etheridge, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, who repeated before the sub-committee the testimony he gave before the House group on Monday.

Long ago, as a gag, the "Music Hall" chimes were "stolen," and since then Ken has been ringing a bell. Don Gilman, NBC vice-president in charge of west coast operations, will make the presentations in behalf of Major Lohr.

Industry Facing Congress Ban on Air Super Power

Washington, May 18.—Threat of a Congressional ban on super power was voiced today by Senator Homer T. Bone, (Dem., Wash.) who declared that the proposed lifting of the present power maximum would entail new possibilities of monopoly in broadcasting.

Senator Bone made known his views —which he said also were those of a number of colleagues—during examination of Mark Etheridge, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, during hearings on the proposed Government propaganda station.

Referring to proposals to make the power maximum 500 kilowatts, the Senator asked Etheridge if there would be "a trend toward monopoly if the stations stepped up their power 10 times.

"There is in Congress now, for the first time," he added, "a disposition to seriously question the right of a domestic broadcaster to occupy a field vastly greater than that he has ever occupied. Five hundred kilowatts would thrust upon the industry very grave complications. That is a problem far more dangerous to the radio industry than this one of Government broadcasting."

Etheridge explained that the industry is fully aware of the complications attendant upon an increase of power, and disclosed that a number of stations, his own included, have filed applications for super power purely as a matter of "protection" and do not argue that there is any economic advantage in the high power.

U.A. Board Cut Held an Aid to N.Y. Operation newly elected chairman of the executive committee.

It is understood on good authority that both the reduction of the board, its new makeup and the centering of company activities in the east are results of the agreement reached by the partner-owners at the London meeting which decided Mr. Silverstone's promotion, the producers' profit-sharing plan and the reduced charges for world distribution.

Indications are, therefore, that Dennis F. O'Brien will replace Neil A. McKay as Mary Pickford's representative on the board; that E. C. Raftery will replace Clarence E. Erickson as Douglas Fairbanks' representative; that Charles Schwartz will replace Alfred Reeves as Charles Chaplin's representative, and that James Mulvey will replace David Rose as Samuel Goldwyn's representative. The first three are New York attorneys and Mr. Mulvey is Mr. Goldwyn's eastern representative. It is believed that Sir Connop Guthrie will continue under the new arrangement to represent Alexander Korda.

Silverstone Off Board

Also in accordance with the London agreement Mr. Silverstone will not become a member of the board.

The board meeting here also formally approved the contract under which Hal Roach will become a United Artists producer. The contract provides for four to six pictures to be made by Roach yearly for the next eight years. The first is to be delivered about Dec. 1.

Musicians Dubbing Pact Starts Friday

benefits of the agreement to musicians in either employment or increased earnings, but stated that the improvement in both would be "considerable." The measure was pressed by the A. F. of M. to relieve unemployment among musicians in Hollywood.

The agreement excludes newsreels only from its provisions, because of the time limitations involved in preparing the bi-weekly newsreel releases. It applies to all other film productions and is made a condition of employment for all union musicians who, hereafter, will not be authorized to accept work from any producer not subscribing to it.

Atlantic to Oppose Move in Baynes Suit

Application will be made today to N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman by Atlantic Film Productions, Ltd., for an order vacating a $30,000 writ of attachment on Atlantic Films in the suit for the same amount brought by George McLeod Baynes. At the same time Atlantic Films will ask the court to vacate the service on it by publication of the [illegible]plaint.

The attachment was issu[illegible]n May of last year, the petition stated, when Baynes first sued, claiming commissions for promoting the distribution and exhibition of "Thunder in the City." The writ, the petition alleged, was served on Columbia Pictures, but a certificate from Columbia indicated that it had no property of Atlantic Films. Atlantic claims that under the law the suit was never properly instituted against it because no actual levy on its property was ever made.

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, May 19.—Irving Asher, who resigned recently as head of Warner British production, is occupying offices at the Denham studios of London Films, headed by Alexander Korda. It is anticipated that the former Warner British executive will hold a high executive position as a producer for London Films, and it is considered likely that he will be placed in charge of the production of "Prison Without Bars."

Heads Film Council

London, May 19.—Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, declared today in the House of Commons that Sir Frederick Whyte has been selected as the chairman of the new Film Council provided in the recently enacted Films Act of 1938.

The selection of Sir Frederick for the key post was exclusively indicated in Motion Picture Daily two weeks ago.

Rogers Says . . .

"I do not desire to make any comment at this time with reference to the action taken by the Universal board of directors. The personalities developed under my regime, such as Deanna Durbin and Danielle Darrieux, and the pictures to be released, such as 'The Rage of Paris' with Miss Darrieux, and the John Stahl production, 'A Letter of Introduction,' with Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, will speak for themselves."

Reinstatement of 6 Is Upheld by Court

Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman yesterday granted the application of the N. Y. State Labor Relations Board for an order enforcing its decision directing the United Long Island Theatre Corp. and five other independents on Long Island to refrain from interfering with the unionization activities of their employees. The independents were also ordered to desist from their alleged practice of making employment conditional upon employes abstaining from membership in Local 306. At the same time reinstatement of six previously discharged employes of the independents was ordered.

Justice Rosenman, in a combination motion, denied the request of the independents for a stay of the proceedings by the board. Hearings before the State Labor Board were instituted on the complaint of the six discharged employes and Local 306, in which the independents were charged with "unfair labor practices."

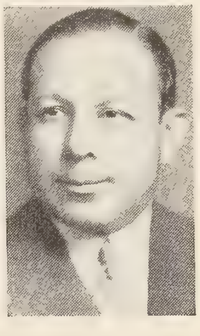
N. J. Blumberg

Clifford Work, Pacific Coast divisional manager for RKO Theatres, was elected a vice-president of Universal and general manager of the studio at the same meeting.

The company has made no decision yet on the appointment of an executive producer to succeed Mr. Rogers. This will be worked out by Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, on his return to the studio. He will leave tonight with plans for spending a month or more on the coast. With him will be Matthew J. Fox, Universal vice-president and assistant to Mr. Blumberg, who, after having been at the studio for the past six weeks, was called into New York hurriedly a few days ago to attend yesterday's board meeting.



Charles Rogers

With them on the westbound trip will be John J. O'Connor, who succeeded Mr. Blumberg as RKO Theatre operating head when the latter resigned five months ago to accept his present post with Universal. In tendering his resignation from RKO, Mr. Blumberg added a postscript in the form of a staunch recommendation for Mr. O'Connor as

Sears Speech Heard By Sales Federation

Dallas, May 19.—Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager for Warners, addressing the third annual convention of the National Federation of Sales Executives at the Baker Hotel, stated that the film industry is the mutual ally of every branch of American industry.

"With every picture we make we are selling your product not only in this country but throughout the world, as American films have planetary distribution," said Sears. "Of course there is no such thing as direct advertising on the screen, but inevitably there is a powerful, indirect incentive created toward a higher standard of living, better home furnishings, better cars, better clothes for men, women, and children, in fact in every phase of life there is this continuous selling job that American motion pictures are carrying on for American products. From the largest cities to the tiniest hamlet our pictures are carrying this message which without question results in tangible benefits to every branch of American industry."

The plaintiffs, as alleged composers of the old song, "Sweet Adeline," are suing Warners and Mr. Witmark & Sons, Inc., music publishers, claiming plagiarism in the picture of the same name.

Thomson to Be Made Officer of Four A's

Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, will be confirmed as a vice-president of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America, the parent A. F. of L. performers' union, at the annual meeting of the latter organization to be held here June 6. The naming of Thomson is in recognition of the guild's new position of influence in Four A's activities, which now encompass stage, screen, radio and opera.

Also slated to be named to Four A's posts at the annual meeting are Gene Greenfield, a replacement as a vice-president, and Leo Fischer, a replacement as treasurer. No general election of officers is scheduled at the meeting, however, as the regular slate was elected last year for two-year terms. The three appointments to be confirmed at the meeting are to fill vacancies.

The annual reports of officers will be made at the meeting, but the proposed changes in the organization's constitution, giving effect to a closer union of the several member organizations, are not expected to be ready for consideration in time for the meeting, according to Frank Gillmore, Four A's president.

A. F. M. Opposed to New Vaudeville Plan

The American Federation of Musicians will oppose Vaude-Vision, a new mechanized form of vaudeville, it was said yesterday by Joseph N. Weber, president of the musicians' union.

Vaude-Vision is the development of B. A. Rolfe and Jack Horn, and consists of live talent without sets or scenery and also minus a pit orchestra. Its scenery is projected on a backdrop by film, and a synchronized musical track replaces the orchestra.

The union's opposition to Vaude-Vision is natural in that for years it has been waging a fight against mechanized music in theatres. Weber said yesterday that if its sponsors persist in attempts to book Vaude-Vision into theatres, he will issue an order prohibiting members from providing the music for the sound tracks.

(20th Century-Fox)

The recent night air raid at Farmingdale, L. I., has the lead position in this issue. The filming is dramatic, catching all the action, and the comment aptly rounds out the material. The balance of the reel is made up of moderately interesting clips that are more entertaining than they are news worthy.

William Martin, newly elected president of the Stock Exchange, speaks briefly on recovery. The Exchange floor, rarely photographed, is seen. Four hundred Californians ride in the revival of an old Spanish custom—visiting friends once a year. School girls dance around Maypoles in Central Park. The Nieuw Amsterdam is shown at sea under a head of steam and later coming up the North River. They are good views. The fashion division concerns itself with the latest styles, seen around race tracks. Lew Lehr offers amusing comment with a performing chimpanzee. The sporting division offers football in New York as played and fought by Irish teams; the Royal Agricultural Show in Sydney, Australia, pictures horses jumping over hazards, and a slambang wrestling match in Melbourne ends the reel. Running time, 9 mins. P.

News of the Day

Vol. 9, No. 270

(M-G-M)

This issue is nicely balanced and combines various aspects of the news scene of the past few days in an interesting manner.

The air raid on Farmingdale, L. I., has the first position. The shots are good examples of night photography under difficult light conditions. The Nieuw Amsterdam is seen at sea and coming up the bay. Ranchers ride in the Santa Inez valley in observance of an old custom when settlers went visiting every year. The new head of the Stock Exchange speaks briefly and scenes of the board of directors and the Exchange floor supplement the story—the election of the organization's new president. A comical chimpanzee in a carnival show performs at Chester, Pa. The Sporting Page offers the Albany-to-New York outboard motorboat race. Artists race with automobile tires on Paris streets and Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood show Japanese golfers a few difficult shots. Running time, 9 mins. P.

(Paramount)

The reel's leading clip are the shots of the Army Air Corps maneuvers, and the "attack" on Farmingdale, L. I. The cameramen have succeeded in presenting a good picture of the realistic-appearing air raid. There are news and interest in the pictures of the fire which cost so many lives in the Atlanta hotel, and in the inauguration of William Martin, Jr., 31, as head of the N. Y. Stock Exchange. Scenes on the trading floor are shown.

The rest of the reel pictures effectively the arrival in New York of the Nieuw Amsterdam, new Dutch liner, and the ship at sea; Queen Mother Mary presenting the colors to her own regiment on her 71st birthday; the use of charcoal for motor fuel in Tokyo to conserve gasoline, and the New York construction which employs welded, instead of riveted steel girders. Running time, 9 mins. A.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 10, No. 668

(Universal)

Night pictures of the Army air force war games and the simulated attack on Farmingdale, L. I., have the featured spot in this release. The pictures are unusual and in some respects spectacular, particularly in view of the difficulties which confronted the cameramen after the town had been "blacked out" in advance of the arrival of the attacking planes.

Shots of a Japanese plane which managed to fly 800 miles and land safely after losing a section of one wing in combat over China make a "stranger than fiction" subject. A diagram of the manner in which the plane was disabled is inserted. Several subjects are outstanding for meritorious photography which emphasizes picturesque settings. These include the arrival of the Nieuw Amsterdam in New York harbor on her maiden voyage, snow plows in action in Rocky Mt. Park, Col., California ranchers in a revival of the Spanish settlers mass visiting custom, and fancy diving exhibitions at Pasadena, Cal.

Other subjects include a street pageant of Dutch tradition enacted in Holland, Mich., a statement of new policies for the N. Y. Stock Exchange by its new 31-year-old president, Maypole dancing and model boat races in New York's Central Park, an unusual setting for a Tennessee tug of war, and a British mine disaster.

The release is of better than average audience worth, well produced, edited and narrated. Running time, 9½ minutes. K.

Hollywood Previews

"The Lady in the Morgue"

(Universal)

Hollywood, May 19.—Despite the rather gruesome title, and the fact that a lot of time is spent in a morgue and moments are given over to grave looting and breaking into a tomb, "The Lady in the Morgue" is amusing entertainment. It is crowded with those elements that make a good comedy and full of those that make up a suspenseful crime mystery. Showmanship availability is the keynote of the style in which scenarists Eric Taylor and Robertson White have transcribed Jonathan Latimer's Crime Club story. Their work results in a cleverly complicated plot which should confound those who jump at immediate conclusions. The film's showmanship quantities are accentuated by Otis Garrett's direction, and Preston Foster, Frank Jenks and Patricia Ellis turn in A-1 performances. The Irving Starr production looms as a feature suitable for any house where melodramatic mystery, comedy, action, adventure and excitement is appreciated.

Necessary preliminaries completed, a woman's body disappears from a morgue, the keeper is slain and Policemen Thomas Jackson and Morgan Wallace suspect Detective Foster and his funny partner, Jenks, of complicity in both crimes. But three different forces want to obtain the body for devious purposes. With ease and aplomb, Foster, aided by Jenks, goes about his investigations unmindful of the menaces which rival racketeers, Joseph Downing and James Robbins; the police, suave Gordon Elliott and all the suspects, become to him. By means of a slick bit of detecting, he recovers the body, sets a trap for the dual killer, whom he bags at the coroner's inquest, turns up a missing girl who had hoped she would be regarded as the corpse, proves the racketeers had nothing to do with the case, as much as they claimed they did, and demonstrates that the police many times bark up the wrong tree.

"Crime Takes a Holiday"

(Darmour-Columbia)

Hollywood, May 19.—Jack Holt moves indoors in "Crime Takes a Holiday" to enact the role of a district attorney whose job it is to round up a gang of racketeers harassing his district. The transition of background is effected without the loss of the entertainment elements which Larry Darmour embodies in his productions for Columbia release.

The story's novel denouement, as well as the devices used to further the plot, place this above the average prosecutor-racketeer pictures, of which for some time there have been many. Of suspense, there is much; of action, there is plenty. Holt fans will be satisfied, and the veteran may gain added following among those who might not have been attracted by the outdoor action pictures in which he has starred.

Lewis D. Collins executed a capable job of directing the skillful adaptation by Jefferson Parker, Henry Altimus and Charles Logue of Altimus' original. With Holt are Marcia Ralston, Russell Hopton, Douglas Dumbrille, Arthur Hohl, Thomas Jackson, John Wray, William Pawley, Paul Fix, Harry Woods and Joe Crehan.

Holt, as district attorney, convicts a man, with the latter's consent, of murder, in hopes of flushing out the real gang leader. Failing within a certain time to bring the genuine criminal to justice, Holt fails to get a reprieve from the Governor for the doomed man, but in a last minute try, uncovers the criminal via a radio broadcast, unknown to the gang leader, and is successful in freeing his helper.

Rogers Leaves "U"; Work Is Studio Head

his successor. The latter will appoint a successor to Mr. Work on his arrival in California.

Mr. Rogers will begin a three-month vacation immediately, following which his future activities with the company will be decided. Following the purchase of Carl Laemmle's controlling stock interest in Universal by Standard Capital Corp. and its associates, Mr. Rogers became vice-president and production head of the company in March, 1936. He was given a five-year contract at $2,000 per week. It was stated on his behalf that he has not yet decided whether he will discuss a settlement of the unexpired portion of his contract or bring suit against the company. Universal officials indicated that they would take no action in the matter until Mr. Rogers had been heard from.

Still on Directorates

Mr. Rogers is still a member of the boards of Universal Pictures Corp. and Universal Corp., the parent company, the action yesterday having no effect upon his status as a director. It is assumed, however, that yesterday's action will be reflected in changes in the personnel of both boards in the near future. Mr. Rogers, personally, is a large stockholder in the company.

The changes effected yesterday are understood to have been impelled by Mr. Rogers' insistence on full control of production and studio affairs which, it was said, he felt he had been deprived of when Mr. Blumberg and Mr. Fox visited the studio this spring and executed numerous changes in operations and personnel designed to increase efficiency and effect economies, as well as the dominant part each played in planning the company's 1938-'39 production schedule. Intent upon regaining his unqualified authority at the studio, Mr. Rogers requested the board meeting with the idea of obtaining the directors' support for a restatement of his complete control of studio matters. The board, however, declined to circumscribe Mr. Blumberg's authority as president of the company and held that studio operations had been materially improved by the action taken by Mr. Blumberg and Mr. Fox during the past few months.

Further Changes Possible

Universal officials stated yesterday that further executive changes at the studio would be up to Mr. Work and Mr. Blumberg. They added that no consideration has been given to further changes there at this time. James P. Normanly is vice-president and business manager of the studio; Val Paul is executive studio manager, and Jerry Sackheim is assistant to Mr. Rogers. These are regarded as the most likely to be affected by any studio management revision.

Mr. Work, long an associate of Mr. Blumberg's in RKO theatre operations, was associated with the old Orpheum Circuit and with RKO Theatres for almost 25 years.

Work Awaits "U" Official

Hollywood, May 19.—Cliff Work, who conferred at the Universal studio today, told Motion Picture Daily that his visit was entirely informal and that he would not assume direction of the plant until the arrival here Monday of Nate J. Blumberg and other executives now in New York. He refused further comment on the subject.

"U" Ad, Publicity Unit West June 10

Universal's home office publicity and advertising departments, with the exception of a single eastern representative, Louis Pollock, will move to the studio on June 10, it was stated yesterday.

Those who will move to the studio are David Lipton, publicity manager; Mrs. Carrie F. Hall, head of the stills and research department; J. Albert Hirsch, in charge of press books; Carl Karoly, head of the art department, and David Sorocin and Harold Gutman, his assistants; Harry Ormiston, exploitation manager, and Benjamin LaPresti, Bernard McGuire, Sylvan Leff and Frank Cramer, assistants.

Mr. Pollock, who remains in the east in charge of advertising and publicity, will be assisted by Edward J. Eustis, Marion Orford, Lillian Thompson and Rainetta Marshall. Andrew J. Scharick, eastern studio contact, will also remain in the east with his full staff.

The complete personnel of the art department will be transferred to the studio and home office art work will be handled by an agency. Fewer than a dozen employes in all departments were let out.

The major distributors will move forward with their plan to establish local conciliation boards despite the attitude of Allied as expressed at its national convention in Pittsburgh this week, it was said yesterday by a spokesman for the distributor group.

Seven principal companies have made written commitments to the M. P. T. O. A. that they favor establishing local conciliation machinery under

ROGERS' CONTRACT SETTLEMENT MADE

Said to Call for Three Annual Payments; He Stays on Board

Charles R. Rogers' contract with Universal was settled yesterday on a "mutually satisfactory" basis, a joint statement issued by Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, and Mr. Rogers, disclosed.

Mr. Rogers, under the agreement reached, will remain a member of the board of directors and will retain his present stockholdings in the company, the statement asserted. As a member of the board, it added, Mr. Rogers "will continue to lend the present management the benefits of his vast experience and practical knowledge of production and showmanship." It was ascertained officially that the former production head's sole association with the company in the future will be his board membership.

Mr. Rogers' employment contract had two years and 10 months to go at $2,000 weekly, representing a salary claim of approximately $290,000. It was reported, but not verified, that the settlement reached was for a sum

The drop of $231,500 between March and April, it was pointed out, contrasted with an increase of $50,000 in those months last year.

For the first four months of the current year, the bureau reported, admission taxes amounted to $6,327,650 compared with $6,108,120 for the same period in 1937.

"Yellow Jack" Fine Film, New York Critics Declare

The reviewers of New York's daily papers found "Yellow Jack" a notable film, as indicated by the excerpts from their reviews, which follow:

Daily Mirror—"Yellow Jack" makes a stunning picture. Ably played . . . directed with potent punch, the Capitol's new hit is a stirring and impressive one.

Daily News— . . . The picture moves with a steadily dramatic tread and a mounting sense of suspense. Some of the power and sheer dramatic force of the original is missing, but enough is preserved to make it a fine, absorbing drama.

Herald-Tribune—The new offering . . . is no ordinary picture . . . the film has a moving, urgent quality that is too rarely found in photoplays.

Journal-American — M-G-M's picturization of "Yellow Jack" is a thoughtful and absorbing drama. . . . The picture creates and sustains a serious mood.

Post— . . . Despite flaws in scripting, direction and casting . . . the subject triumphs . . . the picturization of significant material that should interest adults.

Sun — "Yellow Jack," one of the finest pictures of the year, and right up to the standards of any other year, is a powerful and inspiring tale. This is excellent entertainment.

Times—It is a solid, dramatic tale. . . . There is an admirably sustained mood of suspense, uncertainty and fear. . . . A superior job of picture making.

World-Telegram— . . . Superbly acted, intelligently directed, thrilling and engrossing film. . . . Unlike most other films that emanate from Hollywood. . . . Forthright and well worth seeing.

Plan to Boost Ohio Ticket Levy Fading

COLUMBUS, May 20.—The proposal to finance a portion of Ohio's huge relief burden by increasing the theatre admissions tax seemed to be losing ground here as the legislature went into special session to consider the relief question.

that organization's 10-point program, it was further indicated. The only holdout has been Warners.

Some of the Allied units want conciliation, it was said, but the extent to which they will support it may depend on Allied's national policy.

In any event, according to the distributor spokesman, the support of the M. P. T. O. A. units and of the I. T. O. A. in New York will be sufficient to get the boards under way. While it is planned to set them up in a few exchange cities this summer, delay may be occasioned by the legislative situation and other factors.

Where the initiative on establishing the local boards originates is immaterial, it is pointed out, and it could come from the branch managers or a group of exhibitors. Organizational affiliation will have no bearing on their makeup.

May Ignore Yamins Plea

It was indicated yesterday that the distributors have no intention of meeting the demand of Nathan Yamins, president of Allied, that before the latter organization will talk conciliation its must have a formal invitation from a committee representing all principal companies with the assurance that they are willing to solve problems which Allied considers fundamental, not only local disputes.

approximately one-half the total, pay[illegible] in equal installments over a three-[illegible] period.

Mr. Blumberg, accompanied by Mrs. Blumberg and Matthew J. Fox, Universal vice-president, left for the coast at midnight last night with plans for remaining at the studio for at least a month. During that time, Mr. Blumberg, Mr. Fox and Clifford Work, newly appointed general manager of the Universal studio, will work out a permanent executive production setup. It was stated officially last night that no action whatever looking to the appointment of an executive producer has been taken or will be for several weeks to come.

In the same westbound party last night was John J. O'Connor, RKO theatre head, who will select a successor to Mr. Work as western division manager of RKO Theatres on his arrival in California.

Two Statements Issued

The joint statement issued by Mr. Blumberg and Mr. Rogers concluded with this:

"Despite all rumors, statements and inferences to the contrary, the most cordial relationship exists between Mr. Rogers and all officials of Universal who will direct their efforts, in a complete unity of purpose, to maintain Universal's important position as one of the major companies in the motion picture industry."

Mr. Rogers, in a statement to the studio personnel, said:

"I want to take this opportunity to express to each one of you my sincerest and most heartfelt appreciation of the splendid cooperation you have accorded me in the past.

"As a member of the board of directors, I shall continue to lend every possible effort and support to further the best interests of our company.

"It is my greatest wish that the unfailing loyalty and devotion which characterized our relationship in the past will continue to serve those whom the company has designated to carry on the work of the studio."

File 11th Suit on Loew's Bonus Plan

allegedly dissipated from 1925 through 1937. Plaintiff claims that in 1924 Irving Thalberg, Schenck, Mayer and Rubin conspired to get control of M-G-M and that last December they voted themselves 20 per cent of the annual net profit of the company.

From 1925 through 1937 she contended, over $16,000,000 was paid in bonuses to these four, in addition to their salaries. The complainant further alleges that nine others, not named in the complaint, received salaries during 1937 which totaled $1,900,000. The court is asked to annul the stockholders' option agreement whereby Schenck, Rubin and Mayer allegedly obtained the right to purchase 250,000 shares of stock. They have already exercised their option on 116,660 shares, she asserted. The plaintiff further asks for a court order restraining a resolution which will allegedly be passed at a meeting in the near future to ratify this agreement.

Para. Files Tilden Answer

Paramount Pictures, Inc., Cecil B. DeMille and Adolph Zukor filed an answer in Federal Court yesterday to the suit of Zelma B. Tilden in which she charged piracy of her play, "Captain What-the-Devil," in "The Buccaneer." The complaint had asked for an accounting and injunction.

Paramount admits the receipt on August 8, 1935, of the plaintiff's manuscript and claims it was returned Aug. 27, 1935. Paramount further asserts that long prior to 1935 Cecil B. DeMille had publicly stated that he was going to make a picture based on the life of Jean LaFitte. The defendants asked for a dismissal of the complaint on the ground that the plaintiff's play is part of the public domain.

Seek to Prevent Dismissal

An application was made yesterday by the American Feature Film Co., Inc., to the Federal Court to prevent dismissals of the suit against Universal Pictures, Inc., for lack of prosecution. The suit is for $1,350,000 and seeks to recover alleged overpayments made by American Feature to Universal for the years 1919 through 1929. On March 20, 1933, Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson appointed George Frankenthaler to audit the books of Universal. The application stated that the audit had not been completed.

Jewel Appeal Allowed

Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson yesterday allowed the appeal of Jewel Productions, Inc., to the Circuit Court of Appeals in the suit brought by Jewel Productions against Henry Morganthau, Jr., and Harry M. Durning as collector of the port of New York.

The suit had been brought charging that the Government was unwarrantedly interfering with the distribution of the American picture "Mysteries of Sex." Jewel sought an injunction against the Government which was denied in the lower court on motion of the defendants.

Fanchon Royer Here For New Film Deal

Fanchon Royer, Hollywood's only woman producer, specializing in he-man independents, is in town to close a deal for a New York showing of her latest film, "Religious Racketeers." She is departing from her usual practice with this picture and will roadshow it herself over the country.

In the seven years Miss Royer has been making independents (Fanchon Royer Features, Inc.) she has heretofore made the picture, delivered it to a distributor who guaranteed negative cost and gave her 50 per cent of the profits. When she decided to make "Religious Racketeers," an expose of clairvoyants, mediums and other professors of the supernatural, with Mrs. Harry Houdini playing herself in the film, she decided at the same time she'd do it all herself.

Spends Freely

"Of course I couldn't make more than two pictures a year if I went out on the road myself as I'm doing with this, nursing it along, handling the selling and exploitation myself. But in this experiment I have an exploitation picture and I'm going to try it.

Miss Royer sniffs at extravagance. She is the mistress of a big house on a hill in the San Francisco Valley which she runs with effortless dispatch, and in which she manages five children, from two and a half years of age to a college freshman. She plans her picture costs the way she runs her house, and she has a reputation in Hollywood for never going more than $500 beyond her budget on any picture. "Religious Racketeers" cost about $35,000 to make, a third more than her regular productions.—I. K.

Louisiana Measure Would Tax Circuits

Baton Rouge, May 20.—A bill to levy a tax on circuit theatres of from $50 to $200 per theatre was introduced in the Louisiana House yesterday by Representative A. D. Flowers of La Salle.

The bill would place a $50 tax on each theatre in circuits comprising two to five houses, $75 each in circuits of from six to 10 houses and on a graduated scale to $200 per house in circuits of 200 or more theatres. The bill is not included among the so-called "administration" measures, and its passage is by no means certain. Canada Report Asks Short Wave Station

$2 to $2.50 should be carefully reviewed in the light of this year's experience with a view to effecting a reduction.

A short wave station, the committee believes, would be of value in interpreting and advertising Canada abroad. It should be financed as a national project and be operated and controlled by the corporation. The report was signed by all members of the original committee except J. Earl Lawson, who withdrew from the group when it refused to hear others than corporation witnesses.

The report generally approved the policy followed by CBC in its business administration and a corporation setup which makes the board of governors responsible for policies and the management responsible for administration.

Court Sound Tests Are Sought in Bill

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Legislation providing for the taking of motion pictures of important parts of court trials may be sought if experiments in sound recording provided for in a bill sponsored by Representative Hobbs (Dem., Ala.), is adopted and proves successful.

The measure, which has passed the House, would equip one room of the District Court here with sound equipment, with reproducing equipment in the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court for use when cases are appealed.

The possibility of making motion pictures was raised by Senator Connally (Dem., Tex.) today during a hearing on the measure before a Senate sub-committee, and the Alabama Congressman said he would "never be satisfied until we get a talking picture" of trials.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 87

(RKO)

The content of this reel is interesting and varied. The news scenes of current interest are good and there are a few exclusives. The musical treatment of scenes of construction on the World's Fair is effective. The score is a humorous variation of the sound of a riveting hammer, with orchestral background.

The reel contains scenes of Capt. Maurice Rossi, French flyer, testing his plane in preparation for a Paris-New York flight. Flood scenes in the Midwest are shown. Cuba grants land to farmers as part of its three-year plan. The new directorate of the Stock Exchange is covered effectively. England's cable-balloons go aloft in air-raid maneuvers. Federal agents instruct cashiers on how to detect counterfeit money. Cleveland's unemployed stage a starvation strike and Czechoslovakian Nazis attend a fund-raising and speechmaking session with their leader, Konrad Heinlein. Running time, 11 mins. P.

Blumberg May Take Control Of Production

No Successor to Rogers Under Consideration

Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, may take over active supervision of production for the time being, it was indicated in official quarters over the week-end. Mr. Blumberg's direction of production would obviate the necessity for immediate selection of an executive producer to succeed Charles R. Rogers.

Universal home office officials reiterated that no thought has been given yet to the selection of an executive producer and all reports suggesting the names of inactive production executives for the post were characterized as either "unsupported guessing" or "promotional gossip."

Official confirmation that a specific plan exists for Mr. Blumberg to take over production direction was not

Price Levels Hold in Spite Of Recession

Survey Uncovers But Few Cuts Across Country

Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles covering a nationwide survey on admission price levels. The second will appear shortly.

No general reduction of admission prices or tendency to reduce prevailing scales is apparent in key cities throughout the country despite the estimated 12 to 20 per cent slump in box-office grosses over the past six month, a nation survey condlucted by Motion Picture Daily discloses.

Reductions have been made but in fewer than a dozen key cities. Local operators of independent and affiliated circuits are seriously considering reductions in several localities, but the

Wolf-Laemmle Suit Dismissed by Court

A $275,000 breach of contract suit brought by Alfred M. Wolf against Carl Laemmle was dismissed in the U. S. District Court here on Saturday by Federal Judge John C. Knox because of the failure of Mr. Wolf to prosecute the action.

Mr. Wolf claimed that he was engaged by Laemmle in January, 1935, to obtain a purchaser for Mr. Laemmle's stock in Universal Pictures. Mr. Wolf alleges that he interested the Standard Capital Co., which purchased the stock for $5,500,000 in March, 1936. The plaintiff sought five per cent commission.

Writers and Broadcasters Squabble Over Ball Games

Albany, May 22.—Feeling between newspaper men and radio announcers on baseball broadcasts and re-creations broke out in the open last week in the Eastern League. Sam Nash, Binghamton sports writer and president of the Eastern League Baseball Writers' Association, wrote official scorers in the different loop cities asking them to refrain from giving out information from the press box to radio announcers or telegraph operators engaged by N. W. Ayer & Son, who handle the Atlantic Refining accounts. Atlantic has the contract in every city except Albany for both home and road games, splitting here with General Mills, which handles the contests away from home.

Additional developments in radio yesterday on page 10.

Trouble broke out in Binghamton when a Western Union telegrapher, engaged in transmitting a play-by-play account to Albany for broadcast here,

Schenck Aims At "Crackpot" Commentary

By IRENE KUHN

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of 20th Century-Fox, riding hard down the field of motion picture honor, tilted a lance intended to pierce the Goldwyn Goblin and the Brandt Banshee.

It will be remembered that Messrs. Goldwyn and Brandt recently collided in the press with similar expressions of anguish over the state of picture business.

Said Mr. Schenck:

"Regardless of what a few crackpots may say the majority of the world has endorsed motion picture business by their attendance at motion pictures."

Now Mr. Schenck is not calling Mr. Goldwyn and Mr. Brandt crackpots. In fact, he said of Mr. Goldwyn that "he has intense knowledge and appreciation of the picture business, but he is for Mr. Goldwyn first and picture business second." And he said he had told Mr. Brandt to his face that he thought the Brandt blasts

Producers at a Meeting Call the System the "Only Fair Way"

Hollywood, May 22.—All United Artists pictures will be leased to exhibitors on a percentage basis only. That was the policy adopted and announced last night by United Artists producers who, in the first united front action of its kind, instructed George J. Schaefer, vice-president in charge of domestic distribution, to put the method into effect immediately.

At the meeting, held at the home of Samuel Goldwyn yesterday morning, were Mr. Goldwyn, David O. Selznick, Edward Small, Walter Wanger and Maurice Silverstone, representing Alexander Korda. The full expression of policy as announced follows:

"That in order to attract patrons to the box-office, the United Artists constant policy of producing motion pictures only of the highest entertainment quality is more important today than ever before and will be continued as inflexible. That since it is impossible in advance to correctly gauge the number of patrons who will see a motion picture, the only fair way to

High Court to Get North Dakota Case

Regardless of the outcome of the North Dakota theatre "divorcement" case to be heard in Fargo, beginning June 1, the question of the constitutionality of the statute involved will go to the U. S. Supreme Court for a final decision.

The case will be appealed by the side that loses in the trial before the three-judge statutory court which will hear the distributors' attack on the law as presented by Paramount's legal battery headed by Thomas D. Thacher.

While the State of North Dakota is defending Paramount's action, Allied, which sponsored the legislation, is taking a leading part in the defense and plans to have a number of its stalwarts as witnesses at the trial. Abram F. Myers, Allied's general counsel, has been named a special deputy attorney general and will assist Attorney General Alvin C. Strutz.

The outcome will determine whether Allied will sponsor similar legislation in other states. Meanwhile, it has collected a fund to cover its expense in the trial, quotas having been allotted to the various units. The organization is paying for the services of Louis B. Schwartz, Minneapolis attorney, who also has been appointed a special assistant attorney general and will act as chief defense counsel.

Church Bingo Target Of Toronto Campaign

TORONTO, May 22.—Nat A. Action was taken by Taylor following protests of many independent exhibitors of the increasing competition from the games of chance.

Some weeks ago the authorities at Winnipeg placed a ban on Bingo throughout the city. A similar decision is sought here.

"Three Comrades"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—Erich Remarque's story of post-war Germany comes to the screen as straight fiction with emphasis on the principal characters and no political connotations. Robert Taylor, Franchot Tone and Robert Young play the comrades of the title and Margaret Sullavan is the girl in their lives. Guy Kibbee, Lionel Atwill, Henry Hull, Charley Grapewin and Monty Wooley round out a cast rich in marquee value and admirably equipped for the acting in hand. The film is a carefully constructed, thoughtfully prepared item of highly vendible merchandise.

F. Scott FitzGerald and Edward E. Paramore put into their screenplay the dramatic essence of the novel and did some appropriate tinkering with certain details in the interest of the family trade. It is altogether clean.

Joseph L. Mankiewicz, producer, and Frank Borzage, director, gave the work distinguished treatment. To offset a probably inevitable talkiness they have distributed brief intervals of intense action throughout the film. The effect is unusual and potent.

Taylor, Tone and Young are trench buddies who preserve their palship after the war and sacrifice for each other as they struggle with more courage than hope against the economic rigors of the period. Taylor marries Miss Sullavan, an arrested tubercular case, whose affliction strikes her down during their honeymoon. Young is killed in a street riot and Tone avenges his murder. The wife learns of Young's death and Tone's and Taylor's sacrifices to pay for her hospitalization. Whereupon she disobeys doctors' order and thus hastens death. The picture ends with Tone and Taylor setting out for South America.

"The Great John Ericsson"

(Scandinavian Talking Pictures)

An interesting story of the life of the Swedish inventor in this country during the period of the Civil War is told in this importation. Its logical audience, people of Swedish extraction, should find it interesting. Figures in American history are portrayed speaking in Swedish. The production and performances rank with the best to come from Sweden. Victor Seastrom has the name role. There are adequate English subtitles.

Count Folke Bernadotte appears at the beginning and delivers a talk on the 300th anniversary of good will between the U. S. and Sweden—the film is a sort of ambassador of good will—and briefly sketches Ericsson's life up to the time where the film begins.

The story tells of the inventor's domestic and business difficulties. His devotion to mechanical problems keeps him from his wife. At length she leaves him. He is upset but soon plunges again into work on his most important historical creation, the ironclad Monitor. His work is hampered by naval officials until Abraham Lincoln intervenes. The ship is completed, arrives at Hampton Roads where it engages the Merrimac. The battle scenes are done well. Following his triumph, Ericsson sets to work on a solar machine. His wife returns and is quite at a loss what to do seeing him again preoccupied. There is a light sub-plot which concerns the romance of a young Northern naval officer and the daughter of a Southern statesman.

Schenck Aims His Lance At the "Crackpot" Armor

were good publicity for H. B., but bad for picture business.

Mr. Schenck made one thing clear, to wit:

"The only difference between good times and bad times in picture business is that in good times people attend the theatre four times a week, and in bad times they cut expenses and so naturally having less to spend in the theatres select the best picture in their neighborhood. There never have been bad times for a great picture. But nobody can expect every picture that comes out of Hollywood to be a great picture any more than you can expect the drama which has been functioning for hundreds of years to ring the bell with a four-star hit every time.

"Unless Mr. Goldwyn and Mr. Brandt had the intention of making the front pages I cannot figure out why they should have made such ridiculous statements," said Mr. Schenck closing that matter.

Defines Film Quality

Constructively, he added, the formula for a successful picture, reduced to its simplest terms, is a good story and proper casting. "Actors playing roles which the public can believe." That is the essence of the 20th Century-Fox formula, the chairman added.

"And reducing the yearly product won't make pictures better," he went on. "No studio overlooks a great story now merely because it's committed to, say, three pictures a month instead of one."

He scored the Neely bill, particularly Section 4, which he termed "preposterous and ridiculous." He added that it would be impossible to obey this section of the bill literally. To do so would mean that the required film synopsis, which would be part of the lease, could not be made until the film was in the can. Even then, if such a synopsis is to be completely accurate and fit all the requirements of the bill, there are difficulties which are practically insurmountable, for no two persons view the same thing in exactly the same way and the synopsis is intended to be a literal description of the business, action and dialogue.

"How is an exhibitor going to buy pictures like that?" he asked. "He's got to change his bill a couple of times a week. He's got to be ahead in his buying not neck and neck with each picture."

Mr. Schenck said that despite the current agitation over double bills it was his conviction that double features are definitely preferred in many sections of the country.

"Maybe not in New York, where there's a wide choice of entertainment. But if the double bill is so bad in New York that everybody wants to get rid of it, why don't they? It seems to me that the independent exhibitors and the circuit men could get together for a full and representative meeting. Let them pledge themselves beforehand to abide by the majority theatre vote and test the majority decision for a stipulated period. The vote should be by theatres, however. A circuit with 50 houses should have 50 votes, an exhibitor with 10 houses would have 10 votes."

Schenck's company, with its 52 pictres for the coming season, will have more "big" subjects than ever before. "If we have to meet bad times we'll meet them with good product, great entertainment, subjects which will leave an impression with the audience."

Likes True Adventure

Mr. Schenck said he saw tremendous popularity ahead for the adventure-biography type of story. "If you have an entertaining story—adventure—against a background of truth—biography—then truth is the plus quality which can make a picture great. It's like public speaking. I may be the poorest speaker in the world, but if I know what I'm talking about and talk honestly and sincerely, then I can be eloquent."

Finally, in deploring the small grudge fights and "getting even" tactics which pinprick the fabric of picture business, he said:

"The motion picture business belongs to everybody who is in it. The business is composed of the talents and industry of producers, directors, technicians, actors, writers, exhibitors, distributors. What is important to the business as a whole is important to every individual in it. If we had unity, everybody working constructively for the common good, which is his own good, picture business need never cry the blues."

Nova Scotia Stops Portable Film Shows

TORONTO, May 22.—Itinerant film shows using standard film releases are now a thing of the past in Nova Scotia, legislation having been enacted which restricts the screening of standard-width films to structures having permanently-installed projection equipment in approved booths. There is no restriction on the use of 16mm. film of the safety type.

In the past traveling picture units have provided screen entertainment in halls and lodge rooms of small communities not served by theatres, but film shows, except those made possible by the use of narrow prints, are now restricted to recognized theatres.

The net profit from operations for the 26 weeks, before charges for amortization and depreciation of properties, normal Federal income taxes, and Federal surtaxes on undistributed profits, was $6,393,096.44.

The net is equal also to 70 cents per share on 3,701,090 shares outstanding (after deducting shares held in treasury) on Feb. 26, after allowance for current dividend requirements on the preferred stock. The per share earnings are figured without provision for Federal surtaxes on undistributed profits.

Universal Testing Telco Color Films

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—Another new color process, this one called Telco, is being pushed here. Universal has been making screen tests with it, using two contract players, Francis Robinson and Eleanor Hanson.

Under this process, its backers claim, the Telco print-processing machine can take any set of color separation negatives and apply color to the positive electrically. Speed without loss of quality and the use of a black and white sound track are cited as among its advantages. Production will be started June 15 at the company's plant, 1,257 North LaBrea Ave.

Remote Canada Area Will Get Film House

Toronto, May 22. — The North West Territories, remote section of Canada adjacent to Alaska, is to have its first film theatre at last. The frontier settlement of Yellowknife, 780 miles north of Edmonton, Alberta, will shortly have a theatre, which is being erected by Kinema Amusements, Ltd., with offices in Calgary. It will be the most northerly house in the Dominion and will serve the scattered residents of a wide mining area.

The new mining town of Cadillac in northern Quebec will also shortly boast a $40,000 theatre which is being erected by Bydzak Bros., who own and operate the Palace Theatre in Val d'Or, also a new settlement in the north country.

The new mining town of Geraldton in Northern Ontario will see the opening shortly of the Strand, which is being built by Theatre Holding Corp., Ltd., here.

Greenwich to Have Music-Film Series

Cinema-concerts—an hour of related music conducted by Quinto Maganini, and a foreign film—will be launched in the Pickwick, Greenwich, Conn., under the sponsorship of the Greenwich unit of the Junior League, beginning May 25 and continuing through Aug. 3.

The foreign films chosen are "Moonlight Sonata," "Pearls of the Crown," "Orphan Boy of Vienna," "La Bonheur," "The Adventures of Chico" and "Pagliacci." The hour of music, preceding the screening, will be chosen to set the mood for the film.

The Junior League's choice of an all-foreign picture program is due to the fact that American releases have mostly been viewed elsewhere.

The management has donated the Pickwick for the programs, and the proceeds will go toward children's concerts next winter.

Form Pyramid Films

Dover, Del., May 22.—Pyramid Pictures, Inc., has been formed here to deal in motion pictures, with a capital of $250,000. The incorporators are L. E. Gray, L. H. Herman and Walter Lenz of Wilmington.

New York Previews

"The Saint in New York"

(RKO)

Here is an unpretentious but extremely active picture which contrives to be excellent, although somewhat "murderous," entertainment, and which has the added value of an intriguing title.

The film lacks marquee names in the cast, but that did not prevent the players turning out a handful of neat performances. Louis Hayward is in the title role, and, as the "Saint," a notorious international criminal of the Robin Hood type whose victims are invariably people who should be disposed of, he turns the job smartly, despite a slight tendency to appear too suave at times. Kay Sutton, Sig Rumann and Jonathan Hale are the chief supporting players.

Ben Holmes, who directed from a screenplay by Charles Kaufman and Mortimer Offner, held out for speed and suspense, with the merest touch of occasional comedy, and was highly successful, thanks to Hayward's ability to carry the role.

From a novel by Leslie Charteris, the story recounts the protests to the police commissioner of what is represented to be New York by a group of prominent citizens, against the rule of gangs. What begins to appear like an indictment of crooked courts and freedom for criminals, rapidly turns to direct action as the notorious "Saint" is persuaded to undertake the cleanup of the "big shots." He does, with spectacular speed and plenty of suspense, falling in love on the way. Unusually, tragedy closes the film, as death beats the romance, and the "Saint" goes his way.

Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

"Gangs of New York"

(Republic)

The addition of "Gangs of New York" to the cycle of films dealing with the release of gangster leaders from prison and their subsequent return to their activities should give audiences an exciting hour's entertainment. This story's variation from the theme is the dual-role device. It aptly does the job of keeping interest keyed up to satisfying levels. The scene constantly changes and the action is cleverly spread out.

The police endeavor to clean up four New York gangs in one coup. Charles Bickford, a state trooper who resembles Gangster "Rocky Thorpe," is dispatched to take the gang leader's place when the latter is supposed to be released from prison. Bickford obtains the confidence of the mob to some extent and sells his philosophy of business to the other gang leaders. He convinces everyone but Alan Baxter and Wynne Gibson. There is also a budding romance when he meets Ann Dvorak, a singer, whose brother is one of the mob.

Bickford, in colorful style, gets the other leaders to make records of their "business" and arranges a conference. Meanwhile "Thorpe" breaks from jail and comes to the city. The climax arrives when Bickford is revealed as a copper and falls into the racketeers' hands. "Thorpe" arrives on the scene, having been tipped off by Miss Gibson. A shooting melee takes place with the police winning and "Thorpe" gets shot by Baxter, who mistakes him for Bickford. Later Bickford proposes to Miss Dvorak.

The performances by the principals are all that the story requires. James Cruze directed. Sam Fuller did the original story. The support offers Harold Huber, Maxie Rosenbloom, John Wray, Jonathan Hale and Fred Kohler.

Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Seattle, May 22. — Harry Ulsh, operator of the Cle Elum Theatre at Cle Ulum, Wash., has purchased the two-story building in which his theatre is housed. The property was bought a few weeks ago from the former estate by the Junior Amusement Co., from which Ulsh acquired it.

Akron, May 22.—The Nixon, operated by Charles P. Stalder, is the first local film house to cut admissions. The price is 10 cents on Wednesday and Thursday with a 15-cent top the rest of the week. This is a five-cent cut.

Short Subjects

'The Fighting Devil Dogs'

(Republic)

If future installments of this serial hold to the promise of the first episode and advance synopsis then the exhibitor has something which his younger audiences should eagerly anticipate.

This is one of those mysterious, pseudo scientific yarns with all required angles to keep its clientele coming back. The Marine Corps figures heroically in it and there are assorted electrical gadgets and weird characters constantly on view. The story has to do with the pursuit and dodging of The Lightning, who masquerades in an outlandish costume and works his criminal way with the aid of a powerfully charged projectile.

The film offers Lee Powell, Herman Brix, Eleanor Stewart, Montagu Love and Sam Flint in the leading roles. The Lightning is unidentified. William Whitney and John English directed. The first chapter runs 30 mins. Additional installments run approximately 18 mins. "G."

"Pinehurst"

(RKO)

From all the sporting angles this short has what it takes. The theme is golfing and it seems everybody in Pinehurst "swats the pill." The photography is excellent. Various champions do their stuff, as well. Much color and atmosphere is worked into the narrative. The golfing fraternity must be made aware of its presentation. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"The Problem Child"

(Universal)

An interestingly developed, and for the most part, an entertaining cartoon is offered here. The plot concerns "Wild Cat Willie," who gets into all sorts of scrapes, runs away from home, is frightened by a dog, returns, and finds that home is not at all bad. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Hold It"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

The popular tune that requires dancers to freeze in their steps when the phrase orders it makes an excellent cartoon theme. It has been treated here with much ingenious drawing and laughable sequences in which a chorus of cats annoy a dog to distraction. The Technicolor effects are good. Good. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Music and Flowers"

(Mentone-Universal)

Eve Sully and Jesse Block furnish their familiar brand of comedy in a fairly entertaining manner, and a group of acts ranging from singers to bell-ringers serve as background. It is fair stuff composed of typical variety material. Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Community Sing 8-2"

(Columbia)

Songs of the west and pioneer days make up this number. "Sons of the Pioneers" handle the screen vocals in good style. Songs include "Oh Susanna," "Old Folks At Home," "The Last Round-up" and "Darling Nellie Gray." Fair. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

action and tendency in both instances [illegible] dictated by local circumstances [illegible]erning summer competition or a dearth of strong product requiring the use of either secondary bookings or the dating of reissues. In several instances, the decreases have occurred in localities where admission scales were increased last year and the markdown, as a result, brings the price level to that prevailing prior to 1937, rather than to a sub-par standard, as might be supposed.

Contrary to general belief, the industrial east and midwest, which were first to feel the recession, have not been the first to reduce admissions, nor is there evidence of any more numerous reductions in these areas than in the agricultural west and south. The price decreases and consideration of the move cannot be territorially defined. It occurs in widely separated areas and appears to be locally confined.

Localities Itemized

The following reports show reductions or tendencies to reduce admissions.

Spokane—Reductions of five cents to 15 and 25-cent scales have been made in several subsequent runs here. First runs have undergone no price changes yet.

Omaha — Tri-States Circuit has closed the Majestic, Grand Island, and lowered prices at the Grand, in the same city. Prices elsewhere have been maintained.

Miami—The Colony, Community and Plaza, at Miami Beach, have reduced admissions. All other houses in the greater Miami area have maintained their schedules up to now. Summer conditions may force the closing of some houses, although the outlook this season is better than it has been for several years. No attempts at double featuring have been made yet.

Lincoln—Prices here have fluctuated for several months past, due as much to competitive price cutting and restoration of scales as to business conditions. Indications are the reductions which stick will be confined to second runs.

Buffalo Normal

Buffalo—Seasonal reductions have been made by all first runs in anticipation of summer competition. The scales, however, had been advanced five and 10 cents about six months ago.

Salt Lake City—Houses throughout Utah and Idaho which raised admissions early in 1937 have returned to the 1936 scales. Fox West Coast Theatres in Idaho and Montana did not raise prices at that time and have not been forced to make reductions now.

Milwaukee — First run admission prices have held steady but neighborhood levels have been lowered five cents for matinees and, in a few places, are down to 10 cents general admission, nights.

San Francisco—Barring a business upturn in the near future, local houses may be forced to reduce prices but are maintaining the established scales as long as possible. The Embassy is the only house which has reduced prices up to now. It is down from a 55 to a 40-cent top, but eliminated its 15-cent admission in favor of a 25-cent minimum.

Des Moines—A 15 to 20 per cent decrease in prices is almost general throughout Iowa. Of the few operators who have managed to maintain established scales, several will make reductions soon to offset summer competition.

Reports from the following cities reveal no serious change or tendency to change prices.

Detroit—Only two houses in this territory, the United Artists and Madison, have dropped prices. A careful check reveals nothing to indicate any general decrease in scales at present.

Louisville Retains Scales

Louisville—Only one house, the Kentucky, has decreased its scale, going from a 25 to a 20-cent top. First runs are still at 40 cents, plus four cents state tax, top. Neighborhood and country theatres in the state and in southern Indiana have maintained their scales and with a good crop outlook see no likelihood of a change downward.

Albany—Spotty business prevailing for some time makes a prediction on the future price policy in this area difficult. First runs wiped off a 10-cent increase made last year when business slumped at the beginning of this year. Leading operators have maintained scales fairly evenly since, but a summer decline may force widespread reductions.

Denver—There is no apparent tendency—or need—of price reductions in this territory. Scales have been, and are remaining, at a popular level of 40 and 25 cents.

Boston—No reduction of admission scales is in sight in this territory. Increases were not made a year ago and houses now are in a position to take up the slack without resorting to price cuts. The only changes in recent months have resulted from the addition or elimination of vaudeville.

Kansas City—Exhibitors here are holding out against price reductions as stubbornly as possible. In many instances, increases in scales made a year ago are still being maintained. There is little likelihood of prices going below the 1936 levels.

No Minneapolis Reductions

Minneapolis—Circuits and independents alike have made no changes in admission prices. There is no authoritative information that any reductions are being considered.

Dallas—Although business reports are pessimistic throughout the territory no price reductions have been made or, so far as can be learned, are being contemplated. However, no increases were made here last year.

Oklahoma City—Admission prices in both circuit and independent houses throughout the state have undergone no change in more than a year and there are no indications that reductions are being contemplated now. The prevailing scales of 40 cents top for first runs and 25 for subsequents has encountered no resistance in this territory.

Chicago—Admission prices have not been lowered in this territory and indications are that prices will remain the same throughout the summer.

No 20th-Fox Reissues

There will be no re-issues by 20th Century-Fox this summer, the sales department has decided. With other companies announcing revivals of films of previous seasons, 20th Century-Fox polled its branches on whether it should have re-issues, and managers generally replied in the negative. Individual films of other years will continue to be booked to exhibitors on request.

given, but it was stated that the Universal president plans to remain at the studio for an indefinite length of time and will have Matthew J. Fox, vice-president, with him as a studio assistant. Clifford Work, newly appointed studio general manager, will, of course, be in charge only of business administration at the studio. His duties are separated entirely from production.

It was definitely suggested that the selection of an executive producer is not expected for some time and that, with Mr. Blumberg and Mr. Fox in executive charge of production, individual producers on the lot would be given considerable added leeway in matters of individual authority and discretion wherever their records warranted it.

It was intimated, in addition, that under such an arrangement J. Cheever Cowdin, Universal board chairman, would take over additional administrative functions at the home office and greater executive authority would evolve upon such home office officials as William A. Scully, vice-president and general sales manager, and Joseph Seidelman, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution.

THAT "poison" blast against certain film players did not contain the names of Deanna Durbin, Bonita Granville, Judy Garland, Tommy Kelly, and other up and coming youngsters, proving that youthful talent is box-office and that the patrons and producers of motion pictures are youth conscious.

But what chance has youth in radio? Don't ask us, ask the talent agents who keep butting their heads against the stone wall of radio indifference to youth. This is not a "poison" blast of our own directed against established radio players, but radio has bled itself dry of air talent and nothing is being done to fortify the industry against that near day when the dialers will not tune in as enthusiastically as they are now doing to Kate Smith, Jack Benny, Fred Allen and the other radio standpat acts.

Practically every radio agent in the business has on his representation list one or two youngsters worth listening to, but the youngsters might just as well have a contagious disease, the way the sponsors, agencies, and network artists heads run from them.

Despite its humorous implications, this letter must be considered a tribute to the acting ability of Edward G. Robinson. It was written by a radio-screen fan of Branch, Ulster County, N. Y., to Ben Gross, radio editor of the Daily News, and Ben has turned it over to us. Here it is:

"I am a daily reader of your paper and enjoy it very much. In an earlier edition was an article about Edward G. Robinson, the famous movie gangland actor. My friends in this village have been arguing as to whether this actor ever was in jail or if he has been connected with one of the New York City gangs."

This seems to call for an answer, E. G. R.

Indicative of the popularity of Hollywood information was the occurrence on Sam Taylor's weekly Hollywood quiz over WHN during a recent program. When Sam asked one of the participants "what is the Brown Derby?" the answer was "she's a horse race run in the mud at Santa Anita."

Continuing, Sam turned to another contestant and, with Edna May Oliver in mind, asked, "What star is famous for her sniff?" Without hesitation the reply was: "Pluto, who plays in Mickey Mouse."

O'Keefe's Counter Suit Names Hawkins

Following the dismissal of the plagiarism suit of Maxwell Hawkins against Walter O'Keefe, the latter has entered an action against Hawkins, charging libel and slander.

In entering his claim against Hawkins, O'Keefe said he was representing the writing field as a whole and not acting as an individual.

The original suit was the outgrowth of a script prepared by O'Keefe titled "The Rolling Stones," which O'Keefe sold to RKO. Co-defendants with O'Keefe were his managers, Nelson Hesse and William McCaffery, and RKO. "Rolling Stones" was produced as a Joe Penner vehicle titled "Go Chase Yourself." The case was dismissed Friday by Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins, after Lou Richman, Chicago writer, testified that he wrote a similar script which was heard on a network at least one month before Hawkins claimed he wrote his script.

was ordered from the press box. The reason given was lack of room, but later the letter went forth. Some of the newspapermen are seeking $2 per game for giving information on lineups, rulings on base hits and errors and the like, to both the announcers and telegraphers.

League President Thomas H. Richardson has wired all official scorers, asking cooperation with both radio and telegraph workers. In Binghamton club officials constructed a new booth for the radio and telegraph men.

Currently, neither Ayer nor Western Union are paying the $2 fee. Newsmen originally figured the sponsor would pay the charge, contending the "cooperation" is not part of their duty. However, there has been no trouble locally since Charles Young, official scorer here, always helps the radio announcers and telegraphers alike. Young calls out his decisions on close plays in an audible tone and the utmost friendship exists in Albany—but not elsewhere.

Difficulty of Raising Again Blocking Cuts

Most Exhibitors Learned This in 1931-'32

Editor's Note—This is the second and concluding article in a nationwide survey of admissions by Motion Picture Daily.

The primary lesson of the 1931-'32 depression—that it is easy to reduce admission prices but to recover the cut is a painful and arduous process—appears to have been well learned by American exhibitors. The 1937-'38 recession, now about six months old, finds but few theatre operators resorting to price cutting, or even contemplating the move, a national survey of key city operations just completed by Motion Picture Daily discloses.

The first article on the results of the survey, published yesterday, revealed that price cuts have been made

At this juncture, Mr. Hicks stopped short. "I'd prefer not to talk about such things," he informed the interviewer. "Get your information from Secretary Cordell Hull or Ambassador Bullitt."

Sam Hacker, in charge of the contract department, yesterday became assistant to Morris Goodman, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution. The post had been vacant for several weeks.

With the shift, approval of contracts has been discontinued at the home office and will be done by the five district managers in the field.

Paramount Lawyers Delay Fargo Start

The departure of Paramount's legal staff for Fargo, N. D., where the constitutionality of the state's affiliated theatre "divorce" law is scheduled to be tested on June 1, has been postponed a day so that Austin C. Keough, a vice-president and director, may attend the company's board meeting Thursday. The company's legal representatives will leave here for Fargo on Friday.

Paramount is seeking to have the temporary injunction restraining the state from enforcing its theatre "divorce" law made permanent on the grounds that the statute is an unwarranted use of the police power of the state and is in violation of the Federal and state constitutions. The case will be heard by a three-judge Federal statutory court and is expected to consume about 10 days.

Quota Not Bad, He Says; Films Will Improve

"Robin Hood" Hits $39,600 In the Loop

Hollywood Previews

"Gold Diggers in Paris"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—Few "annuals" have accumulated with the years such commanding regard as the "Gold Diggers," cornerstone of the Warner reputation for dependability in the song-and-dance field. Sustained success has imparted to the series a certain vital momentum. Possibly a public thus educated to count each release a gay, happy step forward will take this one in stride. It is in the nature of mass adulation to forgive a champion once.

This year's edition has as many names and so on as its forerunners but lacks their speed and sparkle. Its basic idea is as good as any, but gets kicked around some in overlong and inadequately pointed narrative stretches separating too widely the comparatively few melodic and comedic high spots. The preview audience got a bit restive about it, which usually means that there will be a measure of shortening administered before the picture goes into exhibition.

Rudy Vallee and Rosemary Lane have the romantic assignment and sing a number of songs by Harry Warren, Al Dubin and Johnny Mercer which are rather more on the ballad side than is conducive to preservation of the "Gold Diggers" tradition. Perhaps with a view toward offsetting this, the Schnikelfritz Band, eccentric swing unit, loud, fast and determinedly comic, takes over at intervals. The gag department is tenanted by Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Fritz Feld, Curt Boris, Melville Cooper, Mabel Todd and bit players, all of whom could have used more and livelier material.

Sam Bischoff produced. Ray Enright directed. Earl Baldwin and Warren Duff wrote the screenplay from a story by Jerry Wald, Richard Macauley and Maurice Leo, based on an idea by Jerry Horwin and James Seymour. It's about a night club outfit mistaken for a famous American ballet by a Frenchman sent over to invite the latter to come to Paris for the international competitions. Busby Berkeley handled the dance numbers. Ray Heindorf made the orchestral arrangements. Leo F. Forbstein is musical director.

Running time, as previewed, 97 minutes. "G."

"The Devil's Party"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—First mentioned in production news as "Hell's Kitchen Has a Pantry," the name of Borden Chase's novel, this metropolitan melodrama moves away from the underprivileged New York area pertained to by the original title and transpires principally on Broadway and Columbus Circle. It contains two murders, two major robberies, considerable flashing of sidearms and quite a lot of plot. Victor McLaglen, William Gargan, Paul Kelly, Frank Jenks and Beatrice Roberts are top names and the screenplay by Roy Chanslor generates holding tension.

The story begins several years back with four little boys and a girl learning life the wrong way in Hell's Kitchen. When the leader goes to the reformatory the picture skips a decade or so and discovers him as McLaglen, gambler, owner of a night club, in love with the now grown girl, Miss Roberts, who sings in his night club, and still a pal of the other members of the boyhood gang, two of whom are now policemen; the fourth, Kelly, a priest. McLaglen's hired thugs overdo a dressing down of a wealthy welcher and make the death look accidental. McLaglen's policemen buddies, brothers, investigate the matter, one of them getting killed in doing so, the other vowing vengeance and winding up convinced McLaglen is responsible. The priest keeps him from murdering his friend, but McLaglen stops a bullet intended for the policeman and dies anyway.

Edmund Grainger, associate producer, and Ray McCarey, director, give adequate evidence of knowing their New York. Performances are uniformly satisfactory.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Takes Over N.O. House

NEW ORLEANS, May 23. — R. J. Langridge, owner of the Avenue, neighborhood house, has taken over the theatre, following expiration of a lease on the property held by Ira Weingrum. Mr. Langridge plans to renovate the theatre.

Mr. Weingrum will continue operation of the Laurel, across town from the Avenue. He recently indicated his intention of constructing his own theatre near the Avenue.

Five Titles Changed

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—An epidemic of title changes has hit various companies with the following effects:

Wanger's "The Rising Tide" is now "Blockade"; RKO's "The Muddled Deal" is now "Blonde Cheat"; Lesser's "The Vagabond Kid" is now "Breaking the Ice"; Warner's "In Every Woman's Life" becomes "My Bill" again; Universal's "Suspicion" is changed to "Wives Under Suspicion."

Variety Club

Washington

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Twenty-two foursomes teed off at the Congressional Country Club last Friday as the local Variety Club held its annual golf tournament. When all contestants had been heard from, divots replaced and tempers brought to an even keel again, HARRY BACHMAN, Washington manager of Monogram, had won f[illegible]is prize with a 79 total for the 18 hole. RAY BELL, publicity director for Loew's Washington theatres, had the dubious distinction of having the highest score, thereby winning the booby prize. The best he could do was to slash his way to a score of 158.

BARNEY KRUCOFF, Washington member, was given a prize for the longest hit of the day with a drive of 235 yards.

Review Granted in Texas Damage Case

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Review of a decision of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals holding the company liable for damages in the amount of $12,500 and costs for injuries sustained by a woman patron of its Abilene, Tex., theatre, was granted Texas Consolidated Theatres today by the U. S. Supreme Court.

The decision, it was contended by counsel for the exhibitor, was rendered despite the fact that a compromise had been reached under which a stipulation was filed that the District Court decision awarding damages was to be reversed and a judgment entered against the company for costs.

The case was appealed to secure a determination of the right of the Circuit Court to ignore the settlement and stipulation, the company contending that the court had lost its jurisdiction to decide the merits of the case and its order, accordingly, was void.

"The Circuit Court of Appeals has ignored the settlement of the cause of action made by the parties, pursuant to which petitioner paid $4,750 and waived its rights on appeal, although the fact of settlement was made known to the court in the manner approved by the Supreme Court before the Circuit Court had rendered any opinion or entered any judgment," the Texas Consolidated brief contended.

important problems affecting the two branches of the industry, including grading.

Francis Harley, 20th Century-Fox chief in England, will attend the meeting tomorrow as an observer. His presence is taken as indicative of a potential settlement of the differences between the K.R.S. and 20th Century-Fox, which came to a head over the grading situation. When Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox president, was here, he was sharply critical of the K.R.S. policies.

As yet no agenda has been worked out for the joint talks. It is anticipated by the exhibitors that the K. R. S. will present a new grading policy based on collaboration with the exhibitors. The C.E.A. is expected to ask for special rental terms for the small exhibitor.

are to be double or triple quota pictures. Twentieth Century-Fox, however, definitely will make five for the coming season, he said.

Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production, will discuss an interchange of talent with the British studio when he reaches the other side and confers with Robert T. Kane, head of British production, Mr. Kent declared. Mr. Zanuck will sail on June 1 with Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board. He will also set the English production schedule with Mr. Kane. Last year the company made three films in England.

Mr. Kent was of the opinion that despite the fact the majority of the companies haven't completed their production plans, the new quota provisions would contribute to a higher quality of product.

He said he found conditions abroad "not bad" and 20th Century-Fox is "doing quite well" overseas.

May Rejoin K. R. S.

The company "eventually" will rejoin the Kinematograph Renters' Society, Mr. Kent said, pointing out the withdrawal antedated the organization's fight with the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association over the grading of films, which has been settled. While in London Mr. Kent declared that when the K. R. S. changed certain policies, 20th Century-Fox would rejoin.

Mr. Kent said that Walter J. Hutchinson, director of foreign distribution, who accompanied him to Europe, will sail tomorrow on the Normandie, arriving here on Monday, and that Truman H. Talley, producer of shorts and Movietone News, will return in about two weeks.

Mr. Hicks reported that there is considerable demand for re-issues in England, having noticed theatres playing "The Count of Monte Cristo," "Scarface" and other films of previous seasons. He described Paramount's business in Great Britain as "excellent" and on the Continent as "good." Among the company's pictures which are doing well abroad, he said, are "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," "Buccaneer," "Her Jungle Love" and "Wells Fargo."

Lange with Hicks

Mr. Hicks was gone three months, first visiting Cuba, Panama and South American countries, and embarking from Rio de Janeiro for Italy, France and London. He was accompanied by Mr. Lange, who is here for periodic home office conferences.

Paramount has not as yet determined its production schedule in England, said Mr. Hicks, indicating that it will be set after conferences here. He made no changes in the foreign organization while abroad, he said.

Mr. Disney confirmed the purchase of the famous Tenniel drawings of "Alice in Wonderland," which are to be used as a guide in the production of a feature-length cartoon along the lines of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." He also confirmed the selection of "Snow White" and two Disney shorts, "Ferdinand the Bull" and "Mother Goose Goes Hollywood," as well as "Vivacious Lady," RKO feature, as that company's entries in the Venice film exposition this summer.

While abroad Mr. Disney approved several deals closed by Reginald Armour, general European manager, for Disney shorts. Contracts were signed for Italy, Sweden, Egypt, Turkey, Bulgaria and Greece. In the latter country A. D. Skouras of Athens will be the distribtuor. He is a nephew of Spyros Skouras and now visiting in New York.

Ned Depinet Greets Disney

Mr. Disney, who was gone since March 11, was greeted at the pier by Mrs. Disney and their young son, who arrived yesterday from the coast, and Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Distributing Corp.

This is Mr. Pancholi's first trip to the United States. Immediately upon arrival he went to Camden for conferences with Van Ness Philip, head of Photophone foreign sales. He expects to be in the east 10 days and then will go to the coast en route to his Calcutta headquarters. He is accompanied by RCA Photophone's chief engineer in India.

Mr. Pancholi is the proprietor of one of the largest distributing companies in India, handling physical release for RKO in Calcutta, Karachi, Delhi, Lahore, Bombay, Rangoon and Madrass. He will confer with Mr. Depinet later in the week.

Tax Row to High Court

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 23—The question of whether or not the gross sales tax in this state should be paid by booking companies on their receipts from films shown in the state will be decided by the U. S. City Loses Censor Test Over "Birth"

Attorneys Haveth E. Mau and Bert Long, for Plaintiffs, and Grauman Marks, representing Keith's, where the showing was stopped on opening day, May 13, unless the actual birth scenes were deleted, argued that the state had pre-empted the field of censorship and the ban was a violation of the Federal and State constitutions, citing that the section of the local code under which the City Manager acted expressly omitted pictures from the scope of the regulations.

City Solicitor John D. Ellis cited statutes giving municipalities right to completely prohibit showings if desired, declaring that only by implication could the state censorship act be held to have repealed the municipal power, and in the absence of such implication there was no conflict between the ordinance and the state law.

To Appeal Picket Ban

HARTFORD, May 23.—An appeal will be taken to the Connecticut Supreme Court by Local 486, I. A. T. S. E., from the Superior Court injunction granted E. M. Loew against picketing the E. M. Loew Theatre. Employes first went out on strike to unionize the theatre in Aug., 1937, being joined by ushers, cleaners and booth operators. Picketing has continued since, the county court having refused the theatre's request for an injunction.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—Joseph Marshall, vice-president of Studio Utility Employes' Local 724, has established international headquarters here for the Pacific coast. Marshall recently negotiated contracts for an 81 cents an hour minimum with Associated General Contractors.

Sue to Stop Showing Of "Birth" Picture

The American Committee on Maternal Welfare, Inc., sponsor of "The Birth of a Baby," filed suit yesterday in N. Y. Supreme Court to enjoin Jewel Productions, Inc., and Samuel Cummins and Burt Lewis, officers and directors of Jewel, from advertising, exhibiting and distributing of any motion or still pictures using the titles "Birth of a Child," "Child Birth" and "A Child is Born," or any other title similar to "The Birth of a Baby."

At the same time a show cause order issued by Justice Samuel I. Rosenman directed the defendants to appear today before Justice Bernard L. Shientag and to present their arguments why a temporary injunction should not be granted.

Dismisses Laemmle Suit

Federal Judge John C. Knox yesterday dismissed for lack of prosecution a suit brought by Edward R. Lavin in September, 1936, against Carl Laemmle and Willard S. McKay. Suit had asked for $275,000 damages on a claim of the plaintiff that he had been retained in February, 1935, by McKay, alleged agent of Laemmle, to secure a purchaser for Laemmle's stock in Universal. Plaintiff's compensation, according to his complaint, was to be five per cent of the purchase price. Mr. Lavin claims he secured the Standard Capital Co. which purchased Universal for $5,500,000 and that he had received no payment.

Dismiss Consolidated Suit

Suit was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge John C. Knox for lack of prosecution in which Leo Freuder was plaintiff and the Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., Wyanoak Elco Publishing Corp., a subsidiary of Consolidated, and Herbert J. Yates were defendants.

The plaintiff in his action filed in August, 1933, had claimed the infringement of his patent issued March 26, 1913, covering improvements in lithograph printing. He had asked for an injunction, damages and accounting of profits.

The Governor has ordered State Troopers to protect Mrs. Palmer and there are reports that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is at work on the case.

The Governor said the threats against Mrs. Palmer's life were made by mail and over the telephone, the first having been made three weeks ago.

The censorship board, of which Mrs. Palmer is head, placed a ban on the film, "The Baltic Deputy," last January. Mrs. Palmer is alleged to have described the picture as "rabble rousing." Judge Curtis Bok of Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia, one month ago reversed the board's ruling.

or are contemplated in fewer than a dozen key cities. The complete survey [illegible]s that there is no geographical [illegible]dary within which cuts either are or are not confined, that the reductions are localized but occur in widely separated centers. Moreover, it was shown, reductions which have been made in many instances represent a return to 1936 admission levels after increases in prices last year, but do not mean that scales now have gone below long established levels. Also, reductions which are being considered now, frequently are in anticipation of summer competition and of a dearth of outstanding releases for the next few months.

However, by far the greater number of operations covered by the survey have not made price reductions and are not contemplating any. The final results of the study, presented herewith, continue to show that prevailing admissions are still well stabilized and that no widespread reductions are likely to occur in the immediate future.

Omaha Stands Pat

Omaha—Theatres in this territory have maintained fairly stable price levels for the past three years and despite smaller grosses none of the leading operators sees any change in view at this time.

Cleveland—Admission prices here have remained practically unchanged since 1929. No increases were made last year and leading independent and affiliated operators appear determined to maintain the present scales for as long as possible.

Cincinnati—Local first runs on straight film policy are maintaining their established admission scales of 35 cents for matinees and 42 cents for evenings. The RKO Shubert came down to this scale recently, after eliminating its stage show. Several suburban subsequent runs came down five cents, but there is no general move in this direction apparent now.

Birmingham—While attendance is off about 10 to 15 per cent here there has been no change in established admission scales nor is any contemplated. Rural business in many localities throughout the state has not been affected yet.

Prices Hold in N. O.

New Orleans — Admission scales have remained at established levels and there is no apparent inclination to lower them.

Portland—Price levels here were increased from 40 cents to 55 cents top by the first runs last July and no decrease has occurred yet. Leading operators, however, are considering a decrease but may be able to hold off until fall. Any improvement in business by then undoubtedly would eliminate the possibility of a decrease.

Atlanta — There have been no changes in admission prices here in more than five years with the single exception of the Rialto, a downtown second run, which made a very small change two years ago.

Baltimore—There have been no changes in admission scales here for some time, but reduced attendance makes any forecast of future policy uncertain.

Indianapolis—Admission prices have been at their present level here for the past six years and there is no apparent inclination to reduce prices now. A slight change occurred several months ago when first runs opened balconies at 30 cents as compared with the former 40 cents for the entire house.

St. Louis Won't Cut

St. Louis—There has been no change in admission prices by either circuits or independents here since the prevailing rates went into effect in September, 1936. No decreases appear to be imminent despite declining grosses.

Washington, D. C.—No decreases in admission prices have been made here recently and so far as could be learned none is contemplated.

Columbus—No decreases in admission prices have been made here by either circuits or independents.

Seattle—There have been no reductions in admission prices by either affiliated or independent circuits here.

New Haven—No changes in admission prices have occurred here for some time past. A move to agree on general increases was under consideration for some time, but business fell off before action was taken. No decreases are contemplated now, but the use of games and giveaways is on the increase.

B'way Duals, Games Jump

Wilmington—There is no evidence of any move to decrease admissions in this territory. Established scales have been in effect for a year and range from 55 cents in downtown first runs to 15 cents in third runs.

New York—Broadway and neighborhood first runs have maintained their present price levels virtually without change for several years. There is little indication of a move of any significant proportions to reduce prices now. Houses using reissues frequently cut temporarily, but return to established price levels following such runs. Giveaways, games and double featuring are on the increase in the neighborhoods and suburbs, but price levels appear to be fairly stable.

Studios Bar Shrine

Hollywood, May 23.—When the Shrine convention meets here next month, there will be no "welcome" mats in front of film studios.

The publicity directors, meeting with Tom S. Pettey, have decided to discourage visits to studios, inasmuch as the general convention committee has made no such request. Various patrols, however, have written.

The film industry participation in the conclave will be confined to entries in an electrical pageant.

E. E. Bair to Alliance

Cleveland, May 23.—E. E. Bair has resigned as manager of the Wind-A-Meer to become city manager of the Strand and Valentine, Defiance. The houses are owned by Peter Mallers.

Court Gets Revised K. C. Midland Plan

Kansas City, May 23.—A revised plan of reorganization of Midland Investment Co., owner of Loew's Midland, has been approved by Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves. The plan was submitted by the Securities Service Corp., which filed the original plan. Bondholders objected to that plan.

According to Charles M. Blackmar, one of the attorneys for the bondholders, the latter consider the new plan the best under the circumstances. It provides for two directors from among bondholders, which was a bondholder demand; it provides that nothing be paid on common stock for 15 years, which was a substantial concession to bondholders; and it provides that Loew Theatre & Realty Co. sign a 10-year lease instead of the present five-year instrument. The lease calls for 15 per cent of the gross with a minimum of $90,000 a year.

There were several other minor points in the revision which favor bondholders.

June 24 has been set by Judge Reeves as the date for final hearing of the reorganization.

Racine Casts Heavy Anti-Duals Ballot

Racine, Wis., May 23.—A preliminary report by the Better Films League here on its survey concerning double features shows 414 voting against twin bills, 168 for and 40 conditional votes.

According to Mrs. A. B. Arnold, president of the league, early results show that newsreels are always popular, that short comedy is liked "if good and not asinine." Also that there is considerable demand for more travel pictures, history, biography, fairy tales, more pictures for children like "Snow White."

Other suggestions were for more animated cartoons, less crime, not so much advertising and shorter announcements on the screen of coming attractions.

Allied to Discuss Membership Drives

Plans to increase the membership of the recently formed Allied of N. Y. unit will be discussed at its next meeting on June 1.

Max A. Cohen, state chairman, will visit Albany early in June to consolidate the membership there. He said the upstate organization will function separately from the New York City unit, with William Smalley of Cooperstown, state vice-chairman, directing its affairs.

'Blockade' Dates at 200

Mr. Hopkins said that work on the remodelled Majestic, which probably will be renamed the Rio, will be completed late next month. He denied the report that the Victoria will be closed.

Ohio Move on Bingo Worries Exhibitors

Cincinnati, May 23.—The possibility that the legalizing of Bingo by the Town Council at Richmond, O., may establish a precedent is causing considerable apprehension among exhibitors in certain Ohio situations where the game, sponsored by various societies and organizations, is making inroads on theatre attendance.

The ordinance, one of the first of its kind to be passed by an Ohio municipality, provides that five per cent of the proceeds of each game be diverted to the local relief fund; three per cent to state tax, and 12 per cent to the owner or sponsor of the game. The remaining 80 per cent goes to the players.

Fabian Leases Theatres

The Strand and Ritz, Port Jervis, N. Y., have been leased to Si Fabian for an aggregate rental of $600,000 by Berk and Krumgold, theatre real estate brokers, for the Sol Brill estate.

Novel Proposal Aims at Special Master for Coast Problems

An industry proposal that the U. S. Attorney General's office recommend appointment of a permanent special master to act as arbiter with full authority to settle all complaints on clearance and zoning which may be brought against Fox West Coast Theatres is scheduled to be approved by attorneys for major companies in the near future, it was learned yesterday.

The implications of the proposal are new to the industry in that the major distributors and a leading exhibition branch of the business voluntarily place their future relations in the hands of a representative of the Government. Supervision and ultimate control of the large circuit's film buys and playing provisions thus will rest with a Federal agent under the plan.

The move is said to have been projected in order to avoid future legal actions and Federal investigations involving Fox West Coast and major

Rivoli Closes Until Early in September

The Rivoli, which turned to reissues recently because of lack of suitable product, closed last night and is scheduled to reopen early in September.

"Souls for Sale," "The Pace That Kills" and "Assassin of Youth" were the pictures denied a license. The-

KRS Drops Grading; Held To Be Conciliation Move

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, May 24.—The Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) has abandoned entirely the plan to grade pictures, which recently was suspended after a vigorous fight by the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, thus making the expected arbitration of the controversy unnecessary.

The abandonment of the plan was disclosed today following the first joint meeting since the grading truce of representatives of the two major trade bodies.

The action was taken in many quarters as clearly indicative of the disposition on the part of conferees to approach their industry problems in a spirit of compromise and conciliation, and tends to bear out the impression created after the grading fight, that a

Convention by Telephone

National Theatres held a "convention" last night over the transcontinental telephone wires. In a 10-way hookup, Spyros Skouras, head of the circuit, addressed division managers and staffs in nine cities and seven division managers spoke, the telephone broadcast linking all division offices into one unit.

The network was so arranged that a talk emanating from one of the cities was heard in all the others and a conversation could be held between any of the points.

The "rally," lasting from 7 to 8 o'clock, was in behalf of National Theatres' second national theatre drive, which is now under way and will end July 4. Prizes totaling $10,000 are to be awarded at the circuit's convention at Del Monte, Cal., Aug. 1-5.

Following Mr. Skouras, division managers who spoke were: Rick Ricketson, Denver; H. J. Fitzgerald, Milwaukee; E. C. Rhoden, Kansas City; Frank L. Newman, Seattle; Arch Bowles, San Francisco; Al Finkelstein, Portland, and Charles P. Skouras, Los Angeles. Salt Lake City and Wichita also were hooked in.

About 200, including district managers, managers, bookers and others of the local staffs participated in the "rally," amplifiers in the divisional offices carrying the voices. The telephone company said that it was the first coast-to-coast hookup of its kind.

Hearing Upon New RKO Plan Is Challenged

plan. The special master stressed the necessity of a quick determination of the proposed plan and promised "to go ahead as rapidly as possible." H. C. Rickaby, attorney for the Atlas Corp., proponent of the plan, stated that the testimony of Mr. McMahon and Anthony A. Belser of Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, who was the only other witness, completed the proponent's case. The fairness and feasibility of the plan would then be a matter of argument and reasoning, according to Rickaby. He pointed to the fact that under the amendments there would be no fixed charges for outstanding debt for the company and urged therefore that the plan could not be attacked as unfeasible.

Abraham K. Weber, attorney for a small group of stockholders, attacked the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a Special Master to hold hearings on the grounds that new consents to the plan had not been obtained. He contended that the amendments were so drastic they were, in effect, a new plan. Special Master Alger, however, refused a ruling on the subject on the grounds that he could not overrule Federal Judge William Bondy, who had ordered that hearings be held.

Constitution Cited

The first written objections were filed by Nathan Rosenberg, counsel for holders of $175,000 in debentures. Rosenberg charged that the plan would "perpetuate control of the corporation in the hands of the proponents of the plan." He stated that Atlas Corp. had "interests adverse to those of the independent debenture holders" and that the plan violated the fifth amendment to the United States Constitution. He asked the special master to recommend rejection of the proposed plan.

Carlos Israel of White & Case, attorneys for the unsecured creditors committee, indicated a willingness to accept the plan with a few minor modifications. He pleaded for a speedy ruling to help protect his clients' interests. Joseph M. Cohen, attorney for the independent stockholders' protective committee, who provided the principal opposition at the last hearing, promised to prepare his objections with "the same thoroughness that characterized our previous testimony."

Detroit, May 24.—Edward C. Buckley, operator, was burned to death and seven other persons, all patrons, were injured by a projection room fire last night in Wade Allen's Fine Arts Theatre, all-night Woodward Ave. house.

Before he died, Buckley said the film buckled in the machine and burst into flame about 9:30 P.M. He died at 5:30 this morning.

Buckley, who was 49 years old, was a member of the Detroit Variety Club and had served as projectionist for the club at all of its free picture shows put on for inmates of various institutions.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 73

(20th Century-Fox)

The stately ritual of the baptism of the new Dutch princess leads off the issue and is well handled, containing some footage not seen in the other newsreels. For royal panoply, it is the most distinguished story since the British Coronation. The photography may be condoned, considering the circumstances.

Other good clips are those of the wrecked transport plane in the Sierras, in which nine passengers perished, and four-year-old George Lovett, Jr., displaying an amazing intelligence in an interview by Lowell Thomas. This appears too well rehearsed, however.

"Names in the News" includes former Emperor Selassie at Geneva, the Spanish Ambassador returning from Europe, the Greek Ambassador paying something on that country's debt to Uncle Sam, and Lord Robert Crichton-Stuart, the fabulously wealthy Englishman who arrived this week. There are also a parking station for 1,000 bicycles in Chicago; "fold-boating" in the Berkshires; autogiro flying in formation; and, in the sports division, President Roosevelt watching a rowing regatta on the Severn, the International Golden Gloves tournament, Belmont Park racing, and diving exhibitions. Running time, 9½ mins. F.

Vol. 9, No. 271

(M-G-M)

Seven of the 10 subjects in this release are similar to, if not identical with, the coverage by Movietone News. But they have touches of their own, of course.

The exceptions are a fine shot of Il Duce haranguing a crowd in Genoa on the invincibility of Italy; the dedication of a $100,000 shrine to Benjamin Franklin in Philadelphia; and a bicycle "festival" in Paris with the Arc de Triomphe as a backdrop.

The duplications include the Christening of the newly born Dutch princess at the Hague; Selassie at the League of Nations; the twisted fuselage of the wrecked transport liner in California, as well as sports shots of the International Golden Gloves bouts, the sculling regatta, New Yorkers "foldboating" in Massachusetts and the Los Angeles diving exhibition. Running time, 8½ mins. F.

(Paramount)

Mildly interesting news material leaves much to be desired in this release. The outstanding subjects are Haile Selassie's plea to the League of Nations for the restoration of his country, and shots of last week's fatal airplane crash in Mint Canyon, Cal.

The balance of the reel consists of fancy diving exhibitions, the unveiling of a Benjamin Franklin monument, shots of the christening of Princess Beatrix of The Netherlands, President Roosevelt at an intercollegiate boat race at Annapolis, a group of autogyros in Army tests and shots of War Admiral and Seabiscuit preparing for their coming race. Running time, 8½ mins. K.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 88

(RKO)

Bright and newsy, this number of the reel covers 10 events and does it competently and in interesting fashion. The Czech ambassador in Washington voices his country's defiance of Hitler, Greece's ambassador voices his country's gratitude for America's acceptance of a part-payment check on the war debt, the colorful spectacle which surrounds the christening of Holland's royal heiress is fully caught.

Mexican Government troops are seen entraining to put down rebellious forces, a statue of Benjamin Franklin is unveiled in Philadelphia, President Roosevelt watches the Harvard crew row to victory, the wreckage of the fatal air liner crash in California is shown, Army fliers train with autogiros, swimming stars hold a benefit show for Georgia Coleman, recovering from paralysis, and the camera catches real action during the Golden Glove amateur bouts with European fighters in Chicago. Running time, 9 mins. A.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 10, No. 669

(Universal)

There's plenty of assortment but not much excitement in this issue until the final two numbers are reached. These are both humorous and stimulating. Passengers on the folding boat train that took a flock of enthusiasts and their equipment to the Housatonic River are shown, with shots following as the paddlers go down the swift current of the river. The other shot is of the International Golden Gloves contest at Chicago. Views of spectators' facial reactions are cut into the boxing with excellent effect.

The reel opens with the unveiling of a Benjamin Franklin statue at Philadelphia and continues with a parade of Czechoslovak tanks at Prague, a speech by Mussolini, British veterans marching to Westminster Abbey, the Greek ambassador with a check in payment of the war debt, the wrecked airplane at Mint Canyon, Cal., tandem bicycles in France and a deep sea dredge designed to find gold off the coast of Alaska.

Army autogyros in formation and landing are interesting, and a variety of shots is introduced to show President Roosevelt at the Adams Cup crew boat race. Running time, 9 mins. J.

distributors such as that which ended in the Government-West Coast [illegible]sent decree of August, 1930. Clearance and zoning complaints from California independent exhibitors involving alleged violations of the 1930 consent decree by the circuit have been filed with the Department of Justice during the past few years and last year led to a Federal investigation of the Southern California exhibition situation. That investigation is still under way, but, presumably, would be discontinued if and when a special master was named to hear and settle the existing or new complaints against the circuit.

Would Handle Trust Actions

Under the proposal which is scheduled to be acted on soon, decisions of the special master would be final and binding on both parties to a dispute without appeal, it was said. On the other hand, the proposal contemplates that no new anti-trust actions would be instituted by the Government on matters involving the circuit and distributors which could properly be heard and settled by the special master.

Attorneys for the major companies now are preparing the papers embodying definitions of complaints which would be submitted to the special master and delineating his specific authority. Indications are that the agreement will be completed within the next few weeks.

first two were screened in New York during April while "Assassin of Youth" was viewed last Thursday.

Originally submitted for licensing on Oct. 28, 1937, by International Road Shows, Inc., "Souls for Sale" was refused a license on Nov. 3, Mr. Esmond holding that it was "immoral and would tend to corrupt morals." Revised three times, "The Pace That Kills" was appealed by Bernard Kulick, secretary of Syndicate Exchanges, Inc., which holds distributing rights. Application for license was made on March 24, 1938. "Assassin of Youth" was screened by the three members of the Board of Regents May 19. Distribution rights are held by Leo J. McCarthy. The picture, or substantial parts, also is known in some states as "Marijuana." Senator John J. McNaboe was the attorney for Mr. McCarthy.

Kalmus Predicts Simplified Color With New Process

progress made in the Technicolor laboratories.

Dr. Kalmus will sail today on the Queen Mary for a two-month stay in Europe. While he has been contemplating establishing plants in Paris, Berlin and Rome for several years, he indicated that negotiations based on tangible offers may be furthered on his present trip. Japan, also, is "most eager," he said, to establish a Technicolor plant.

The forthcoming Monopak process, he declared, is an extension of the Kodachrome method marketed by Eastman for amateur films, and Technicolor will not enter that field.

For the present, Dr. Kalmus continued, his company is interested in a moderate volume of business on "fine pictures," pending the elimination of the special cameras required. But when the new process is ready, bringing with it the requirement of only black-and-white cameras and a single print. Technicolor will seek volume. Monopak is expected to reduce the cost of color substantially, but Dr. Kalmus claimed that volume will also have a bearing on the reduction.

Pact with Fox Is Near

He said that a contract with 20th Century-Fox for six Technicolor films is to be signed momentarily, the first two to be "Kentucky" and "Jesse James."

All companies using Technicolor receive options on Technicolor stock, exercisable upon completion of contracts, he said, but the only company which has exercised an option is Pioneer Pictures, identified with the Selznick International interests which include John Hay Whitney. In this connection, he said that Mr. Whitney's interest "has been a minority one, never more than 10 to 20 per cent," in Technicolor.

lasting peace in the industry might result.

Today's three-hour discussion covered the whole field of trade policies. Francis Harley, English head of 20th Century-Fox, sat in as an observer under instructions of Sidney R. Kent, president, who indicated that his company would return to the K.R.S. if certain policies were altered.

A great part of the discussion centered about the serious problem of the small exhibitor. The C.E.A. presented a plan which the K.R.S. promised would be considered immediately. In its turn, the C.E.A. promised to consider the problem of long programs if the consideration could be kept apart from the question of film prices.

The K.R.S. will meet on May 31, with additional joint talks to be held later. Future discussions will consider overbuilding and, following the suggestion of Ken Nyman, C.E.A. president, the relation between the screen and the public.

Get Sympathy

Philadelphia, May 24.—To exhibitors who visited his office yesterday to ask the lifting of a chance games ban until a State Supreme Court hearing in November, Mayor Wilson stated he "sympathized with" them. So far no official action has been taken.

Exhibitors are circulating a petition which, they claim, has many thousand signators.

Celler Asks Repeal Of Fight Film Law

Washington, May 24.—Repeal of the fight film law today was urged by Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem.) of New York.

Pointing out that films are the only media from which fights are barred, Mr. Celler said bouts can be broadcast or televised, newspapers can print fight pictures and the Government is a "partner" in the fight business through its collection of admission taxes. Bootlegging of fight films is rampant, he said, and the law serves no useful purpose.

Hollywood Preview

"White Banners"

(Cosmopolitan-Warners)

Hollywood, May 24.—Here is told with much distinction the story of an unwed mother's devotion to and protection of a son who knows her only as a domestic servant and friend. This is, however a very different treatment than has been given the idea in previous handlings. The scene is mid-America, the time 1919, and the picture is an hour old and has the audience well in hand before anybody is let in on the secret of the by then beloved domestic's interest in the now adolescent boy. From this point on the distaff side of the congregation is weeping happily and the suspense attending the decision of the mother and newly found father as to whether to tell the boy. All is sufficient to convince the mature that they have been present at the unreeling of some pretty intense drama.

Fay Bainter, Claude Rains, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville, Kay Johnson and competent supporting players add splendid performances to Producer Henry Blanke's and Director Edmund Goulding's consummate interpretation of small town modes and manners. Screen playwrights Lenore Coffee, Cameron Rogers and Aben Finkel have adopted Lloyd C. Douglas' Cosmopolitan Magazine story with rarely equalled and unblinking adroitness. If there is to be a cycle of what used to be called homespun American folk films, this one will have the unquestioned rank among the leaders.

Miss Bainter drifts into the family circle of a chemistry professor busy with unsuccessful inventions and introduces a stern philosophy of unresistance which brings happiness into the home. The professor, Rains, and his best student, Cooper, invent an electric refrigerator and Miss Bainter sustains them through their disappointment when the invention is stolen. Then they invent a gas refrigerator, but the success of this brings to the house, as a financier interested in backing the invention, Cooper's real father, a bachelor who has just learned that the boy is his and wants to claim him for his own. Miss Bainter argues that he shouldn't do this and, ultimately, he doesn't, whereupon she walks away into a snowy horizon.

Banal as it may sound in synopsis, the story is so freshly and earnestly told that it impresses as new, vital and important.

Running time, 90 minutes. "A."

Rockettes Beat Line Of Military Academy

The Rockettes certainly keep a better line than the boys from military school. Or perhaps it's because the 36 members of the crack drill squad of the Morgan Park, Ill., military academy were drawn up on the Music Hall roof to within blushing distance of the 36 Rockettes and had their minds more on Rockettes form than on formation.

The boys made a good will flight from their school near Chicago to Washington to present a petition to the President for the establishment of a crime prevention week. They were received by Homer C. Cummings. They flew to New York for a look-see at the Music Hall (and the Rockettes) and after a day's sightseeing will return to left-righting at school again.

Bernard Hits German Short Wave Program

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Representative John T. Bernard, (Farmer-Labor) of Minnesota, today asked the Federal Communications Commission to investigate how the German Government selected short-wave frequencies that are most effective in this country, and asked also for an investigation of the Short Wave Institute of America, represented at the 1936 F.C.C. conference by Oswald Schuette, to determine whether its membership included representatives of foreign government or policies.

Mr. Bernard, in a letter to Chairman Frank R. McNinch, attacked the German programs sent to this country as highly undesirable. He asked for a complete investigation of the Short Wave Institute, and also for a report as to whether the F.C.C. had anything to do with the fixing of frequencies for short-wave broadcasts, whether the radio manufacturers association is in favor of short wave installations, and whether the networks like short-waving "in the view of the fact it takes listeners away."

It was explained by Mr. Schuette tonight, that the Short Wave Institute was an all-American association formed by RCA, General Electric, Sears Roebuck, Sparks-Worthington and others. He pointed out that the short wave frequencies were assigned by international agreement, and also that RCA and other organizations are seeking to develop short-wave broadcasting without fear of listener loss.

Waring Will Return On New Grove Series

Fred Waring, after an absence of two years from radio, has been signed for a new air series by Grove Laboratories. The series is to start sometime in October and will be presented over the NBC-Red network. Stack-Goble is the agency. The contract was handled by John O'Connor, Waring's manager, and Harold Kemp of the agency.

The show, a half-hour, will be offered on Saturdays from 8:30 to 9 P. M. The presentation will be a typical Waring variety show, with the same gang of Pennsylvanians as heretofore, with the exception of the Lane sisters, who are now in pictures.

The contract is for one year, and it is understood that Waring will receive $10,000 a week for the series. Waring has been off the air since 1936, when he finished a three-year run for the Ford Motor Co. In the interim he has been making personal appearances in key cities, and last year he made a picture for Warners, "Varsity Show."

To Air Ohio Grid Battles

Peg La Centra and the Jesters have been engaged to make a series of 15-minute recordings for the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada. The transcriptions, to be distributed among Canadian stations, are being made by NBC.

No Consideration

Horses are inconsiderate beasts. CBS had obtained the exclusive rights to a broadcast of the match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit and after a long and apparently futile attempt to find a sponsor, only yesterday succeeded in signing the American Oil Co. to buy the sports event.

Yesterday Seabiscuit came down with a "Charley Horse," the race is off, and CBS has ceased counting the amount it mentally had deposited in the bank.

mission. This proposal was presented to the Legislature at the last session and the bill died.

His purpose is to impose a utility tax on radio, as he estimates $8,500,000 could be raised annually in this way for the state.

The Empire State Broadcasters Association, headed by Harold Smith, chairman of the legislative committee, intends to oppose the proposal, on the theory that radio is interstate commerce and already has enough regulation from the Federal Communications Commission.

Radio Guild Decides To Stay Independent

The referendum taken recently by the American Guild of Radio Announcers and Producers, to determine whether the union should remain independent or join the A. F. of L. or the C. I. O. was completed yesterday with the vote overwhelmingly in favor of remaining independent.

With this issue out of the way, the A. G. R. A. P. executive committee will become active again. The union has contracts with WABC and several of the independent stations in the metropolitan area, as well as with a number of stations throughout the country.

Predict Television Will Be Help to Art

WASHINGTON, May 24. — Films, radio and television will play an important part in making America "art conscious," delegates to the annual convention of the American Federation of Arts were told today by Dr. Bernard Myers of New York University.

Broadcasts on art, however, must be made more national in scope than they have been up to the present time, he said. The advent of television will bring about great changes in conceptions of art, it was said by C. W. Farrier, television co-ordinator of NBC. However, he warned, no prediction can be made as to when commercial television will become generally available.

The convention tomorrow will take up the controversial question of an "ideal" Federal arts bill, several forms of which are now pending in Congress.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band"

HOLLYWOOD, May 25.—It's true what they say about Darryl Zanuck. He recognizes a good picture when there's till time enough to do something about it and pours it on. This one was his idea. He thought there was a big film in Irving Berlin's quarter-century of hit song production and the thing grew from here. It turned out to be the greatest musical of all time by so great a margin that the second best doesn't even rate place money.

The Berlin score is, of course, without previous or subsequent parallel. It took the Shakespeare of syncopation 27 years to write it and every one of the 29 songs used wholly or partially in the film topped the hit parade of its era. They are the mileposts along rhythm's conquest of mankind from Nigger Mike's Place on Pell St., to Carnegie Hall, the folk tunes of Hollywood, May 25.—Aaron Fox, brother of William Fox, today announced the formation of Aaron Fox Productions, with Tom Moore, exhibitor-distributor of Washington, D. C., and R. A. Burns, production engineer.

Mr. Fox stated that plans for a film program are being mapped and that a production and advisory board consisting of an equal number of producers and exhibitors will be formed to select suitable stories.

Jack Benny wired Fred Allen for permission to use his name in a line of dialogue in Paramount's "Artists and Models."

He received this reply:

"Jack Benny has my permission to use my name, my jokes or my toothbrush if such will advance Jack or the motion picture industry."

Broadway Holds Over 201 Of 321 in 2-Year Period

The six leading theatres on Broadway played a total of 101 pictures which were held over one or more weeks beyond the standard single stanza, during the year from May 1, 1937, to May 1, 1938. The total compares with a similar aggregate of 100 pictures for the same six theatres during the year from May 1, 1936 to May 1, 1937. The totals are the result of a check of box-office records compiled by Motion Picture Daily.

A total of 321 pictures were shown at the six theatres during the two years. In the year ended May 1, 1937, the total was 158, while in the following year the aggregate was 153.

The significant fact which emerges from a study of the compilation is that despite cries of "Record!" Record!" which perennially resound throughout the world of exhibition, especially with respect to picture performance at the Broadway houses, the "average" is still lurking around the corner of the box-office to prove that when the bets are all in, the payoff is about the same every show year.

The six theatres involved in the checkup are the Capitol, Music Hall, Paramount, Rivoli, Roxy and Strand. The Criterion, which had 10 holdover

Object to Details Of "Lynton" Award

Objections were filed yesterday by Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes to the report of Special Master Gordon Auchincloss filed May 9, which assessed damages of over half a million dollars against M-G-M Pictures Corp., M-G-M Distributing Corp., Loew's, Inc. and Culver Export. Damages were based on a decision that the defendants had plagiarized the play, "Damaged Lady," written by Mr. Sheldon and Miss Barnes, in their picture "Letty Lynton."

The plaintiffs in their filed objection claimed that distribution expenses charged to M-G-M Pictures should be charged to M-G-M Distributing Corp. They also objected to allowing Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery salaries for idle time. Plaintiffs

U. S. Majors Plan 41 to 47 English Films

Half Are Designed for World Release

With Paramount and Columbia British production plans nearing completion, indications are that the major American companies will produce a total of 41 to 47 features in England during the 1938-'39 season, the first on which the new British quota requirements will apply. Approximately half of these will be major productions planned for the American and international markets.

Paramount's British production plans are fast nearing completion and will be ready for announcement some time next week. The company will make five features, probably at Denham. Of these, three will be on major budgets, and will be designed for worldwide distribution, and two will be of minor importance. Herbert Wilcox may produce "The Royal Divorce," with Ruth Chatterton, as part of Paramount's commitment. Alexander Korda will not produce for the com-

Theatre Ads Improve

Theatres in the Times Square area have become more conservative of late, both in the type of pictures they are booking and the manner of exploitation, License Commissioner Paul Moss indicated yesterday.

He said his department has had no trouble lately with the grind houses along West 42nd St., and the only instance of an off-color advertising display was at the Globe, where it was suggested that the "son of a witch" lettering on the marquee be changed in connection with the exhibition of "Wajan."

'Alexander's Ragtime Band'

a swinging civilization. The picture makes them integral story material as well as adornment by casting the principal characters as members of a fictitious Alexander's Ragtime Band and letting them do just about what the members of a real one would have done.

This framework is novel and brilliant enough to suggest that Mr. Zanuck could have put a lot of unknowns into the parts and come up with a pretty sure-fire piece of merchandise. Instead, he sent in Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley, Jean Hersholt, Helen Westley, John Carradine, Wally Vernon, Ruth Terry and a dozen others of like caliber. When people like that get an assignment like this to go to work on, $2,000,000 is what picture bankers regard as a conservative capital investment when computing against box-office expectancy.

With this music score and this cast in hand, another man than Mr. Zanuck might have figured he was safe in taking time off for a spot of polo. Mr. Zanuck didn't. He looked around for the director who has turned in the best job lately and there was Henry King, fresh from "In Old Chicago" and coming up to bat again with that trusty bludgeon of his cocked for a fast one over the heart of the plate. Mr. Zanuck pitched him "Alexander" and he clouted a homer. Add experienced Harry Joe Brown as associate producer, Kathryn Scola and Lamar Trotti as screen playwrights and Richard Sherman as adaptor and you have an idea of the thorough, rounded, gold-plated and pre-insured kind of goods that customers get when Mr. Zanuck really shoots the works.

Musical direction by the gifted Alfred Newman is something for folks who go in for that sort of thing to take lessons from. He had a thousand chances to overdo one kind of a thing or another. He didn't miss a beat. Neither did Seymour Felix in his staging of dances that cover the successive terpsichorean obsessions spanning three decades. Neither, for that matter, did any of the many of the set experts who had a hand in the technical preparation.

It is superfluous to add that the picture is certain to do tremendous business. The race has been buying what's in it with steadily mounting eagerness since the tune it's named for was written. Of course, the population could go deaf en bloc overnight. Or all the theatres could burn down. If neither of these things happen, "Alexander" will be a champion of box-office champions.

Brandt Seeks Revivals

Moss Is Battling Unlicensed Agents

The long standing fight of Paul Moss, commissioner of licenses, against unlicensed talent agents has flared again. Commissioner Moss says he hopes to have the situation under control before summer ends.

Commissioner Moss aims to eliminate the irresponsible "chiselers," as he terms them, who do show business no good, and he has obtained the cooperation of licensed agents in effecting a "cleanup."

Theatrical agents come under the provisions of a 1904 law which says that anyone who obtains employment for another for a fee must be licensed. A license costs $25 a year. Agents must also take out a $1,000 bond, which costs another $10 a year. There are other provisions, such as that an agent must have a location, must submit to fingerprinting and be vouched for by two responsible persons who have known him for five years.

Commissioner Moss estimates there are 100 "legitimate" agents in the city and says that only about 20 make a living in the business. There are many so-called "agents" who have no offices and infest the hallways of buildings in the Times Square area where responsible agents have offices. They prey on inexperienced and unsuspecting performers and are guilty of all sorts of "chiseling," Commissioner Moss charges, and work all kinds of schemes to circumvent the law.

The licensed agents are Commissioner Moss' best tipsters against the "racketeers," and the drive recently resulted in the conviction of one man with a sentence of $250 fine and 60 days in jail, he said. So far this week 10 agents have been licensed and the commissioner expects others to follow.

Court Expected to Approve G.N. Deal

kay, vice-president in charge of distribution, with Alex Adilman, president, and Harry J. Allen, general manager of the Canadian company.

Ownership of the company has been shared 65 per cent by Mr. Adilman, 25 per cent by Grand National and 10 per cent by Mr. Allen. Under the new setup, the parent company will have 75 per cent interest and Mr. Allen the remainder. The latter will continue as general manager.

Mr. Adilman will retire from the company. He said yesterday that the purchase of his interest involved $15,000. He is interested in a number of theatres in Montreal and Toronto, and said that he is considering offers to handle distribution in Canada for independent companies.

It is understood that Mr. Adilman was as willing to sell as Grand National was to purchase his interest, differences having arisen between him and Edward Alperson, president.

The Canadian company will be a Grand National subsidiary. The deal includes taking over the main office in Toronto and exchanges in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, St. John and Calgary.

The co-trustees, Mr. Alperson and Loyd Wright, have approved the deal, as have the directors. The changeover will be complete with the election of a new board and a new set of officers.

Sue Cooper on Rent

LINCOLN, May 25.—J. H. Cooper's Lincoln Theatre Corp. is in District Court as defendant in a suit for $35,493 in back rent on the Capitol. The filing is on two counts, the landlords alleging he made a contract to take care of Nick Paper's back rent in 1930 amounting to $8,506.75 in a judgment, and the second count, for $24,123, which also involves back rent under a contract signed in 1930. The Capitol is at present leased to Bob Livingston, an independent operator.

Writer Sues 20th-Fox

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Charging that he did not receive promised screen credit and publicity on his story, Leonard Lee, writer, has filed suit for $50,000 against 20th Century-Fox, alleging that "Island in the Sky" was made from his magazine story under an agreement whereby he would be accorded screen mention.

Lee alleged terms of the contract were broken, and that he had accepted less money for the film rights to his story.

Pat O'Brien vs. Pat O'Brien

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Pat O'Brien, now a bit player, today filed a $250,000 damage suit against Pat O'Brien, star of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Jimmy Fidler, radio and newspaper columnist; Louella O. Parsons, newspaper columnist, and others charging conspiracy to ruin his career as an actor. Declaring that he has been longer in films than the present star, the plaintiff declared the studio and star contacted directors, producers and executives on other lots threatening legal reprisals if the plaintiff was hired under his present name.

"Girl in the Street"

(G. B.)

A spiritedly performed version of the theatrical-romantic success story, featuring Anna Neagle and Tullio Carminati, is offered here. The framework of the story has new ideas to lift it above the ordinary. The musical content has interesting novelties done with satisfying production effects. Miss Neagle is an accomplished trouper and at the conclusion of a preview performance at the Continental the other night a strong round of applause was evident. It is staple film entertainment containing tested ingredients.

Miss Neagle is an orphan, living with a family of organ grinder-crooks. She comes to the attention of Carminati when called to court because her instrument bumped his car. He is a foreign diplomatic official. He becomes interested in her and gives her a domestic job and sponsors her training as an entertainer. She qualifies and becomes romantically embroiled with his assistant. Carminati wants his financing of Miss Neagle's career kept secret. To gain this he sends his assistant, who knows, to a post in China and lets Miss Neagle continue a successful career. The assistant pulls a boner a year later and is recalled. Miss Neagle sees him in a fault-revealing light and drops her interest. Carminati takes the blame for the error and resigns from the service. He leaves for Jamaica and when the boat is at sea Miss Neagle appears on deck and they understand each other.

Herbert Wilcox has directed these events with skill and resourcefulness. Horace Hodges, Robert Douglas and Micki Hood contribute good supporting characterizations.

Postal Drops Theatre Checking Departmen

Postal Telegraph has discontinued its theatre checking service which started in 1936 under a plan worked out by Charles Schwerin. Mr. Schwerin obtained contracts with three or four small distributors and the telegraph company branches did the actual checking on a piecework basis. Later Mr. Schwerin withdrew and Claud Saunders was affiliated with the service for a short while. The service became inoperative last fall and it was said yesterday that Postal has dropped it entirely.

This leaves Ross Federal the only national checking service in the field.

dispute the findings of the referee that the cost of production of the picture was $317,075, and the net income $268,861, and also oppose the adoption of 45 pictures as the basis of dividing distribution expenses, claiming [illegible] M-G-M released 60 pictures.

They also dispute the correctness of the amount allowed for the overhead expenses, for camera, editors, cutters, stock talent, scenario writing department, publicity salary, musicians, construction supervision, general studio, legal, medicinal, insurance, taxes, executives, miscellaneous, home office, and for the property, mechanical, foreign, sound, art, trucking and the still departments. The amount allowed for experimental work, salaries of unused or idle artists, and for rejected continuity charges and songs were also opposed.

Quash Suit Against Goldwyn

Federal Judge John W. Woolsey yesterday dismissed the suit of Mort Eisman, Clara Dellar and Robert Louis Shayon against Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Samuel Goldwyn, Eddie Cantor and United Artists. The plaintiffs had charged the infringement of their play, "Oh Shah," in the picture "Roman Scandals." They had asked for an accounting of the profits of "Roman Scandals" which they had estimated to be $2,000,000, and an injunction.

Judge Woolsey said in his opinion: "I hold that there clearly has not been any such unfair use of the plaintiffs' work as would justify a decree in their favor. I cannot really see any foundation whatsoever for their case, so far as I am concerned, therefore, that is the end of the matter."

, although negotiations for his ham studio facilities and for the archase of one production property om him are in work.

Columbia, last of the major compa- ies to complete its British production ans under the new quota, is con- ucting negotiations in London by hich Mr. Korda would supervise the roduction of three major features for e company. Two additional minor atures may also be produced for Col- mbia at Denham.

Columbia's negotiations are reported be somewhat complicated by the re- rictions imposed upon Mr. Korda y his producing and releasing con- ract with United Artists. It was ated on good authority here, how- ver. that these restrictions were re- xed to some extent recently and that would probably be possible for Mr. orda to supervise productions for an utside company now without imping- ng on his United Artists commit- nents.

Plans Set Generally

The plans of other major companies ither were automatically provided for hrough their British affiliations or ere completed earlier this year.

Following is a resume of the Brit- h production status of the other six ajor companies.

pictures during the year from May 1, 1937, to May 1, 1938, was not included, since it was not opened until late in 1937, and hence was not available for comparisons.

During the two years since May 1, 1936, only six pictures played as much as five weeks at one house: "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Hurricane," "Damsel in Distress," "Dead End," "Dodsworth" and "Anthony Adverse." All but the last two named played during the May, 1937, to May, 1938 year, while "Adverse" and "Dodsworth" were the only two to win the five-week distinction during the 1936-'37 period.

The almost identical total for each of the six houses for the year ended May 1, last, as compared with the total for the year ended May 1, 1937, is graphically indicated in the following tabulation:

Theatre	1937-'38 Holdovers	1936-'37 Holdovers
Capitol	18	15
Music Hall ..	18	16
Paramount ..	20	18
Rivoli	15	19
Roxy	13	13
Strand	17	19
TOTALS ..	101	100

During the two-year period there were 17 pictures in the six theatres which played for four weeks, as follows:

"Maytime," "Camille," "After the Thin Man," "The Great Ziegfeld," "San Francisco," "Wells Fargo," "Artists and Models," "The Big Broadcast of 1937," "Poppy," "The Goldwyn Follies," "Road to Glory," "These Three," "In Old Chicago," "Happy Landing," "Kid Galahad," "Three Men on a Horse,' "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

The compilation, of course, takes no account of those films which played on two-a-day runs. It is confined only to the popular-price, continuous-run policy.

The 53 films which played for three weeks in the two-year period were:

"Test Pilot," "Good Earth," "A Day at the Races," "Born to Dance," "Libeled Lady," "Fury," "Adventures of Marco Polo," "Nothing Sacred," "Stage Door," "Prisoner of Zenda," "A Star Is Born," "Swing Time," "Mary of Scotland," "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," "The Buccaneer," "Every Day's a Holiday," "Ebb Tide," "High, Wide and Handsome," "Double or Nothing," "I Met Him in Paris," "Swing High, Swing Low," "Waikiki Wedding," "Maid of Salem," "The Plainsman," "College Holiday," "Go West, Young Man," "The General Died at Dawn," "Rhythm on the Range." "Desire," "You Can't Have Everything," "Slave Ship," "Cafe Metropole," "History Is Made at Night," "Nancy Steele Is Missing," "You Only Live Once," "Beloved Enemy," "Rembrandt," "Come and Get It," "Last of the Mohicans," "Ex-Mrs. Bradford," "Things to Come," "100 Men and a Girl," "Wee Willie Winkie," "Wake Up and Live," "Three Smart Girls," "One in a Million," "Sing, Baby, Sing," "A Slight Case of Murder," "The Life of Emile Zola," "They Won't Forget," "The Prince and the Pauper," "Marked Woman," "The Green Light."

Advertising Awards Delayed Until June

The Ampa advertising awards luncheon has been delayed by extended balloting by the judges' committee and is now scheduled to be held about the middle of June.

The jury consists of 22 exhibitors and theatre managers in various sections of the country and others are to be added, with a view to making it representative.

A total of 34 entries has been made by 11 distributing companies, including the eight major distributors, Republic and Monogram and Lenauer International, which submitted a campaign on "Mayerling." This is the only foreign film entry.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 25.—Standard Theatres, Inc., and State Theatres, Inc., and the local projectionists union have not come to agreement on new contracts in which the projectionists have asked for a five per cent wage increase.

Reports on Allied Meet

NEW HAVEN, May 25.—At the local Allied meeting today, Abe Fishman, delegate to the national convention, reported on that meeting. Maurice Shulman presided. The election of board members has been postponed until the next meeting.

New Exchange Union Pacts Signed Quickly

Most of the local agreements between the Film Exchange Employes Union and the major distributors, covering 31 distribution centers, have been signed and the others will be approved shortly, it was said yesterday by Frank Phelps of Warners, who acted as adviser in the negotiations.

Mr. Phelps said yesterday he received this information from John Gatelee, I.A.T.S.E. organizer, during a trip to Boston the other day.

The local agreements were negotiated last summer, but were not put into written form until the master contract with the distributors was drawn up. Wage scales and working conditions agreed upon during the negotiations were made a part of the local pacts. There will be no change in the terms for at least the next year and a half, as the contracts run to Nov. 30, 1939. More than 3,000 employes are affected.

Oriental Has Big Windup

CHICAGO, May 25.—The B. & K. Oriental, which closes this week, will do so in a virtual blaze of glory. With Gene Raymond on the stage and with "Stolen Heaven" on the screen, the house is doing the best business in months and will probably show a gross that is out of the red for the first time in weeks.

WPA Film Project Urged in Congress

the production branch of the film industry.

Discussing Hollywood conditions in the Congressional Record, Mr. Voorhis charged that unemployment is due in part to the seasonal character of production activities, and is being made increasingly serious by the spreading practice of producers of using painted screens and canvases to show crowd and mob scenes instead of employing extras. To meet the latter situation, he recommended that producers be required to disclose the substitution, in the same way as broadcasters are made to announce the use of "canned" music.

Establishment of a WPA production project, he said, would enable the Government "to undertake a work which has long been neglected." The project could be made self supporting by charging a comparatively small admission. No suggestion was made that entertainment pictures be attempted.

Cites "Educational" Value

"A large proportion of motion picture employes are either permanently unemployed or making altogether inadequate wages from sporadic employment," Mr. Voorhis said. "The government has accepted the responsibility of employment of unemployed people. At the same time the Government needs to do a vast amount of educational work which can be done most effectively and efficiently by the use of moving pictures. These unemployed theatrical people have precisely the talents needed to do that work."

Mr. Zanuck is scheduled to arrive Monday morning by train from the coast, accompanied by Mrs. Zanuck and William B. Dover, studio personnel manager, who will accompany him on his seven-week trip.

Mr. Zanuck is to be honored at formal dinners to be given by industry groups in London and Paris. In the latter city he will be made a member of the Legion of Honor. Championship polo matches will also engage Mr. Zanuck's attention in both capitals.

Mr. Schenck plans to remain in New York a few days after Mr. Zanuck leaves and then will return to the coast.

Banner LINES

LANNY ROSS has withdrawn from the Columbia Concerts Corp. setup, and henceforth will be represented for radio by Lyons & Lyons. It is believed, however, that C. C. C. will continue to do his concert bookings, if any.

The name of Meyer Davis is nationally known, yet this bandleader, foremost in society musical circles, has never appeared on a commercial radio program. Here is a radioddity that should be corrected quickly.

A lesson in how to be a success in politics. The American Federation of Labor conducted a stage and fashion show in Cincinnati last week, and Lucy Monroe was engaged as the star stage attraction. Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio, a guest, was introduced to Lucy by William Green, head of the A. F. of L. The Governor obviously had never heard of Lucy Monroe, for he mistook her for one of the fashion models, complimenting her on her clothes. Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary of the American Federation of Actors, corrected the Governor, explaining Lucy was an opera and radio star.

Governor Davey, like a good politician, made a quick recovery by saying: "Well, she's certainly pretty enough to be the star of a fashion show."

Eddie Cantor, as will be seen in a news item in an adjoining column, has appointed Block & Sully to audition juvenile talent for appearances in the Cantor broadcasts. Now, how about someone to audition Block & Sully?

Recommending an item to the attention of the too numerous program builders who contend that direction in radio is unimportant. Carlo de Angelo, one of the very best air directors, some time ago, assumed charge of "The Hilltop House" and "The O'Neill's," and under his handling the two excellent dramatic series have become even better than they were, both recently breaking agency ratings in their divisions.

It's enough to make you want to tear your hair—if any. We mean those horrible spot announcements that one hears during the late dance hours on the local stations. Particularly those strident Barney's Clothes announcements which are inescapable, for apparently most of the local stations have been plastered with the discs. If broadcasting those discs comes under the head of operating a station for the general welfare of the public, we'll eat 'em.

The protest was signed by various anti-Communist group leaders, and by the commanders of several local American Legion posts.

Nazis Delay Cohen

Emanuel Cohen had a taste of German regimentation during the trip from which he returned yesterday. He had been advised by American officials that he would not require a visa to pass through Germany, but on his return from Sweden he was taken off the train at Flensburg, Germany, because his passport lacked the necessary stamp. He was placed under arrest. The Germans rejected an American Express travelers' check for the visa fee, and after a half-hour of wrangling, the train conductor paid the 12 marks, upon which Mr. and Mrs. Cohen were released.

Cohen's Film Plans To Be Decided Soon

Emanuel Cohen's new distributing affiliation, as well as production plans, will not be decided until after he returns to Hollywood in about three weeks, he said yesterday on arrival on the Washington from a four-month vacation abroad.

The head of Major Pictures said that he has scheduled a program of two or three pictures for the new season and that he hopes to get the camera work under way this summer. He has not discussed any release through United Artists, he said when told of such reports.

Mr. Cohen has Gary Cooper under contract for one picture a year and 4½-year-old Kitty Clancy under personal contract. She will be featured in two films next season. He has a deal on with Bing Crosby for one film, but it has to be approved by Paramount, he said. He also plans to discuss a new contract with Mae West.

Since leaving for Europe in January, shortly after terminating his affiliation with Paramount, Mr. Cohen has not even thought about business

Film Unions Gain 37,000 In Four Years

Producing and Exhibition Up Most, Says IA

The extent of unionization of the industry in recent years, chiefly in the exhibition and production branches, is shown in the increase in I.A.T.S.E. membership from 23,000 in 1934 to almost 60,000 this year, a gain of 37,000, according to James Brennan, international vice-president.

Quoting from a pre-convention bulletin of the union, issued by Washington headquarters, Brennan disclosed that the Alliance has added 28 locals since the last convention in Kansas City two years ago. These include chiefly theatre employes, although two new locals were established in Hollywood and a charter was granted to Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians' Union, Local 702, in New York. A local also was established in Honolulu.

There are now 712 locals in the international Alliance, which embraces the United States and Canada. This figure and the membership total do not include the "B" locals, covering more than 3,000 in the Film Exchange Employes Union and "front of the house" theatre employes such as cashiers, doormen, etc.

Organization of this classification of theatre staffs was voted at the 1936 convention, with a levy on I.A.T.S.E. members to cover the expense, but the

Review Is Ordered On 'Whirlpool' Ban

ALBANY, May 26.—An order for a Supreme Court review of the state's refusal to license "Remous," a foreign film whose English version is entitled "Whirlpool," today was issued by Justice Gilbert V. Schenck on application of Joseph Burnstyn and Arthur Mayer.

"Remous," with sex impotency as the theme, was presented originally in August, 1936, by Kurt Laemmle of Indiana. Denied a license, it was revised and resubmitted by the present distributors, the license being issued later with eliminations. Subsequently, English titles were superimposed and a license sought but not granted. Appellants contend the eliminations were destructive, arbitrary and unjustified.

Again turned down last November with some of the original scenes restored, the appeal to the Board of Regents failed when the subcommittee rejected the picture last month.

Mr. Esmond and Commissioner Graves are given 20 days to file show cause briefs. The matter will then probably be directed to the Appellate Division for review.

Betting Amendment Proposed in Albany

ALBANY, May 26.—The time limit for the introduction of amendments to the State Constitution by individual delegates expired today with the theatre industry chiefly concerned about gambling, pari-mutuel and equal rights bills.

A last minute rush included a measure to permit pari-mutuel dog racing as well as that of horses. Metropolitan and upstate exhibitors are known to be strongly opposed to dog racing.

Nicholas A. Rossi of New York is the sponsor of the betting measure, which has been referred to the bill of rights committee.

United State Senator Robert F. Wagner and Philip Halperin both submitted equal rights amendments aimed at alleged discriminations against certain races and colors in places of public patronage. The Halperin measure specifies that segregation shall be considered a violation of the equal rights provision.

A NEW HIT FROM 20TH CENTURY-FOX!

THE Hollywood REPORTER

'KIDNAPPED' A STANDOUT; ARLEEN WHELAN SURE STAR

Gorgeous Prod'n; Cast, Dir'n Fine

"KIDNAPPED"
(20th Century-Fox)

"Kidnapped" brings to the screen a great romance by a master story teller, and does it with beauty and power. Splendidly cast, superbly photographed, directed with sincere feeling for the dramatic values in Robert Louis Stevenson's classic tale of love and rebellion in the 18th Century Scottish Highlands, it has plenty of boxoffice values and should prove one of the standout productions of the day.

In achieving all this, 20th-Fox went even farther, and accomplished the all but impossible task of making a star overnight. In Arleen Whelan, playing her first screen role, Darryl Zanuck discloses an actress destined for the heights. Best of the newcomers for many a long day, she plays with a haunting sincerity and charm that make the picture a distinct personal triumph.

And this too, despite the fact that Warner Baxter and Freddie Bartholomew, giving top notch performances, head a cast in which every player is more than adequate. It is fast company for a novice, but Miss Whelan shows her speed.

In penning his tale of the Highland clansmen fighting English oppression, Stevenson wrote not one novel but two—"David Balfour" as well as "Kidnapped." The screenplay by Sonya Levien, Eleanor Harris, Ernest Pascal and Edwin Blum unites the two. And though it takes some liberties with them, in the main it follows not only n detail, but in feeling.

Most of the great scenes at which every lover of true romance has thrilled are here—the sword clash between Warner Baxter as Alan and the men who would bag him on the ship; the flight of Baxter and Arleen Whelan and Freddie Bartholomew through the Highlands; Baxter's capture and trial before the bewigged justices.

The story of Freddie's kidnapping aboard ship at the behest of his villainous uncle and of how his fate and Alan's become entwined is too well known to be rehearsed here. Suffice it to say the screen playwrights have kept the full values of the great old tale. And in its unfolding are midnight foray, clash and clang of sword blades, skirl of the bagpipes, and one magnificent scene filled with sound and fury of the drums of doom.

Baxter is magnificently rakish. C. Aubrey Smith's Earl of Argyle is a portrait to remember long. Freddie Bartholomew's David is a convincingly stern-metaled lad. Nigel Bruce plays a kilted and brogued Highlander to the life. Miles Mander's Uncle Ebenezer is sufficiently villainous for any appetite. Reginald Owen, John Carradine, Montagu Love, Ralph Forbes, H. B. Warner and Arthur Hohl play important roles to any romance addict's taste. Every part, indeed, is splendidly portrayed. But still Arleen Whelan stands out.

Kenneth Macgowan has given sumptuous production to this artful translation of a classic, and Alfred Werker's direction is smooth and adroit. Gregg Toland's photography, largely in sepia, conveys the feeling of the misty Highlands and brings some scenes as rich as an Old Master to the screen. Arthur Lange's musical scoring aptly fits the theme.

Allied's Plans Hinge on Fate Of Dakota Law

mediate appeal to a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Paramount's legal staff will leave here this afternoon for Fargo. In the delegation are Austin C. Keough, vice-president and director; Louis Phillips and Sam Boverman of the home office legal staff, Thomas D. Thacher and A. C. Bickford, Thacher & Bartlett, Paramount counsel. They will be joined in Fargo by Joseph Finley, Paramount attorney at Minneapolis, and L. J. Ludwig and J. J. Friedl, operators of Minnesota Amusement Co., a Paramount subsidiary and the only circuit organization affected by the North Dakota law.

Alvin C. Strutz, attorney general of North Dakota, who is a defendant in the Paramount action to invalidate the law, will be assisted with the defense by Abram F. Myers, general counsel and chairman of Allied States, and Louis B. Schwartz, attorney for Northwest Allied, as well as members of the North Dakota attorney general's staff.

National Allied officers who probably will attend the trial include W. A. Steffes of Minneapolis and H. A. Cole of Dallas. The affiliated theatre "divorcement" law was sponsored in North Dakota by Allied States. So far as could be learned yesterday no Allied officials from the east will be present at the trial. It was stated definitely that Sidney Samuelson does not plan to attend and Nathan Yamins, Allied president, is not expected to.

Steffes, Cole May Attend

Paramount was granted a temporary injunction last winter restraining North Dakota officials from enforcing the state law, which would prevent the operation within the state of any theatre circuit in which a producer or distributor had a financial interest. The trial starting on Wednesday will be on Paramount's petition to have the injunction made permanent on the grounds that the divorcement law violates the Federal and state constitutions in that it is an unwarranted use of the police power, is discriminatory, confiscatory and deprives the company of its property without due process of law.

Minnesota Amusement and American Amusement Co., its subsidiary, both with headquarters in Minneapolis, together operate 18 theatres in North Dakota. There are no other affiliated theatres in the state.

Foresee No Increase In Taxes for Canada

TORONTO, May 26.—A pre-budget whisper from the Dominion Government contains the intimation that no increases are in prospect in taxation or excise levies on industries or commodities for the coming year because of the satisfactory volume of revenue currently being obtained from various sources. This is taken to mean in film circles that tariff schedules on imports of negative or positive prints, theatre supplies and other manufactured products will not be disturbed for another 12 months.

however, that the company's negotiations with Mr. Korda do not involve actual production by him. As reported by MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday, it would be possible for Mr. Korda to supervise outside productions without impinging on his exclusive producing commitments with United Artists, but no change has been made in his contract which would permit him to engage in actual production for another company. His supervision of Columbia's production in London would be to the extent only of his general supervision of Denham studio activities.

It is suggested here that Columbia's negotiations with Mr. Korda are limited to the use of his Denham facilities, but may also include arrangements by which Mr. Korda would participate in the financing of the Columbia pictures. The actual production assignment, if a deal is concluded, will probably go to Irving Asher, former Warner Bros. British producer, who is now associated with Mr. Korda, with the additional possibility that Ernst Lubitsch may be available for one picture if he concludes a deal with Mr. Korda such as was discussed here but not consummated.

a bearing on the 1930 consent decree entered into by the circuit with the Government to a special master whose decisions would be final. By this means, it is hoped, Federal anti-trust investigations and contempt actions based on the consent decree and involving the circuit and distributors selling to it, would be eliminated in the future.

The proposal is new to the industry in that it contemplates the voluntary placement of an important unit under Federal authority.

Mr. Brennan scouted complaints of rank and file members that the present method of I.A.T.S.E. administration lacks democratic procedure. He said that the rules are decided upon at national conventions, with nothing concealed, and that the delegates are free to speak. Some New York and Hollywood locals are preparing to make an issue of "democracy" at the convention.

Jessel and Beverly Roberts Tested for Kiss Intensity

They played a screwball comedy in the rain for the Metro Newsreel and the WHN commentator yesterday when George Jessel and Beverly Roberts executed a measure-the-intensity-of-your-kiss on a gadget in the lobby of Loew's State.

The U. A. publicity boys have a picture playing there. It's Gary Cooper and Sigrid Gurie in "The Adventures of Marco Polo." In the film Cooper teaches Sigrid how to kiss. Her role calls for vast ignorance on the subject. So what better tieup than to drag out that newest goofy gadget, the kiss-analyzer, strap Mr. Jessel and Miss Roberts into its octopus-like embrace, and have them osculate while the needle oscillates and tells the world how they respond to each other's s.a.

H. Arthur Gilbert, the inventor of the machine, measures the degree of intensity. A red light glows and a bell tinkles when the machine gets hot from the combined blood pressure which is measured in voltmeters.

We've got everything in this story but the degree of the Jessel-Roberts kiss. Nobody knows what they registered. And probably nobody cares except Mr. Jessel and Miss Roberts. It was a rainy day. Anything for a laugh.

The Federal district court in Los Angeles has approved the company's purchase of a 75 per cent interest in Grand National Films, Ltd., of Canada, the home office was advised yesterday. This adds six exchanges to the organization. Mr. Peskay plans to be in Toronto early next week to effect the changeover and to attend a meeting of the new board of the Canadian company at which officers will be elected.

Grand National plans to release 52 features in 1938-'39, Mr. Peskay said, and 34, including 18 dramas and 16 westerns, have already been set. All will come from independent producers, as the company plans no production, he said.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 74
(20th Century-Fox)

This is an excellent release, incorporating all of the values in camera reporting and important news events, pictorial features and entertainment. Outstanding in the release is considerable footage taken at the time of the recent Chinese Army victories at Taierhchwang. It is excellent of its kind, much of it having been photographed during actual conflict.

Other outstanding features include shots of the Cleveland plane crash this week which took 10 lives; Moscow’s May Day military show, notable as a spectacle, and pictures of an Oregon roundup of wild horses, interesting pictorially.

Royalty breaks into the news prominently with Emperor Hirohito, the Duke of Kent, King Farouk and King Christian II caught at various public ceremonies. A girls’ softball team championship game in Madison Square Garden and an amusing boxing match for Boston’s 40-pound “kid” class make up a sports section. Lew Lehr finds and passes on something amusing in Los Angeles bathing girls doing their part for Clean-Up Week. Running time, 10 mins. K.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 272
(M-G-M)

Subjects of major news significance combined with diverting feature material make this a well-rounded release of well above average merit.

Some of the coverage is duplicated in the current 20th Century-Fox reel, notably the Chinese Army advancing after recent victories and in action near Shantung, and this is easily the outstanding contribution to the release. The Ohio airplane crash of Tuesday night, Moscow’s May Day demonstration for Stalin and visiting officials, and a highly amusing boxing bout between two juveniles likewise appear to have Movietone parentage and rank high in the reel’s contents.

Other subjects include shots of the new Federal prison at Terminal Island, Cal.; the opening of the Congressional investigation of the T.V.A.; new arrivals at Frank Buck’s outdoor zoo on Long Island, and a motorcycle hill climbing contest at Cary, Ill. In all, this is a very good release with something to suit the fancy of any newsreel fan. Running time, 8 mins. K.

Paramount News
(Paramount)

There’s little to get excited about in this release, probably because of the paucity of newsworthy material. The high spot is the familiar Moscow May Day parade in which Stalin reviews thousands of marchers and a parade of war machines.

President Cardenas of Mexico is shown arriving in the revolt area at San Luis Potosi, and there’s a clip of the plane wreck at Independence, Ohio. Other subjects are the new Federal penitentiary at Terminal Island, Cal.; Owner Howard telling why the Seabiscuit-War Admiral race was called off, with shots of the horses; the Greek minister making a payment on his country’s war debt; Bobby Jones besting Attorney General Cummings, in a golf match in the rain; Don Budge and Gene Mako, tennis champs, sailing for foreign competition, and Gothamites on a “foldboat” excursion in Connecticut. Running time, 9 mins. F.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 89
(RKO)

This issue is quite varied and agreeably includes spot news feature material and sport. There are eight items. The lead is the recent airplane crash near Cleveland.

The Connecticut Nutmeg, the newspaperman’s “dream” with no copy readers, editorial policy and everyone an editor is launched. Heywood Broun reads the pronunciamento in the first issue and Ursula Parrott starts the presses while Colvin Brown looks on. Cuban Dictator Batista shows his interest in children’s activities as part of his three-year plan. Scenes of a new prison on Terminal Island in Los Angeles Harbor follow. Bobby Jones and Attorney General Cummings play golf in Washington while the members of the District of Columbia Bar Association watch.

Vincent Richards shows Vincent, Jr., the fine points of tennis service. The Royal Cattle Exhibit in Sydney, Australia, contributes a number of fine horse-jumping shots but few bovines. The May Day Parade in Moscow concludes the footage. Running time, 8½ mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 670
(Universal)

This reel roams around the news and feature map, with an apparently necessary concentration on the feature, rather than the news, type of coverage, and the result is an entertaining and well-paced collection of pictorial items.

The highlights are excellent pictures of the May Day display of military power in Moscow, aftermath shots of serious subway collision in London, one of those really active motorcycle hill climbing competitions in Illinois, and able coverage of the Kings Plate race in Toronto.

Other clips include a Coast Guard pilot receiving the Flying Cross for a sea rescue from Secretary Morgenthau, attempts to fight the annual cricket menace in Washington state, a group of Princeton undergraduates enjoying their clever miniature railway, a woman’s air reserve corps in England, a coast dog with 15 pups, lunching on the installment plan, and smart handling of the cancellation of the Sea Biscuit-War Admiral race, showing in slow motion the “nose” finish of the Pompoon-War Admiral race last year. Running time, 9 mins. A.

Hollywood Preview

"Blond Cheat"

(RKO)

Hollywood, May 26.—This typically English comedy has Joan Fontaine as the only player name with American billing value. The film may experience a fair reception in such American theatres as have found it practicable to offer imported product with satisfactory results.

William Sistrom produced the picture. Joseph Santley directed it. Charles Kaufman, Paul Yawitz, Viola Brothers Shore and Harry Segall wrote the screenplay from an original story by Aladar Laszlo. Players in Miss Fontaine's support are Derrick de Marney, Cecil Kellaway, Cecil Cunningham, Lillian Bond, Robert Coote, Olaf Hytten, John Sutton and Gerald Hamer.

The plot, handled wholly for humorous purposes, has Miss Fontaine placed in the custody of de Marney, pawnbroker's clerk, as security for a loan. This situation is created by pretense that diamond earrings on which he has advanced a loan cannot be removed from her ears. There are complications with his fiancee, his rival, various interested parties, including a play producer, and it all winds up with everybody exposed as implicated one way or another. Boy and girl marry ultimately.

Overseas Previews

"Les Disparus de Saint-Agil"
("Disappeared from Saint-Agil")

(Dimeco-C. G. C.)

Paris, May 17.—A delightful French picture, with its action set in a French Provincial college, the film's mysterious events involve three schoolboys, thirsty for adventure, who have founded a secret association for the purpose of sending its three members to the United States.

When the mysterious disappearance of the first member is followed a few days after by the disappearance of the second, the third schoolboy, Serge Grave, decides to solve the mystery as well as the death of the college drawing teacher which happened in the meantime. He discovers that the college headmaster is the chief of an organization forging banknotes, and that the victim was one of the gang. With the help of all the boys in the college, the gang is arrested.

These adventures have been turned into an excellent film. The direction of Christian Jaque is expert, despite a lack of pace in the concluding scenes. There is no woman in the excellent cast. It includes about 60 boys between eight and 14 who are extremely natural. Special honors should go to Serge Grave, Claudio and Marcel Mouloudji, as the three "association" members. Adult parts are convincingly acted by Michel Simon, as the murdered drawing teacher; Erich Von Stroheim, as the enigmatic but sympathetic English teacher, Armond Bernard, as the amusing porter, and Aimé Clariond as the headmaster.

Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"L'Affaire Lafarge"
("The Lafarge Case")

(Trianon Film-Cipra)

Paris, May 17.—This famous French criminal case of the 19th Century has been turned into a powerful film of excellent technical and artistic quality, directed by the young French director, Pierre Chenal.

As entertainment, "The Lafarge Case" may seem rather depressing, due to the subject and its dull atmosphere, but it should attract the attention of those interested in the film as an art and wishing to see on the screen something different from the ordinary run of productions.

The setting is a remote province in France in 1840 and deals with the death of a Charles Lafarge, whose mother and sister accuse his young Parisian wife of having poisoned him. As there is some evidence against her, she is arrested. At the trial she tells the court of her unhappy life with a man who repulsed her, whom her aunt forced her to marry and who had brought her to live among people who hated her. Finally Madame Lafarge was sentenced to life imprisonment, but was released 12 years later, a few months before she died.

The outstanding feature of this film is the high order of the technical work, including scenery, photography and direction. The atmosphere has been created perfectly and there are many impressive scenes. The cast is very good, with Pierre Renoir giving the best performance as Lafarge.

Short Subjects

"Flaming Frontiers"

(Universal)

Western adventure in the days of Buffalo Bill; wagon trains to California; gold rushes; Indian fights and renegade whites are a few of the many colorful events and figures that play prominent parts in this serialized story that features John [illegible]ck Brown. Its appeal is definitely for the juvenile audience. Once having seen and digested the initial installment, they will be back for more.

The basic plot offers Brown as an Indian scout who sets out to aid a wagon train that is carrying settlers to California and gold. He is taken prisoner by Indians; Eleanor Hansen, whose hand is sought by the scheming James Blaine, has narrow escapes; a cyclone threatens annihilation; more Indians attack; buffalo stampede; and the film continues to wend its exciting way as westward progress is made. There are few dull lengths in the footage of each chapter.

Each chapter runs approximately 21 mins. "G."

"Bit and Bridle"

(RKO)

A high order of production value is contained in this interesting and pictorially effective RKO Pathe "Sportscope," which tells of the breeding and training of fine horses in the south, with the aid of a well-turned narration by Andre Baruch. Hunters, trotters and pacers, flat racers, all are seen against a beautiful setting of woods and training track and pasture. Horse lovers will return to see it again, and any audience will enjoy it thoroughly. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Forgotten Step"

(M-G-M)

This concerns the re-enactment of an almost perfect crime by an art collector who, facing ruin, plans to have his collection destroyed at sea by an explosion and collect insurance. It misfires and the hand of Providence strikes the would be conspirator. It is done in good style and builds up to a thrilling climax. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 49"

(Universal)

The chemical manufacture of rubber and the capture of seals off the Monterey peninsula are offered in this number. Both topics are enhanced in photograhic appeal by tinting. The editing, narration and presentation are well handled. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Healthy, Wealthy and Dumb"

(Columbia)

The Three Stooges have a considerably funnier comedy here than they have had for some time. Curly wins a prize and the trio spend the money before they get it. There are many side complications and much of the familiar "business." Running time, 17 mins. "G."

THE minute it became known that the match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit had been called off, and incidentally crippling CBS's elaborate plans for an exclusive broadcast of the race, NBC rattled its mimeograph machines until they almost smoked to get out a release telling that the meeting of the thoroughbreds would take place during the running of the Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs on June 29. The "meeting of champions," NBC boasted, would be described exclusively for the radio audience over an NBC network according to the terms of a contract signed between NBC and the Eastern Racing Association.

Glum were the faces of the Columbians as a result of the unexpected turn of events which made a CBS exclusive into an exclusive for its rival.

But, according to Bryan Field, CBS's turf expert, NBC yet may have to eat its releases (and Clem McCarthy a hat), for according to Bryan, the meeting between War Admiral and Seabiscuit will not take place at Suffolk Downs on June 29.

Here are Bryan's exact words to us: "Having spoken to Samuel D. Riddle and Charles S. Howard, owners of the horses, I'm prepared to eat my hat, if Seabiscuit and War Admiral race against each other at Suffolk Downs on June 29. If I'm proved right, however, Clem McCarthy will have to eat his hat."

That's quite a challenge—a much more interesting one than an offer of a meeting with swords or epees at dawn behind the car barns.

Discretion bids that we add that the hat-eating wager is Bryan Fields'—not ours. Hats, with or without mustard, are allergic with us.

U.A. to Have "About 30" on New Schedule

Schaefer Says Details To Be Set Tuesday

United Artists' production schedule for the new season has not been completed yet, but current commitments of associated producers indicate a minimum release schedule of "about 30" pictures, George J. Schaefer, vice-president in charge of domestic distribution, said yesterday on his arrival from the coast.

The company's annual sales meetings will be announced Tuesday by Mr. Schaefer. As indicated previously, they will be held in about three weeks, probably in New York, Chicago and the south or far west.

U.S. Product Losing Ground In Latin Area

Solino, Hispano Chief, Says Field Is Open

American companies are losing a large share of the Latin American market because of the development in the last two years of Spanish language films, "but the field is wide open and would be highly profitable for the American producers if they made films in the native language and steeped in the native atmosphere," it was said yesterday by Norberto Solino, executive of Hispano Films of Berlin.

Indicative of the inroads, he said, is that of the approximate 350 theatres in Cuba, more than 200 play Spanish product. Several years ago he was compelled to buy a theatre in Havana in order to get an outlet for his native language distributing company, so averse were Cuban exhibitors to playing Spanish films, he declared.

But more recently, he continued, theatres exhibiting native product have increased their patronage, and the

Cowdin Goes West; Studio Shift Impends

Wm. Pierce, Blaustein, Fender Resign

Hollywood, May 27.—J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board of Universal, is en route here by plane for conferences with Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, on the company's new studio setup. Mr. Cowdin is expected tomorrow and is expected to return east in about a week.

The studio today announced the resignation of William A. Pierce, assistant to Charles R. Rogers when Mr. Rogers was head of production; Julian Blaustein, manager of the story department, and William Fender, studio superintendent.

Pierce has sold several originals to the company. He was to have produced one picture for the coming season.

There is a possibility that initial discussions looking to the selection of an executive producer will be held during Mr. Cowdin's studio visit, although it is not likely that a final decision will be made for some time to come and that Mr. Blumberg will act in that capacity for the time being. Indications are, however, that decisions will be made on the transfer, reassignment or retirement of several studio executives holding high posts. The re-issue vogue will be extended on Broadway next week when Paramount's "The Sign of the Cross," released in 1932, will go into the Criterion, beginning June 3, for a week or more. It is being re-released generally.

Charles Moss, manager of the Criterion, says that the strong cast, headed by Fredric March, Claudette Colbert and Charles Laughton, as well as exploitable angles of the Cecil B. DeMille picture, influenced the booking. The title is being played down in the campaign. Coupled with the feature will be the second episode of the "Fighting Devil Dogs" serial.

"Kidnapped"

By virtue of the original material from which it is taken, the classic Robert Louis Stevenson adventure story of Scotland in the 18th Century, this film becomes at once a highly salable item of screen fare.

Every schoolboy knows Stevenson's "Kidnapped" and "David Balfour," and when the meat of both is combined with the high order of production value expected of a Darryl Zanuck production, a romantic adventure story of box-office strength is the anticipated result. Such is the case here. Wide popular appeal is the keynote of the selling quality of the picture.

Done in sepia tint, which occasionally has the effect of too great darkness, but which for the most part imparts a soft, effective quality to the Scotch country backgrounds, the picture is simple and direct in the telling of the story. Kenneth Macgowan, producer; Alfred Werker, director, and the four who contributed to the screenplay, Sonya Levien, Eleanor Harris, Ernest Pascal and Edwin Blum, have seen to it that there is an equal division of attention given to the Scotch rebel idol and his romance, and the adventures of the young boy, David Balfour. The two phases are romantically interwoven in a story which is familiar to everyone.

The cast has strong names, headed by Freddie Bartholomew and Warner Baxter, aided by C. Aubrey Smith, Nigel Bruce, Reginald Owen, Miles Mander and Arthur Hohl, each of whom offers a strong and telling performance. The young newcomer, Arleen Whelan, possesses a beauty of strikingly appealing quality, which presages a box-office future for her. Her performance appears to lack a certain finish, but additional experience certainly can overcome that present failing.

The picture is good entertainment value, of the popular order.

Ohio Talking New Local Ticket Tax

the theatre admissions tax would be at least tripled.

Proponents of the plan to pay the relief burden by levying excise taxes admit that utilities and theatres probably would be hardest hit, although the plan would permit municipalities to levy other taxes on gross business. If this were done, all taxes would be over and above the three per cent admissions tax now collected by the state.

Those favoring the plan insist theatres can pay additional taxes, since the theatre business increased approximately $1,000,000 during the first four months of 1938.

A statement issued by State Treasurer Clarence Knisley showed that $490,118 in admissions taxes was collected during the first four months of this year, while $461,416.03 was collected during the same period in 1937. This means admission taxes have increased $28,701.07 for that period.

U.S. Product Losing Ground In Latin Area

Spanish language producers are getting high rentals. Theatre business in Latin America was on the downgrade because of the language barrier presented by Hollywood films, for which 60 per cent of population has no liking, Solino claims.

"A large proportion of filmgoers south of the Rio Grande are still devotees of Hollywood films, but the masses prefer entertainment based on their own literature, in their own language and depicting their own ways of life, because it is closer to their heart and something they can understand," said Mr. Solino.

He sailed last night on the Bremen after a few days in New York. He came here from Havana where he is president of Cifesa, a distributing organization for Latin America. This company represents Hispano films of Berlin, which Mr. Solino owns jointly with Vicente Casanova.

Formed in Madrid

Hispano is the only company making Spanish language pictures outside Latin America. It was organized three years ago in Madrid. With the outbreak of the Civil War and the closing of all studios in Spain, acting talent, directors and technicians were moved to Berlin, where the company produces at the Ufa and Jofa studios and others. The employes visit their native country occasionally, and while they are divided in their sympathies between the Loyalists and the Rebels, they get along amicably, Mr. Solino said.

He is contemplating moving his personnel to New York or Hollywood to be closer to the South American market, and will investigate studio possibilities on his next trip here, in about three months. He maintains contact with his Cuban headquarters by making three or four trips a year.

Theatres in both Insurgent and Government territory are doing good business, Mr. Solino reported, because of the desire of the population to forget the war. Comedies and musicals are much in demand, but dramas and "heavy stuff" are taboo.

Hispano Films is regarded as one of the leading production organizations in its field. Among its recent films are "Carmen," also made in a German version with the title "Andalusian Nights," "El Barbera del Sevilla," "Noblessa Baturra" and "Morena Clara." They are shown in New York.

disclosed, will include four or five from Samuel Goldwyn, four from David O. Selznick, four from Mr. Korda, six from Walter Wanger, eight from Edward Small and four from Hal Roach, a total of 30 or 31. There is a possibility that all six producers may make one or two pictures less than the number tentatively planned by them, which would leave the company's schedule open for the acquisition of a small number of pictures from independent producers who may be attracted to United Artists' ranks within the next few months as a result of the company's new arrangements for reduced charges for world distribution and profit-sharing for individual producers on the basis of their pictures' earnings.

Expect Four from Korda

LONDON, May 27.—London Films and Alexander Korda will produce a total of 18 pictures at Denham during the 1938-'39 season, the company stated today. About four of 12 pictures to be produced by Mr. Korda will be for the American market. The remaining eight, together with six from associate producers, are for the "Empire pictures" list.

Irving Asher has been signed as an associate producer and will collaborate with Mr. Korda on production policy, the company also stated. In addition, negotiations are under way with three other British producers and the conclusion of these deals is expected simultaneously within a month.

New Theatre Building Up During April

Four-Month Total 267; Value $7,691,000

Theatre construction showed an upswing in April following a decline in the number of projects in the preceding two months, and the total for the first four months of this year was boosted to 267 projects of new construction or substantial remodeling at a cost of $7,691,000 in the 37 eastern states.

By coincidence, the same number of projects was reported for the initial four-month period of 1937, but the valuation was $8,056,000. However, April contracts helped close the gap between the valuations recorded for the four months of both years, 82 projects being reported for the month at a cost of $2,071,000, against the 1937 figure for the same month of 71 projects with a valuation of $1,838,000.

"There is encouragement for this year's theatre building activities in the latest summary, and it is generally

France Denies Added Permits On U. S. Films

Dubbed Releases Halted Until July 1

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, May 30.—The French Government has refused the pleas of American distributing units here for permission to apply for additional visas on dubbed product for the first six months of the current year.

Last March 7, the quota of 94 dubbed foreign films for each half-year, including all foreign product over three reels in length, was exhausted.

The Government's refusal of permission for visa extensions was based officially on the fact that the quota of 94 for each six-month period is part of the law, and that in consequence, it cannot be changed without legislation permitting alteration.

Thus, no dubbed foreign product will be approved and passed by the French Government censor board

CINCINNATI, May 30.—Bingo, which has flourished here under permits granted by city officials from month to month to various sponsoring groups, chiefly religious and charitable organizations, has been banned by City Manager C. O. Sherrill, who said that no further permits will be issued, regardless of the sponsors, "because the city has no authority in law for sanctioning such games or any form of gambling."

This removes a source of theatre competition which first and subsequent exhibitors blame, in part at least, for

BRITISH DISCUSS JOINT SALES HERE

Proposal Aims at a New Exchange Setup to Cover Country

Plans for the formation of a cooperative selling and distributing organization to represent British producers in the American market are under discussion here and in London, it was learned over the weekend.

The move is designed to solve the problem which will confront many British producers in this market when the major American companies begin regular distribution of their pictures made in England for their quota credits.

The plans under discussion contemplate the organization of a national sales and distribution agency to give American representation to all British product acceptable to this market other than the quota productions of American companies. It is believed that 50 to 60 British features may be available annually to such an organization, and with this product concentrated in a single selling and distributing unit the proportionate cost

Hopeful Cubans

It's relatively easy, on paper, to finance production in Cuba, relates Norberto Solino, Spanish film producer. The procedure, he says, goes something like this:

You approach a prospective investor, and he says: "The national lottery will be drawn next Tuesday. See me on Wednesday and I'll have $150,000 for you. We'll organganize a company and I'll be president."

If the prospect has a losing ticket, the deal, of course, is off.

Republic to Have More Percentages

Republic is increasing the number of its percentage pictures for the new season as well as boosting the rentals on the 1938-'39 program, due to the larger expenditure on production, it was learned over the weekend. The company is understood to be seeking a 25 per cent increase.

It was stressed, however, that this is a general policy only and that selling terms will differ with each individual situation. Type of run, policy and other factors will be taken into consideration.

James R. Grainger, president of Republic and its sales head, has been charged with putting the new distribution policies into effect. He discussed the situation with Max Roth and Irving Mandel, district manager and franchise holder, respectively, in the Chicago, Milwaukee and Indian-

Key Takes Go into Spring Decline; Total $1,365,866

Following an Easter Week spurt which failed to come within 15 per cent of last year's total, first run grosses in 23 key cities reporting to MOTION PICTURE DAILY have fallen off to figures close to the pre-Christmas average. The number of first run theatres in operation has declined from a high of 152 for the season to 140 the week ending May 13-14 and 142 for the week ending May 20-21.

The total take for the 142 houses the week ending May 20-21 was $1,319,641. For the previous week it was $1,212,731, a mark only slightly higher than the mid-December lull and the pre-Easter slump. Easter week the total was $1,516,557, about 15 per cent under last year. The following week it was $1,365,866.

Survivor

Howard Dietz, Bill Ferguson and Howard Strickling of M-G-M have arranged an intensive promotion campaign on "Yellow Jack." The New York campaign, in conjunction with the opening of the film at the Capitol, was featured by a round of appearances of John R. Kissinger of Huntington, Ind., one of the two survivors of the "Yellow Jack" test in Cuba.

The publication by the Saturday Evening Post of an article, "Yellow Jack Breaks Jail," simultaneously with the national release of the film, is said not to have done the film any harm. Ditto the Good Housekeeping interview with the four cast leaders of "Three Comrades."

It's Daddy

Paul Lazarus, Jr., Warner home office advertising man, will answer to the name of "Daddy," at the slightest provocation. The reason weighs eight pounds, is Paul Lazarus III, and pretty soon will call Paul Lazarus, Sr., United Artists sales head, "Granddad."

"Burleycue"

"Burleycue," history of burlesque by Bernard Sobel of M-G-M's publicity staff, is to be included in a collection of volumes by Indiana authors which is to be presented by Mrs. William Henry Coleman of Indianapolis to Yale in memory of her son, William Coleman Atkins.

Personality

Bob Taplinger, Warners' publicity director on the coast, has contrived a neat and novel "personality press book" on "Gold Diggers in Paris." The personality is Ethelreda Leopold, the film's beauty winner, and the folder, captioned: "Coming to Town," includes, in slip pockets, a sheaf of stories on reception, tieup, women's page special, radio interview, etc., and another sheaf of photos of Ethelreda. It's two sheafs to the good.

Cocoanuts

Imagine how those husky express truck drivers felt when they had to deliver those cocoanuts (big ones—in the shells), and the express company has not yet begun to supply the drivers with trays. Oh, yes, Paramount has a picture called "Cocoanut Grove," and it opened at the Cocoanut Grove on the coast, and the whole thing was just publicity, we'll bet.

Snappy Trailer

That was a really smart and effective musical trailer turned out by Herb Moulton of the Paramount studio trailer department for "Tropic Holiday," featuring songs from the film.

Hollywood Previews

"Josette"

Hollywood, May 30.—Carrying marquee names enough to sell two pictures half as good, "Josette" is a bit of spring tonic likely to step up the sluggish boxoffice circulation of ailing cinemas anywhere. Don Ameche, Simone Simon, Robert Young, Joan Davis, Bert Lahr, Tala Birell and William Collier, Sr., portray snappily and with the light touch the seven characters whose never overly serious problems are resolved in the brisk treatment of an amusing story by Ladislaus Vadnai which became a play by Paul Frank and George Fraser and a screenplay by James Edward Grant. The film comes under the heading of successful seasonable entertainment.

Gene Markey is associate producer and the subject matter is of the smartly sophisticated kind congenial to his and so few others' talents. Allan Dwan's sure direction brings out every laugh in it and overemphasizes none. The tale is of Brothers Ameche and Young, who attempt to rescue their father, Collier, from the gold digging Josette, played by Miss Birell. A wardrobe girl, Miss Simon, is mistaken for Josette and the brothers become rivals for her affections, Ameche winning out after appropriate complications. The place is New Orleans and the time is now.

Ameche and Young add to their lengthening sequence of distinguished performances in the field of light comedy. Miss Simon is much as usual. Lahr, Hurst and Collier handle the broader humor with Miss Davis accounting for same on the distaff side in her usual proficient manner.

Publicity and advertising in behalf of the film have been of a sort to suggest at least a tinge of the risque. It contains situations and dialogue that could have gone overboard in that direction under clumsy handling, but do not as treated. Frisky would be the better adjective to use.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Two Gun Justice"

(Monogram)

Hollywood, May 30.—Built to that pattern which has caused westerns to endure as the popular screen entertainment of millions, "Two Gun Justice," which stars Tim McCoy, stacks up as one of the day's better outdoor action adventure films. It's double dyed in the wool melodrama and high heroics from opening shot to final fadeout. Sandwiched in are all the features and episodes, all of which are hair-raising, that anyone could expect.

Outlaws, headed by John Merton, as tough a bad man as ever ordered someone else to do his dirty work, make a little cow country town a very undesirable place in which to live. But the old call to action is too much for Tim McCoy, scourge of all desperados, who has temporarily retired to the quietude of a desk job. Palming himself off to Merton as a Mexican bad man, Tim forestalls many a vicious plot, meanwhile getting himself into a complicated romantic situation with Betty Compson, a saloon keeper, and rancher's daughter Joan Barclay. The perplexed Merton, finding his gang evaporating as some fall before McCoy's blazing guns and others desert, is finally brought to bay. Though he forces Miss Barclay to act as a shield, his plan is foiled by Miss Compson, who, repenting the jealous frenzy that almost cost Tim his life, pushes the girl aside that Tim's avenging bullet may find its mark.

The show is all action and much of this quality returns to the silent day technique. Fred Myton wrote the original screenplay and Alan James directed.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Quebec Children's Ban May Be Eased

Montreal, May 30.—Children of Quebec will soon be legally permitted to attend theatres in which films of definite educational value are shown, T. J. Coonan, provincial cabinet minister, assured members of the Quebec Allied Theatrical Industry at the annual banquet last night.

He asked for the cooperation of exhibitors and said that when educational films were being shown they should be considered adjuncts of schools. Legislation can be passed at the next session, he said.

Mr. Coonan predicted that representations to the present tax investigation commission might bring a cut in the entertainment tax.

Tampa Asks Clergy To Help Censoring

Tampa, May 30.—Being the official censor of films is adding a little too much work to his other official duties, is the opinion of Chief of Police Woodruff, and he has called upon the Tampa Ministerial Association to act with him as an advisory committee.

Chief Woodruff's appointment as film censor followed a protest made by ministers and others about the flood of "sex pictures" which have been shown here lately. In response to the protest the Board of Aldermen arranged a public hearing on the subject, at which several ministers and others took a rap at the films shown and the advertising which featured nude women.

Variety Club

Baltimore

Baltimore, May 30.—Variety Club, Tent No. 9, held its first regular luncheon with Chief Barker J. Louis Rome, William K. Saxton, Owen D. Weems and Joseph Young at the head table. About 70 members were present, and several guests.

The golf tournament committee includes Mr. Saxton, chairman; Spaulding Albert, Elmer Nolte, Rodney Collier, Eddie Jacobs, Pete Rome, Henry Morton and Eddie Sherwood.

A raffle is to be held June 7 with John Harris, national president, attending. Jacques Shellman has been appointed chairman of the publicity committee.

Mr. Rome announced that the charity quota for the year has been set at $3,000. Frank H. Durkee presented the Charity Chest a $400 check of which $386.64 was the remainder of the funds received from a testimonial dinner given him recently. He added the difference to make up the even $400. He was named chairman of the Charity Chest committee which includes Mr. Jacobs and J. Lawrence Schanberger. Edgar Moss, who was present added his personal $10 to this amount.

It has been decided that Monday nights will be set aside as stag nights, and that no new members will be added to the full membership of 100 up to Sept. 1 and then a further vote will be taken.

Buffalo

Buffalo, May 30.—On the basis of incomplete tabulations, Variety Club apparently will show a small profit on a one-night Federal theatre production of George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion."

Two hundred club members and guests held a party that was officially tagged "Republic Night." Jack Berkowitz served as chairman and host.

Canada Business Gains

Toronto, May 30.—On a tour of inspection of theatres in the Western Provinces of the Dominion, J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., has found the outlook in the Middle West much improved over last year. Weather and wheat crop conditions have changed and optimism prevails. In recent years a steady drought in a large area of the prairie provinces had been a disturbing influence.

At Edmonton Famous Players is erecting a large theatre, Fitzgibbons declared.

W. J. Long, independent exhibitor at Edmonton, is rebuilding his Rialto.

African Film Re-Titled

Hollywood, May 30.—The title of the Belgian Congo picture which Universal will release this summer has been changed from "Dark Ecstasy" to "Dark Rapture."

Kirby Building Theatre

Denver, May 30.—Tom Kirby is erecting a $60,000 theatre in Worland, Wyo., to be named the Kirby. Seating about 700, the house will be opened sometime early in July.

"Heaven" and Raymond the Loop's Leader

CHICAGO, May 30.—Gene Raymond in person plus "Stolen Heaven" on the screen gave the Oriental top honors in the Loop last week and made the closing week of the theatre a notable one. The gross for the final week was $21,600, which was $3,600 over average.

At the United Artists "Adventures of Marco Polo" was headed for a satisfactory run with $18,200. This was $3,200 over average. apolis areas, and will confer with others from the field this week. Mr. Grainger plans to complete his discussions with district heads and franchise holders during a swing of exchanges on which he will leave in a few days.

Mr. Grainger has been occupied since taking charge of the sales department a week ago yesterday with effecting greater coordination between the home office and the men in the field, and he plans to operate the distribution department "as one unit," with greater efficiency and "speed up" in the method of operation.

There have been no discussions regarding franchise holders handling outside product, since the original contracts prohibited this and the franchise men have had sufficient time in which to dispose of other commitments in the three years since the company was started.

British Talk Joint Selling In US Market

to individual British producers can be held to a profitable minimum.

The British companies to which such a plan appeals the most are reported to be Gaumont British, Associated British Pictures, British Lion and Herbert Wilcox Prod. With its own sales organization already established in this country, Gaumont British appears to be in a strategic position to be benefited by the new cooperative concern. The cost of establishing national branches for physical distribution, in place of Gaumont's present year-to-year arrangement for physical distribution through 20th Century-Fox, would be offset by the increased returns from the greater volume of product handled by the cooperative concern and the apportionment of costs among many producing organizations, it is pointed out. In addition, the plan would have the advantage of providing a permanent outlet for this and the other companies involved.

G. B. to Market 24

Gaumont will have 24 pictures for distribution here during the new season. Associated British Pictures will contribute another 10 to 12, British Lion may have six and Herbert Wilcox four to six. Other British producers without established outlets here would contribute to the estimated total of 50 to 60 annually.

It appears to be certain that American companies, major and independent, will have approximately 40 features made in England for quota credits going through their national exchanges next season. Most British producers are agreed that the pointed problem in competition which this influx of American-owned and British-made product will present cannot be met by haphazard selling and distributing arrangements in this market and their answer is the cooperative organization, giving them a permanent outlet for a continuous flow of product, with operating costs scaled down to a practicable level.

Levin to Acquire Theatres

Albert D. Levin, New York attorney, stated yesterday that he has been commissioned by "English interests" to acquire American theatres to form the nucleus of a new independent circuit and that negotiations with several theatre owners are "progressing." He added that he was interested in discussing additional acquisitions, particularly concerning eastern theatres.

Mr. Levin declined to identify his clients. However, Jeffrey Bernerd, general manager of Gaumont British Distributors, Ltd., who is in New York on business, said that Gaumont British is not interested in theatre acquisitions here in any manner and said he did not know Mr. Levin.

Budd Rogers, head of Alliance Films, American agency for Associated British Pictures, also stated that his principals were not interested in theatre acquisitions and that he, too, did not know Mr. Levin.

Critics Differ Widely in Reactions to "Kidnapped"

A decided difference of critical opinion marked the comments of New York's daily newspaper reviewers concerning "Kidnapped." Brief excerpts from their reviews follow.

Daily Mirror—Extravagantly embellished with "love interest" (the film) is . . . a handsome production, large and elaborate.

Daily News— . . . The authors of the screenplay have taken many liberties with the original. . . . Stevenson's admirers will grumble at the change, but the rest . . . will find it tolerably entertaining.

Herald Tribune— . . . . Adventure photoplay which bears only a slight resemblance to the original . . . Stevenson is virtually scrapped without anything of cinematic importance being substituted.

Sun— . . . In spite of its moments of excitement, the picture grows tedious at times. . . . An adventure melodrama of the period style.

Times— . . . The film of "Kidnapped" by any other name and by any other credit line might have won a modest nod of appreciation.

World Telegram—Although it has been amended considerably, "Kidnapped," always doubtful entertainment as a novel, shows no great improvement in its screen form. . . . At best only fair-to-middling screen fare.

Post—"Kidnapped" . . . a handsome production in sepia . . . Baxter gives sincere performances . . . and a number of good performances by a veritable battalion of distinguished actors.

before July 1, the beginning of the new half-year period. On that date, a rush of applications for permits is expected to deluge the authorities, and the quota of 94 for that period is expected to be exhausted within a relatively short time.

Currently, dubbing work is going forward at top speed in all the Paris studios so that films will be available for censorship review prior to July 1. The chief problem facing the American distributors, however, is the fact that the bulk of their new product, including the best attractions, will not be ready for dubbing by July 1. In that case such product will not be released here in French dubbed versions before 1939.

A second complaint of American interests here is that half of the dubbing permits are taken by local French distributors who buy old American films cheaply, or even German or Russian films, and dub them, thus replacing new American product.

Mr. Peskay plans to leave for the coast shortly after returning from Toronto.

hoped that the early May upswing in general building will apply to theatre work in particular," comments the Dodge Reports Division of F. W. Dodge Corp.

The figures for April, this year, exceed the March awards for 75 projects with a contract value of $2,064,000. The gap between the contract valuations at the end of the four-month period was $365,000, in comparison between this year's figures and last. This is considerably less than the gap of $518,000 which was found at the close of the first quarter of this year.

Seating capacities for the periods are not given, but the size of the projects may be judged from the floor areas. In the four-month period this year the figure was 992,000 sq. ft., and in the same period last year it was 1,159,000. The record for the comparative April projects is 256,000 sq. ft. in 1938 and 289,400 sq. ft. in 1937.

Ford Discards Light Type of Air Program

The Ford Motor Co. is definitely through with radio programs of the popular type for some time to come, it was learned yesterday. However, the company's institutional series, the "Sunday Evening Hour," will be continued for another year following a summer halt.

While no definite reason has been advanced for the company's loss of interest in popular appeal programs, it is believed that its experiences with talent, rather than a lack of interest in such programs by listeners, is an important contributing factor. It is an open secret that Al Pearce's action in negotiating for another sponsor while still under contract to Ford was displeasing to the company. The act which preceded Pearce under Ford sponsorship, Fred Waring's unit, also proved to be an unhappy partnership in the final months of the contract.

Radio Show Adapted For Stage Offering

For the first time, an original radio series has been re-adapted for legitimate theatre presentation. "Famous Jury Trials," which was heard over the Mutual network last season, sponsored by the Mennen Co., is touring 36 theatres in the Midwest under the direction of Ralph Corbett, giving an hour and a half stage version of one of the radio dramas, "The Case of Gerald Blakeley."

Credit will appear in all newspaper advertising and on three-sheets to the Mutual network where it is expected to return in the fall with a new sponsor. Actors in the legitimate version were recruited from "Boy Meets Girl," "Room Service" and "Brother Rat," all George Abbott shows.

Says Independents Here Will Follow Suit

It is up to the circuits to make the first move in eliminating double bills, and if they do so the independents in the metropolitan area will follow, according to an official statement of the I. T. O. A. in its paper, The Independent.

The statement agrees with Samuel Goldwyn that "double features are the fault of the exhibitor and it is up to the exhibitors to eliminate them," but asserts that "the first move in that direction must naturally come from the first runs."

British Releasing Plan in Work Soon

Definite plans for the formation of a national sales and distribution organization in America for British producers may be worked out here and in London this summer, it was learned from official sources yesterday.

The plan under consideration proposes the pooling of British product suitable for this market into a schedule of 50 to 60 pictures annually which would be sold and distributed through the new organization as a joint venture of the several participating producing companies. The lowered operating costs resulting from the handling of a larger volume of product are expected to sustain a permanent organization to give better British product an entree to the American market.

Zanuck Says Budgets to Be Upped $3,500,000

With production completed on the 61 features 20th Century-Fox will deliver on 1937-'38 contracts, and the new season's program shaped up far in advance, Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production, will sail with his family on the Normandie today for his first vacation in three years.

By the time he returns, in the third week in July, 13 features will have been finished or nearing completion for 1938-'39.

Arriving Monday morning from the coast, Mr. Zanuck stated that the company's production budget for the coming year will be $3,500,000 higher than any previous year. He said, however, that he could not disclose the total figure, but that the program will be the most ambitious in the company's history.

M-G-M Objects to "Lynton" Damages

M-G-M Pictures Corp., M-G-M Distributing Corp., Loew's, Inc., and the Culver Export Corp. yesterday filed objections to the report of Special Master Gordon Auchincloss filed in the Federal Court on May 9, in which he found damages to the extent of $587,604 in favor of Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes for plagiarism of their play, "Dishonored Lady" by the defendants in "Letty Lynton." The defendants claimed the commercial value of "Letty Lynton" can not be attributed wholly to the story of "Dishonored Lady," but that many other factors must be considered.

At the utmost, the defendants assert, not more than 10 per cent of the total net proceeds were made by reason of the infringement and that testimony taken in their behalf by Louis B. Mayer, Howard Strickling, Adolph Zukor, Al Lichtman, Spyros Skouras and Nate Blumberg bear out this contention. The defendants contend that the commercial value of the picture depended wholly on Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery and that the picture when sold to exhibitors was entitled and was sold as "Crawford No. 2."

The defendants further state that they had an agreement with the plaintiffs to purchase the screen rights to the play for $30,000 if the Hays office approved, which it did not do. Therefore they claim the Special Master errs in finding damages of $587,604 and that the total damages should be limited to $30,000 at the utmost.

mand for more pictures of major portance." Ten films scheduled for the new season will be on a scale as great as that of "In Old Chicago," he said.

He said that "Alexander's Ragtime Band" which was previewed on the coast last week, will not be entirely completed until his return, when he will do the final editing.

While his seven-week trip will be a vacation, Mr. Zanuck also plans to survey the film situation abroad, but he will not seek talent, he said.

"If any unusually talented player comes to my attention, naturally I will be interested in weighing his or her possibilities for our studio," he explained. "But I am quite satisfied with the talent I have found right here in America. The future stars will come from this country, for the most part."

Lauds Miss Whelan

He added that another player "of the class of Richard Greene," who was brought over from England, "would be welcome any time." Arleen Whelan is being groomed for big roles, Mr. Zanuck indicated, and said she is "practically certain" to have the feminine lead in "Jesse James," one of the two color films for next year. Production will start shortly after his return on Eddie Cantor's film, tentatively titled "The Average Man." Art Arthur and Curtis Kenyon are working on the script.

While in London, Mr. Zanuck will confer with Robert T. Kane, English production head for 20th Century-Fox, on the five British films scheduled for next year. The first, "Piccadilly Circus," starring Gracie Fields, is nearing completion. Her other film for the year will be "Paddy Darling." Annabella will make two films in London upon completion of "Suez," now shooting in Hollywood. A Technicolor production, not yet set, will complete the British program.

Large Group in Work

Besides "Suez," films which are in work or completed at the Movietone studio are: "Ellis Island," "Straight, Place and Show," "My Lucky Star," "Hello Hollywood," "Meet the Girls," "MEridian 7-1212," "Five of a Kind," "Mysterious Mr. Moto," "Speed to Burn." "Hold That Co-Ed" and "Down to Earth" are scheduled to start next Monday.

Others will be in preparation for the cameras when Mr. Zanuck returns. In his absence the studio machinery will be kept running by William Goetz, vice-president and executive assistant, and Sol Wurtzel and Harry Joe Brown.

When the 1937-'38 season comes to an official close in the week starting July 29, 20th Century-Fox will have released a total of 61 films. Of these, Mr. Zanuck produced 24, Mr. Wurtzel 25, while one each came from New World and the British studio and one was a Martin Johnson picture. In addition, there were five from Sol Lesser and four Will Rogers re-issues.

that they did not anticipate action on the proposal in time for the 1938-'39 season, due to the fact that production schedules and distribution arrangements for the next year are already too far advanced. The plan, obviously, however, is in great favor here and the American representatives appear to be optimistic over the chances of definite developments within the next few months.

Typical of the comment available here on the plan is the following:

Arthur Lee, G. B. vice-president—"I have advocated joint distribution of British pictures in this market for many years. I favor the plan without qualification and believe that it will materialize eventually."

Budd Rogers Approves

Budd Rogers, head of Alliance Films, American representative for Associated British Pictures—"I believe the plan now under consideration to be the only practicable one in the long run for the British producer who hopes for any real returns from the American market. I have championed joint action of this kind for a long time and I am convinced that it is the method which must be adopted ultimately."

Mack Littman, American representative for Herbert Wilcox Prod.—"It is a sound and practical idea. I believe it offers the British producer the best opportunity to establish himself in the American market permanently. However, there are many problems involved and I am not too hopeful of seeing them solved entirely for some time yet."

Hitchcock Is Signed

London, May 31.—Alfred Hitchcock has been signed by Mayflower Productions to direct Charles Laughton's starring vehicle, "Jamaica Inn," which will be produced by Erich Pommer. Hitchcock will sail from England on the Queen Mary tomorrow, and is due to arrive in New York on Monday. He is accompanied by his wife, the former Alma Reville, G. B. scenarist.

Finds European War Talk Hurts Business Abroad

is a truism that nations that cannot trade among themselves cannot be prosperous. The international economic situation is greatly upset and affects all business and industries. The film industry is only one of them."

Despite all that, Mr. Hutchinson found Hollywood's output still leads the field in European countries but coming up against a sharpened nationalism which favors domestic product. Many countries are trying to promote their own film industries, all stimulated by Government subsidies or support. The French, particularly, have made headway in this respect, he observed.

With the national markets becoming more difficult, American films have to be "big" in order to obtain substantial representation, reported Mr. Hutchinson. Regarding the new British quota, his comment was that American companies would, of course, prefer to operate without such restrictions, but if there must be a quota, the new act is "not so bad" considering all the circumstances involved.

Proud of New Quarters

Mr. Hutchinson described the company's new six-story British headquarters building in London as "the finest of its kind in the world."

Heretofore, the 20th Century-Fox offices in London were scattered and trade showings held in rented theatres, at a cost of about $20,000 a year. All such screenings, which are demanded by law, will now be held in the 300-seat Century Theatre in the new building. Mr. Hutchinson estimated the total cost of the structure at $400,000.

Since leaving London a little more than two years ago to become the company's foreign manager, Mr. Hutchinson has traveled 100,000 miles. His next trip, on which he will leave about Aug. 1, will be to South America, and later he plans to visit South Africa, where 20th Century-Fox has set up its own organization.

Says British Desire Theatre Investments

Although declining to identify the British clients by whom he has been commissioned to acquire American theatres, Albert D. Levin, New York attorney, said yesterday that the objective of the financial principals was solely an investment one. No plan for creating a theatre outlet for British product is involved in the venture, he said.

Mr. Levin declared that his clients were interested in acquiring houses, particularly in the east, which would form the nucleus of a new independent circuit. He said that his clients were financially interested in British theatres and were desirous of extending their investments to the theatre field here. He added that, if and when deals were consummated, he would be at liberty to identify the principals. Negotiations with several theatre owners are under way now, he said.

High Court to Review Ruling On Patent Use

one of the results of which would be the destruction of its business.

Points offered by the company in support of its petition that the respondents, by knowing of the sales of amplifiers to it by the Transformer Co., their licensee, and taking no action thereon until after the suit was filed, did not go into court "with clean hands"; that the patents held to be infringed were among those involved in the motion picture patents case in which violation of the anti-trust laws was found; and that the patents were involved in patent pooling agreements in the radio industry, which it contended were illegal.

Two Decisions Due

The questions which will be considered by the court next October are: Can the owner of a patent restrict the use made of a device manufactured thereunder, after the device has passed into the hands of a purchaser, and whether a patent owner, merely by a license notice attached to a device made under the patent and sold in the ordinary channels of trade, can plan an enforceable restriction on the purchaser as to the use which he may put the device.

In his dissenting opinion, Justice Black charged that the majority decision would pave the way for exercise of patent controls over a large variety of articles to an extent never contemplated by Congress.

Disneys, RKO Sued On Camera Process

Los Angeles, May 31.—A suit asking an accounting for $1,000,000 allegedly earned during the last six years by an infringement of the patent and trademark was filed in Federal Court here today by Ivan Melville Terwilliger of Altadena, and Steroplane Process Pictures Co., a Delaware corporation, against Walt Disney Pictures, Ltd., RKO-Radio Pictures, Inc., Walter E. Disney, Roy Disney and William E. Garity. The plaintiffs allege Mr. Disney infringed their patent on "a method of cinematography to produce stereoscopic solid effects" and "a means and method of displaying pictures." The word "Multiplane" also is claimed to have been protected by the patent.

In addition to asking for an accounting for the more than $1,000,000 set forth as having been earned by the infringement of the patents claimed the suit asks an injunction to restrain further use of processes and phrase described.

Agent Sues Miss Farmer

Frances Farmer is defendant in a suit for $75,000 brought by Shepard Praube, producer, author and publicity agent, who alleges that Miss Farmer violated a contract with him by which he was to receive 10 per cent of the star's earnings for five years.

Miss Farmer claims that Praube is not licensed to act as a theatrical employment agent.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 75
(20th Century-Fox)

The news breaks were available to make a lively and entertaining newsreel, and the opportunity was not missed here. While Mrs. Roosevelt dances the square dance, the President tells the Arthurdale, W. Va., schoolchildren why he permitted the tax bill to become law without his signature.

The aftermath of the near-tragedy in the sinking of the excursion boat Mandalay in New York harbor is "hot news," while such material as the handful of Civil War veterans parading on Memorial Day, the much publicized Parisian duel, which has been excellently photographed, and pilots stunting at an Oakland air show form good audience material.

The arrival of the Kaiser's grandson and his bride, the annual competition of the Morris and Essex Kennel Club, the close finish of the Suburban at Belmont, and shots of the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race finish the reel. The crash of one car was caught at the end of the accident, but it still has a thrill. Running time, 10 mins. A.

News of the Day
Vol, 9, No. 273
(M-G-M)

An interesting combination of news events serves to make of this a bright and interesting reel, led by pictures of the rescued passengers alighting from a Coast Guard cutter after the near-disaster in the sinking of the Mandalay, excursion boat out of New York. The inane remarks of a "survivor," obviously hand picked, seriously detract from a good piece of news coverage.

Mrs. Roosevelt is seen doing the square dance at Arthurville, W. Va., and the President is shown visiting the farms there, but, strangely, there is no footage on the President's address explaining his tax bill stand. Pictured also are the annual and colorful Morris and Essex Kennel Club dog show, the mass madness of allegedly human beings at a "swing" carnival at Randall's Island Stadium, New York, and the much-publicized theatrical duel in Paris. The sporting division covers the Indianapolis motor classic, with the camera barely getting in at the end of a fatal crash, and the running of the "Suburban" at Belmont, with its whisker finish. Running time, 10 mins. A.

(Paramount)

The two best numbers of the issue are the wreck of the Mandalay and the Belmont Park race won by Snark. In the former the upper deck of the Mandalay is shown above water after the vessel has sunk and crowds of spectators and police awaiting the return of the refugees to the Battery are shown. A Coast Guard officer says there was no panic. In the Belmont Park race there is some fine action and good comment by Bill Slater.

The Indianapolis auto race shots are disappointing. The arrival of the winner in the paddock and the fast moving cars as they whirl around the track are presented, but there is no shot of the accident.

Other scenes show the two Morgans of the TVA board speaking at the Congressional investigation, long and medium shots of the Paris duel, the arrival of the Kaiser's grandson and his bride on the Europa. Running time, 9 mins. J.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 90
(RKO)

Varied material, well photographed, narrated and edited, makes this an interesting and entertaining release. Subscribers will be supplied with 100 feet of film on the Indianapolis Memorial Day auto race, which was made up just after prints were shipped to exchanges, and this subject will add just over one minute to the final running time of the reel.

President Roosevelt's speech on the tax bill at Arthurdale, W. Va., last week is well presented and is followed by the high school social evening staged for the town's distinguished visitors the same day. Mrs. Roosevelt is caught by the camera enjoying an old fashioned square dance, which will probably be equally enjoyed by theatre patrons.

Other subjects include the recent duel of a French playwright and his critic near Paris; the Essex, N. J., dog show; England's air force combining raiding practice with slum destruction by bombing, New York swing dance fans having an afternoon of it in the out-of-doors, and Snark's victory in the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park last Saturday. Running time (without Indianapolis race), 7 minutes. K.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 671
(Universal)

Right on the nose with spot news events, this release contains the high spots of the more newsworthy happenings over the weekend. Four are in the front rank of audience attention getters: The Indianapolis auto races; the air meet at Oakland, Cal., in which there is some fancy flying and a crackup; President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the Arthurdale, W. Va., model community, and the sinking of the Mandalay in New York Bay.

The balance moves at a fast clip and includes New York's Memorial Day parade, with emphasis on the few remaining Civil War vets; Prince Ferdinand and his bride arriving on their honeymoon; Jersey City police hustling Representative Jerry O'Connell to safety; actual shots of the duel between Henri Bernstein and the critic who offended him; the running of the Suburban Handicap at Belmont, which is a fine shot, and a dog show. Running time, 9 mins. F.

Dinsdale to Morner

A. Dinsdale today will join Morner Productions, Inc., as vice-president in charge of production. His activities will cover live radio programs, electrical transcriptions, sound slidefilms and industrial pictures. He was formerly production manager of Audi-Vision, Inc.

ITOA Asserts Circuits Must Lead on Duals

ber. Not long ago we pointed out to him that 'Dead End' was double featured in a first run situation at a low admission price and, in addition, $1,000 was given away.

"Sidney Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox knows that his best pictures are double featured by RKO in its first run theatres. It is plain common sense that the subsequent runs can hardly play these pictures after they have been milked dry by the circuits."

The Independent will be distributed to I. T. O. A. members at a meeting at the Hotel Astor today, appearing in a new format. The lead editorial calls for a "united front" of exhibitors in helping defeat the Pettengill bill and asks that exhibitors dispatch letters or telegrams to their Congressmen "outlining the meretricious nature of the legislation."

Seek Rate Reduction

Lower electric rates for air conditioning and ventilating systems in New York theatres are being sought by the I. T. O. A., which has retained M. A. Shaw, a technical expert, to handle the matter before the Public Service Commission.

There has been one hearing before the commission. Another is scheduled for tomorrow, and a conference has been held with officials of the Consolidated Edison Co. John Manheimer, secretary of the I. T. O. A., and David Weinstock, chairman of the special committee, are working with Mr. Shaw in submitting the proposal. If it is accepted, it will mean a saving for most of the theatres located in the metropolitan area, according to the I. T. O. A.

local Catholic churches to tell parishioners not to attend the showing. He expressed the hope that the city would appeal the recent decision of Common Pleas Judge Charles S. Bell, who granted an injunction restraining city interference after City Manager C. O. City Manager Sherrill said he was "undecided at the present what action would be taken on an appeal of Judge Bell's decision."

State Court Upholds "Free Air" Principle

OMAHA, May 31.—The principle of "free air" has been established by a ruling of the Missouri Circuit Court which reversed a decision of a lower court in finding three staff members of WOW guilty of trespassing last fall.

The three, Foster May, news editor; Joseph Herold, assistant chief engineer; and Paul MacDonald, engineer, were arrested at the instigation of a rival station which was trying to keep WOW from broadcasting the National Cornhusking Contest at Marshall, Mo. Although only fined $10 and costs, the WOW men appealed because of the principle involved.

Dailies Drop Air Space

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—Effective tomorrow six Bay area daily newspapers will drop their radio columns and art layouts. A three-month trial period has been set by the publishers' association to prove the contention that "the public is not interested in anything but the log." Dailies affected are: Examiner, Call-Bulletin, Chronicle, and News here, and Tribune and Post-Enquirer in Oakland.

Quit Energine Program

Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth yesterday resigned from the Energine-sponsored "Newsreel of the Air" program, effective after next Sunday's broadcast. The duo requested to be released from the show so they could give their entire time to the Molle "Vox Pop" program.

The Energine show will remain on the air, continuing in other hands.

Radio Sales Has Commission Plan Based on Volume

is necessary, consequently a lower sales expense is incurred. Inversely, smaller stations or stations in secondary markets call for greater sales effort and a consequent greater sales expense. I.R.S proposes to pass the resultant savings in sales expense back to the stations. A tentative sliding scale of commissions has been set up starting at 20 per cent and scaling down to eight per cent. The scale is as follows:

Gross Volume	% Commission
300,000	8½
250,000	9
200,000	10
150,000	11
125,000	12
100,000	13
75,000	14
50,000	15
35,000	17
30,000	18
25,000 (under)	20

The scale will apply retroactively over a contract year. Thus, stations which have been paying 15 per cent and receiving $150,000 worth of national spot business, under the I.R.S. plan, would pay only 11 per cent. If gross business increases the following year to $200,000, there would be a rebate of one per cent due the station, as the $200,000 bracket calls for a 10 per cent commission.

RKO Action by End of Month, Odlum States

"ells Atlas Holders that New Setup Is Near

The "rehabilitation of RKO's financial structure" is expected to be completed before the end of the month," Floyd B. Odlum, head of Atlas Corp., said in a statement to Atlas stockholders made public yesterday.

Atlas is the proponent of the RKO reorganization plan which is now before a special master for creditors' hearings. The investment company, also, is one of the largest individual owners of RKO securities. Mr. Odlum's statement was made in connection with his report that the asset value of Atlas common stock declined rom $13.36 a share last Oct. 31, to $9.444 a share currently. No dividends were received by Atlas from RKO during the period because of the ompany's reorganization proceedings, the report noted.

Only one hearing on the amended plan of reorganization for RKO has been held, with the second scheduled for June 8. On the conclusion of hearings before the special master the plan will go to Federal Judge William Bondy for further hearings.

Universal to Try Unit Plan Of Production

No Executive Producer If Plan Succeeds

Universal will not appoint an executive producer to succeed Charles R. Rogers in the event current plans for inaugurating the unit production system materialize and are successful, it was learned yesterday following the arrival in New York from the coast of J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board.

Mr. Cowdin spent three days at the studio in conferences with Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president; Cliff Work, vice-president and general manager of the studio, and Matthew J. Fox, vice-president. He stated on his return that the unit production plan was under consideration and left little doubt that it would be given a trial. Under the plan, all Universal producers whose records

Zanuck Says Film Industry Holding Own in Recession

The film industry has weathered the business decline better than others "because it has made an effort to overcome bad conditions and 20th Century-Fox has not been hurt as badly as other companies because the major calibre pictures we released came at the psychological time," Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th Century-Fox production chief, said yesterday before sailing on the Normandie.

John D. Clark Dies; Funeral Rites Friday

Sales Chief of 20th-Fox Started as Salesman

John D. Clark, general manager of distribution of 20th Century-Fox and an industry veteran, died early yesterday at Mountainside Hospital, Montclair, N. J. He was 47 years old. He had been ill for several months and underwent an operation for a liver and gall bladder disorder about one month ago at the Montclair Hospital. He was thought to have been recovering, when a relapse occurred on Monday.

Funeral services will be held at 3 P.M. tomorrow at the funeral parlors of Arthur K. Brown, Park St. and Claremont Ave., Montclair.

Out of respect to Mr. Clark's memory the home office and all exchanges of the company will be closed tomorrow afternoon.

At the hospital when Mr. Clark died, in addition to members of his immediate family, were Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox; Herman Wobber of San Francisco, who flew east a few hours before; Charles E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity, with Mrs. McCarthy; Felix Jenkins, general counsel of the company; E. W. Holmberg, Christopher Heidt and John J. McKeon.

In March, Mr. Clark attended product conferences on the coast with Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, Mr. Kent and Darryl F. Zanuck. From there he went to Kansas City to preside over the sales convention.

Mr. Clark is survived by his wife, one daughter, Jean Clark; two brothers, William J. Clark, sales manager of short subjects for 20th Century-Fox, and Alexander Clark of Cleveland, and a sister, Mrs. Jane Clark Johnson of Drexel Hill, Pa.

Mr. Clark's career in the film industry may be divided into two stages: the first with Paramount and the second with 20th Century-Fox.

He was born in Newark in 1890. After attending school in that city he went to the Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., and the New Jersey Law School in Newark.

Philadelphia was the scene of his entrance into the business that was to be his career. He became a salesman for Famous Players-Lasky there. He apparently absorbed what there was to learn because it was not long before he became head of the branch there.

Knowingly or not, he was part of Sidney R. Kent's policy of gradual promotion by the "feed 'em from the bottom" system. In this way he soon became special representative for the company in the Midwest. He successfully handled his assignments there and was called to the home office, where shortly afterward he was appointed manager of Famous Players-Lasky Corp. sales activities in the western division. It became Paramount later.

With Paramount 13 Years

He was with Paramount for approximately 13 years when he entered the second phase of his career. Sidney R. Kent left Paramount to become head of the then Fox Film Corp. When he took over his new duties John D. Clark was his assistant. This was in 1932. In the years that followed he became general sales manager of the present firm.

About Thanksgiving Day last year Clark made sales history in the film industry when the 20th Century-Fox sales force under his guidance brought in, during the final week of the Kent Drive, business totaling $1,800,000. This figure broke the industry's standing mark by a margin of 17 per cent. During the drive Clark spurred the national sales force by visiting the office personnel in 22 cities. In May, 1937, the board of directors voted him a new five-year contract as general sales manager. He also was member of the board of directors.

Cancel Dinner to Arch Reeve

HOLLYWOOD, June 1.—News of the death of John D. Clark today forced the cancellation of the testimonial dinner to Arch Reeve, 20th Century-Fox advertising director, which was to have been held tomorrow night at the Victor Hugo Cafe. Mr. Reeve will leave for New York Friday.

The studio today will suspend operations for one minute at 11:00 A.M. (New York funeral time) in tribute to Mr. Clark.

Insiders' Outlook

JOHN D. CLARK's career in the film industry was unique in that during its 20-year span he was connected with only two companies—Paramount and 20th Century-Fox. This was a tribute to both his personality and his ability.

His personality was a curious blend of aggressiveness and charm. He was positive and acquisitive to an extreme in his business contacts, but a bubbling humor, fondness for social contacts and a reputation for frank honesty which he had developed over a period of years continually widened his circle of friends both among his customers and competitors.

S. R. Kent was attracted to him in Philadelphia, where Mr. Clark held his first job as a film salesman. He was one of Mr. Kent's chief aides from that time on. Their friendship was much deeper than the formalities of a business association, and the record they made together stands out as an achievement in this business of kaleidoscopic changes.

Industry Leaders Unite in Mourning Passing of Clark

Industry leaders united yesterday in expressing a deep sense of loss at the death early yesterday morning of John D. Clark, 20th Century-Fox sales chief. Executives of all companies here and in Hollywood voiced their regret. Many of them were personal friends of Mr. Clark. The comments of some of them follow:

Sidney R. Kent—I am overcome by grief. John Clark not only was a business associate of many years, but also was a very close friend and I could not have had a greater regard for him had he been my own son. He was a young man of great ability, integrity and unswerving loyality and his death is not only a great personal loss to the great many people who knew him, but is also a grave business loss to our company and to the motion picture industry.

Joseph M. Schenck—His death is a great loss to our company. I think it is a great loss to the industry. He grew up with the exhibitors and in his business dealings with exhibitors he endeavored to satisfy them and create goodwill for the company. He was one of the bulwarks of our company. We feel the loss very deeply.

Darryl F. Zanuck—His passing is a terrible loss. He was head and shoulders above anyone in his capacity in the industry. It is hard to realize that John D. Clark is gone. Only six weeks ago he was in Hollywood conferring with us on the new season's production plans. He was ill then but not one thought this would happen. He will be missed tremendously.

Will H. Hays—The death of John Clark means more than sorrow at the passing of an old time friend. His associates and the entire motion picture industry will deeply feel his loss. His personality and ability marked him as one we can ill afford to spare.

Charles C. Pettijohn—The passing of John Clark removes from our motion picture family one of her favorite sons. He was respected and trusted by all who knew him. There is a mist in the air today—although the sun is shining—but we are not ashamed. He made of life a delightful and dignified preamble.

Jack Cohn—It is with profound regreat that I heard of the passing of John Clark, whom I have long admired for his capabilities as an executive and as a salesman, an admiration that was shared by most of the nation's exhibitors. In all his career, he demonstrated his vast knowledge of the film industry and I have long applauded his courage in sticking by his belief in what was right. Mr. Clark was the type of film executive whose passing is to be regretted. I know that he will be missed by all who knew him.

Nicholas M. Schenck—I was shocked to learn of the untimely death of John Clark. I know everybody in the industry will miss him.

Adolph Zukor—All of us will miss the man who has been a true friend from start to finish.

Leo Spitz—In the death of John Clark, 20th Century-Fox and the industry generally suffered a great loss. His loyal and devoted service to his company contributed in no small measure to the great success the company has achieved in the last few years. He was a loyal, faithful friend and I will feel his loss keenly.

Ned E. Depinet—In the passing of John Clark, our industry has lost a veteran who had thorough knowledge and complete understanding of its many ramifications and problems, and we who are engaged in the business have lost a true friend. John was a powerful force in the progress and advancement of motion picture distribution, and while he was a fighter for what he thought was right, his sense of fairness was never questioned. His vast army of exhibitor friends attest to that.

George Schaefer—Our industry can ill afford to lose a man held in such high esteem and affection as John Clark. I have lost a dear friend of many years. To his dear wife and wonderful daughter go my deepest sympathy. Theirs is indeed a great loss.

Al Lichtman—I had known John Clark for 25 years. He was always in the front rank of that small group of valiant men who have led industry from its early days to the great position it now occupies.

Albert Warner—We of the industry lose one of the ablest men and finest characters in the passing of John D. Clark, and I join his many friends and associates in an expression of profound loss.

Gradwell L. Sears—The passing of such a dominant personality as John Clark is an irreparable loss to the industry. We join his host of friends in mourning the loss of one whose character will make him long remembered.

J. Robert Rubin—I was shock[illegible] and distressed to hear of John Clar[illegible] death. I had known him since the organization of the original Metro Pictures Corp., with which he was associated. He was a most agreeable companion, with a wealth of good humor and, above all, a magnificent executive. The industry loses one of its best sales managers. My heartfelt sympathy goes out to his family.

Harry M. Warner—I am deeply grieved at the passing of John Clark. The industry loses a man of splendid character. His death creates a void which will be difficult to fill.

Nate Blumberg—News of John Clark's death is a great shock to me. I have known him for years. He was a fine friend personally and a fine, straightforward business man. His death is a severe blow to the industry.

Joseph Seidelman—John Clark combined a fine sense of humor with seriousness as did no one else in the business. It is a quality we all needed. We will miss him greatly. His death is untimely and shocking.

Jules Levy—I have lost a very dear friend of long years standing. The industry suffers the loss of one of its most able executives, which will be keenly felt.

Harry Cohn—The fine spirited leadership of John Clark, his warm

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

My Word

By Irene Kuhn

◆ Ted Peckham, Ye Young Escort Guide Service tycoon, gave his first party in the Bacardi Room yesterday in honor of his agent, Mrs. Florence Straus. Among the guests was Myra Kingsley, the astrologer, without whom, Peckham says, he never moves." Others invited were Alma (Secrets of Smartness) Archer, George Abbott, Lucius Boomer, Marion Cooley, Countess de Forceville, Duke de Verdura, Irene Hayes, Cholly Knickerbocker, Thyra Samter Winslow.

◆ George Dembow of National Screen Service, just arrived from the coast, took N. S. Vice-President Charles Casanave to lunch at Sardi's. Both sported new hats. . . .

Maurice McKenzie, Will Hays' assistant, has a greenhouse on his place at Stamford. The greenhouse has just disgorged millions of seedlings for neighbors' gardens in Hunting Ridge. . . . Earl Hudson, now associated with United Detroit Theatres, had a busy week. On May 25, his daughter, Margaret, gave birth to a 7½-pound boy, David Hudson Stuelin; on the 27th, his daughter, Pearl, was married to George Edwin Sheldrick, Jr. . . . Double congrats are in order.

◆ Shorts and Cheers Dept.—Unheralded heroes of the picture business . . . the boys who risk their lives to provide silver screen thrills. Les Roush, Paramount; Ben Schwalb, Columbia's New Sport Thrills; Jack Eaton,, Grantland Rice's Sportlights; Jim FitzPatrick, the world traveler for M-G-M released Traveltalks, who totes a 600-pound Technicolor camera across the African veldt, into the tulip fields of Holland, up the Rockies and wherever a picture makes a story; Andre de la Varre, the explorer-photographer; Jack Kuhne, 20th Century-Fox's Magic Carpet; Tom Meade, "Going Places," for Universal, and that dean of all travelers, E. M. Newman, at Warners.

◆ Nautical and Paint Job Dept.—Alan Freedman who had to scrape off the new paint job on his boat after thousands of May flies swarmed on it and ruined it, is ready to sell the boat for a nickel. He spent the weekend repainting it. Then he started the motor. The twin-screw propellers had been put on backwards, so when he gave it the gun it backed up on him and zip, the new paint job was scraped off again, the length of the boat. He hopes to get the boat ready for Labor Day.

◆ Charlie McDonald, division manaager in the RKO New York circuit, is in the market for a sweepstakes ticket on the next big race. He thinks RKO is surrounded with luck. Six RKO employes will benefit from the Derby which was run at Epsom Downs yesterday. Frederick Fabel, superintendent of the Albee Theatre Building sold half his interest to the English syndicate and collected $37,500; Clara Gimbel, in RKO's foreign office won $2,650 on Air Slow, a nonstarter; and three ushers in the Far Rockaway Strand divided a consolation prize of $500.

Hollywood Preview

"The Toy Wife"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, June 1.—The role of "Mademoiselle Frou Frou" is cut to the measure of Luise Rainer and the House of M-G-M has given its double Academy winner everything her most devoted fan could ask for in the way of script, support and the utensils of production. Old New Orleans (circa 1850) is reproduced with painstaking fidelity both as to physical aspect and psychology of the period. The film falls naturally into the currently favored category of unrelieved emotional drama. With Melvyn Douglas, Robert Young, Barbara O'Neil and H. B. Warner in expert custody of the other principal characterizations the star would appear to have everything she needs to please her numerous admirers.

Zoe Akins' screenplay is an earnest work refreshingly free of the linguistic anachronisms marring most recent period plays, Merian C. Cooper's production is impressively veracious and Richard Thorpe's direction maintains a delicate type of suspense admirably. Miss O'Neil's performance is brilliant. Douglas and Young give realism to natively stilted characters. H. B. Warner and Alma Kruger handle secondary assignments with dignity and charm.

The misses Rainer and O'Neil are sisters, the latter in love with eligible Attorney Douglas, who loves the former, who is loved by Playboy Young. Miss O'Neil persuades Miss Rainer to marry Douglas. He tires of her irresponsible gaiety in five years and brings Miss O'Neil into their household. When Miss Rainer, known as "Frou Frou," learns her sister loves her husband, she runs away with Young. Douglas kills Young in a duel and Miss Rainer is turned out. Husband and sister find her ill and bring her home to die. The picture ends on this sombre note with the ladies present weeping happily.

Film Leaders Pay Tribute to John D. Clark

friendship and invaluable contributions to the growth of our industry will be sadly missed by all who were privileged to know him.

Barney Balaban—The industry has lost one of its best loved personalities and we who were privileged to be his intimates during his long association with Paramount have lost a loyal friend whose passing is mourned by everyone of us who knew and loved him.

Neil Agnew—John Clark's untimely death brings to an end a friendship that was fine and sincere as the man himself. He will always live in the memory of those of us who had the good fortune to know him well.

A. Montague—Those of us who have had the privilege of knowing him and had had the opportunity of listening to his counsel know definitely that the industry is a better industry for his having lived among us. John Clark was a true friend, a grand fellow and a gentleman. We shall miss him greatly.

Harold Lloyd—All I can say is that the industry has lost a commanding figure and I have lost one of my dearest friends.

A. W. Smith, Jr.—John Clark was a fine man and a great constructive force in our industry. I know that my personal grief over his loss is shared with his thousands of friends.

Harry Gold—I was deeply shocked to learn of John Clark's death. He was one of the outstanding men in motion pictures, and the gap left in the industry by his passing will be a difficult one to fill.

Harry D. Buckley—John Clark was admired and respected throughout the motion picture industry for his sterling character, business integrity and warmth of human kindness. He has been an outstanding figure in distribution for many years. His passing is a distinct loss to the motion picture business and his legion of friends will mourn his passing.

H. J. Yates—I was deeply moved by word of the death of John D. Clark. I extend my sincere sympathy to his family, friends and associates. His passing will be felt throughout the entire industry.

James R. Grainger—I sincerely regret the passing away of John D. Clark. Mr. Clark and myself were very close friends and associates for a period of 20 years. I extend to his family my deepest sympathy.

Spyros Skouras—The motion picture industry suffered an irreparable loss in the passing of John Clark. Of all the men I have known, none impressed me as much as John for his love for his job and unswerving loyalty to his friends and business associates. His passing is mourned by his many friends and the industry in general. I share with his family and those who loved him the loss of one of the finest men I have ever known.

W. J. Hutchinson—I mourn the loss of John Clark not only as a business associate but as a friend. During my very short association with him I came to feel his great capacity for making and maintaining a friendship. While I have always been engaged in different fields of work, I have nevertheless had the opportunity to observe the sincere admiration and the deep devotion towards John Clark of all those directly associated with him.

John W. Hicks, Jr.—My happy business recollections of John Clark go back over a great many years. He was in every way a very swell fellow and a definite credit to the industry he so ably represented. I experience a very marked sense of loss in his untimely passing.

Circuits Will Not Start First Move In Dual Bills Row

removing double bills up to the circuits. They must make the first move, he says.

Circuit managers, available for discussion of the matter, indicated that they are not taking the Brandt fight seriously, and that double bills and giveaways will continue until and unless there is unanimous action by everybody to discontinue. And they mean everybody, they say.

A circuit official said that last year about this time two circuits took the lead in eliminating giveaways in their theatres. "Did the independents follow?" he asked. "They did not. Two circuits maintained a no-giveaway policy until September and when the other side didn't play they went back to premiums. When a man fools you once, shame on him. If he fools you twice, shame on you."

In reply to that, Harry Brandt said "Sure. Loew's and RKO maybe cut out giveaways between June and September. Between 40 other times I cut it out. Did they? No, they didn't. We independents are prepared tomorrow to stop all giveaways in all theatres if Loew's will do it.

Seeks Conciliation

"I'm hoping for conciliation, and I'm hoping that out of conciliation we'll get first run admission prices fixed so that we can stay in business. As it stands, first run pictures are shown at such a low admission price that we can't charge an admission price low enough to combat some circuits' policy.

"We're trying to be good boys," he said. "We're not trying to build a bonfire under the industry. But we're going to keep fighting to stay in business, and we're keeping our fight within the industry. But if the big fellows aren't smart enough to see what's happening we'll show them what a fight really is."

Douglas' Home Town Primps for Preview

Columbia City, Ind., home town of Lloyd C. Douglas, author of "White Banners," has been chosen by Warners as the scene for the world preview of the film version of the novel. Plans of S. Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity, call for an elaborate debut at the Columbia City Theatre, preceded by a "welcome home" to the author, a street parade and a national radio hookup.

Lewen Pizor Sued by Milgrim of UMPTO

PHILADELPHIA, June 1.—David E. Milgrim, president of Affiliated Theatres Circuit, today filed a statement of claims in Common Pleas Court charging Lewen Pizor, president of the U.M.P.T.O., with libel. Mr. Milgrim is asking $50,000 damages, basing his action on a letter contributed by Mr. Pizor to The Exhibitor, local trade paper. Pizor has filed an answer and is asking a bill of particulars.

The specific origin of the dispute is Mr. Pizor's questioning of Mr. Milgrim's status as a member of the organization, alleging that Mr. Milgrim, though elected to the board of managers, had not paid his dues since 1934. Mr. Milgrim responded with an advertisement in the same paper, saying that he had made "certain payments," to the U.M.P.T.O. and had cancelled checks to prove it.

The belief here is that the quarrel has arisen from the fact that Mr. Pizor and Charles Segall are building a theatre in competition to the Walton, recently acquired by Milgrim interests. The U.M.P.T.O. membership angle comes from the possibility that the situation will reach the floor at a meeting. There has been no general meeting of the body—except for board of managers—in several months.

Upstate Allied Unit To Convene June 13

A meeting of upstate members of the newly formed Allied of New York unit will be held June 13 at the DeWitt Clinton Hotel in Albany. Max A. Cohen, chairman of the state group, and Abe Levy of Brooklyn, secretary, will attend.

E. Thornton Kelly of Allied of New Jersey is in the Albany area soliciting members for the New York group. Mr. Cohen says that 22 exhibitors have joined the organization in the last two weeks.

A meeting of the local branch of the unit in the New Amsterdam Theatre Building yesterday was featured by a report by Mr. Cohen on the national Allied convention in Pittsburgh recently. Plans for the state convention to be held in the fall are not set.

M-G-M Opens in Bombay

The newest M-G-M theatre abroad, the Metro, will be opened in Bombay on June 8. "Broadway Melody of 1938" will be the initial attraction. The house is a modern balcony and orchestra type with Carrier air conditioning, Simplex projection equipment and RCA High Fidelity sound. It also has two lounge bars. Other new M-G-M theatres have recently been opened in Sao Paulo, Brazil; Brisbane, Montevideo, Santiago, Chile, and Lima, Peru. Construction plans are under way in Perth and Adelaide, Australia; Amsterdam and Cairo.

Queries on Films Act

LONDON, June 1.—Tom Williams today in Parliament questioned Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, asking whether he is satisfied that the hours and wages of technicians working on the film "This Man Is News," comply with the Films Act. Mr. Stanley replied that no complaint had been filed.

Charles Is First in Ross Federal Drive

C. C. Charles, Minneapolis manager for Ross Federal Service, placed first in a national sales drive conducted as a testimonial to Harry Ross, president, on the company's eighth anniversary. The campaign was for increased theatre checking and market research volume.

Cash prizes were awarded to Mr. Charles, as well as Horace [illegible], Omaha manager, and Harold Kettle, Dallas branch head, for placing second and third. Other branches sharing in the honors were Oklahoma City, Washington, Des Moines, Denver, San Francisco, St. Louis, Memphis, New Haven, Detroit, Cincinnati, Salt Lake City and Pittsburgh.

Fred Rosevelt of the Cleveland office was general chairman of the drive. Regional chairmen were Walter I. Brown, Chicago; R. W. Thayer, New York; W. O. Anderson, Atlanta, and J. C. Bowles, San Francisco. Judges were Densmore A. Ross, director of branch operations; Frank X. Miske, controller, and C. B. Ross, research sales manager. Scott Faron handled promotion.

Bernerd, Russell to Testify in England

Issuance of a commission to take interrogatories in London of Jeffrey Bernerd, as managing director, and Edward Russell, as secretary and director, of Ideal Films, Ltd., was ordered by N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hofstadter yesterday in behalf of Max J. Fink, defendant in the suit of Gaumont British Picture Corp. of America, assignee of Ideal Films, against him. Suit had been brought against Mr. Fink to recover the balance of money which he had allegedly collected from Columbia Pictures Corp. as attorney for Ideal Films for the distribution of "Charley's Aunt."

Fink, in his answer, claimed that the balance was due to him for legal services, and he will seek to substantiate this claim in his examination of Mr. Bernerd and Mr. Russell.

Lasky-Kohn Working On Radio-Film Idea

Jesse L. Lasky and Ralph Kohn are associated in a radio-film production venture which they are currently discussing with several major company officials here, it was learned yesterday.

Employing an as yet undisclosed original idea for production of a series of radio programs supplemented by film productions, the project is reported to have been submitted to Paramount officials last week for consideration. Because of the reputed marketability of the idea itself, Mr. Kohn and Mr. Lasky are reluctant to discuss it in detail at this time.

RIKE'--GOLDWYN

Amusement world looks to Hollywood, and Hollywood is flopping, with the people refusing to buy poor pictures

"Hollywood is losing its grip on the amusement purse of the world because Hollywood is not turning out the necessary quality to supply the demands of the amusement seeking public.

People have gone on a strike, not only in America, but in all parts of the world where the public has looked to Hollywood for most of its amusement," stated Sam Goldwyn, aboard the Queen Mary, docking in New York yesterday."

What's all the SQUAWKING about ?

100 Smash Hits in 10 Months!

In the last ten months—that is, from the first of August, 1937 to May, 1938—Hollywood has produced more than 100 pictures in the smash-hit class—an average of 10 big pictures a month, each and every month. And that's only part of the story. Since the beginning of the '37-'38 season, Hollywood has turned out some of the top money-makers of motion picture history, and that includes the boom years. Any industry which can claim such money-making triumphs as Walt Disney's "Snow White"; Twentieth Century-Fox's "In Old Chicago"; Metro's "Test Pilot"; Warner Brothers' "Robin Hood"; United Artists' "Hurricane"; Universal's "Mad About Music"; Columbia's "The Awful Truth"; Paramount's "Wells Fargo" and dozens of others, is far from a sick business. We defy any other American industry to show a better record of enterprise, of success, during this past year, than the great business which gives us our bread and butter. The motion picture parade still marches on!

and PARAMOUNT leads the parade!

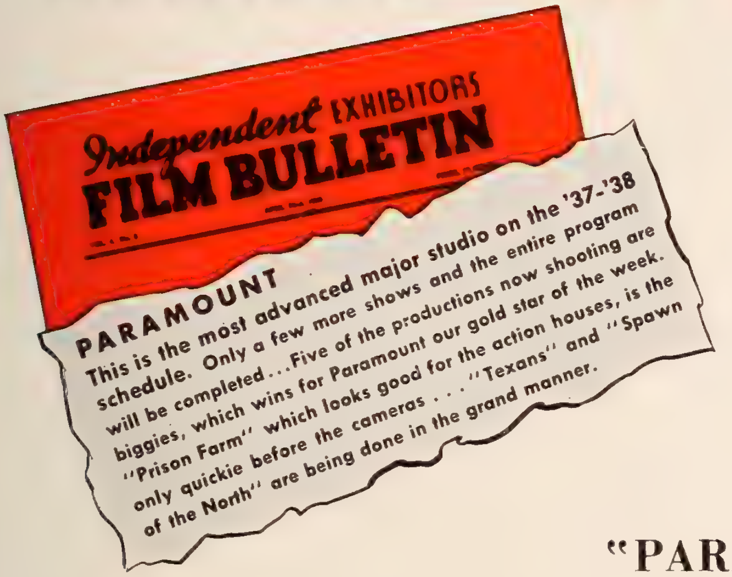
We are justly proud of the industry's record. We take our hats off to our co-workers in the business, and naturally we take considerable pride in our own record here at Paramount. In the past 10 months Paramount has delivered at least 20 pictures in the big-money class (pictures that made better-than-average money for exhibitors)—more than any other company in the business, as the books of thousands of theatres will show. Paramount has established a record for the consistent delivery of profitable pictures month in and month out. Paramount has kept the faith put in it by exhibitors.

Paramount will more than live up to its commitments for the 1937-38 season for . . .

PARAMOUNT is the most advanced major studio on the '37-'38 schedule!



Independent EXHIBITORS

PARAMOUNT
This is the most advanced major studio on the '37-'38 schedule. Only a few more shows and the entire program will be completed... Five of the productions now shooting are biggies, which wins for Paramount our gold star of the week. "Prison Farm" which looks good for the action houses, is the only quickie before the cameras . . . "Texans" and "Spawn of the North" are being done in the grand manner.

"PARAMOUNT is the most advanced major studio on the '37-'38 schedule," says the Independent Exhibitors Film Bulletin. We don't know how the other studios shape up but we do know that the Independent Exhibitors Film Bulletin is correct when it says "Only a few more shows and the entire program will be completed," for out of 13 pictures to be released in June, July and August, 11 have been shot; 2 are shooting; 7 are edited and ready for release and 4 are editing.

13 Pictures in 13 Weeks . . . THE BEST SUMMER PROGRAM IN PARAMOUNT'S HISTORY...for 7 out of the 13 are BIG PICTURES!

Paramount's

SMASH SUMMER SEVEN

1 "YOU AND ME"

A dramatic thunderbolt of love on parole, starring SYLVIA SIDNEY and GEORGE RAFT, with Barton MacLane and Harry Carey. PRODUCED and DIRECTED by FRITZ ("FURY") LANG . . . A solid smash to the heart that will be a welcome relief from screwball comedies to audiences eager to have something to sink their teeth in.

2 "TROPIC HOLIDAY"

with Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Binnie Barnes, Tito Guizar. Directed by Theodore Reed . . . Paramount's "good neighbor" gesture to Old Mexico and to the hundreds of thousands of motion picture fans who want something new and different. Hilarious highlights—Bob Burns, an Oklahoma Senator and the Indians' choice throws the bull after Martha Raye (Martha the Matador) fights it. Lyric Lovelights—the romance of Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland set to marvelous Mexican music.

3 "PROFESSOR BEWARE"

starring HAROLD LLOYD, with Phyllis Welch, Raymond Walburn, Lionel Stander, William Frawley, Thurston Hall, Cora Witherspoon. Directed by Elliott Nugent . . . Harold's best and fastest comedy in many years. Sneak preview audiences say so; studio executives say so; Fox West Coast preview reports say so. Here's a real ACTION-COMEDY—a welcome relief again from the screwball flood of recent months—and a summer treat for the kids.

4 "GIVE ME A SAILOR"

with Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Jack Whiting, J. C. Nugent, Clarence Kolb. Directed by Elliott Nugent . . . What a title! What exploitation hooks in with it, and what an idea for a fast-moving comedy—AND THIS IS A COMEDY! Martha Raye, belle-ideal of the "if she could only cook" school, wins her way from the kitchen to the front pages of the world's newspapers as "the girl with the world's most beautiful legs," in eight exciting reels.

5 "THE TEXANS"

starring JOAN BENNETT and RANDOLPH SCOTT, with May Robson, Walter Brennan, Robert Cummings, Raymond Hatton, Robert Barrat, Harvey Stephens and a cast of thousands. A LUCIEN HUBBARD PRODUCTION. Directed by James Hogan . . . Paramount, the No. 1 producer of epic adventure pictures, tops them all with this stirring story of the Chisholm Trail—fights between the Yanks and Rebels, cattle stampedes, a dust storm, prairie fire, Indian fights and a red hot romance feature this MOTION picture.

6 "SPAWN OF THE NORTH"

starring GEORGE RAFT, HENRY FONDA, DOROTHY LAMOUR and featuring Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Louise Platt, Lynne Overman. Directed by Henry Hathaway. Produced by Albert Lewin . . . A sockeroo! No picture like this has ever been made. Beautiful Alaska lends itself as the thrilling background to the most amazing and exciting acts of courage, revenge and love that have been on the screen this year. "SPAWN" is a story of the savage feuds that haunt the salmon-packed waters of the Alaskan coast and is replete with violent death, swift love and deeds of derring-do. This picture is "THE VIRGINIAN" of the great Northwest.

7 "A FAREWELL TO ARMS"

Short Subjects

"Tannhauser"

(Symphonic Films)

Hollywood, June 1.—Symphonic music has been presented on the screen before. But seldom, if ever, has it been presented as the "star" offering of a short subject. This Symphonic Films does with "Tannhauser," Wagner's music being played [illegible] the National Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra directed by Frederick Feher, who made a special arrangement of the opera. There is no story, no word of explanation. The music is offered solely for itself, the huge orchestra and the male chorus of about 40 voices subjugated to the strains of the Wagnerian classic.

Showmen playing this short may well take into consideration several items:

The popularizing of classic music programs via the radio—such as in programs of NBC's Toscanini, the Ford Symphony Hour, the Standard Oil Symphony hour on the west coast, the Philadelphia Philharmonic Symphonic broadcasts and others.

The appeal of the music of Wagner.

The presentation, without extraneous subject matter.

The reaction of the preview audience at the crowded Grauman's Chinese, where 2,500 persons, including 100 in the studio-press section, applauded. It is the first of a series of 30 two to four-reel classical music shorts of Symphonic Films. Running time, 16 mins. "G."

"Kennedy's Castle"

(RKO)

Edgar Kennedy almost commits murder before this comedy has run out. The familiar Kennedy exasperation slowly builds while he, his boss and two other fellows attempt to play poker while a bevy of females and a Chautauqua tenor give a concert. Kennedy winds up in the calaboose. Plenty of laughs. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Porky's Party"

(Vitaphone)

This series constantly maintains a clever departure from routine cartoon plots and business. Porky has a birthday. He gets a silkworm from an uncle in Hong Kong that makes brassieres, top hats, stockings and what have you to order. The guests become involved in many hilarious and awkward situations that have the virtue of being fresh. Good. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 50"

(Universal)

Here is another collection of odd customs, people and industries which almost always have a certain amount of appeal to audiences and consequently should prove satisfactory. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Sport Stamina"

(Columbia)

A collection of scenes of activities on running tracks, polo fields, skating rinks, basketball courts and numerous other athletic settings, with the accent on the participants' endurance. It is fair. Running time, 9½ mins. "G."

Hollywood Previews

"Mysterious Mr. Moto"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, June 1.—Thrills, excitement, suspense, dashes of comedy and moments of menaced romance are the constituents of "Mysterious Mr. Moto." The film is dominated by Peter Lorre, although well handled performances are turned in by Henry Wilcoxon, Erik Rhodes, Harold Huber, Leon Ames, Forrester Harvey, Lester Matthews, Mitchell Lewis, Karen Sorrell and Mary Maguire.

Mr. Moto's fight with crime takes him to London this time in pursuit of an international league of assassins. An undercover operative, he escapes from Devil's Island with Ames. Making his presence known to Matthews, head of Scotland Yard, he finds that the famous police force wants to wipe out the gang at once. Lorre, however, wants to delay action until he can make sure of the identity of the key figure. Various adventures and perils mark his path as well as that of Henry Wilcoxon, who has been marked for death before the climax wherein he accomplishes his mission.

The original screen play by Philip MacDonald and Norman Foster, while wild and woolly, is nevertheless logical and easy to believe. Foster, who also directed, concentrated on further developing "Mr. Moto" as a fabulous character and at the same time concerned himself with seeing that the film had a full quota of dime novel theatricals.

Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

"Air Devils"

(Universal)

Hollywood, June 1.—A stock picture, "Air Devils" follows a theme that has been told many times. A couple of ex-marines become members of a South Sea Island aviation constabulary. Fast friends, of course, they nevertheless are always squabbling a la those roles created by Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe. A girl in the case shows up naturally and while the heroes do everything to each other to demonstrate that each considers himself the only man for her, they nevertheless combine forces when the villain attempts to prevent the Government from building an air base on the island. Naturally, the heavy gets his just deserts and just as naturally neither of the squabbling pals wins the girl.

Larry Blake and Dick Purcell are the flying constables, Beryl Wallace is the girl and Charles Brokaw is the bad man. Others present in the action are Mama Clarke, Forbes Murray, Roy Mason, Paul Sutton, Al Kikume, Billy Wayne and Michael Visaroff.

Harold Buckley wrote the original and collaborated with George Waggner on the adaptation. John Fawlins directed. The usual thrill has been included in the chase and flying sequences.

Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

New York Preview

"Three on a Weekend"

(G. B.)

With "Three on a Weekend" the exhibitor should bear in mind past experience with films that are "different." He should be guided by evidences of taste evinced at the playing of films that appeal to the discriminating filmgoer. The technique introduced in "Grand Hotel" is utilized here. Consequently the production is a many-faceted job of story-telling. The threads of each dramatic cross-section of the story are ultimately drawn into a coherent skein. Performances, direction and colorful aspects of a weekend holiday at a seaside resort where Londoners flock in summer are handled with fine craftsmanship.

Margaret Lockwood is cast as a nurse in a maternity hospital whose patient dies in childbirth, leaving John Lodge, the husband, despondent. Miss Lockwood is affected by Lodge's demeanor, but goes off on a holiday with Hugh Williams, her fiance. At the beach she can't get her mind off Lodge and is a poor companion for Williams. Unable to get a hotel room, they sleep on the beach with hundreds of others. Next day Miss Lockwood's fear for Lodge impels her to dash back to London. En route she gets into awkward situations that pile up suspense. In the nick of time, with the aid of the police, she reaches Lodge and saves him from asphixiation. They are last seen in a hospital. The sub-plots of the story involve two girls, one of whom seeks beauty contest fame; a typical family outing and a haughty gold digger. The action is kaleidoscopic and holds attention.

Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Come Across"

(M-G-M)

There are plenty of exciting dramatics as this "Crime Does Not Pay" number tells the story of how the FBI tracks bank robbers. The thieves do not have such an easy time of it either, they are hounded by the law on one side and have to shell out their ill-gotten gain on the other for protection and concealment. It's hard-hitting stuff that packs stirring emotional wallops in its preachments. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Polar Trappers"

(Disney-RKO)

Walt Disney's sparkling originality is demonstrated once again. Donald Duck and Goofy, Arctic trappers, pursue their art, until it pursues them. High spots are Donald's wooing of a penguin, because he is tired of beans, his playing Pied Piper to his intended victims, and Goofy's experience in the cave of icicles. A splended cartoon. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Krazy's Magic"

(Mintz-Columbia)

The clever utilization of the cartoon medium here for the utmost in fantastic effect should make this cartoon an exceptional item. The plot concerns Krazy Kat's harum-scarum adventures in a deserted magician's house where he takes refuge from a storm. The execution is highly imaginative. Excellent. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Rural Sweden"

(Fitzpatrick-M-G-M)

In beautiful Technicolor compositions this short covers historic spots along the Baltic, native customs and dances and sections near Stockholm. The comment is good and interest is held throughout. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Maids and Music"

(Nu-Atlas-RKO)

Ray Fabing and Her Ingenues and Janice Walker, a singer, give this short much musical appeal with excellent orchestrations of familiar numbers, acrobatic band conducting, dancing and good singing. It is patterned somewhat after the style set by Ina Ray Hutton. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Feed 'Em and Weep"

(Roach-M-G-M)

The Gang inveigles its way into a birthday party which is being given for the father of one of their playmates and generally makes everyone present distraught. The laughs, such as occur, should register favorably with this series' following. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"The Big Birdcast"

(Mintz-Columbia)

Many well known radio personalities are pictured here as birds. Their familiar traits are satirically heightened. The total result is a strained effect which manages to be entertaining. In Technicolor. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

Broadway Grosses Show Good Gains

Business showed general improvement on Broadway this week, the holiday weekend proving a strong impetus. Attendance over the holiday ranged from a 25 per cent increase at the Paramount over last year's holiday period to a reported 100 per cent more at the Capitol, which had a weak attraction last year.

The Music Hall grossed $85,000 in the third week of "The Adventures of Robin Hood," the total run netting $277,000. Previous weeks accounted for $103,800 and $89,800, respectively.

"Crime School," the Strand's film, did $19,000 in its third stanza, against $41,000 for the first and $21,000 for the second. "Dr. Rhythm" gave the Paramount $38,000 in a second week, compared with $42,000 in the first. The second stanza of "Yellow Jack" at the Capitol garnered $19,500, following the first week's $26,000.

"Son of the Sheik," at the George M. Cohan, is drawing well and may be held beyond a week, according to the management. "The Sheik," opposition revival at the Gaiety, is not faring as well as expected and bows out Friday night after a full week. The opening was big, $7,500 being claimed by the house as the gross for the first three days, up to Monday night. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Paramount revival, goes into the Gaiety on Saturday.

Among the foreign films which are doing well is "Moonlight Sonata," at the Little Carnegie, which will start a fifth week today. An attendance of 50,000 persons is claimed for the first four weeks.

optimistic about the company's performance this year.

A number of 20th Century-Fox executives, headed by Joseph M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent, said goodbye to Mr. Zanuck before he sailed with Mrs. Zanuck and their three young children, Richard Darryl, Darryline and Susan. He said two of the seven weeks he will be gone would be devoted to work and the balance to a vacation.

How many of the five British pictures 20th Century-Fox will make during 1938-'39 will be released here "depends on how they turn out," and there are no plans at present to send any considerable group of Hollywood talent to the London studio, this depending on what is needed on a picture-to-picture basis, Mr. Zanuck said.

Will Confer with Kane

He confirmed, however, that Annabella, now in Hollywood, is scheduled for two English films. Virginia Fields is also to be sent over, as a support player. Mr. Zanuck will discuss further plans with Robert T. Kane, head of British production. He expects to return about August 1.

Harry Brand, studio publicity chief, is in Europe arranging for Mr. Zanuck's visits in London, Paris and Deauville and receptions in the British and French capitals to be given by exhibitor and industry groups.

Prints of "Josette" and "Kidnapped" are accompanying Mr. Zanuck and will be screened on board.

Heading the plaintiff's counsel is Thomas D. Thacher of New York.

The statute, against which a temporary injunction has been issued, forbids operation of theatres owned and operated by film producers or distributors.

In his opening statement, Thacher said the measure would destroy property rights, that it was not within the State's policing power, that there is no monopolity in production, distribution and exhibition of films nor any threat thereof. He branded the law as class legislation.

Francis Murphy, defense attorney, said the legislation could be construed to prevent the entrance of an "evil" into North Dakota, that the practice of producers owning theatres could with block booking methods in vogue threaten to destroy independents.

A NEAT little war of television patent rights appears to be stewing, with an outbreak of hostilities expected practically any minute, now that Television Corp. of America has placed receiving sets on the open market in various metropolitan department stores. It will be a war between private, unaffiliated manufacturers versus the big outfits such as RCA, Philco and the others.

The big boys, particularly RCA, are said to feel that no private manufacturers can possibly place on the market television receivers, without in some manner infringing on one or more of the scores of television patents held by them.

Great Britain and the United States are in dispute as to which nation owns Canton Island, the dot of land in the South Seas, but over at NBC the matter has been settled. Last year NBC sent an expedition to Canton Island to broadcast a description of the total eclipse of the sun, and as a memento of that event NBC has a display on exhibition on the fourth floor of the NBC Building. The descriptive placard to the display refers to Canton Island as "British possession in the South Seas."

Feature Film Is Televised By NBC-RCA for First Time

By JACK BANNER

Alexander Korda's "The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel" on Tuesday evening became the first full length motion picture to go out on the television airlanes in this country. The picture was televised in the sixth floor studios of NBC in the RCA Building and broadcast over the network's television transmitter W2XBS, located in the Empire State Building. A small invited audience witnessed the televised screening in the studios, while a group of regular NBC and RCA observers, approximately 60 in number, viewed the show in their homes.

Technically, the experiment left little to be desired, for the film, cast upon the 7½ x 10-inch television screen, was almost as clear and well-defined as it is in the theatre. There were, it is true, occasions when the outer corners of the film were diffused with light, cutting off the corners of the picture, but this occurred infrequently. An NBC engineer explained this occurred during night scenes and when the actors appeared in dark clothing and in other "dark" spots in the picture. He said this could be compensated for, providing the television operator was familiar with the film's action and knew in advance when such scenes were due.

Show Runs 90 Minutes

The film ran for an hour and 30 minutes. The pictures were telecast on 46.5 megacycles, and the sound was broadcast on 49.75 megacycles. The reel was scanned at 30 frames per second. This compares with regulation motion picture film projection of 24 frames per second.

The picture was televised exactly as it is unreeled in the theatre, with no special editing, cutting, or other treatment. It was projected from the film scanning studio on the fifth floor of the RCA Building, thence by co-axial cable to the Empire State transmitter and from there telecast back to the RCA Building, and out into the ether, whence it could be picked up by anyone possessing a television receiver within an approximate 75-mile distance from the transmitter.

From the audience viewpoint, it was noted that during the first few moments of the film's unwinding, the spectators seemed to be interested out of curiosity, but as the moments wore on they settled back in their seats and followed the action much as they would in a regular theatre.

Action a Factor

The "Pimpernel" film was selected for the experiment from among several films, because of its fast action, it was stated, as it is believed that fast action pictures will hold the attention of a television audience more readily than pictures that depend on dialogue of psychological studies for their effect. Color pictures were not considered, as color will not "take" in the present development of American television.

The NBC and RCA observers who followed the film from sets in their homes will make a report on distance reception some day this week. Of those receivers, some are 50 miles or so removed from the Empire State Building.

NBC to Televise Play

Having televised a full-length motion picture, NBC will essay the televising of a stage production next. The production will be "Susan and God." The cast, including Gertrude Lawrence, will give a special performance before the television camera in the NBC studios Tuesday afternoon.

Neely Admits His Bill Dead at This Session; Comments Bitter

Washington, July 2.—Admission by Senator Matthew M. Neely of West Virginia last night that there is no further chance of passage of his block booking bill this session was seen in Washington today as effectually ringing down the curtain on that legislation.

Outspokenly bitter over the situation, Senator Neely accepted the statement of Representative Clarence F. Lea of California that his Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee would not have time this session to hold hearings on the bill and would not report it to the House without hearings.

That the measure would not move in the House was predicted in Motion Picture Daily when the Senate passed the bill May 17, when a canvass of the House committee showed there was not sufficient support for a demand for action to be successful.

Neely, however, has steadfastly hoped that outside pressure could be brought upon the House to force the bill to the floor, but with probably less than two weeks remaining of the session is apparently reconciled to defeat. He attributed the shelving of the bill to the moving picture lobby.

Examination Ordered In Laboratory Suit

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo yesterday ordered the examination before trial of the officers of H. E. R. Laboratories, Inc., Garrison Film Distributors, Inc., and Alladin Pictures Corp., defendants in a $150,000 suit brought by Lina Pictures Corp. At the same time Gus[illegible] A. Schwab, plaintiff in a comp[illegible]on suit for $5,000 against the same defendants, was ordered to file a bill of particulars of his claim.

Lina Pictures brought suit as assignee of Talking Picture Epics, Inc., charging the defendants with the illegal retention of negatives of 50 pictures. In both actions the defendants denied the charges, asserting that they were entitled to the negatives by reason of a lien on them for services rendered.

The plaintiff claimed that she entered into a contract with Brunswick in October, 1934, under which she was to make 12 double faced records. Considering its length, a considerable amount of material went into the makeup of this issue. The items are lively and diverting with proper emphasis on the more serious side of the news.

The lead item is the visit of King Victor Emanuel of Italy to Tripoli. Then a gambling ship on the Pacific coast is shown and in succession the reel offers a sham battle in view of the Chicago skyline, the June Week activities at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Lloyd George on his English farm observing the new irrigation system, Civil War veterans flying over Gettysburg, a night parade glorifying the age of electricity in Paris, mechanics putting the finishing touches on the 32-ton transport plane at the Douglas works, Parker Dam on the Colorado River nearing completion, a sporting piece on Lou Gehrig's 2,000th consecutive baseball game with scenes of his early triumphs, and sweepstakes winners who say their pieces with Lew Lehr popping on and off the sound track. Running time, 8½ mins. P.

(M-G-M)

This is a varied and interesting issue. Army sham battles, the June Week parade at Annapolis, aviation, sport and other events are taken care of effectively.

Following the Naval Academy flag ceremony, the aviation clip and the Chicago military maneuvers, the footage offers the King of Italy visiting Tripoli in company with Governor Balbo, a water divining rod in action on the English estate of Lloyd George, and the ensuing water supply when an underground source is located, Czechoslovakian girls in a gas mask drill that is cleverly handled, a kissing meter at Armour Tech with a pretty feminine subject ringing the bell, sweepstakes winners having their amusing say, a roller skating marathon in Hollywood and a motorcycle race in Richmond, with a crash and other thrilling moments. Running time, 8 mins. P.

Paramount News
(Paramount)

Rather lacking in spectacular news material, this reel provides routine coverage for the most part. Of particular interest, however, are the excellent views of the enormous new 42-passenger air liner built on the coast. Likewise pictorially effective is the clip showing the French battle fleet massed in the Mediterranean, with detailed disclosure of the making of the smoke screen.

Pictures of the Cash home in Florida and of the Levine home in New Rochelle, N. Y., call attention to the latest news in the most recent kidnaping atrocities. Lou Gehrig is seen before and after his 2,000th baseball game, something of a record, even for Gehrig. King Victor Emanuel is shown on a visit to Tripoli, accompanied by Governor Italo Balbo; the latest arrival, a baby pigmy hippo, poses in the Washington zoo; President Roosevelt plays host to the ex-Kaiser's grandson and his bride at Hyde Park. Two other clips, one on the annual dog show at Madison, N. J. and the other on the "swing" carnival at Randall's Island, rate Paramount no praise. Both were carried in most reels' last issue. Running time, 9 mins. A.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 91
(RKO)

Some smart editing lends interest to this number. The first subject, a hail storm in the northwest, shows motorists examining the size of the ice balls, and other shots include the effects on gardens and trees and a snappy running comment.

The new giant airplane constructed at the Boeing plant as an experiment for all the principal American airlines is impressive. The camera has been moved about freely to convey an impression of the tremendous size of the ship and the beauty of its lines. An interesting clip shows children at a Pawling School being taught by actually doing things—running tractors, clipping sheep, gardening, building structures and laying stones in cement.

The inside of a Paris palace being renovated for the visit of the King and Queen of England is shown. Another subject is the footprinting and fingerprinting of babies and their parents in a maternity hospital. The two other subjects are a horse auction and ceremonies attendant upon Lou Gehrig's attainment of his 2,000th game without missing one. Running time, 9 mins. J.

Universal Newsreel
No. 672
(Universal)

Making the most of the material at hand, which, incidentally, is mostly of a light, feature nature, the Universal Newsreel editors deliver an entertaining release which holds the interest between chuckles.

Annual graduation ceremonies at Annapolis are in the lead position and make a pretty picture. Shots at the scene of the Cash kidnaping at Princeton, Fla.; the arrival in New York of a shipment of Spanish Loyalist silver, and shots of the completed "flying hotel," the huge DC-4 transport plane, are interestingly presented. The reel then veers to the amusing side with a glimpse of jubilant children watching a spinach crop being plowed under after its market had been shut off by a C.I.O. cannery strike, and preparations in Paris for a visit from the British royal family which include the polishing up of the royal bath tub. A visit of the King of Italy to his North African subjects and shots of Illinois' 33d Division war games at Soldiers' Field, Chicago, follow. A visit to a gambling ship anchored off California and the selection of a composite poster model by McClelland Barclay are diverting. The reel ends on an amusing note with some action scenes from a roller skating derby and interviews with recent winners of the Irish sweepstakes. Running time, 9 mins. K.

Drop Chorus Equity Merger With Actors

The long considered merger of Chorus Equity Association with Actors' Equity Association has been abandoned for the time being, members of the former organization will be informed at their annual meeting at the Center Hotel today.

When Chorus Equity lost the jurisdiction over night club and presentation house performers to the American Federation of Actors several months ago, plans for merging the Chorus group with Actors Equity were advanced and, until recently, it appeared that the merger might be consummated at today's meeting. The disposition now in both camps, however, is to permit Chorus Equity to continue on its own for the time being and, if it is successful in maintaining itself, no merger will be attempted.

Mrs. Edith Christianson, executive secretary of the chorus group, has tendered her resignation, effective June 20, and indications are that an appointment to fill the post will be made today. Scheduled for election at today's meeting are Paul Dullzell, chairman of the executive committee; Gerald Moore, recording secretary; Jack Barnes, Mary Brent, Margaret Henzel, Lili Mann, Helen Sanford, Norman Van Endburgh and Jean Woods as members of the executive committee for three years, and Thomas Scott and Phil Shaw, replacements on the committee for one year.

Other officers of Chorus Equity and the council of the organization are the same as those of Actors' equity.

HOLLYWOOD, June 2.—The Goldwyn film, "The Cowboy and the Lady," will be released as "The Lady and the Cowboy."

New York Previews

"You and Me"

(Paramount)

Fritz Lang's direction and production work on this film lifts a boy and girl drama from what appears to be the usual story into the realm of pungent entertainment with general appeal. An audience at the Paramount responded with visible and audible emotion as the story reached its high points of humor, marital comedy, romantic throbs and hard-hitting drama.

Sylvia Sidney and George Raft turn in fine performances. The pair is cast as paroled convicts who work in Harry Carey's big department store. They are in love and when Raft's parole is up he marries Miss Sidney. She is also on parole, but she keeps this knowledge from him. They are happy for an idyllic period as man and wife. But the truth leaks out and in disgust Raft walks out. He joins Barton MacLane and his mob, mostly made up of parolees in the employ of Carey and prepares to pull a robbery at the store. Warren Hymer tips off Miss Sidney. She enlists Carey's aid and confronts the backsliders at the right melodramatic moment. Carey leaves the group in her charge. She gives an illustrated lecture on the truth that crime does not pay and departs unreconciled with Raft. Carey forgives. MacLane is bumped off by the "boss." Miss Sidney, about to have a baby, is later found. She forgives Raft and is in turn forgiven by the parole officer. They are wed in style with the would-be crooks as attendants and their squawling baby present, attended by Hymer.

The casting for the support was expert. Hymer, George E. Stone, Roscoe Karns, Egon Brecher, Vera Gordon, Paul Newlan, Carol Paige and Guinn Williams give colorful, first order characterizations. The screenplay was fashioned by Virginia Van Upp from a story by Norman Krasna.

Running time, 91 minutes. "G."

"They Were Five"

(Lenauer International)

Fine direction by Julien Duvivier distinguishes this French film which tells the oft-told tale of sudden riches. The picture is enriched also by performances in the leading roles and in two lesser characterizations.

The scene is the slum district of Paris where five jobless men, one a political fugitive from Spain, share adversity gaily through their comradeship. A winning lottery ticket brings them undreamed of wealth. Rather than follow their individual schemes, which would mean separation, they pool their winnings and make a bid for security and happiness by buying an abandoned chateau which they make over into a country inn. Two love triangles develop in telling the story. One of the men departs when he fears his love for the fiancee of his comrade may disrupt their friendship; another of the men, who is having an affair with the estranged wife of his dearest pal, decides the woman isn't worth the spoiling of their dream about to come true, and returns to the remodeled chateau to supervise the final details prior to a gala opening.

Sincere performances are turned in by Jean Gabin, Charles Vanel, Raymond Aimos, Charles Dorat and Raphael Medina as the quintet. Micheline Cheirel is a charming fiancee, and Viviane Romance is excellent as the faithless wife.

The dialogue is in French, with English subtitles superimposed on the film. The picture should do well in theatres devoted to the showing of foreign product.

Running time, 78 minutes. "A."

Metro Praise

During the past few seasons, Metro has gained a lot of good will from exhibitors. Not so long ago, the company indicated it was not filling its higher brackets just for the purpose of getting more revenue. Exhibitors liked this. Now, the exhibitors should greet the Metro sales policy in the same fashion.

Frankly, Metro is just pursuing that line of reasoning which says that a satisfield account is the best account. We'll wager that the company will close its possibilities during the new season faster than ever before.

TYPICAL OF M-G-M IN 1938-39 ARE THESE GREAT ATTRACTIONS!

A Minimum of 44 and a Maximum of 52 pictures

Contemplated or already in production is the following list, among others, of pictures planned for the new season. It is recognized by those who have done business with us for many years that the nature of studio production makes early plans subject to change. Such rights to change are reserved only for the purposes of improvement, making it possible by giving leeway to the studio, to inject every last element of box-office appeal into the line-up as the season progresses.

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power
W. S. Van Dyke, Director
Based in part on the novel by Stefan Zweig

As we go to press, M-G-M's production of "Marie Antoinette" has been seen practically completed in our private studio projection rooms. Time alone will confirm our brief statement here that it is one of the greatest motion pictures of all time, a production of unparalleled beauty and thrill, with a wealth of star name value, a monumental film that joins the company of M-G-M's immortal productions. The story of the little Austrian Princess waked from her innocent child-dreams, sold into marriage for reasons of State, seeking affection and finding it vicariously, plunging into riotous extravagances and dangerous intrigues as a release from her blighted marital life. In all her days Norma Shearer has never been so beautiful and so moving. Her performance looms certainly toward highest industry awards and thrilling box-office acclaim. Each of the cast delivers memorable work. Tyrone Power, handsomely exciting as the romantic and courageous young champion of the Queen; Robert Morley, who will win fame never accorded a newcomer by virtue of his superb picture of Louis. Morley gives infinite sympathy to the pathetic figure of the lonely and bewildered man who was King. John Barrymore, Anita Louise, Joseph Schildkraut, Gladys George—each one is marvelous. And when the cauldron of revolution boils over, you will see tense drama; breath-taking suspense will grip you. Director Van Dyke has fashioned his greatest! M-G-M's entire resources and renown have gone into the making of a truly staggering attraction.

M-G-M's SHORTS STORY IN 1938-39

Every Short Subject produced by M-G-M is made with a purpose and not merely as a program filler. Analyze them and you'll find they have a box-office reason for being, smart promotion angles that mean additional receipts, news value that draws extra patrons, entertainment recognition that has been built up by consistent merit of each series. The practical value of M-G-M shorts is reflected in exhibitor opinion as expressed in trade press surveys and polls. Leo, Jr., invariably leads the industry. Most recent exhibitor vote is the Jay Emanuel Publications Annual Shorts Award which gave 5 out of a possible 10 to M-G-M ("Our Gang Follies of 1938"—Benchley's "A Night at the Movies"—"New Audioscopiks"— Pete Smith's "Tennis Tactics"— Fitzpatrick's "Hong Kong"). And, of course, in the Annual Academy Award M-G-M topped all others with 2 out of 5 (Crime Doesn't Pay "Torture Money"— Pete Smith's "Penny Wisdom").

M-G-M Shorts, produced with all the feature facilities of the Studio, not only add real entertainment high spots to your program but they do definitely account for extra dollars at the box-office. When the customer is deciding between two competing theatre offerings it's often an M-G-M featurette that convinces him you've got the better all-'round show!

Roach Raises New Issue in Counter Suit

Roach's answer filed after court skirmishes over demurrers alleged that Mr. Milestone and Marc Connelly were hired to adapt the Hatch novel as a comedy of the high type and that Mr. Milestone was to direct. The studio, according to the complaint, was "lulled into a sense of security" by Mr. Milestone who worked 13 weeks on a story which turned out to be a "ludicrous comedy" and not the type of story wanted.

The further allegation is made that Mr. Hatch was hired to rewrite the Milestone-Connelly treatment and that Mr. Milestone refused to direct the new script. After ten days of conferences in which Mr. Roach attempted to persuade Mr. Milestone to change his mind, the director left the lot, the Roach suit avers.

Of the $339,000 demanded, the studio said $89,000 was paid Mr. Milestone and Mr. Connelly. The remainder of the sum is declared to be other salaries paid, studio expenses incurred and damages done to the story property. The picture has not yet been made.

Ricketson Writes Book

Frank H. Ricketson, Jr., who used to be a newspaperman, has written a detailed manual of motion picture theatre management, covering every phase of the subject from the exhibitors' point of view.

He makes plain at the outset that the sole purpose of theatre operation is to make money, and deals thoroughly with the "six fundamentals"—attractions, policy, operation and personnel, advertising, constructive stimulation and corporate and physical structure.

Following an exposition of these fundamentals, the book is divided into six parts covering each. Those six parts are divided into chapters examining and relating in detail the various aspects of the six fundamentals of operation.

He sums up in a concluding chapter "Where Are We Going?" reviewing the business from 1910. "Changes will come," he says, "changes in methods, instruments and technique; even changes in philosophies. . . . The hope and the belief is that, no matter what changes come in amusements and in the world, thousands of American men and women will then as now find justifiable pride in their vocation as showmen." "The Slipper Episode"

(French Film Exchange)

A fairly entertaining and risque romantic comedy in the French style and a scenic tour of Switzerland, where most of the outdoor action takes place, is offered here. The combination of these elements should give the foreign film clientele satisfaction.

This film version of Tristan Bernard's novel depicts the adventures of a young woman who journeys from Paris to Locarno in order to deliver a slipper which an erring friend had left behind in one of her affairs. The guilty party's jealous husband has suspicions, not unfounded, and wants to know what became of the missing shoe. Betty Stockfield is the messenger. She enlists the aid of Roger Treville, and, with a chaperon, who is lost on the way, sets out for the mountains. En route the pair have various romantic difficulties and break out. Later Treville delivers the footgear and further upsets the scene. For, in the meanwhile, it had been replaced. But Miss Stockfield and Treville are reconciled and the picture has a romantic conclusion. There are a few sub-plots featuring a comical fisherman and the absurd antics of the jealous and dim-witted husband.

The outdoor locations and continental highway atmosphere are interesting. Helgal Films produced. Jean De Limur directed.

Running time, 78 minutes. "A."

Short Subjects

"That Mothers Might Live"

(M-G-M)

The discovery of the contributing factors to the spread of puerperal in maternity wards by Semmelweiss is dramatized in this film. It is the familiar story of genius permitted to go insane by vanity and disregard. But eventually the value of Semmelweiss' treatise is learned and the mortality rate of mothers decreases as a result. The story is told with fine emphasis and from an enlightened, appreciative viewpoint. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Count of Ten"

(RKO)

The sporting fans will go for this subject, which tells in pictures the growth and development of the Golden Gloves, amateur boxing competition sponsored by various newspapers. The popular interest in the tournaments should make this number of the Pathe Parade series a particularly salable subject. There is plenty of action. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Katnip Kollege"

(Vitaphone)

A somewhat fantastic, but nevertheless entertaining cartoon in a standard sense is offered here. The action offers cats in college. They take a course in "Swingology." One fellow can't get rhythm and is consigned to the dunce chair. Later, he learns swing by watching the pendulum on a clock and acquits himself with honors. In Technicolor. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 51"

(Universal)

This number is perhaps the best of the series to date. There is real strangeness in the topics included in the footage. They range from a woman who has hair on her head over five feet long to a Burbank farmer who has made a pet of a full grown bull. Good. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Screen Snapshots 17-9"

(Columbia)

A Tom Sawyer celebration in Culver City, the "Snow White" village on Wilshire Blvd., dedication of a Lon Chaney memorial bench; Leo Carrillo's ranch and the Academy Award dinner. Treated in the usual way, it should have the usual reception. Running time, 9½ mins. "G."

"Snow Gets in Your Eyes"

(M-G-M)

A snappy romance with light musical touches set in a department store is offered here. The story concerns the romantic difficulties a sausage seller has with his girl who has eyes for the expert skier on the store's slide. He learns to ski, too, wins an inter-store competition, gets his girl and a promotion. Breezy and pleasantly innocuous. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

The directors recorded their "appreciation of Mr. Clark's services and character" and extended their sympathy to his family.

Word of Mouth Advertising Does It, Newspaper Finds

KANSAS CITY, June 2.—That word of mouth advertising is one of the dominant factors in effecting a patron's decision to see a film is shown by a group of interviews published by the Wichita Beacon.

"The commotion created by the I.T.O.A. of New York, which blasted away at stars who draw high salaries in spite of their lack of box-office appeal," the Beacon said, has movie folk arguing over just what makes a motion picture a box-office success. The Beacon sent its inquiring reporter to the movie-goers themselves to learn what is the most effective lure: star, critics' reviews, title or director of picture, double feature, admission price, accompanying entertainment, or what have you.

Thirty-two Wichitans were interviewed. Approximately a third of them indicated they go to see certain pictures because they hear friends or acquaintances comment on them favorably.

Comments Grouped

Some of the comments:

"I look for the name of the star." "If I hear enough talk about a picture, favorable or unfavorable, I go to see it." "I hear friends or women in the shop talking about pictures which they think are good." "Naturally other people tell about the picture they saw the night before, and this, too, attracts my attention." "When Shirley Temple is in the picture, my daughter informs me of the fact. When Wallace Beery is in the picture my two boys tell me." "My wife picks out the shows I attend." "If someone tells me a picture is good I will attend it in preference to one I have heard no comment about." "If I hear a lot of favorable comment about a show I usually go see it." "I don't like double bills because I get tired of sitting." "I hear friends talking about pictures they have seen, and occasionally make my selections from what they say." "My wife picks them for me." "Epics don't appeal to me. The movies should be confined to entertainment." "I keep watching the newspapers and other publicity organs and the picture that gets the biggest play is the one I go to see. I figure it must be good or it wouldn't get so much advertising." "I hear fellows talking about certain pictures around the drug store." "Generally I hear a picture commented on. . . ."

Cincy Ban on Bingo Aids Suburban Spots

CINCINNATI, June 2.—The ban on Bingo, imposed by City Manager C. O. Sherrill, and effective tomorrow, looked upon by exhibitors as an aid to business, now appears destined to find suburban repercussions which will react to the detriment of the local theatres.

Municipal authorities of nearby suburbs declare that no prohibitive action is contemplated in connection with games now in progress, and the consensus of opinion is that new Bingo locations will be opened beyond the city limits, resulting in a general exodus of players who previously patronized local affairs.

FCC Members Yield to Air Lobby: Payne agree with the chairman and that only a Congressional probe would develop the basis for new legislation which both commissioners said was necessary.

Explaining the investigation planned by the commission, Mr. McNinch said the groundwork is now being laid and that hearings, probably to run four to six weeks, would begin in July after the super-power inquiry, which opens next week and is expected to last two or three weeks, is out of the way.

Reading from a prepared statement, Mr. Payne embarked upon a sharp attack upon the broadcasters, declaring that competition is rapidly disappearing; that two or three powerful chains are in control of radio; that programs have been fixed at a "dead level of mediocrity" so as to appeal to the greatest number of people and are so bad that they are driving "intelligent people away from their receivers."

Cites Capital Lobby

The whole effort of the broadcasters is to make money, he charged, and a radio lobby has been active in Washington to which, he alleged, the commission has been "susceptible."

Continuing with his statement, the commissioner said the F. C. C. has not the money or facilities for a proper investigation, that new legislation is necessary to meet the situation, and that the inquiry should be made by Congress.

Members of the committee repeatedly returned to the question of lobbying, Representative Martin Dies of Texas declaring the committee should have more than "generalities" if it is to determine whether a Congressional probe shall be ordered, and the hearing ended with announcement by Chairman O'Connor that on June 7 it would call Mr. Payne back into executive session, together with other members of the commission, to give details of lobbying activities.

Sport Writers Vote On Announcers' Aid

ALBANY, June 2.—Members of the Eastern League Baseball Writers' Association are balloting on the subject of furnishing information concerning base hits, errors, etc., to Western Union telegraphers employed by N. W. Ayer, agency for Atlantic Refining, and to radio announcers broadcasting play-by-play accounts.

Thus, the knotty problem reached the third and decisive stage. It all began a few weeks ago when Sports Editor Sam Nash of Binghamton, president of the writers' group, asked official scorers in other cities to withhold information from telegraphers until certain questions had been settled.

Ayer officials refused to pay the $2 per game bid for Western Union telegraphers, while the telegraph company similarly declined. The sports writers generally do not blame the Ayer executives, since the agency is buying the service, which presumably includes intelligent, accurate coverage.

Official scorers in Albany, Trenton and Wilkes-Barre have been furnishing the information without a hitch. However, as members of the association, scorers in those cities will be guided by results of the balloting now in progress.

Screen Labels To Be IATSE Session Topic

Further Organizational Drive Contemplated

CLEVELAND, June 5.—Demand that the I.A.T.S.E. label be shown on every film and that the Alliance launch a campaign to organize all non-union workers in the industry and allied fields will be major issues at the 34th biennial convention of the union which will get under way here tomorrow. The conclave, termed by officials as the most important in years, will last all week.

The union label provision was made an I.A.T.S.E. regulation by vote of the 1936 convention in Kansas City, but so far it has not been enforced. Only a few companies have adopted the insignia, among them M-G-M and 20th Century-Fox, and delegates will demand that the international officers bring pressure on the others. The

SUMMER RELEASE LIST TOTALS 110

Trend Apparent Toward More Big Pictures During Period

A total of 110 films is definitely dated or in prospect for summer release by 11 distributors, and this number may be boosted between now and Labor Day, when the fall season starts, it is shown in a checkup by MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

The trend toward starting the new theatre year early in August instead of September, which has been under way among some major companies in the last two years, will be intensified this summer, it is indicated by release dates definitely or tentatively set.

A large percentage of the films exhibitors will receive during the next three months appears to have strong box-office potentialities, if cast names, story properties, production budgets and advance information from Hollywood are reliable indicators.

Distribution heads of several principal companies agree that the old policy of holding all outstanding pictures for September release, though completed much earlier, is passé, maintaining that it is to the advantage of distributors as well as exhibitors to deliver a number of "big" pictures

Uninvited Guests

Bill Ferguson tells of the consternation when guests at a Junior Chamber of Commerce dinner in Phoenix found two uninvited guests at a table. They were dummies, spotted as a gag for "Swiss Miss." Bill blames Jim Schiller of his staff and Manager Carolina Brunson of the Rialto for the stunt. They won't mind taking the blame.

Some Boss

It's getting so that all you have to do to be an associate producer is to work for Bob Gillham, Paramount's chief of advertising and publicity. Three of his former staff now are on the coast: Bill Pine, with Cecil B. DeMille; Lou Smith, with Frank Lloyd, and Bill Thomas, with Harold Hurley.

Tribute

The June 4 issue of Dynamo, 20th Century-Fox sales department house organ, is devoted entirely to tributes to the memory of John D. Clark. Herewith this column expresses its admiration of the dignified, carefully prepared edition, done in short space of time available. To Roger Ferri, its editor, a salute.

On the Cover

The RKO publicity department takes passing pleasure in the statistics which aver that Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, stars of "Vivacious Lady," have their photos on the covers of no less than four fan magazines for June. The four magazines are read daily by so many people, multiplied by the price of a dozen, and subtracted from the temperature the day before yesterday. It's great fun!

Profit March

A smart stunt was the one pulled by Herb Brown, Loew's Brooklyn publicity man. He organized a costume parade of 1,500 kids, members of a recently formed Tom Sawyer Club, and with the cooperation of Manager Simon of the Alpine in Bay Ridge and his assistant, and a local merchant, hooked two bands and sound trucks on to the parade. Costume prizes, candy and banners advertising the current show at the house were part of the props. P. S.—Saturday matinee went over the top with a bang.

Headache

Bud Getchall, who is doing an exploitation stint for Al Margolies on G. B.'s "Three On a Weekend," says he planned a weekend giveaway package consisting of a small first aid kit, and called the Bayer aspirin people to inquire about obtaining a quantity of their product. The man at the other end had difficulty understanding him. "I don't feel so good," he said, "I've got a splitting headache."

"Blockade"

(Wanger-United Artists)

Here is a drama of romance, espionage, intrigue and combat, set against a background of the Spanish Civil War, and presenting Henry Fonda and Madeleine Carroll in the chief roles, he as a peace-loving farmer turned Loyalist soldier, she as a spy by compulsion.

John Howard Lawson's original screenplay resolves itself into a preachment against the attacks on non-combatants in modern warfare, and emerges as highly favorable to the Loyalist cause in that war, and as an indictment of the tactics of the enemy (Insurgent) forces. There are, therefore, unquestioned political implications in the finished picture, which may be expected to have an effect on the selling of it as a piece of screen merchandise.

The direction of William Dieterle places strong emphasis on the horrible effect of the bombing of the innocents of war, the women and children far behind the battle lines and on the blockading of food ships.

In support of the cast leaders are Leo Carrillo as Fonda's loyal friend, John Halliday as the chief of the espionage agents, under whose thumb Miss Carroll is forced to operate, and Reginald Denny, who, as a newspaper correspondent, attempts to inject some measure of humorous relief into a narrative which is starkly tragic for the most part.

Fonda is shown as a farmer who loves his land as the film opens on a quiet and attractively tranquil countryside. There by accident he meets Miss Carroll, traveling by car to meet her father in a neighboring town, and they are mutually attracted to one another.

Then, suddenly, the scene is changed, and the countryside is plunged into war. Fonda rallies the farmers to defense, becomes a Loyalist officer engaged in counter-espionage work, and is instrumental in the capture of Miss Carroll, the death of her father. The central dramatic episode, of course, is the blockade of a Loyalist town, its people starving. The work of spies is largely responsible for the sinking of ships attempting to penetrate the blockade with supplies. Finally Miss Carroll, overwhelmed by the tragedy she finds among the women and children, betrays her employers, and with Fonda's aid, arranges a safe passage of the blockade. She is freed, he promoted—and the war goes on.

"Le Quai des Brumes"
"The Foggy Quay"

(Ciné-Alliance-Films Victoria)

Paris, May 28.—This tragic melodrama, whose action is developed in a 24-hour period at the French harbor of Le Havre, is powerful but depressing entertainment. Based on a novel by the well known French author, Pierre Mac Orlan, it has been artistically produced and is performed flawlessly by a first class cast.

The central character is Jean Gabin, a deserter soldier, who, on the eve of embarking for South America, meets a lonely girl, Michèle Morgan. They fall in love. The repulsive, criminal and jealous guardian of the girl annoys her and Jean kills him. When escaping to his boat, Jean is shot to death for revenge by a gangster enemy of Gabin.

The foggy and heavy atmosphere, which has a symbolic meaning, is one of the features of this beautiful film, only comparable to such films as "Anna Christie" or "Winterset." The 30-year old French director, Marcel Carné, once a film journalist, and assistant to René Clair and Jacques Feyder, has given here the best of the talent promised in his two previous films. Dialogue and screenplay are excellent, and the photography by E. Schuftan deserves high praise for its artistic value.

Jean Gabin, the most popular French actor of the moment, and Michèle Morgan, a beautiful and moving 18-year old French girl who is already considered among the best feminine French players, give magnificent performances in their first co-starring parts. They make a perfect romantic team. Michel Simon, as the girl's guardian, and Pierre Brasseur, as the coward killer, are excellent.

It is too bad that such art and talent have been used for such a thin and sordid story, with not a decent character. Obviously the film will be at odds at least partially, with the American Production Code. However, this stirring film, which depicts the distress of fallen human beings, in which there is a blend of violence, sweetness and poetry, ought to attract class audiences, because of its photographic and artistic quality.

Saying that Warners will have about a dozen films, all "big in entertainment values," in national distribution during the next three months, Gradwell L. Sears, the company's sales head, over the weekend declared:

Favor Early Release

"Big pictures will do business regardless of the season of the year," says Neil F. Agnew, Paramount distribution chief. Nate Blumberg, Universal president and a veteran theatre operator, is convinced that the release of major films in the summer "is the thing to do to help exhibitors over the seasonal slump." A. W. Smith, Jr., United Artists sales head, believes that "big pictures get good grosses in August because vacationers are just back from the great outdoors and start looking around for entertainment."

Plaintiffs Question Friedl in N. D. Case

Co., two of the three plaintiff concerns, was interrogated at length by defense attorneys who apparently attempted to prove these points:

(1) That theatres affiliated with motion picture companies enjoy advantages over their independent competitors; that they can exert pressure to the detriment of the independents.

(2) That affiliated theatres enjoy tremendous bargaining power for the better pictures and are able to prevent independents from getting specific releases when they want them.

All of these allegations Mr. Friedl denied.

The defense also sought to establish that the "big eight" producers have a working agreement, splitting the United States so that they do not compete with one another.

"Isn't it true that if you chose to go into any town in North Dakota that you could get Paramount product away from anybody else playing in the town?" asked Defense Counsel Louis B. Schwartz.

"Definitely no," Friedl replied.

Indication that distribution executives of the major companies will be called to testify at the trial of the North Dakota "divorcement" law at Fargo, N. D., is seen in the fact that William F. Rodgers, M-G-M sales head, is to be a witness there today. He left New York Friday.

Tax Changes Urged For Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, June 5.—Hollywood, Astor, Royal Palace and Lyric, smaller independent houses here, are asking the city to drop the $250 mercantile license tax on each theatre and substitute a charge of 15 cents per seat.

Spokesmen declare the present fee works out to an average of 12¾ cents per seat for all the theatres and piers in Atlantic City. They insist a 15-cent charge would lighten their own load, shift some burden to larger operators and increase the total city revenue.

Screen Labels To Be IATSE Session Topic

label is in the nature of a screen credit.

Delegates representing the Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians, Local 702, of New York, will also demand that the label be affixed to negative as well as positive prints.

It is estimated that there are 200,000 employes in the film industry, only about 60,000 of which are members of the I.A.T.S.E., and a resolution will be put before the convention authorizing the executive board to push a unionization drive among theatre employes, laboratories and other unorganized fields.

To Ask "Unity"

Delegates of Local 306 and the laboratory unit in New York will present resolutions asking for "trade union unity" and that the executive board call on its parent organization, the various A. F. of L., to make an effort to reconcile its differences with the C. I. O.

Another resolution will ask that the I.A.T.S.E. administration give the locals greater support and assist them in making their fields completely union.

A jurisdictional fight may develop between the New York operators and the laboratory unit. Local 306 demands jurisdiction over projectionists in the laboratories, while Local 702 claims that its jurisdiction extends to operators in laboratories who do inspection work. The laboratory unit concedes the claim of Local 306 to operators working in laboratories' projection rooms.

Program Outlined

All convention sessions will be held in the Public Auditorium. The program for the opening day follows: Call to order, John B. Fitzgerald, president, Local 27, stagehands' union; opening of convention, Harland Holmden of Cleveland, vice-president in charge of west coast activities; invocation, Rev. Father Leonard T. Gerity, pastor of St. John's Church, Summitville, O.; welcome to Cleveland, Mayor Harold H. Burton; welcome to Ohio, Gov. Martin L. Davey; greetings from Cleveland Federation of Labor, by Albert Dalton, president, and Thomas A. Lenehan, secretary; greetings from Ohio State Labor Federation, Michael Lyden, president, Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary; welcome from Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors Association, John D. Kalafat, chairman, labor committee; address by Sidney R. Kent, president, 20th Century-Fox and chairman of the producers' labor committee; address by William E. Green, president, A. F. of L.; greetings from the local convention committee, Victor A. Wellman, chairman; presentation of life memberships in Local 160 to George E. Browne, president, I.A.T.S.E., and William Bioff, his west coast representative, by Mr. Holmden; benediction, Dr. Louis C. Wright, president, Baldwin Wallace College. Mr. Browne will preside at subsequent sessions.

Philadelphia Appeal to Be Filed Shortly

cation, agrees to review the case, a final decision might be had by the end of the year.

The anti-duals action, known throughout the trade as the Perelman case, has been in the Federal courts at Philadelphia for almost five years. It was instituted late in 1933 by Philadelphia exhibitors to test the legality of clauses written into exhibition license agreements which sought to prohibit the showing of a second feature on the same program with the picture being contracted for. The U. S. District Court which first heard the case decided it in favor of the complaining exhibitors. On appeal to the Federal circuit court at Philadelphia the lower court decision was affirmed. Distributors next asked for and were granted a rehearing of the case by the circuit court. A memorandum reversing the lower court was made public thereafter, but was recalled the following day by the high court with the explanation that it had been issued erroneously.

Last fall the circuit court handed down its second decision, reaffirming the district court's findings. Within the next few months distributors decided to carry the case to the Supreme Court.

The other transactions were disposition by Robert R. Young, Jersey City, director of Pathe, of 100 shares of the company's common stock, by gift, reducing his holdings to 19,897 shares, and the disposition, also by gift, of 500 shares of Warner Brothers common by Herman Starr, New York, officer, representing his entire holdings.

Amid a beautiful floral setting, the ministers conducted the services in a small room in which were seated the honorary pallbearers and members of the family. The others overflowed other rooms in the three-story building and heard the services from amplifiers. A recording was made by a local company and will be sent to the studio in Hollywood.

Flowers were in profusion throughout the building, and officials of the funeral home said that 270 floral tributes were received from all sections of the country, many from the coast.

First Public Purchase of Television Sets Recorded

The first public purchases in this country of completely assembled, workable television receiving sets, were recorded in a Bronx department store on Friday, following a demonstration. The units were Television Corp. of America sets, and two sold at $195, the others for $225.

Yesterday Television Corp. of America made known its intention of placing 10 sets of its manufacture in Wanamaker's Department Store. The public will be invited to view the performance of "Susan and God" with Gertrude Lawrence, which NBC-RCA will telecast tomorrow afternoon for a private audience in the NBC studios.

Meanwhile, although RCA has not said anything publicly about Television Corp. of America's practice of "taking off the air" RCA telecasts on the former's receiving machines, it is believed that RCA may act shortly to put an end to the practice. In all probability, RCA will offer to place its receivers in the various major department stores hereabouts, thus "freezing out" Television Corp. of America.

NBC Making Plans

In view of the excellent publicity and exploitation value gained by Television Corp. of America in placing its set in local department stores, RCA is now said to feel that it "missed the boat."

In the meantime, NBC's plans to show television to the public in its own studios are proceeding, with a formal statement expected shortly. It is believed that the showings will be offered to visitors and tourists not as a regular part of the guided tours, but separately, at a separate admission charge.

Plan Ad Campaign

Plans for a cooperative advertising campaign for the home furnishing industry have been completed by Livable Homes, new organization headed up by Gladys Miller, interior decorating editor of Mademoiselle, and president of Service Programs, Inc. Handling the radio details for the campaign is Joseph M. Koehler, head of Radio Events, Inc.

Shanghai Stations Decline to Register at Order of Japanese

Shanghai, April 22.—All radio stations in Shanghai and other districts surrounded or controlled by the Japanese Military, under orders of the newly formed Government in Nanking, were ordered to register with the new Government.

In Shanghai no station in the International Settlement of Shanghai owned by foreign interests made any such registration. They refused pending decision of the respective consular offices regarding the order. In the French Concession of Shanghai the order was ignored, since the French authorities consistently have maintained their concession as French territory and outside the jurisdiction of other foreign powers.

No action has been taken as yet by the newly established Government against foreign stations not registering and it is not expected that for the present any action will be or can be taken without the approval of the extraterritorial powers under whose control the owners of the stations come.

First Formal Talk on Trade Conciliation Set Wednesday

The first formal consideration of the problem of putting trade practice concessions and machinery for the conciliation of trade disputes into effect is expected to occur at the quarterly meeting of the M.P.P.D.A. board of directors tomorrow.

There is little likelihood of any definite action materializing at the meeting, however, and the impression prevailing in official quarters is that the problem will be discussed only in the broadest general terms by the major company heads. An exchange of views on the need for a method of handling trade practice complaints and a general discussion of proposals which have been advanced or of additions to those already in existence is to be expected.

The details involved in the advancement of an actual program of self-regulation for distribution and exhibition and the procedure to be followed in putting such a program into effect

Kent to Take Time to Fill Clark's Post

A successor to the late John D. Clark as general sales manager of 20th Century-Fox may not be named for some time. It is said that S. R. Kent, president, feels that the sales organization is functioning well under its three division managers and he is in no hurry to appoint a department head.

Meanwhile, Mr. Kent will take a greater interest in the sales department than he has in the past, it is understood. Herman Wobber, west coast district manager, who arrived from San Francisco 10 days ago, will remain at the home office for some time, probably indefinitely, and it is said that he will supervise the depart-

Irving Dollinger, president of the group, who is also president of Allied of New Jersey, said yesterday that most of the large companies had approached Associated Theatres with the inquiry as to when it will start product negotiations. This, however, does not necessarily mean that the "majors" are anxious to sell the combine.

Peskay Quits Post as Sales Head for G.N.

E. L. Alperson to Direct Company's Selling

Edward J. Peskay has resigned as vice-president and general sales manager of Grand National over a disagreement with Edward L. Alperson, president, on policy. He left over the weekend for a few days' rest without divulging his plans, but is expected to return Friday.

Official word of his resignation reached Mr. Alperson in Hollywood yesterday. Mr. Peskay had been planning to leave the company for several months, but remained in order to help iron out some of the problems involved in the company's reorganization. In recent weeks he had rehabilitated the company's sales staff in the field.

Though not unexpected, Mr. Peskay's resignation came suddenly, after a long distance telephone conversation with Mr. Alperson. Last week he had

Cole Testifies in North Dakota Case

Fargo, N. D., June 6.—Involved and detailed cross questioning by the plaintiffs of Col. H. A. Cole of Dallas occupied the morning in the theatre divorcement action in Federal Statutory Court here. Col. Cole, major defense witness, testified that there are no independent first run houses in Texas, where he is president of Allied Theatre Owners of Texas, and that should he want to book the currently popular film "Adventures of Robin Hood" he would have to buy some 30 or more other pictures with it.

Col. Cole was questioned as to his knowledge of certain transactions within the industry covering a long period of years, about his knowledge of hookups between various companies and also was asked to tell some of his experiences during early days of sound.

Steffes a Witness

The action tests the constitutionality of the North Dakota 1937 statute forbidding a producer or distributor to operate a theatre in the state. The burden of the defense so far is that independent operators are being driven from the field by producers' competition and that in North Dakota, of the $1,600,000 annual business producer-controlled theatres get a third.

W. A. Steffes, director of Allied States; H. M. Richey, former Allied States secretary, and Col. Cole, testified on Saturday in attempt of the defense to show the situation in other parts of the country. The defense insisted the testimony indicated that a control on exhibition amounting to monopoly existed. The plaintiffs sought in cross-examination to show that exhibition units have entered production. Steffes declared the bill was aimed directly to prevent Paramount from operating 10 theatres in North Dakota.

Hess Is Called for Testimony at Fargo

Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney of the M.P.P.D.A., was called to Fargo, N. D., yesterday to give testimony in the case now under way before a three-judge Federal statutory court there to test the constitutionality of the state's affiliated theatre "divorce" law.

With the calling of Mr. Hess the list of home office officials who will be called upon to testify is believed to be complete. Sales officials of all major companies except RKO, Universal and Columbia were called late last week. They are Neil F. Agnew, Paramount; Gradwell L. Sears, Warners; A. W. Smith, Jr., United Artists; William Gehring, 20th Century-Fox, and William F. Rodgers, M-G-M. Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount theatre head, and J. J. Friedl and L. J. Ludwig, operating heads of Minnesota Amusement Co., also were called to testify.

A scene from the Paramount picture "A Farewell To Arms" starring Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper with Adolphe Menjou. A Frank Borzage Production. From the novel by Ernest Hemingway.

"After seeing [Paramount's reissue of 'A FAREWELL TO ARMS'] again the other day and thrilling once more to its gripping love story, I suspect that this film comes as near to being a masterpiece as any photoplay the talking screen has turned out. Indeed, I have seen nothing recently which could match it for beauty of its playing by Helen Hayes and its superb supporting cast, its forthright and imaginative direction and the gently pathetic quality of the story it tells."

HOLLYWOOD, May 26.—Helen Hayes saw the re-edited edition of "Farewell to Arms" in San Francisco at a showing especially arranged by Terry Delapp, publicity head of Paramount. Out of courtesy to Miss Hayes, the print was shipped to the bay city so she might see it before it was again released.

T. M. A. T. Files Against F. W. C.

Los Angeles, June 6.—The Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers local here has filed charges of failure to bargain collectively against Charles P. Skouras and Fox West Coast Theatres before the regional labor relations board and alleged that Maurice Amsell, manager of the Embassy, was discharged for union activities. The complaint asserts Mr. Skouras and the West Coast executives have failed to meet with them, and coerced employes into staying out of the union.

Decision on Coast Disputes Due Soon

A decision may be made by attorneys for major companies at a meeting at M.P.P.D.A. headquarters this week on the appointment of a special master in conjunction with the U. S. Attorney General's office to hear all future complaints against Fox West Coast involving breaches of the Government's 1930 consent decree entered into by the circuit, it was learned yesterday.

The proposal has been discussed by major company attorneys in a series of meetings, but final action has been held in abeyance due to objections to the plan from three or four major companies. Several of the opposing companies were not parties to the 1930 consent decree against Fox West Coast and for that reason are reluctant now to make themselves parties to future developments involving the decree, it was learned.

The meeting of attorneys will be called following the return to New York from Fargo, N. D., of Gabriel L. Hess, M.P.P.D.A. general attorney, within a few days.

He claimed the defendant had earned $750,000 in that period. Miss Farmer denied Traube's contention and asserted that Traube was not a properly licensed agent.

60% OF YOUR CUSTOMERS HAVE Subnormal VISION

Did you know that hundreds of newspapers have adopted large type since surveys have shown that 39% of all people thirty years old, and 48% of all people of age forty, and 71% of those at fifty, have defective eyesight?

This means that an average audience of adults includes 60% or more of people with subnormal eyesight. It is now proved that people at 60 need twice as much light to see as well as they did at 20.

Motion picture engineers are now recommending screen brightness much higher than the present average. You can get this with Simplified High Intensity projection at so little added cost that one extra admission will cover it. You also get the snow-white light which makes black and white pictures better and color pictures natural.

Low intensity projection is no longer economy — it is extravagance. It doesn't save current — it wastes it. It doesn't satisfy your audience — it brings unfavorable comparison with the more than 5,000 theaters which now have high intensity projection.

Why delay? Cash in on this modern projection now. Write for booklet of pertinent facts, "The Eternal Triangle in Picture Projection."

is almost certain to be left to the general managers of distribution to work out, either with or without exhibitor participation, it is believed.

Present indications are that most or all of the M.P.T.O.A. 10-point program and its proposal for the establishment of conciliation boards in key cities to hear and adjust trade practice complaints will be utilized in any final program which may be adopted. Seven of the eight major companies have approved the 10-point plan in substance, already, and unless radically different proposals were to be advanced, of which there is no indication at the present time, no new conferences between exhibitor and distributor representatives would be required, according to current belief.

Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, may offer some suggestions for advancing the trade practice plan at tomorrow's meeting, it was said.

Fox president pointed out that the film industry had pioneered in bringing about the labor-employer cooperation which has been effective in the film business for the past 15 years.

Harland Holmden, vice-president of the I. A., introduced Mr. Kent as a leader of the movement to bring peace and harmony into the relations of capital and labor in the film industry. Mr. Kent left tonight for New York.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, parent organiaztion of the I. A., claimed the present depression is psychological, berated industry for its failure to reabsorb men into private employment and condemned the Government's pump-priming plan.

Father McGuire, one of the speakers, advocated the enactment of an N.R.A., with capital and labor equally represented.

Albert Dalton, president of the Cleveland Federation of Labor, greeted the delegates. George E. Browne, president of the I. A., and William Bioff, representative of Mr. Browne on the coast, were presented gold life membership cards in Local 160 by Mr. Holmden, who presided.

SOMEONE is always taking the joy out of life. An enthusiastic Young & Rubicam staff man, writing a piece of publicity for NBC release about the "Hobby Lobby" show as the replacement series for the Jack Benny show, said that "Hobby Lobby," when originally presented on the networks, proved to be the "sensation of the airways."

An NBC blue-penciler changed it to read . . . "'Hobby Lobby,' when presented, proved to be successful."

A little late, but still a good story: Hendrik Willem van Loon, now in Europe vacationing, has a regular network commentary series. As a precaution against finishing ahead of time, he has a regular standby pianist, ready to fill in with a few moments of music in case of emergency.

Shortly before air time on the day of which we speak, news arrived that Gabriel D'Annunzio, the Italian patriot, had passed away. Mr. van Loon, a good friend of D'Annunzio, tossed away his prepared script and hastily wrote an eulogistic piece about the departed warrior-poet. Unable to time the show, Mr. van Loon asked his pianist to play an appropriate piece in the event he ran short. The pianist told him not to worry.

Came the close of the talk, with about a minute of air time open, and Mr. van Loon gave the nod to the pianist.

The pianist burst into "Funiculi, Funicula," one of the gayest of Italian folk songs.

There's a New Bedford whaling captain in town to make an appearance on Ripley's show tonight. Learning that Tom Riley, a member of NBC's publicity staff, is a native of New Bedford, the captain yesterday paid him a visit.

The whaler, it seems, likes radio. "I get my transportation paid, all expenses paid for a four-day stay in New York, plus $75 for a few minutes on the program," he told Riley. Leaning over confidentially, he continued: "That's nice work, son, and I'd appreciate it if you get me a commercial a week!"

New Air Rules Are Attacked Before F.C.C.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Proposed new regulations for the operation of broadcasting stations today drew the fire of a number of organizations as the F.C.C. opened hearings which may continue for several weeks.

Protests against any general increase in power maximum were voiced by John K. Claxton, representing the governor of Montana; S. Howard Evans, executive secretary of the National Committee on Education by Radio, and Sol. Alpher, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Fears that Montana would lose its local service were voiced by Mr. Claxton, who said that the people of the state were dependent on their local stations for weather and crop reports, news and other information, particularly in winter.

The position of the Civil Liberties Union is that, instead of an increase in power there should be reductions in existing power so that there might be more stations. Minorities, Mr. Alpher asserted, have their best chance over the smaller stations.

Evans Asks Economic Standards

Commending the commission for establishing a standard for programs in its new rules, Mr. Evans declared it should also establish economic standards but confessed his inability to make suggestions along that line. Many stations which profess to have high program standards, he charged, permit misleading advertising or harmful children's programs.

Proposals for program standards, however, were sharply attacked by Mark Ethridge, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, as "inconsistent with principles of democracy."

"If the government assumes control and attempts to dictate the types of programs to be broadcast, the very foundation of the existing broadcasting system is destroyed," he declared.

"Under the competition between networks and the individual stations themselves the quality of radio programs has been constantly improving and will continue to improve as talent in this country is developed and as broadcasters themselves learn the new uses of talent," Mr. Ethridge said.

Mr. Ethridge also voiced the opposition of the N.A.B. to continuation of the six-months license term as against the public interest, pointing out that broadcasters find it necessary to incur heavy expenses to keep abreast of the commission's engineering and public interest requirements without any assurance that the money so involved may not be lost almost immediately.

Theatres Use Radio Acts

KANSAS CITY, June 6.—Increased use of radio acts, especially in the smaller city situations, is a marked trend of exhibition in the Kansas City area. Acts popular on local stations, and, in some cases, those on stations throughout the territory, have proved successful for the Commonwealth Amusement Corp. in the eight or ten houses where they have been used.

Paper - Air Harmony

Washington, June 6.—The Arlington Sun has the distinction of being one of the few newspapers that employs its advertising staff to arrange a participating program for a radio station. The program is titled "Arlington County Hour," over WJSV, and features the activities of various organizations in the county, commercial plugs interspersed with music.

Apparently everybody is happy. The sponsors report increased business, the station collects the revenue and the newspaper renders the community a service and gets revenue from display and classified space purchased by sponsors.

Policy to Be Held Flexible, Says Browne

I. A. Head Cites Gains At Convention

CLEVELAND, June 7.—George E. Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E., today pledged a continuation of the theatrical union's flexible policy, in an address which featured the day's session of the annual convention of the I. A. at the Public Auditorium here.

Mr. Browne pointed out to the delegates that all the gains registered by the I. A. were achieved by mediation and negotiation, rather than by strife.

He cited the union's gains, including the signing of 38 independent Hollywood producers, the settling of the five-year operator controversy in New York, bringing 160 theatres under the union's jurisdiction, and the closed shop in all major film exchanges.

The union leader declared that the jurisdictional expansion on the coast was due in the past two years to the

Talley, producer of Movietone, who is directing the arrangements, is negotiating through the American Embassy in Paris for permission to make pictures of Northern Russia, and if the Soviet Government is amenable, areas never photographed will be entered.

The expedition hopes to penetrate as far north as conditions will allow. It also plans to bring back clear pictures of the land of the midnight sun and midday darkness as well as films of human and animal life in the Arctic, including the Elk drives.

Various types of negative stock are being taken along for experimentation, and Eastman has contributed 10,000 feet of hypersensitized film, used in ◆ Real estate agents around town make no special demands when May and June rents are due. They've figured out that rents are always late in these two months because people who are run down from the this and that of the winter, take expensive week-ends as soon as the leaves begin to unfurl and pay their rent last of all their bills. . . . Bill Maloney, praise slinger for Kate Smith, has researched and found that several radio stars can make a good living in other fields. He cites Kate, herself, whose success as a commentator proves she can talk herself a good job as well as sing one; Gabriel Heatter, news broadcaster, who has become a good actor in "We, the People" show; Ward Wilson, who started as an engineer, is now acting, and could revert to writing or m.c'ing, fields in which he has proved himself. Arthur Godfrey used to be an announcer, now he plays the "uke," sings and tells stories; Kay Thompson, singer, could be a choral conductor or a pianist.

◆ Vyvyan Donner, Movietone News fashionist, arranged for the film debut of Walter Winchell's two Washington beauty discoveries, Betty Gray and Blanche Brewer. The two pretty Government employes modelled hats for Miss Donner and will appear in the newsclip out today. . . . Edward I. Ellison had to cancel his scheduled trip East to direct his play, "All American," in the summer theatre in order to write the new Bobby Breen picture for Sol Lesser. Now Sam Goldwyn is considering the purchase of "All American" for pictures before it gets on the stage.

Fargo Plaintiffs Set As the Defense Rests

FARGO, N. D., June 7.—The defense in the theatre divorcement hearing in Federal Court here rested late this afternoon and the plaintiffs immediately prepared to call W. F. Rodgers, M-G-M sales manager, as a rebuttal witness. Action is testing the constitutionality of the 1937 North Dakota law forbidding operation of theatres by producers or distributors, brought by Paramount Pictures, Minnesota Amusement Co. and American Amusement Co.

U. V. Young, Gary, Ind., independent operator, today was a witness for the defense. He told of Paramount invading his field after he had a promise from company executives that they would not do so.

Ben Ash, Fergus Falls, Minn., and Edward F. Maertz, Milwaukee, Wis., both independent operators, also testified for the defense, the burden of their testimony being how the independent is handicapped in competition with producer-owned theatres.

The defense cited North Dakota crop conditions, which have been adverse for most of the years between 1929 and now, as the reason that Minnesota Amusement and American Amusement have not expanded operations in North Dakota.

A case referred to frequently by both sides is that at Jamestown, N. D., where the defense contends an independent operator with a major exhibition contract lost out to a producer-owned theatre when it entered that field. Plaintiffs said the particular contract was M-G-M, which went to a Paramount affiliated house solely because of business advantage.

20th-Fox Files Denial

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. filed answer yesterday in the U. S. District Court to the $35,700 suit brought by the Superior Fire Insurance Co. of Pittsburgh in which it denied that any contributory negligence on its part caused the fire which occurred at Little Ferry, N. J., July 9, 1937.

Twentieth Century-Fox asserted that the fire had been caused by circumstances entirely out of its control. The plaintiff had brought action claiming the explosion and fire occurring in a plant where the defendant had stored negatives and prints had spread to adjoining property and as a result had caused the loss to the plaintiff of $35,700.

restoration of pay cuts, and the practice of negotiating long term contracts. Mr. Browne reported on a survey which showed the union's gains on the coast, and denied allegations that he had added many new classifications on the coast. He said only one new one, a group involving laborers and utility workers, was formed.

He said that all coast negotiations must be handled directly with the international officers, and that any attempt to work through the locals would be sufficient reason for the producers to cancel their contracts.

Referring to the use of the I. A. label on pictures, Mr. Browne said: "The day is rapidly approaching when no motion picture will be produced or exhibited here or in Canada without the union label."

The union's future policy, he said, will center around the use of the union seal on all pictures, the absorption of sound engineers and the defense of all jurisdictional rights. The report was unanimously adopted, as was a resolution that the phrase "stage employes" be used instead of "stage hands."

Other speakers of the day included Rabbi Jacob Tarshish, Daniel Tracy and Frank Phelps.

Warner Chicago Spot Goes to Dual Bills

CHICAGO, June 7.—Warner's Rhodes Theatre, which since its opening a year ago has run on a single feature policy, will go to double features next week. This policy will be maintained except when the bigger pictures that all other Warner theatres play single, are offered.

This leaves but one Warner theatre with a strictly single feature policy, the Beverly, which has not played duals during the three years it has been open.

Constitution Meet Opposes Lotteries

ALBANY, June 7.—The first skirmish in the fight to legitimatize gambling in New York State was lost here today by an 8-7 margin when the convention's bill of rights group killed the Hirshberg bill intended to eliminate prohibitions from the constitution against book-making, ticket selling and lotteries.

While today's action, as well as similar treatment of constitutional amendments introduced by Assemblyman Nicholas A. Rossi and Irwin Steingut allowing twice-a-year lotteries, precludes favorable report to the floor, Hirshberg is reported ready to debate the matter later this week.

A hands-off policy has been pursued by exhibitors to date in view of the Bank Night situation.

At the close of the convention Mr. Hanson announced the formation of a subsidiary company to be known as Sterling Films, Ltd., with himself as president, to import, distribute and present 16mm. subjects in Canada. Narrow measure product has already been secured for the Dominion from the United States companies and will also be brought in from Europe. Portable equipment will project performances on schedule in small towns where no theatre exists. A staff has been organized to sell the narrow film on a rental basis.

Mr. Hanson said he looked for the latest venture to grow into a big development in the Dominion because of the many isolated communities which lack exhibition facilities of any character.

Televise Stage Play With Marked Degree of Success

By JACK BANNER

David Sarnoff, president of RCA, and John Golden, producer of the play "Susan and God," both said in making introductory remarks leading to televised production of a scene from that current Broadway success, that what was about to be seen would be "epoch making." The experiment took place yesterday afternoon at NBC.

They were far from wrong.

The experiment marked the first time that the legitimate theatre was taken into a television studio and all the "live talent" television shows that preceded it may, in the best interests of the dawning art, be overlooked.

Featured in the television show was Gertrude Lawrence, the star of the legitimate production. Miss Lawrence was supported by Paul McGrath and Nancy Coleman, who play respectively the roles of her husband and daughter in the Broadway show.

Miss Lawrence Excellent

Portrayed in television was Scene 1, Act 2 of the play, wherein Susan, under exhortations from the husband, agrees to postpone a divorce for the sake of their only child, a girl still in her 'teens.

Miss Lawrence, as did the other players, gave a memorable performance before the television camera. Whatever flaws were detected are attributable to technical deficiencies, not to acting.

In order to present the scenes from "Susan and God" as closely as possible to legitimate theatre conditions, NBC technicians built exact replicas of the play's setting for use in the experiment. Costumes and properties used in the play were moved to Radio City for the broadcast.

Two cameras were used to achieve intermediate, close and long shots. Noticeably absent from this production was the "bloom" that has been seen in television employing film, wherein light diffusion interfered with visibility.

Some Defects Noted

Several defects were present, however. Too often the figure of one of the characters was completely out of the camera eye, or cut in half, while such sounds as the rustling of clothes, or the sound of footsteps, were so exaggerated they sounded almost like claps of thunder.

The telecast was "covered" by most of the drama representatives of the New York press, as well as by the radio editors. Present were Sidney Whipple of the Telegram, Burns Mantle of the News, Kelcey Allen of Women's Wear and the others. They spoke enthusiastically of television's possibilities following the close of the performance.

The performance practically brought to a close this season's visual experimentation by NBC-RCA. Shortly the television transmitter of this network will be closed for further improvements, with reopening scheduled for the fall.

CBC to Put Arrival Of Ship on the Air

MONTREAL, June 7.—Something new in news broadcasts is to be attempted by the local staff of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. this summer—an on-the-spot program of interviews and color material every time the Empress of Britain arrives at Quebec. The liner arrives every second Thursday.

The programs will start Thursday. R. G. Wilmot, CBC specialty man, has been assigned to the job regularly. Arrivals cannot be definitely ascertained until a few hours before docking and CBC will have only a short time to clear the network.

Following the lead of newspapers who send their men to Father Point, 600 miles downstream where the pilot, customs and baggage men embark, Wilmot will board the Empress there, so he can meet his passengers beforehand and arrange continuity in the 10-hour run to Quebec.

Muter read a telegram of greetings from Daniel Roper, Secretary of Commerce. Following this the treasurer's report was read and progress made during the past year was discussed. Mr. Muter told the members that a new statistics service to members would start soon to keep them informed on market needs. Various committee reports were read, but other than comment that good work had been done no details were revealed. The radio parts show will open tomorrow.

Web Shows Ratings Higher This Spring

The average ratings of commercial network programs in both rural areas and large cities were considerably larger in the spring of 1938 than in the spring of 1937, according to the Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting, sponsors of the "Crosley Reports."

Of the 10 programs most favored by rural listeners seven are also favored by urban listeners. The 10 leading shows in rural areas are Chase and Sanborn, Jack Benny, Major Bowes, Lowell Thomas, National Barn Dance, Burns and Allen, Town Hall, Lux Radio Theatre, One Man's Family and Phil Baker.

Of the five leading daytime shows in rural communities two are among the city leaders, and among the five city leaders only two are among the five preferred by the suburbanites. The five leading daytime programs in rural areas are Guy Lombardo, Dick Tracy, Women in White, Gospel Singer and David Harum. National Barn Dance, Ripley's Believe It or Not, Lowell Thomas, Dick Tracy, the Gospel Singer and Hilltop House were among some of the programs which seemed to appeal much more to rural listeners than to urban folks.

The report also included data on rural listening habits, showing that during the course of an average weekday listening in rural areas is generally higher than in large cities until the early evening. After 8 P. M. urban listening is greater for the balance of the evening, reaching a peak at 9:30, whereas rural listeners reached a peak at between 7 and 7:30 P. M.

The survey was based on 21,154 completed interviews with radio set owners, 10,000 among farmers and 11,000 in small towns.

TRACK FAST—RECEPTION CLEAR —EXCLUSIVE BROADCAST—CBS UP!

Two great events in racing history high-light Columbia's exclusive 1938 racing card. The Kentucky Derby on May 7 brought excitement to more than 10,000,000 CBS listeners as Ted Husing described the dramatic victory of an outsider. When, as, and if War Admiral and Seabiscuit meet in their long-awaited duel at Belmont, an audience fully as big—and as eager—will be tuned to Columbia wave-lengths. Yet these are but the opening of an exclusive sports program unequalled in broadcasting. More millions will hear the most important races of the season as they are run at Aqueduct, Belmont, Empire, Jamaica and Saratoga. They will be covered in detail by Bryan Field; and broadcast only by CBS.

ONLY ONE NETWORK BROADCAST

CBS AUDIENCE FIRST TO LEARN ANSWER

Greatest meeting of collegiate crews in the country is the annual regatta at Poughkeepsie on the Hudson. Rowing enthusiasts wonder if this year, with its bumper crop of good crews, will produce a successful challenger to Washington's supremacy. Columbia's audience, early in the evening of June 27, will be the first to learn the answer. For Columbia alone will be seated in the officials' launches, on the train, and at reserved vantage points along the course... broadcasting the race as it happens!

CBS BROADCASTS U. S. GOLF EXCLUSIVELY

A game played by over 6,000,000 Americans is a natural radio attraction. As in 1937, only Columbia will attend the big matches of the year — the National Open from Denver (June 9-11), the P. G. A. Championship from Shawnee-on-Delaware (July 10-16), the National Amateur from Oakmont, Pittsburgh (September 12-17), the Women's Amateur from Wilmott, Illinois (September 19-24). The latest in field equipment and shortwave transmission will ensure an accurate report of every important drive, chip shot and putt. America's Ace Sportscaster Ted Husing, will be at the microphone.

HESE EVENTS AS THEY HAPPEN!

CBS "SERVING"—ALL 1938 AMERICAN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS

Only Columbia microphones will be permitted at the major tennis tournaments played in the United States this year— including the first home defense of the Davis Cup in ten years. U. S. L. T. A. officials credit much of last year's record-breaking attendance at Forest Hills to Ted Husing's colorful accounts of the matches played there. Columbia listeners will readily understand why, for they know the excitement of shifting court fortunes as they are reported against a pulsating background of stroke and volley. They already anticipate CBS descriptions of the North American Zone Finals (August 11-13), the Inter-Zone Finals (August 18-20), the National Doubles, Men and Women (August 22-27), the Davis Cup Finals (September 3-5), and the National Singles, Men and Women (September 7-17).

Asks Dropping of Maximum on Power For Clear Channel

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Elimination of all power maxima with respect to clear channel stations was asked today of the Federal Communications Commission's committee on new broadcasting regulations by Edwin W. Craig, vice-president of the National Life and Accident Insurance Co., operator of WSM, on behalf of the so-called "clear channel group."

The clear channel group, he explained, included nine of the dozen stations having applications for superpower pending before the commission.

Pointing out that the new rules would limit the power of Class 1-A stations to a flat 50 kilowatts, Mr. Craig urged that 50 kilowatts be made the minimum power with no specification as to the maximum. If this proposal is not accepted, he said, the maximum should be not less than 500 kilowatts.

Imposition of specific limitations upon power, he told the committee, might result in preventing American broadcasting from keeping pace with developments in other parts of the world. A Mexican station already has been authorized to use 850 kilowatts, he pointed out.

Most of the morning session of the hearing was devoted to the testimony of J. V. L. Hogan, chairman of the engineering committee of the National Association of Broadcasters, who discussed the proposed new rules from the technical standpoint, contending that many of them required amendment to meet the current situation or future development of the industry, although he characterized the rules as a whole as a "great step forward."

Permit Sought for Station in Florida

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Application for a construction permit for a 1,500-kilocycle, 100-watt station has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission by John T. Alsop, Jr., Ocala, Fla.

Other applications received by the commission included requests of KDYR, Devils Lake, N. D., for increase of day power from 100 to 250 watts; KVOX, Moorhead, Minn., for increase of night power from 100 to 250 watts, and KECA, Los Angeles, for authority to move studio and transmitter to San Diego.

The commission announced that because of the general hearings on super-power and revision of broadcasting regulations, few examiners' hearings will be held on broadcasting applications.

Complete Agenda of Sales Heads Parley

The formal list of events and speakers for the sales managers' conference of the National Association of Broadcasters at the annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America, in Detroit June 12-16, has been set.

Craig Lawrence, chairman of the sales managers' committee, and commercial manager of the Iowa Broadcasting Co., will preside. Lowell Thomas will deliver an address on "Radio Today"; Edgar Kobak, vice-president of Lord & Thomas, will talk on "Commercial Radio vs. Tax-Supported Radio"; Roy C. Witmer, NBC vice-president in charge of sales, will discuss "Summer Radio," and Paul Blakemore, president of the Coolidge advertising agency, will have as his subject, "Gearing Radio to a Moderate Budget."

John J. Karol, director of market research for CBS, will speak on "Daytime Radio Advertising Makes Good"; Dr. Herman Hettinger, of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania, will discuss "Radio Sales and Service," and Charles W. Hicks, sales promotion manager of WXYZ, Detroit, will give the inside story of "The Lone Ranger," an unusually successful radio program produced at that station.

State Sues to Halt Gold Star Selling

Attorney General John J. Bennett filed suit yesterday in N. Y. Supreme Court in behalf of the State of New York against Gold Star Radio & Television Corp. and Charles Henry Davis, Jr., David E. Forsyth, William L. Shelton and Arthur E. King, as directors and officers, and asked the court to restrain the sale of stocks and bonds of Gold Star under Section 23A of the general business law.

The state charged that Gold Star, which was allegedly incorporated in Massachusetts in Sept., 1936, for the purpose of building and operating radio and television broadcasting stations, was selling stock to the public through "false and misleading statements."

The complaint stated that Gold Star was incorporated with an authorized stock issue of 100,000 Class A non-voting shares of par value of $5 a share, and 10,000 Class B voting no par value shares. The voting shares were transferred to Mr. Davis as president, the state claimed, for little or no consideration, and that the defendants "concealed" this fact from the public and also the alleged fact that Class A shares were non-voting. The complaint asserted that the defendants were selling Class A shares to the public for $6.25 a share.

contract clause involved conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The distributors in their application for a review of the lower court ruling contended that the evidence in the case was insufficient to support the decision reached; that some evidence was improperly admitted and listed several additional technical grounds for review.

The Supreme Court will not consider the application for a review until next fall. If it consents to review the case will probably come before the court a month or two later.

Skouras Joins Talks On Court Appointee

Discussions of the proposal to appoint a special master in conjunction with the U. S. Attorney General's office to hear future complaints against Fox West Coast involving the 1930 consent decree entered into by the circuit are being held here during the current visit of Charles Skouras, operating head of West Coast.

Mr. Skouras, Charles Buckley, vice-president and legal head of West Coast, and Alfred Wright, Los Angeles attorney for the circuit, conferred on the proposal yesterday with New York attorneys. Indications are, however, that no final decision in the matter will be made until a meeting of major company attorneys is held here later this week. The approval of all major companies to the plan is being sought.

Bader Remaining on Coast Permanently

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—David A. Bader, for the past eight years an agent, talent scout and story representative for American and Continental producers, with headquarters in London, has transferred his activities permanently to Hollywood.

Arriving here several weeks ago as representative of George Pal's "Puppet-Toons," Mr. Bader brought story material and contracts with English players, writers and directors. His decision to remain permanently in Hollywood followed a study of current studio trends and requirements.

San Antonio Set for Two Para. Premieres

San Antonio, Tex., has been chosen by Paramount as the scene for the premieres of "Tropic Holiday" and "The Texans." "Tropic Holiday" will make its debut June 24, the day following its world premiere in Mexico City. Dorothy Lamour, Bob Burns, Martha Raye and Bob Hope will attend.

The world premiere of "The Texans" will be held at San Antonio July 16, with R. M. O'Donnell of the Interstate Circuit as master of ceremonies. Exteriors were filmed within a few miles of the city.

Dual Bill Opponents Using Chain Letters

A chain letter attempt to halt double features has been started by a small New York group which expects to blanket the country within three weeks with appeals to customers to stay away from dual bill theatres.

Mrs. Elinor McNaughton, 95 Christopher St., has addressed 300 letters to friends, acquaintances and club affiliates. In her letter, sent also to the trade press, newspapers and critics, she scores the "alleged entertainment of the Grade-B feature, bingo, banko, screeno, etc.," and predicts that in three weeks every family in the United States will have been reached and "our concerted action will have its effect."

Mrs. McNaughton and Miss Lyle Fowler, the leaders, said this original group of double bill haters are not addressing themselves at this time to the producers, but to the public.

"Most of us are business people and family folk who are fed up with three hours of alleged entertainment until the good picture comes on.

"Lots of parents with children who pay 50 cents an hour to a maid to come in and stay with the children while they go out for entertainment are fed up with getting home at 12:30 and 1 o'clock from inferior entertainment, and paying $1 or $1.50 extra to the maid for staying late."

Mrs. McNaughton and her group are asking every recipient of a letter to copy it and send it to five others.

Dual Theatre Policy Starts in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, June 7.—Paul Gusdanovic, owner of the new $100,000, 1,400-seat Avalon, has introduced a new policy called the Dual Theatre Policy, which he plans to try out for a limited time.

It is the outgrowth of a contest conducted by the Avalon and The Plain Dealer to find out whether single or double features were in greater demand. While the preponderance of replies favored duals, there were enough single feature advocates to deserve consideration. Mr. Gusdanovic will try out a single feature policy at the Avalon and also at the Corlett, a nearby theatre which he also owns. Patrons attending either theatre who desire to see two features for the price of one will be given a coupon to the other house entitling them to free admission. The only stipulation is that the free coupon be used on date of issue.

Revise Milwaukee's Clearance Schedule

MILWAUKEE, June 7.—To correct alleged abuses in the selection of pictures to be played in first run subsequent houses following first run downtown showing, the zoning and clearance schedule has been amended so that the subsequents play pictures 41 days after first run showing instead of 45 as formerly.

Also the first run subsequent houses now have 14 days to complete the showing of pictures without losing their clearance, which is expected to move pictures up from one to two weeks earlier in the neighborhoods.

Pending final adoption of the revised schedule, a committee is meeting to iron out releasing schedules.

Studios Hold Pace With 39 Shooting

Hollywood, June 7.—Thirty-nine features are in work, two less than last week's total, as six were finished and four were started. In all, 21 are in final stages of preparation and 56 are being edited.

Those started were: "Paris Honeymoon," Paramount; an untitled Laurel and Hardy feature, Roach; "Meet the Girls," 20th Century-Fox, and "Head over Heels," Warners.

In addition to these, shooting are: "You Can't Take It With You," "The Gladiator," "Outside the Law" and "Wild Bill Hickock," Columbia; "The Crowd Roars," "Love Finds Andy Hardy," "The Great Waltz," "Too Hot to Handle," "Fast Company," M-G-M; "Spawn of the North," "Men with Wings," "If I Were King," "Artists and Models Abroad," "Return of the Fox" (Sherman), "Bulldog Drummond in Africa," Paramount; "Breaking the Ice," Principal; "Mother Carey's Chickens," "Carefree," "Affairs of Annabel," "I'm From the City," RKO; "Army Girl," "Gold Mine in the Sky," Republic; "The Young in Heart," Selznick; "My Lucky Star," "Suez," "Ellis Island," "Meridan 7-1212," "Straight, Place and Show," 20th Century-Fox; "Letter of Introduction," "Little Tough Guy," "Prison Break," Universal; "Valley of the Giants," "Sister Act," "Unlawful," "Three Girls on Broadway," Warners.

Finishing were "Man's Country," Monogram; "Give Me a Sailor," Paramount; "Lucky Penny" and "Passport Husband," 20th Century-Fox; "Danger on the Air," Universal, and "Girls on Probation," Warners.

Five short subjects are shooting—four at M-G-M, and one at RKO. M-G-M is preparing five, and a total of 11—seven at M-G-M, two at RKO, and two at Warners—is being edited.

Four A's Defers Its Constitution Change

Constitutional changes designed to make a more closely knit organization of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America, which includes all of the A. F. of L. performers' unions, are expected to be completed late this week for submission to the parent organization's board next Monday.

Consideration of final proposals advanced by Actors Equity Association and Broadway producers to end ticket speculation was deferred for at least two weeks when Equity's council failed to take up the matter at its meeting yesterday. For the rest of the summer the council will meet every other Tuesday instead of weekly, the next meeting being scheduled for June 21. The selection of a third vice-president was also deferred by the council and one probably will not be named until next September.

Chicago, June 7.—A new theatre, the Roxy, will open in Toluca, Ill., June 15. John Tozzi is the manager. The theatre seats 550.

At Roanoke, Harlen Van Alystyne has remodeled the Roanoke and the house is again open.

Out Hollywood Way

Hollywood, June 7. — Claudette Colbert will be starred in Paramount's "Midnight," originally announced for Marlene Dietrich. Mitchell Leisen will direct. Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder are writing the screenplay.

Monogram has signed Anne Nagel to play the feminine lead in four pictures, first of which will be "The Girl from Nowhere," written by Arthur Fitz-Richards and Scott Darling. . . . John D. L'Esperance, manager of the Warners Huntington Park, has gone on a two-week vacation, after which he will take an extended leave of absence. . . . Errol Flynn has returned from a yacht trip and will go into Warners' "The Sisters," opposite Bette Davis. . . . Kay Francis will star in Warners "Fly Away Baby."

Dick Arlen has been signed by 20th Century-Fox as the romantic lead in "Straight, Place and Show." . . . Una Merkel in M-G-M's "Honolulu."

Writers—Jack White will write the screenplay for the first of the Our Gang shorts which M-G-M will produce. . . . Peter Milne is working on the script of Universal's "First Love," collaborating with Irmgard Von Cube, author of the original. It is a Deanna Durbin vehicle.

Old Films Beat New In Philly Theatres

Philadelphia, June 7.—Weekend business definitely set reissues as a hot-weather "in" for many local theatres. Three houses at the present time are grossing as much with old films as they have been with the new product.

The Erlanger reopened last Wednesday with "Son of the Sheik" to a first day gross of $800. From then on business mounted each day with standees for the Saturday night shows in this 2,000-seater. A first week gross of from $10,000 to $12,000 is indicated. Only three of the eight roadshow weeks of "In Old Chicago" at this theatre topped the mark.

The Arcadia, a second run house, which has been getting less than a week from many of its recent shows, is finding top spring business with the reissue of "Man's Castle." This Columbia revival is decisively topping the business on "There's Always a Woman," a new Columbia film which played at the house last week.

The Europa, usually devoted to foreign films, brought back "Night Must Fall" at the end of last week for a "fill in" engagement. It will have gone two weeks—perhaps more—before the engagement ends.

The Arcadia is continuing the policy by booking "Farewell to Arms" to follow "Man's Castle" and the Europa will next bring back the frequently revived "Private Life of Henry VIII."

On a Diet

Alfred Hitchcock, British director, who gained quite a reputation on his last visit here a year ago for his gastronomic achievements, says he is on a diet. "I eat only big steaks," he says. "They go down faster."

Asked if he intends to repeat his performance of ordering ice cream before his steak, which amazed the epicures, Mr. Hitchcock's only comment was: "That's out."

Midwest Home Town Films Are Started

Kansas City, June 7.—Home town films have made their appearance in this area and have proved successful in attracting extra patronage. Commonwealth Amusement Corp., according to C. A. Schultz, its head, has used the local films with good effect in more than half a dozen spots. About 750 feet of film showing crowds in front of local stores or businesses are shot, and then are shown for one, two or even three changes during the week. The film is kept, and the plan is to use it on the anniversary of its taking: "How you looked last year."

By bringing in local business firms unobtrusively, the film costs the theatre, usually, nothing, Mr. Schultz said.

P. S. Malickson Sues Accessories Company

Philip S. Malickson, sales manager of Universal Sound Projections, Inc., and Sentry Safety Control Corp., filed a $125,000 damage suit yesterday in the N. Y. Supreme Court against International Theatre Accessories Corp., Inc., Sales on Sound, Inc., and Josef A. Teeney.

Mr. Malickson claimed that he had been hired by the defendants in May, 1931, to act as adviser in establishing sales methods and that during his employment to June, 1937, he increased the yearly gross income from $20,000 to $200,000. He asked the court for $25,000 damages.

An additional $100,000 damages was also claimed by Mr. Malickson, who charged that due to a "malicious" letter sent by the defendants, he had been prevented from being chosen as president of Universal Sound Projections.

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 77
(20th Century-Fox)

What are said to be the first films of the Sudeten frontier fortifications are shown in this release and give an idea of how the Czechs have prepared for invasion. It is evident that the camera was limited in its range by the army censors. Regardless, the subject has something the exhibitors can sell.

The sound track catches President Roosevelt in fine form at the Annapolis graduation exercises, and there are other interesting shots including a Chinese fireworks display in Chicago in which aid is asked for the invaded country, the Eucharistic Congress in Budapest, the 74-passenger transoceanic clipper receiving its first test, and the start of the Archbold expedition flight to Honolulu. The sports department has the English Derby and the national intercollegiate track meet. Lew Lehr describes a log rolling contest and Vyvyan Donner presents some good looking girls wearing the fall millinery. Running time, 9½ mins. F.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 275
(M-G-M)

This is an excellent issue, with "big names" and front page news packing the 10 stories. Outstanding is the coverage of the Eucharistic Congress in Budapest, with good pictures of the pageantry and a floating processional at night on the Danube.

Searchers are shown dragging streams and combing the countryside for James Cash, Jr., kidnaped in Florida, and there's a shot of his father. Secretary Ickes and Yehudi Menuhin are caught with their brides. A humorous touch in the Chinese fireworks display in Chicago is Japan's apology on the Panay sinking outlined in lights, "Very sorry, please." Other clips are: Congressmen having fun on an outing, a Prague parade honoring President Benes on his birthday, President Roosevelt speaking at the Annapolis graduation, the 74-passenger clipper being tested at Seattle, the intercollegiate meet at Randall's Island, and, for a rousing finish, Bois Roussel winning the Epsom Downs Derby. Running time, 9½ mins. F.

Paramount News
(Paramount)

Plenty of varied material makes this a better than average release. The reel was delayed a half-day for the inclusion of pictures of the running of the Epsom Downs Derby and, while the shots of the English track classic contain nothing out of the ordinary, the race itself is well photographed and described.

Other subjects are the departure of the largest privately owned seaplane from California on a two-year exploration of the South Seas; the return of the "iron lung boy" to his Chicago home from Miami; graduation exercises at Annapolis with President Roosevelt officiating; a Chicago fireworks display to raise funds for relief work in China; samples of the art works in the W. R. Hearst collection which are being sold; scenes from the Czechoslovakian trouble centers, and famous American wedding parties abroad—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, and Yehudi Menuhin, concert violinist. Running time, 10 minutes. K.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 92
(RKO)

Competent coverage of the available camera news is included in this issue, which should have general interest. The activity of civilian posses in Florida hunting for clews to the kidnaped Cash boy is still "live" news, and heads the reel. In second place is the I.C.4A. college track meet in New York, good for fast action. Intelligently, the editors have spaced the sport material, running the English Derby films in the usual last position. The narration on the latter might have been more "peppy."

The new sky-liner is seen in her taxi tests on Puget Sound, and an exclusive pictures the wedding of Supreme Court Justice Roberts' daughter, with other court members in attendance. A combination of clips effectively pictures the clever Chicago fireworks display with which a national Chinese relief drive was launched, and shows Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the Chinese leader, in Hankow, about to broadcast an international plea for funds to aid the Chinese. President Roosevelt is pictured awarding their diplomas to the Annapolis graduates of 1938. Running time, 9 mins. A.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 673
(Universal)

The nine items in this issue are well presented and hold interest throughout.

The graduation ceremonies at Annapolis with President Roosevelt handing out the diplomas opens the reel. The new Boeing flying boat encounters a slight mishap during its water trials at Seattle. Chinese residents of Chicago put on a spectacular fireworks show in a relief drive. Frederick B. Snipe, infantile paralysis victim, is moved in an "iron lung" to Chicago. The Cash kidnaping at Princeton, Fla., has good coverage. The recent Mexican revolt shows various captured leaders under guard. There is an ominous note about the views. President Cardenas, however, is seen at a festival at San Luis Potosi, the scene of the uprising, and everyone in camera-range seems to be having a good time. The Congressional "Alfalfa Club" has its annual outing at Frederick, Md. A track meet at Randall's Island stadium is effectively covered but the chief sporting event is the English Derby at Epsom with Bois Roussel staging a remarkable surge across the finish line. The last was caught with a telephoto lens which gives a thrilling closeup. Running time, 9½ mins. P.

bad lighting conditions, to determine its usefulness. Compared with the film of 10 years ago, this is said to be 40 times faster.

Movietone News conducted a similar expedition in 1929.

Arrangements for the present journey were completed by Mr. Talley, who is due back from abroad in a week. In a transatlantic telephone call with his local office yesterday, Mr. Talley told also of plans to expand the Movietone coverage abroad, with staff bases established in Italian Libya, Istamboul and Morocco. Previously, Athens has been Movietone's outpost in the east. From these points, cameramen will cover a wide territory by plane, as far as India.

Mr. Talley believes a truce in the Spanish war will be declared soon, and that the country will be divided into two parts as a result of British intervention. European staff men are seeing service with the Franco forces, and permission is being sought to assign a cameraman to the Loyalist army.

Since the recent developments in Czechoslovakia, the Prague crew has been augmented, with Paul Martelliere transferred from Paris to assist Count Hans von Pebal.

His first trip will be to San Francisco, his former headquarters, in three weeks, partially for the purpose of making arrangements for a long stay in New York.

While the appointment is permament, Mr. Wobber expressed a desire to return to his home in San Francisco as soon as Mr. Kent can select

Czechoslovak Film Treaty Eases Import Restrictions

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Provisions of the reciprocal motion picture trade agreement with Czechoslovakia were made public by the State Department tonight. The pact was signed at Praha last month. It will become effective June 1 and continue in force until terminated by either country upon six months' notice.

The only charges to be imposed upon American films imported into Czechoslovakia are to be the import duty of 1,200 crowns per hundred kilos and the import permit fees, plus a charge of 500 crowns for features and 120 crowns for shorts to cover the costs of importing films in bond, screening them before the Film Advisory Committee and all other fees.

The import permit fee for features will be 17,500 crowns for the first print or negative and 0.15 crowns per running meter for every additional print. For every eight features imported, one dubbed film may be en-

Hearings Near Close on New Plan for RKO

Final Argument Will Be Presented June 14

Hearings on the proposed amended plan of reorganization for RKO before Special Master George W. Alger approached a speedy finish as testimony was virtually completed at yesterday's session. A short hearing will be held today and argument on the plan will proceed on June 14.

Oliver McMahon, RKO comptroller, brought figures produced at last year's hearing up to date. He testified that fixed charges totalling approximately $1,300,000 annually had been eliminated under the proposed amendments. This figure included $700,000 interest on debentures, $480,000 dividends on preferred stock and the balance for sinking fund reserves. Objection was made to the inclusion of preferred stock dividends in fixed charges, but the figure was permitted to stand.

McMahon said he doubted whether these charges could have been met under present earnings. No margin of safety would have been left if such charges were paid, he testified.

Special Master Alger emphasized the necessity for sneed, and urged obtorneys to minimize the amount of ◆ United Artists' Sam Cohen has three precocious moppets. Teddy, his eldest, played hookey from school one day recently. With another crony he was playing ball in a marshy section near Mt. Vernon, where just the week before a child had been lost in a bog. Ted, reaching for a high one, fell into the sand.

His yells brought WPA workers with ropes and he was rescued forthwith. Taken into the workmen's shack by a kindly engineer, Teddy submitted to a shower, a brushoff, and some chocolate bars. Then he was sent home by car.

Cohen, Sr., didn't learn the payoff until Teddy's rescuer called that evening to report. "He took the shower and the chocolate, all right, but when I tried to get him into the car he raised an awful rumpus," related the engineer. "Yelled and screamed that his parents had forbidden him to ride in cars with strangers who might be kidnappers." Pop's face is still red.

◆ Morton Gill Clark, socialite author of "Captains Outrageous," has often been hailed as Errol Flynn's double by his intimates. He shares Flynn's hobbies of writing and sailing, too. Martha Deane proclaimed the likeness publicly over the air and a major studio remembered it had screen tested Clark when he returned two years ago from the South Seas yachting trip adventures he has just authored. But the test has been lost and Clark won't take another.

testimony offered. He stated that the objections attack the form of the amended plan and its fairness, and told the opposition to confine itself to briefs and oral argument.

E. H. Wolfes, an over-the-counter securities dealer, testified that a market had already been created for the new RKO securities as proposed under the amended plan. Forty-five bid and 55 asked has been established for the proposed new preferred, and five bid and five and three-quarters asked for the proposed new common, according to Mr. Wolfes. Under cross-examination, Mr. Wolfes admitted that he was unable to name any of the bidders, or to name any actual transactions at these figures. He insisted, however, that the prices represented actual current bids in the over-the-counter market on a when, as, and if issued basis.

Bernard Bercu of L. Gottheimer & Co., accountants, took the stand on behalf of the Independent Stockholders' Protective Committee, to bring the opposition's figures up to date. An objection that the basis of these figures was rejected in Special Master Alger's first report was overruled.

Delay Possible

A possibility that serious delay might be encountered was revealed when H. C. Rickaby, attorney for Atlas Corp., proponent of the plan, asked the special master to request the intervention of the U. S. Attorney General in the proceedings. Rickaby based his plea on the fact that Nathan Rosenberg, attorney for H. Cassell & Co., holders of $200,000 in debentures, had filed objections attacking the constitutionality of the proposed plan. After some discussion, Rosenberg promised to reconsider and perhaps to withdraw his constitutional objections at a later date. Rosenberg contends that the debenture holders cannot be deprived of their security. It was conceded yesterday that the debentures now cover 80 to 90 per cent of all RKO assets.

An effort to re-call RKO officials who forecasted probable 1938 earnings at last year's hearings was squelched by the special master who stated that he was through with "prognostication and guesses."

Cross-examination of McMahon was reserved until today to permit counsel to examine financial statements submitted yesterday. John Stover, attorney for Ernest Strin, Class A stockholder, will be given an opportunity to present testimony June 14. All other testimony has been concluded.

Film Council to Meet

London, June 8.—The first meeting of the new Films Council, as established under the provisions of the 1938 Films Act, will be held about the middle of June, according to Sir Frederick Whyte, chairman. Meetings will be held frequently, he indicated. The membership of the body has not yet been completed, with respect to the members from outside the industry.

tered free. The permit fee for other dubbed versions is 6,000 crowns for the first print of negative and 0.15 crowns per meter for additional prints. Shorts and newsreels are to be free of import permit fees but the 0.15 crown charge will be imposed on prints thereof.

The Czech Government is to accord American pictures the same distribution and exhibition rights granted to any other foreign film, or, except for the compulsory showing of native films, to domestic pictures, while the American Government is to accord Czech films the same treatment as accorded our own pictures.

No Import, Customs Quota

No import or customs quota or any other form of limitation on number is to be imposed by either government on the films of the other.

American pictures submitted for Czech censorship will not be required to have Czech titles, but such titles will have to be submitted in writing and the picture presented with titles after it has been approved.

American films may be dubbed into the Czechoslovak language in either country.

Stay Hits Local 306, State's Labor Board

Marking what is said to be the first setback suffered by the N. Y. State Labor Relations Board within the film industry of the Metropolitan territory, the Appellate Division yesterday upheld the Long Island Theatres Corp. against the board and Local 306, granting the corporation a stay without the necessity of posting the $12,000 bond which the labor board had requested.

The labor board and Local 306 were denied their request for the reinstatement of projectionists who participated in a sitdown strike in the corporation's theatres some time ago. Rejected also was their request that operators now working in the theatres be replaced.

Garden Loses "U" Suit

Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora yesterday dismissed the suit of Madison Square Garden against Universal Pictures Corp. in which the plaintiff had sought an accounting of the profits and an injunction against the exhibition of "Idol of the Crowd," alleging that Universal had attempted to deceive the public into believing that the hockey scenes used in the picture were depicting Rangers in action in Madison Sq. Garden.

Ascap to Continue State Law Contests

Ascap will continue its policy of contesting in the Federal courts all state legislation enacted to bar the music licensing society from operating, chairman of the administrative committee, told the 450 members of the organization at the annual meeting in the Ritz-Carlton last night.

The organization is anxious to have a final test of the legislation enacted in four states brought to the U. S. Supreme Court, it was said. The most recent anti-Ascap legislation was passed by the Louisiana Senate a week ago.

The annual reports of Gene Buck, president, and John G. Paine, general manager, and other officers were given to the meeting. The treasurer's report indicated current receipts of the society are at a normal level and may approximate $2,000,000 for the first six months.

Hess, Wm. Rodgers Are Heard at Fargo

W. F. Rodgers, New York, sales manager for M-G-M, gave testimony calculated to show the extremely high competition in all fields of the industry. He said the lowest cost of an M-G-M picture in recent years was $190,000, the highest $2,800,000, the average about $700,000. He said M-G-M demands that its pictures play the best houses and that $100,000 has been paid for rental on a first run, the picture probably licensing for as low as $10 later. The majority of exhibitors pay less rental on a film than the actual cost of the print, he said.

Continue Fight for High Power Grants

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Supported by more than 50 exhibits, representatives of the "Clear Channel Group" today continued their fight for superpower before the F.C.C. Committee on New Broadcasting Regulations.

Presenting a mass of tabulations, graphs and charts, J. H. DeWitt, Jr., of station WSM, Nashville, chairman of the Engineering Committee of the group, spent most of the day in a technical explanation of his research to determine the effect upon smaller stations and the public of powers in excess of 50 kilowatts.

Only two courses are open to the commission in its effort to provide adequate service for all listeners in the country, DeWitt said. One is to increase the power of the existing stations, the other to increase the number of stations. The latter, he said, is impossible to any substantial degree because of the lack of broadcasting frequencies.

If clear channels were abolished and attempt made to cover the country with service only from regional stations, 570 additional stations would be required; 100 frequencies would be needed to accommodate the necessary number of stations to give the listener only one program and 300 frequencies to give him a choice of three. The total expenditure in new stations to give a one-program service would be over $41,000,000, he said. On the other hand, he pointed out, the use of super-power will give a choice of programs to practically every section of the country at a much lower cost.

DeWitt expressed the opinion that super-power would not tend to increase duplication or change listeners' habits.

HELD OVER!
Held Over!
Held Over!
HELD OVER!

NEW YORK
Reviewers say:
There does not seem as if a substitute for Valentino has appeared in Hollywood as yet.

CLEVELAND
Reviewers say:
Valentino's personality still breathes the same vitality as in 1926. The beauty of the desert is splendidly portrayed.

BALTIMORE
Reviewers say:
Convincing proof is furnished in Valentino's picture to warrant theatres holding the picture over . . . the crowds proved that . . . and it is a picture that is worth seeing, one that is entertaining and fast moving.

CHICAGO
Reviewers say:
In the acting of Valentino there is an undated quality that goes as well today as fifteen years ago. Valentino's charm is probably the same that made Cleopatra fall for Mark Anthony.

PHILADELPHIA
Reviewers say:
His dark, handsome face, his potent personality, the magnetism that won feminine devotion all over the country—in metropolitan centers and down to the tiniest hamlet able to boast of a movie house.

BOSTON
Reviewers say:
"The Son of the Sheik" proved too prosperous to budge. No such glamour has appeared since. Valentino draws the crowds.

WASHINGTON
Reviewers say:
"The Son of the Sheik" is sheer romance . . . the main interest Rudolph Valentino's good looks. Another interest, the absorbing attention the audience gave to the picture. Valentino seems to answer a definite need in the movies.

AND . . PLAYING "BOX OFFICE" SELL-OUTS IN FIFTY OTHER KEY CITIES . . .

Once again the great Valentino lives and loves, and moves the hearts of millions—in this supreme screen achievement of impassioned romance, set in the wilds of the great Sahara.

Powerful and primitive in its appeal to the emotions, beautifully set against a symphonic background of melody and sound, the "Son of the Sheik" is the very essence of human drama.

VARIETY says . . . Chicago.

Business in the loop currently is being led by two widely opposed types of entertainment. One is the ultra-modern swing stuff of Tommy Dorsey orchestra on the stage of the Chicago . . . the other is a 16-year-old picture, "Son of the Sheik" in the small Garrick.

Actually the best pace in town is the Valentino revival, which is dragging in every type of trade, men and youngsters as well as the femmes.

Hollywood, June 9.—The earnings of United Artists for first five months of 1938 amounted to $1,140,000, after taxes, as compared with $242,000 for the corresponding period of 1937, according to information obtained at the headquarters of the company here today. Petitions Being Sent to Heads of All Major Companies

Petitions urging immediate action in putting a trade practice regulation program into force will be addressed to the president of every major distribution company by territorial exhibitor organizations throughout the country within the next few weeks, it was learned here yesterday.

The move began simultaneously this spring with petitions already having been addressed to company heads by three regional exhibitor organizations not affiliated with either of the two national organizations, M.P.T.O.A. and Allied States. The regional organizations are M.P.T.O. of Virginia, West Virginia Managers Association and the M.P.T.O. of Iowa.

This week, the Southeastern T.O.A. at its annual convention in Chattanooga authorized similar action by the officers of that M.P.T.O.A. unit and, in addition, approved a resolution recommending the national organization's 10-point plan as the one best suited for adoption by the industry. 'Twas Perfect Day for Golf So a Record Crowd Tried It

By J. M. JERAULD

It was a perfect day for golf—bright sun, gentle breezes, temperature just right for sitting around and watching them get out of sand traps. Therefore, there were about 200 cases of sunburn and approximately 30 coats of tan at the end of the 26th annual golf tournament of The Film Daily played yesterday at the Glen Oaks Country Club, Great Neck. The tans were owned by the regular golfers.

It was the biggest turnout yet at one of these affairs and the attendance at the dinner was still larger.

Says U.S. Players No Aid to British

Hitchcock maintains this is a different matter, since production was by an American organization, and it would be difficult for a purely British company to repeat the performance.

Mr. Hitchcock believes that the production of better quality English films by American companies under the new quota requirements will not create a trend for wholesale importation of Hollywood players as a commercial matter, but that talent will be brought over if needed to fill a particular part.

He does not agree with Samuel Goldwyn and others who have warned Hollywood to be on guard against French production, which, it is contended, may become a competitor. French pictures, he says, are too local in their appeal and in England and here attract limited audiences.

This will be Mr. Hitchcock's first trip to Hollywood since he started making pictures 18 years ago. His plans for American production will have to be deferred for another year, he says, because of his English commitments. He is to direct a Charles Laughton film for Mayflower, affiliate of G. B., and will make two more for G. B. later. He will probably also direct a film for 20th Century-Fox.

get requirements by $594,437. It was made clear, however, that these payments did not affect earnings.

John Stover, attorney for Stirn, questioned the witness about the reasons for the omission of receipts from the Music Hall and Center Theatres in some of the annual reports, and the inclusion of these figures during other years, but no reason was given. It was also brought out that depreciation for theatre operations of RKO totaled approximately $1,500,000 annually.

Nathan Rosenberg, attorney for H. Cassell & Co., independent debenture holder, stated that he still has under consideration the question of pressing his claim that the plan violates the United States Constitution. He said a definite decision would be made before argument on the plan took place.

in similar positions who already have testified.

Other rebuttal witnesses of the plaintiffs included Sigrid Grand, Jamestown, N. D., owner of the Opera House; Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president and theatre head; Austin C. games an hour later. In the meantime, Jack Harrower dashed off literature and Don Mersereau figured out the scores with the aid of an adding machine.

There was some good playing — everybody agreed on that — but it wasn't near the 18th hole. About 100 kibitzers scattered around on the hilltop close to the clubhouse and placed bets on who would make putts in two or three or four, or who would get out of a sand trap in two or three or four. One man lost $40 on a putt and Herb Fecke drove across the green twice to an accompaniment of cheers and groans.

One foursome made up of Ray Gallagher, Ted Sullivan, Roy Winkler and Ken Aneser played for $4 a hole. At the finish Gallagher and Sullivan owed $35. They made it double or nothing. It was double. Gallagher figured $70 would be easier to remember if he ever decides to pay it.

Players Well Shirted

Charlie Casanave came over a hill in a robin's egg blue shirt. It was a sensation in the evening light and all the hilltop spectators began to bet on him. He messed up a sand trap a bit. Joe Hornstein had on a yellow shirt which made him a favorite. Arthur Lee had trouble with his putting. His belt buckle got in his way, or something. Mitchell May, who has a reputation as a golfer, was a regular Seabiscuit to the bettors but he bounced a ball into a sand trap and excavated it in four strokes.

"Maybe he had a hard night and doesn't care," suggested the losers who had been taking the long end of the bets.

Twenty men played tennis — for some reason or other.

"Three Blind Mice"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, June 9.—Studded with marquee names and packaged in the best 20th Century-Fox wrappings, the plot about the poor girl who poses as rich to catch a rich husband and the poor boy who does likewise is played out in triplicate, divertingly and with wholly agreeable results in this brisk, polished summer comedy. With such personalities as Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, David Niven, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Weaver, Pauline Moore, Binnie Barnes and Franklin Pangborn giving the picture their competent best, it is hard to believe it can miss.

William A. Seiter directed from a screenplay by Brown Holmes and Lynn Starling which goes back to a play by Stephen Powys. Lew Pollack and Sidney D. Mitchell contributed a catchy theme song that will probably get itself into the hit parade. Associate Producer Raymond Griffith imparted to the proceedings something of the suavity which distinguished him as an actor in silent films, the David Niven of now closely approaching the Griffith of then in manner and humorous effectiveness.

Most of the action takes place at Santa Barbara, with Del Monte and a California rancho accounting for the rest. To these swank environs from Kansas come three sisters in quest of wealthy husbands. They mistake the impoverished McCrea for wealthy and rich Niven for a fortune hunter. Complications multiply without becoming confused and much amusing dialogue and many genuinely laughable situations are put by before the final explanations and clinches. The film is prefectly timed for June release.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"When Were You Born?"

(First National)

Mystery melodrama with the emphasis on the astrological is offered here. The film seems to be made to order for exploitation and the alert exhibitor in telling his patrons via advertising that no matter what month they were born in they will hear something about themselves as the story unwinds.

Astrology as it is known today is presented as an interesting excursion into half-science, half circumstantial deduction. Manley Hall, an astrologer, wrote the original story and appears in the prologue giving an explanation of his subject. The creative writing on his part injects his forte with fair coherence into the plot. At any rate the film is entertainment of a new and different sort which should, in addition, give audiences something to think about, not unpleasantly.

Anna May Wong is cast as a Chinese astrologist who becomes involved in a murder case due to her predictions. She interests the police with her charts and methods and they enlist her aid in tracking the killer. In good time he is apprehended, but not before the story has run a reliable course of suspense and action. Margaret Lindsay, Lola Lane, Anthony Averill, Charles Wilson, Frank Jacquet, Leonard Mudie, Maurice Cass and a number of other character players give good characterizations. The story is a bit on the talkative side. The story is set in San Francisco. William McGann directed.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Ad. Libs

A Lather

Nat M. Williams, operator of the Rose at Thomasville, Ga., believes that no advertising is effective unless it gets across a slant which stays with the prospective patron. Carrying out his theory after installing Carrier Air Conditioning in the Rose, Williams took space in all the newspapers in his territory to make an offer of "50 cents to any fat lady who can work up a lather after our new air cooling system has been turned on." Needless to say, the Rose's air conditioner was the talk of the state for months.

Charles E. McCarthy and Arch Reeve believe that nothing but "big time stuff is good enough for the ads on the 20th Century-Fox shorts. So Armando, who swings a mean brush on caricatures and is a big name in art circles, has been retained to do the art work.

On Parade

Ten marching "Yellow Jacks" are being used by Oscar Doob's exploiteers on "Yellow Jack." Ten six-footers dressed in tropical costumes, white shoes with yellow socks, yellow shorts, bush coats and yellow sun helmets, are attracting attention in the neighborhood of the circuit's theatres, ball games, race tracks and other places where there are crowds. Ten-foot yellow letters on black backgrounds on the back of each coat spell out: "Yellow Jack." The fever may spread.

It's June

The bridal season being on, Joan Gaynee, assistant to Fred Bullock, head of the 20th Century-Fox department, was honored by a surprise luncheon at the Park Central yesterday to honor her marriage on June 18 to Arthur Richard Cushman, a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy and prospective lawyer. Thirty-three members of the home office staff attended and several gifts were presented the bride-to-be. The couple will reside in Charlottesville, Va.

Posies

That was a neat trick by Al Margolies of G. B., in sending out those big, handsome gardenias, with a card enclosed pointing out that "3 on a Weekend" is playing at the Continental. It was a tieup with a Flowers, Inc., which makes it all the better.

Close Filmarte Sunday

The Filmarte will close for the summer after the performance of Sunday. The house will reopen in September, continuing its policy of foreign films.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 78
(20th Century-Fox)

Good action shots of the Japanese bombardment and capture of Suchow have the opening position in this release. Jersey City's demonstration in support of Mayor Frank Hague is an interesting glimpse of a much-discussed situation. There are shots of the successful trial flight of the huge new Douglas airliner just completed at Santa Monica, and of Cordell Hull making a plea for world peace and understanding.

Sidney R. Kent at the I. A. T. S. E. Cleveland convention with George Browne and William Green; the Alfred G. Vanderbilt wedding and a pre-wedding posing of John Roosevelt and his fiancee, Anne Lindsay Clark, are among the "names in the news." In the sports section are training camp glimpses of Joe Louis and Max Schmeling, surfboard riding at Venice, Calif., and diving exhibitions at Los Angeles. Hydraulic mining for California gold finds a place in the reel and Lew Lehr has fun with a girls' cross country race. Good news and entertainment material, in all, which matches the high production standards of this reel. Running time, 10 mins. K.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 276
(M-G-M)

Diversified material and the light touch where it helps the most make this an excellent release. The intensity of the Japanese attack in China is impressively pictured in the bombardment and occupation of Suchow. There are some good shots of the Alfred G. Vanderbilt wedding party on Long Island which should interest the socially minded, and of John Roosevelt and his fiancee at the latter's Massachusetts country home. The 42-passenger Douglas airliner gets a flat tire for the cameraman just before its takeoff on a trial flight and then completes a successful spin over southern California.

The film industry's amicable relations with labor get a place in the reel when the camera finds Sidney Kent, William Green and George Browne together at the I. A. T. S. E. convention in Cleveland. The Shriners' rodeo show during their Los Angeles convention, shots of the Max Schmeling and Joe Louis training camps and of the Queens County Handicap at Aqueduct, won by War Admiral, make up the sports section, completing the reel. Good material, well photographed, narrated and edited. Running time, 9 mins. K.

(Paramount)

Mayor Hague demonstrates he is a showman in this issue. His Americanism parade in Jersey City, with flares along the streets, searchlights, huge electric signs, waving flags, etc., seems to indicate in a big way that his home town is behind him in his fight to keep radicals out of the community.

The remainder of the reel has varied appeal. John Roosevelt and his fiancee, Anne Lindsay Clark, are shown in a variety of poses; Alfred G. Vanderbilt's wedding to Manuela Hudson is presented, and some assorted poses of Max Schmeling and Joe Louis in training for their next fight are presented. Louis talks in one scene.

One of the spectacular clips is the first flight of the huge four-motored Douglas airliner. It is an impressive sight. China is covered from the Japanese side of the fighting, the commentator making it clear that the shots were made by the Japanese army and censored before being sent to this country. Running time, 9 mins. J.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 93
(RKO)

Exclusive scenes of the recent bombardment of Canton by Japanese airmen rushed to this country by fortunate trans-oceanic connections, showing the destruction, death and panic in the Chinese city leads this number. In pictorial content they compare with the best newsreel coverage given the Oriental conflict to date. The accompanying narration is potently worded, stressing the inhumanity of war on innocent noncombatants. Photographer A. T. Hull's camera has given the reel material with which showmen should be able to attract attention.

Other material in the reel includes scenes of the participation in the Harlan, Ky., labor union case, Max Schmeling and Joe Louis in training, Jersey City's Mayor Hague and his "Americanism" parade, John Roosevelt and his fiancee at Nahant, Mass., William Green, Sidney R. Kent and George Browne at the Cleveland I.A.T.S.E. convention; the new Douglas DC-4 in trial flight and War Admiral defeating Snark in the Queens County Handicap. Running time, 9½ mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 674
(Universal)

This reel makes up in versatility and variety what it may lack in significant or sensational news, with 14 clips crowded into its length. Darting here and there with no waste motion, the issue offers an interesting series of glimpses of what is going on.

In order of appearance, the reel pictures: the Shriners' parade in Los Angeles; the test of the new Douglas transport on the coast; Italy's King reviewing troops in Africa, including the hard riding desert cavalry; Mayor Hague leading his personal parade in Jersey City; Sidney R. Kent, William Green and George E. Browne at the I.A.T.S.E. convention in Cleveland; a cyclist's memorial service in England; West Point cadets getting tank instruction in Maryland; Annapolis boys off on their summer cruise; John Roosevelt posing with his fiancee; a bathing suit preview in Rockefeller Plaza; Max Schmeling and Joe Louis seen in action at their training camps; Olympic divers in a Los Angeles exhibition, and War Admiral winning a close race at Aqueduct. designate others to board membership in their places as a result of the impending removal of all United Artists executive and administration functions to New York from Beverly Hills. In this connection, it was reported that James Mulvey was expected to be designated as Mr. Goldwyn's representative; Edward C. Raftery as Miss Pickford's representative; Sir Connop Guthrie for Alexander Korda, and either Dennis F. O'Brien or another eastern representative for Mr. Fairbanks. Future meetings of the board will be held here.

Murray Silverstone, chairman of the executive committee, who is en route here from Hollywood, will not become a member of the board because of specific limitations in his contract with the company, it was learned. Mr. Silverstone will attend the United Artists sales convention at the Waldorf-Astoria, Monday, and will sail for England Wednesday on the Normandie to wind up his affairs in London preparatory to establishing his headquarters at the home office here.

WPA Film Project Urged by Voorhis

without competing with commercial exhibitors.

The suggested public forums, to be organized by the Federal Office of Education, would be required to pay rental for use of films produced by the WPA, thus making the project self-sustaining.

"Something must be done about the thousands of unemployed moving picture workers," Voorhis said. "It is an inexcusable neglect of a great opportunity for our nation to put them on direct relief or some project where their talents cannot be used.

"The non-labor cost of making pictures is unquestionably high. On the other hand, it is my belief that the whole cost can be met out of revenues derived from the rental of the films which might be produced and that this could be done without competing in any way."

Frederick Feher will be producer and conductor. Mr. Feher and I. M. Nobel, head of the company, will arrive tomorrow from conferences in New York with Barney Balaban.

Harmony Keynotes Close of I. A. Meet to make in the absence of any grievances, also that except for one incident harmony was maintained throughout the entire conclave.

This exception concerned a resolution to return complete autonomy to studio locals which was sponsored by Jeff Kibre for I. A. progressives. Harsh words and invective came when Irwin Hentschel spoke for a resolution charging International mismanagement and intimidation of Local 37. The charges were answered by Harry Holmden, who produced evidence that Mr. Hentschel held communication with Harry Bridges, indicating C.I.O. affiliation. The resolution charged the International with levying special assessments and spending without membership consultation, disregard of constitutional provisions relating to membership, absence of proper new member qualifications, progressive deterioration of working conditions creating a critical wave of unemployment, attempts to expand a semi-industrial studio scope thereby arousing the hostility of other categories of workers and other flagrant charges.

Holmden, Bioff Upheld

Mr. Holmden's report discredited the Hentschel attack and resulted in a motion by William P. Raoul, Atlanta delegate, that the convention go on record to endorse and approve the action of William Bioff and Mr. Holmden in handling the studio locals under International supervision. The motion passed unanimously with a rising vote of confidence in the officers. Mr. Hentschel requested permission to withdraw this resolution prior to its presentation. The request was refused by the Resolutions Committee.

Complete unionization of New York theatres is anticipated as the result of a resolution that whereas continued International assistance is necessary to effect this condition I. A. T. S. E. should use its offices to accomplish complete unionization. George E. Browne promised continued International support.

Other resolutions, either referred to the general office or recommended for concurrence, were to empower this convention to provide group life insurance for individual membership, endorsement of the present International administration, notice to United States War Department requesting post theatres be restricted to enlisted men with union operators on the ground that admittance of the public provides unfair competition to private theatre enterprises and, finally, opposition to all forms of propaganda on the screen.

California Measure Hit

The committee further recommended concurrence in a resolution stipulating that the alliance go on record to defeat the proposed initiative measure in California, which proposes curtailment and regulation of labor unions together with a requirement of incorporation. All local unions affiliated with the alliance in California will be apprised of details of this measure.

The committee recommended nonconcurrence in a resolution relative to international quarantines as being political in nature. The resolution demanding a union label on all films produced by I. A. members, including newsreels, shorts and commercial subjects, was referred to the executive board. Support of the Sirovich bill was recommended.

One of the most important resolutions offered by the committee provides that the I. A. T. S. E. declares itself opposed to the inclusion of guilds under the National Labor Relations Board and that proper steps be taken to declassify guilds as labor organizations and that the convention make demands on the American Federation of Labor to withdraw their charters and that copies of this reolution go to the N. L. R. B. and A. F. L.

NLRB Asks Names For Writers' Poll

HOLLYWOOD, June 9.—Dr. Towne Nylander, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, today asked the 18 studios involved in the forthcoming film writers collective bargaining election to submit to him names of writers eligible under the Board's findings to vote, whether Screen Playwrights or the Screen Writers Guild be their choice of agency. Only those on payroll as of today are eligible.

Meanwhile, Leonard S. Janofsky, attorney for the Guild, today petitioned Federal Court judges here to be notified immediately should Screen Playwrights and/or producers seek an injunction to prevent the writers' vote, the date for which will be decided upon by Dr. Nylander June 14 at a conference of the organizations involved.

Joseph M. Schenck, head of the Producers Association, arrived today from New York and went into conference with Fred Beetson, Association executive secretary. Attorneys for the studios affected have tentatively scheduled a meeting for Monday to discuss the course of action to be taken.

Union-Studio Talks On Wages Uncertain

International unions which are signatories to the five-year basic agreement with major producers still are uncertain whether or not the annual meeting for negotiation of wage and hour changes will be held this year, it was learned yesterday.

Several of the internationals are reported to desire a meeting within the next few weeks but it is apparent that there is no unanimity of viewpoint among the signatories on the subject. Pat Casey, producers' labor representative, who has been expected in New York for the past several weeks, may not come east for some time yet due to the recent developments involving the Screen Writers' Guild and the Screen Playwrights.

Wage increases, even union spokesmen admit, are out of the question this year and inasmuch as there is little other business of a significant nature in view, there is a likelihood that the annual negotiations will be dispensed with.

AL COOK, radio editor of the World-Telegram, in his Tuesday column, noted that the preceding evening was a fat night on the radio, what with the Alfred Kreymborg production of "The Planets" on NBC and Joan Crawford in "A Doll's House" on CBS. It was a fat night for Mr. Cook, too, aside from the radio programs.

Both programs were on the air at the same time and that presented a dilemma, for the Telegram's able and conscientious air reporter wanted to review both productions. He solved the problem, however, by listening to the CBS show at home, and then chased over to NBC where a recording of "The Planets" was played back for him.

A corridor stroller noted Mr. Cook seated in lonely grandeur in the studio, and some minutes later in walked a waiter bearing a tray of cheese sandwiches and eight bottles of beer. And so thanks to John Royal, NBC's vice-president in charge of programs, who was our corridor stroller, Mr. Cook enjoyed a fat evening personally and on the air.

For some years preceding their Hollywood fame, the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, were regular members of the "Let's Pretend" cast, CBS children's show, and during those years "romance" bloomed between young Billy and little Vivian Block, another member of the cast.

Now back in New York, the Mauch boys the other day made a guest appearance in their alma mater program, and Miss Block, now a young lady of 16, chatted animatedly with Billy during rehearsal, discussing her childhood "romance" with him. It was some time before "Billy" broke down and told her he was really Bobby.

For some time now the production man on the "Hilltop House" show has been having fun with Frank Gallop, announcer, marking Gallop's copy of the script with such euphonious monikers as "Barbiroli Bimstein," "Chevalier de Rappaport" and the like.

Recently the production man was late, so the cast picked their own scripts out of the pile, but Gallop couldn't find his. It was there all right, but Gallop was so used to receiving scripts bearing dizzy appelations that he had difficulty locating the one which was marked simply, "Gallop."

This is what comes of sending a night club editor to cover a television broadcast. George Ross, the World-Telegram's White Way reporter was so impressed by the televised production of "Susan and God" that he excitedly ran about the studio looking for someone to take his order for an RCA television receiver. It was then that George learned that television, despite the recent ballyhoo, still hasn't rounded that well known corner.

F. C. C. Hears of Benefit to WLW From Super-Power

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The financial benefits accruing to WLW as a result of super-power operation were briefly touched upon today before the Federal Communications Commission committee on new broadcasting rules, but details were reserved for the hearing to be held on the station's application for extension of its permit, following the present investigation.

The cost of increasing power, it was testified by R. J. Rockwell, technical supervisor of the station, was $345,717, of which $330,906 was for transmitter equipment. With incidentals of various kinds the total cost of installing super-power was about $400,000. However, he admitted, the cost of equipment might be greater today for stations planning to jump from 50 to 500 kilowatts.

Rates Described

James H. Shouse, vice-president in charge of broadcasting, submitted figures on rates and finances of the station and explained the base one-hour event rate, after many fluctuations, went from $600 in December, 1933, to $1,200 in October, 1934, which figure has been maintained since. The increase, he insisted, was due to the considerably higher cost of super-power operation.

Efforts by commission counsel to cross-examine the Crosley officials regarding profits were objected to by Duke Patrick, counsel for the station, his objection being upheld by Chairman Case, who pointed out those details would be gone into during the hearing on the station's application.

Presentation of the clear channel group's argument on super-power was concluded by Dr. C. B. Jolliffe, who testified regarding the possibilities of interference with countries in Europe and South America should super-power be adopted. Because of differences in time and season, he said, there would be no serious interference.

Bill Would Restrict High Power Stations

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Prohibition against the use of network programs by stations with operating power in excess of 50 kilowatts is contained in a bill introduced in Congress by Representative Peterson (Dem.) of Florida.

Since only one station now operates with more than 50 kilowatts, the bill, which cannot receive consideration this session, would not affect the present broadcasting setup, but its enactment would limit the use of super-power to independent stations.

Thomas C. Butcher has been appointed head of the trade copy department at Benton & Bowles. Before he joined the agency a year ago, he was a trade copy writer at Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn.

Hits High Power

Washington, June 9.—Broadcasting station power in excess of 50 kilowatts was condemned today by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem.) of Montana.

Senator Wheeler introduced a resolution setting forth that in the view of the Senate super-power is not in the public interest. The resolution is designed to act as a warning to the Federal Communications Commission that it should not raise the present maximum power, one of the matters now under discussion before the F.C.C. committee on new rules for broadcasting stations.

McGill to Lecture On Radio at Iowa U

Earl McGill, CBS casting director and in charge of several of the network's programs, will leave tonight for Iowa City where he will deliver a two-week course on radio production at the University of Iowa. He probably will also produce some programs over WSAU, which is affiliated with the university.

Mr. McGill was invited to give the course by Dr. H. Clay Harshbarger of the university's department of speech, who was at Columbia on a Rockefeller Foundation scholarship several months ago and observed Mr. McGill's work during a visit to the studios.

On July 7, Mr. McGill will start a six-week course on radio program technique at New York University. He gave similar lectures there last year. He will also speak at the Midwest School Broadcast Conference in Chicago on July 19, in conjunction with a round table on the production of educational programs.

In a recent judging of broadcasts at Ohio State University, two of Mr. McGill's programs in the 26-week "Brave New World" series received first award and honorable mention. The series was directed to Pan-American goodwill. Three of his "School of the Air" broadcasts were also cited for awards.

The Hon. Conrado Traverso, Consul-General of Argentina in the United States, has consented to speak on the special short wave broadcast organized under the joint auspices of Teatro al Dia and the CBS international station W2XE, to be broadcast June 28 as a gesture of goodwill towards Argentina and the sister republics of Latin America.

The members of the Spanish American consular staff also have been invited.

National Will Add Houses to Coast Circuit

National Theatres is in the market for additional houses and, despite generally reported declining theatre grosses, has no plans for disposing of any of its units, an executive of the circuit said yesterday.

Fox West Coast, the far west division of National Theatres, will shortly start construction of four theatres, all neighborhoods. One will be in Los Angeles and will require a shift in zoning and policy. Another will go up in Fresno, as a neighborhood first run, and two are planned between Oakland and Berkeley. The four units will represent an investment of $600,000, according to Charles A. Buckley, vice-president of Fox West Coast.

No general expansion program is under way, but the circuit will add theatres where they can be acquired advantageously. This spokesman said the policy is not confined to National Theatres, but that all large circuits are willing to make additions despite business conditions. If a good theatre is losing money under its present operation, a circuit would be willing

U.A. to List 30 Features: Shorts Series

Two from Selznick; Five From Goldwyn Named

United Artists will announce a schedule of 30 features and 12 Technicolor shorts at its first sales meeting, which will open at the Waldorf-Astoria this morning.

The schedule includes only the final two features remaining to be delivered by David O. Selznick on his current contract, although the impression is that this producer will renew his releasing deal with the company, in which case he might contribute two or three additional pictures. No mention is made of the $1,000,000 feature which Douglas Fairbanks said recently he planned to make in London for new season release.

The list of 30 is made up of five features each from Samuel Goldwyn, Alexander Korda, Walter Wanger and Edward Small; eight from Hal Roach, including four Laurel and Hardy fea-

Holmden Says Guilds Rated As Employers

Declares IATSE Wants Only "Wage-Earners"

The I.A.T.S.E. will not claim jurisdiction over stars and other high-salaried talent, whom it characterizes as "employers" because of their participations in profits and their "astronomical salaries," but will press its claims to jurisdiction over "wage earners," Harland Holmden, third vice-president, declared in a statement issued over the weekend at the request of MOTION PICTURE DAILY for a clarification of the I.A.'s jurisdictional policy.

"The I.A.T.S.E. has never claimed jurisdiction over employers, and many of the members of the Screen Actors Guild and other socalled guilds are employers because of their share in the profits of production," Mr. Holmden stated. His reference to "other so-called guilds" is believed to include the Screen Writers and Directors guilds.

"These people," Mr. Holmden's statement continues, "are partners of the producers. Our claim is over the wage-earner who is seeking to make a livelihood for his family and not over the star who is making $200,000 a year and wants $300,000 and is using the mass of workers for his selfish

Seeks Injunction on Use of 20th Century

F. Gilbert Pollay, trading as 20th Century Music Publishers, filed suit yesterday against 20th Century-Fox and 20th Century Music Corp., subsidiary of Fox, seeking to restrain the use of the title 20th Century or Twentieth Century by the defendants.

Pollay claims in his complaint that he adopted his trade name in 1913 and that he has used that title continuously since then in the sale of sheet music and musical instruments throughout the greater part of the United States. He asserted that prior to 1935 and 1936 neither of the defendants used the title Twentieth Century, but since then have attempted to prevent him from registering his trade name in the U. S. Patent Office, claiming infringement. Fox's title dates from its registration in the U. S. Patent Office June 22, 1936, under Trade Mark No. 336,090, when it was secured, the plaintiff contends, in violation of his rights. In addition to an injunction restraining the defendants from the use of the title 20th Century, Pollay asked for damages.

She is as good to look at as a well serviced press has taught the public to expect and a good deal more talented. The spontaneity of response displayed by a largely paying premiere audience indicates that the lady is, to use the Hollywood phrase, in.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Helen Broderick, Mischa Auer, Louis Hayward and Charles Coleman are the players most helpful to the importee in about that order. Producer B. G. De Sylva and Director Henry Koster handled the story and screenplay by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson in a manner to bring out all of the star's best points without placing the whole burden on her shapely shoulders nor yet upon those other ornamental anatomical features emphasized by the photographers. It is as an actress rather than mere beauty that Mademoiselle Darrieux is presented to her new public.

The place is New York and the time is now. Mademoiselle Darrieux enters the picture as a French girl out of work whose attempt to hire out as a model to the rich Fairbanks fails comically. Miss Broderick proposes to Head Waiter Auer that he finance Mlle. Darrieux in her impersonation of a wealthy French girl for the purpose of winning the rich Hayward for her husband. Hayward's friend, Fairbanks, seeks to disillusion him and is repeatedly outwitted, ultimately falling in love with and marrying her himself.

The action is smooth, brisk and effective. The humor is principally that of situation and dialogue with only minor and momentary resort to slapstick. Exploitation emphasizing the star as an imported comedienne of extraordinary attainment is clearly indicated.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Loyola Univ. Gives Quigley Honor Degree

upon its exhibition. So vast is its audience, and so complex in character, that it challenges the best thought of our times.

"A medium so importantly a part of the lives of so many millions of the world's people could not carry on without proper direction and sound guidance. Thus it comes about that Loyola University has the opportunity to single out for conspicuous acclaim a man who, almost unaided, has done more to insure acceptable moral standards in motion pictures than any person anywhere.

"Here is a man who has given over a life time to a study of the many problems suggested by the universal appeal of motion pictures. Almost from the inception of the art he was quick to sense the dangers which lie, sinister like, in this new and glamorous form of popular entertainment.

Code Called "Working Guide"

"He it was who conceived and, later, saw to the preparation, of the motion picture Production Code of Ethics which is now the Magna Charta that serves as a practical working guide of moral principles for those engaged in the production of motion pictures in the United States.

"He it is who 'fought the good fight' for decency in motion pictures, for proper moral standards by which these pictures can be made to entertain without, at the same time, perverting those principles of Christian morality upon which great nations must build if they are to survive.

"A distinguished editor and a successful publisher, with a trenchant pen and a courageous heart, he has been the leader in the movement which has resulted in those finer things that now distinguish our American-made motion pictures. His was the voice that pointed out the dangers by which the wrong kind of motion pictures served to imperil public morals. At the same time he was the first to provide a practical working scheme which would remove from these films the elements that tend to corrupt and to debase.

Idealism Cited

"A man of unimpeachable personal character, possessed of a kind of integrity which is all too rare in these days of confused thought and rampant commercialism; a man of culture; a man of intense Christian idealism, Loyola University counts it a distinct privilege to confer the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Literature upon Martin Quigley."

Following the citation there was read a telegram from Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati in which the prelate commended Loyola and its president, Rev. Charles MacQuillen, for recognition of Mr. Quigley's contribution to the betterment of the industry. The message said:

"That the president and faculty of Loyola University have recognized Mr. Martin Quigley by conferring on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature will merit the commendation of all informed persons. His sterling qualities of mind and heart, his militant idealism, his consecration to duty, his stern refusal to compromise with wrong, his long struggle to make the cinema sane, wholesome entertainment, have been an inspiration to all who know Mr. Quigley best."

First Publication in 1915

Mr. Quigley's career began with service as a reporter on newspapers in his native Cleveland, in Detroit and in Chicago, where, starting in the early years of the modern feature era of the screen, he began the building of his line of motion picture publications, the first of which, Exhibitors Herald, dated from 1915, the antecedent of his Motion Picture Herald, an international weekly in which several early and contemporary publications were merged with the first publication. He also publishes Motion Picture Daily in New York, and two reference annuals, Motion Picture Almanac and Fame.

The movement for and concept of the Production Code under which the motion picture industry of America now operates began with Mr. Quigley's efforts of 1929, leading subsequently to the adoption of the Code by Hollywood's producer organization early in 1930 and, in June of 1934, to the special instrumentation of the document by the establishment of the Production Code Administration of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., with Joseph I. Breen as the administrator.

Mr. Quigley's advocacy of the Production Code has been a predominant phase of his contention for self-regulation of the industry of the screen, in opposition to the many movements for governmental regulation, and a part of his contention against propagandist forces that the exclusive responsibility of the screen theatre is for decent entertainment.

distributor the right to operate theatres, as "unjust, drastic, unnecessary and arbitrary," in his argument. He said the law was drawn not in the public interest but to favor the independents who obtained its passage, and that it does not regulate competition, but excludes it.

Francis Murphy, who opened the defense argument, contended the state in making the law was not concerned with a conflict between two classes of exhibitors, but with what is loosely referred to as a monopoly through a condition of domination.

Virginia MPTO Meet To Hear Kuykendall

Virginia Beach, June 12.—About 200 exhibitors are expected to attend the semi-annual convention of the M.P.T.O. of Virginia at the Cavalier Hotel here tomorrow. Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., will be one of the speakers.

William Sussman of New York, 20th Century-Fox eastern division manager, will attend but is not down for a speech. The day will be chiefly given over to an open forum. William F. Crockett of the Bayne, Virginia Beach, is president, and Sydney J. Gates of Norfolk is general convention chairman.

Holmden Says Guilds Rated As Employers

aims. The officers of the socalled guild, falsely parading as a labor organization, cannot befog the I.A.T.S.E as they have befogged their own people and the wage-earners in their ranks by laying smoke screens and raising false issues."

"In plain language, so simple that all who read may understand," Mr. Holmden's statement concludes, "the I.A.T.S.E. claims jurisdiction over wage-earners, and not those receiving astronomical salaries and who are participants in production profits and who have foresworn one of labor's sacred rights in agreeing by contract with the prodecers that they will not strike for any cause nor in support of any labor organization any time during the next 10 years."

The latter reference is to the "no-strike" agreement included in the 10-year pact between the Screen Actors Guild and the producers.

Frank Gillmore, president of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America, the parent of A. F. of L. organization for talent, of which the Screen Actors Guild is a member unit, declined to comment on the Holmden statement other than to say, "The first move is theirs. I see no reason why we should become involved in a controversy of words with them at this stage."

Kenneth Thomson Silent

Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, declined comment also. An official of the guild who refused to be quoted, however, pointed out in answer to the reference to the "no-strike" clause in guild contracts that "any labor contract honestly entered into is an agreement not to strike."

Guild officials were inclined to be skeptical of the I.A.'s resolution asking the A. F. of L. to revoke the charters of the guilds on the ground that they are not labor organizations and protesting the recent N.L.R.B. classification of writers as "labor." Some viewed the move as a complete abandonment by the I.A. of its jurisdictional claims over talent, since, they contend, if the A. F. of L. were to accede to the I.A. and give guild members a "non-labor" status, presumably such members would not then be eligible for I.A.T.S.E. membership.

Labor officials, however, pointed out that the I.A. is embarrassed in its procedure by the existence of A. F. of L. charters in the talent organizations and that, if it succeeded in having these withdrawn it would be free to organize talent units of its own.

Plans Two Camera Trips

Another expedition is planned to South America. Details will be set when Mr. Talley returns here on Wednesday from abroad.

Guilds Silent Upon I.A. Condemnatio

Hollywood, June 12.—Officers o the Screen Writers, Directors an Actors Guilds were silent today ove the adoption of resolutions condemning them at the I. A. T. S. E. convention in Cleveland.

The directors will confer befor stating their policy. A spokesman o the writers pointed out that the National Labor Relations Board election would determine whether th guild or the Screen Playwrights wer the official bargaining agency and tha the I. A. T. S. E. is out of the picture under the Wagner Act. Important developments are due at a general meeting of writers to be hel Monday night.

The Producers Association wil meet Wednesday night to hear reports on a series of conferences between producers and actors on th annual reopening of the agreement t make further changes in working conditions, salaries, etc.

Expect Organizing Efforts Here Soo

The organizing will include doormen, cashier ushers and ticket takers. will speak on the program at their next meeting.

The new platform was drawn up by Al Vaughan and Jerry Dale for Samuel Goldwyn, John LeRoy Johnstone for Walter Wanger, Murphy McHenry for Edward Small, Frank Seltzer and Magda Maskey for Hal Roach and Mr. Birdwell. These executives also will meet weekly to discuss mutual problems. A statement from the group said:

"Innovations in style and distribution of news matter will be introduced and, although governed by one policy, a greater competitive spirit is expected under the new working arrangement. The big pictures and top ranking stars of the United Artist producers will be the direct beneficiaries of the exchangeable facilities which such an organization makes possible."

Resume Discussions On Schaefer's Pact

Negotiation of a new United Artists contract for George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager of domestic distribution, was resumed yesterday following the arrival in New York of Murray Silverstone, chairman of the executive committee, from the coast. Mr. Silverstone and United Artists attorneys conferred with Mr. Schaefer at his home.

Indications are that a deal will not be set prior to Mr. Silverstone's departure for England, Wednesday, on the Normandie. He will be abroard for a few weeks winding up his affairs in London before returning to establish his headquarters at the home office.

the last two under the current releasing deal.

Selznick publicity director Russell Birdwell's contribution to the exploiting of Selznick product will be a specially printed newspaper which confines all mention to these two pictures.

Murray Silverstone, Thomas Walker and Hal Roach left Thursday by train for New York. They are the only ones making the trip from the west coast. Lowell Calvert will represent Selznick. James Mulvey will handle the Goldwyn affairs. Other New Yorkers will handle Wanger and small company participation.

"Ragtime Band" May Get August Showing

"Alexander's Ragtime Band" will go into the Roxy some time in August, and a run of four or five weeks is anticipated. A "Hollywood premiere" had been considered for the film at Carnegie Hall, as a tieup with the music angle, but this idea has been discarded.

A definite date for the opening at the Roxy hinges on the return from Europe of Darryl F. Zanuck, who will put the finishing touches to the editing in Hollywood.

Both "Sheiks" Held Over

The two Rudolph Valentino films on Broadway entered a third week on Saturday and may go a fourth. "The Sheik" is reported to have grossed $8,500 in a second week at the Gaiety, compared with $11,000 for the first stanza. "Son of the Sheik," at the George M. Cohan, is said to have played to the largest attendance and receipts at the theatre in the past 10 years.

Wobber to Join Board

Herman Wobber, newly appointed general manager of distribution of 20th Century-Fox, is expected to be elected a member of the board at the next meeting of the directors on July 7. He will succeed the late John D. Clark.

Suit Details Ordered

Adeline Francis Ryan, plaintiff in a plagiarism suit against Frank Crumit and Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., was directed by Federal Judge John W. Clancy on Friday to file a bill of particulars. CBS Signs Welles For Drama Series player, Welles will write, cast, direct and produce the series. While no director will be assigned by CBS to the broadcasts, Davidson Taylor of the CBS program department will act as the general supervisor.

The Mercury Theatre's stage repertoire will not be produced in this series, the plan being to present originals.

The new drama series is Columbia's answer to NBC, which recently inaugurated a series of Pulitzer Prize winning presentations. Last year NBC and CBS indulged in dramatic warfare, with both networks presenting Shakespearean cycles at concurrent times and during the same evenings. The Mutual network also, was in on the rivalry last year, presenting Welles in dramatizations of "Les Miserables."

Mutual's plans in the way of an elaborate dramatic series for the current season are still unsettled, although doubtless that network will be heard from very shortly.

Film Quiz Series to Start Here on WMCA

"Five O'Clock Revue," a new film quiz series, with a group of soloists including Jerry Baker, Jane Clifton and Nat Brusiloff's orchestra, will begin on WMCA today at 5 P.M. on a five times a week basis. Min-Aqua is the sponsor. The contract is for 52 weeks.

The quiz will consist of questions concerning motion pictures and film personalities, which will be asked of the audience by WMCA's screen commentator, Powell Clark. The questions will be assembled by the editors of the Macfadden film magazines.

WOR Signs B. Chandler

Beth Chandler, rhythm singer, has been signed by WOR-Mutual and will start her own program over Mutual June 19. Miss Chandler is the daughter of William Chandler, an executive of the Miller Music Corp.

F. W. C. Grosses Good

The business of Fox West Coast in the first 18 weeks of this year is "just as good" as in the comparable period last year, and on the whole is satisfactory, according to Charles A. Buckley, vice-president of the circuit.

In the last six weeks, however, intakes have been off about 10 per cent, he said, but conditions on the coast compare favorably with many other sections of the country.

Golf Team of CBS Captures Radio Cup for Third Time

With a bow in the direction of Grantland Rice: As the setting sun kissed the western horizon (it would be funny if the setting sun kissed the eastern horizon) a yell of exultation burst from the throats of the throng assembled about the 18th hole of the River Vale golf course, denoting that the result of the match that the sporting world had been awaiting with bated breath for these many days, was no longer in doubt.

Meaning that the CBS golf team repeated its victory of the past two seasons over the teams of NBC, WOR and WMCA, in the annual radio golf tourney, Friday, thereby winning permanent possession of the Radio Cup.

The strutting Columbians are Andre Baruch, Howard Phillips, Al Rinker, Walter Pierson and Buddy Clarke. Their team score was 550. The other scores: NBC, 559; WMCA, 570, and WOR, 667, the last one calling for a deep weep, indeed.

Film Monoply Quiz Foreseen In Washington

Part of Wide Study of Trust Situation

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, June 13.—Broad studies of allegedly monopolistic conditions in the motion picture industry are threatened, as Congress enters the last lap of the session, under the O'Mahoney resolution for a joint Congressional-executive committee to study the anti-trust situation, which the House is expected to adopt before adjournment. The measure was approved by the Senate, June 9.

The proposed $500,000 study of monopoly, to run for probably two years, which will lay the groundwork for a general modernization of all laws relating to restraint of competition, is to be conducted by a 12-man

COAST LEADERS HONOR QUIGLEY

Mayer Tells of Quigley's Work

Hollywood, June 13.—Louis B. Mayer paid warm tribute to Martin Quigley for his work in behalf of the film industry, at the banquet in honor of the publisher here tonight. Mr. Mayer said:

"I would like to recite for any who don't know the early history of Dr. Quigley that somewhat over 20 years ago there were many trade journals being published in New York, with no particularly constructive policies. Dr. Quigley started the Exhibitors Herald in Chicago, away from the center and capital of all financial operations in our business. He had foresight and courage and out of all that confusion in a few years he cleared up the situation and today he prints as fine a trade journal as any industry can boast of.

"He has the foresight because of his faith in and love for this industry of which he felt he was an important part. He foresaw dangers to that industry. You know the saying, "Everybody has two businesses, his own and the motion picture." Martin Quigley took that philosophy to his heart. We were sailing along toward what might have been a very dangerous port. Without fear of failure he ventured out to chart a safe course.

"Remember that his income is from this industry, and if he was wrong he

Writers' Guild Decides on No Affiliation With CIO or AFL

Hollywood, June 13.—The Screen Writers' Guild, at a meeting to which non-members were invited and at which plans were laid for the election under the auspices of the National Labor Relations Board for the purpose of determining whether the guild or Screen Playwrights, Inc., shall represent the film writers as collective bargaining agency, adopted a policy of non-affiliation with either the American Federation of Labor or the C. I. O. and determined to cooperate with other groups to prevent encroachment of the I. A. T. S. E., which was characterized as a "racketeering labor organization."

The Screen Actors' Guild board met tonight to offer all cooperation to the writers in the forthcoming election, the date of which is to be set tomorrow by Dr. Towne Nylander, regional N. L. R. B. director at a conference between representatives of the guild, Playwrights and producers. The board of directors of the guild also met to aid the writers and to work out a program for the year.

Pay Tribute to Service Of Trade Publisher At Banquet

Hollywood, June 13.—Joseph M. Schenck and Louis B. Mayer, president and past president of the M. P. P. A., tonight entertained a party of distinguished representatives of the screen, clergy and laity at a dinner tendered Martin Quigley in tribute to his leadership and service in originating and instrumenting the Motion Picture Production Code, for which the editor and publisher had received the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature conferred by Loyola University at Los Angeles yesterday.

Speakers, in addition to Messrs. Schenck and Mayer, were Dr. Rufus B. Von Kleinschmid, president of the University of Southern California; Joseph Scott, attorney and civic leader, and the Rev. Charles A. McQuillan, president of Loyola University.

The dinner was given at the Cafe de Paree at the 20th Century-Fox studio.

In his opening address Mr. Schenck said of the Motion Picture Code, "Other names have been freely men-

Further action on the industry proposal for the appointment in conjunction with the U. S. Attorney General's office of a special master to hear complaints against Fox West Coast involving the 1930 consent decree entered into with the Government will be delayed indefinitely because of objections to the proposal advanced here last week by Charles Skouras and other West Coast officials, it was learned yesterday.

MPTO of Virginia Opposes Neely Bill

Virginia Beach, June 13. — The M.P.T.O. of Virginia at its midsummer convention today approved the action of its board in expressing opposition to the Neely bill. By the action President William F. Crockett, who presided, explained that the board did not condone the evils of block booking and it did see the need of a certain amount of housecleaning.

Informal opposition also was expressed to double features, although it was pointed out that Virginia has been comparatively free from the practice.

Carter Barron, eastern district manager of Loew's, spoke against unfair trade practices and urged that admission prices be maintained throughout the recession.

Morton G. Thalheimer of Richmond expressed the opinion that the increased cost of exhibiting under the provisions of the Neely bill would fall on the exhibitor. John Payne, Ascap general manager, broke a long-standing precedent when he appeared before the M.P.T.O. He depicted the background of his organization and cited its purposes and how, in reality, it helped the industry. Ascap, he said, had no intention of increasing fees. The organization, he said, would rather collect from the producers than from the exhibitors, but he pointed out that, under the copyright law, Ascap could not do that, although it would be less costly.

One of the high spots of the business session was an entertaining address by E. N. MacWilliams, for two decades a vaudeville star and now a programmer of the National Broadcasting Company.

Legislative Report Read

The report of Col. Robert T. Barton, Jr., counsel of the organization, was read to the convention. It dealt with the activities of the last session of the Virginia legislature and the legislation that affected the exhibitors. A sketch of the work of the legislative committee was given by Ben Pitts of Fredericksburg, vice-president of the association.

The convention closed with the annual banquet, followed by a dance and floor show at the Cavalier Beach Club.

The convention was arranged by General Chairman Sydney J. Gates of Norfolk.

Reserve Decision on B. N. Plea in Phila.

Philadelphia, June 13.—The new plea for supersedeas in the case involving the banning of Bank Night here was heard today in Supreme Court and decision was reserved until Friday, when the court will reconvene. Former Attorney General Margiotti and David Friedman represented the Roxy Theatre in the proceedings.

Previous supersedeas requests of other litigants, including that of the Palm Theatre, originator of the games case which provoked Judge McDevitt's general ban in Common Pleas Court last April, have been denied.

The new action contends that since the appeal will not be argued until the Fall, the theatre will suffer great financial losses if not permitted to operate games until the final decision. The motion was fought today by Assistant City Solicitor Ryan, maintaining that Judge McDevitt had already ruled on the question of losses and that the lower court had not erred in its findings.

tioned as motivating influences. Other persons more thoroughly publicized than he have been given the greater share of the credit for its invention. But those who are familiar with the facts know that the main spring of the movement, and most of the works as well, was our guest of honor Martin Quigley."

Schenck Expresses "Gratitude"

"It is true," said Schenck, "that we are here to pay honor to an individual, but it is likewise a fact that we are at the same time doing honor to a great idea, an idea which was given birth by a great institution. We are here this evening to pay homage to one of our fellow workers, for we all regard him as such, who, on Sunday, was accorded high honor and deserved recognition by a great institution of learning. We owe a great debt of gratitude for the formation of a force which all recognize as the most constructive and powerful artistic movement ever to enter the field of public entertainment. The facts concerning the reason and causes for it are familiar to all of us. Times change and we change with them. And nothing changes more rapidly than the taste in entertainment for the masses and classes. "That's been our great problem in the picture industry, trying to keep ahead of the public's changing tastes. In trying to do so, and probably following the public's taste in current and popular literature, we got into a jam. The public has a way of catching up with us every so often, and then, well, you know the story as well as I do. It would have been impossible for any single force that I can think of to have accomplished what was done through the production code, especially in unifying the industry, in making it think alike along certain lines without dangerously standardizing the product. There is little doubt that the plan was the most comprehensive ever devised to deal with a subject of such wide and vital importance.

"Fought Own Battles"

"Some may have disagreed with certain of its details, but I do not think there was one person in the industry who did not at the time recognize the honesty of the underlying motives and desire of those behind the movement not to cause any injury to our business. I am sure that there isn't one producer of importance in the industry who would not today place before any financial reward his duty to his fellow man or his responsibility to the youth of America, and the world as well.

"What has been accomplished by the code is familiar to all of us here, especially the standard it has established in decency for the screen. I don't want to embarrass Martin Quigley by a fulsome eulogy, but he has fought our battles vigorously for us in the past, just as he has honestly and as vigorously fought us when he thought we were wrong. Always he has been an honest champion of the motion picture industry and we rejoice with him in the recognition accorded him by Loyola."

> "I am sure there isn't one producer of importance in the industry who would not today place before any financial reward his duty to his fellow man, or his responsibility to the youth of America, and the world as well."
> —Joseph M. Schenck

Martin Quigley, acknowledging the tributes of Mr. Schenck, Mr. Mayer and the other speakers, said, "The selection by the authorities of Loyola University at this time of a person associated with motion pictures for the award of a degree is an encouraging event. That I should be the person so selected is, of course, a matter of deep personal gratification. But most important of all is the fact that this action bespeaks on the part of the faculty of this University, located here in the center of the world production of motion pictures, a hearty and consistent appreciation of the efforts of American producers in the pursuit and accomplishment of a wholesome screen.

Public Has Responded

"There is little need now and under these circumstances to dwell on the regulatory methods which have won approval of the American motion picture from moral and social leadership the world over. But there are certain incidents in the industry's hard-fought victory over imposing difficulties which must not be forgotten.

"Let it be remembered that added to the manifold perplexities which confronted the industry in its application of the system of regulation and adjustment there was a great chorus of critics and commentators who, not taking the trouble to understand what the industry was doing, pleaded that to clean up the pictures would be to destroy their popular appeal.

"These critics have retreated in confusion. I often think of the writer in a great New York newspaper who, to show his contempt for the Production Code plan, said that under it the public would probably have to come to look at things like "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

"This industry has demonstrated that within the framework of the Code there is ample latitude for making the best entertainments that have ever been prepared for a mass audience at any time anywhere. The public has responded by giving the greatest patronage to pictures produced under the Code that has ever been accorded to this or any other form of amusement.

Decency Best Policy

"The motion picture industry in the United States has demonstrated to the world amusement industry—and I hope for all time—that there is a new line for the copy books which reads—"Decency is the best policy." It is no longer debatable that if the motion picture is to gain and hold its widest possible audience it must be based on a common denominator of common decency."

Dr. Von Kleinschmid said: "I count it a distinct pleasure and genuine honor to be invited here tonight by a sister institution which has presented this well merited degree upon our distinguished friend Mr. Martin Quigley. It is one thing to be a publisher and editor when one's business is clearly and succinctly to place before the public the industry to the regulation of which and for the upbuilding of which the particular publication is devoted—but it is another thing to so manage a great publication that, while fulfilling its official work, it shall also take the place of leadership to effect that progress in the industry which it serves which warrants the approval and praise of not only other publishers but the industry itself and the onlookers who watch the industry carefully and those who are anxious for its success.

Achievement in Ethics

"I congratulate Dr. Martin Quigley upon his achievement. It is a distinct achievement not only in literature—and his degree is Doctor of Literature—but a distinct achievement in the field of ethics. After all, we are so prone to overlook the fact that we have a real job in life beside the job to which we address ourselves every morning and from which we attempt to withdraw ourselves every night. That is the job of so doing our work and so furthering its interests as to succeed in progress and not to neglect posterity. There is that task which lies beyond our job, which has the coming generation in mind.

"That is surely a trade journal's job. For it is looking to the very conception of the field which it covers—which it reveals—but it is looking for a better understanding and a better service on the part of that paper. This I think Dr. Martin Quigley has done.

Expression of Public Will

"I want to say that there is only one coin in which institutions of learning can pay a great debt. These institutions are the expression of the public will and public wish, just the same as the motion picture industry or other activities to which we address ourselves. These institutions can pay that debt in only one coin that I know of—that is the coin of larger service, with approval of service when it is rendered, and such designation of that approval as it is within its power to give. I am happy that Loyola has done this thing that any institution in America might be proud to do, for we are all more deeply concerned with motion pictures than the world is aware of. Since for us all you have done it we are proud with you in having brought into the brotherhood of the university men such an addition as Dr. Martin Quigley.

Scott Pays Tribute

Joseph Scott: "Of course I am delighted to see this outpouring of the industry in paying this tribute to Martin Quigley. I feel very keenly gratified about this party tonight. We think that Mr. Quigley and his movement has meant a great deal of benefit to your industry—because, men, when you get to that time of your life when your daughter is growing up and she is susceptible to good or evil influences it is too bad if you have to worry about that kind of picture she is going to see. It is a mighty wholesome thing to know that the influence of Mr. Quigley has permeated the ranks of the industry—and you can give a good account of your stewardship. Mr. Quigley strikes a high and wholesome note when he is here tonight as guest of honor. When world. In honoring Mr. Quigl

During the months of July, August and September, United Artists will release six pictures that any company would be proud to present as the cream of an entire season's product. Yet these are only the forerunners of a line-up that promises to be by far the strongest in our history.

Read closely the cast of each of the six pictures; weigh carefully their possibilities. No amount of words can be as forceful as the facts themselves.

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE J. SCHAEFER

committee on which will be a half-dozen members of Congress and a like number of Federal officials nominated, respectively, by the Justice, Treasury Commerce and Labor Departments, the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Three of these organizations—the Department of Justice and the two commissions—have been intensively interested in the motion picture industry and there is little doubt that they will develop all information they may have regarding films for consideration by the committee when it opens its hearings at some date as yet well in the future.

The whole investigation will be pretty much under control of the President, whose original proposal that it be conducted exclusively by department and commission heads was turned down by Congress in favor of a joint committee on which, originally, members of Congress would outnumber departmental representatives.

At the demand of the President, however, the representation was equalized and his control was further made certain by the provision of $100,000 to the committee for its expenses and the entrusting of the remaining $400,000 to the President, to be allocated as he saw fit among the departments and agencies for their part of the work.

Four A's Fails to Act on IATSE Stand

The board of directors of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America held a brief business meeting yesterday and adjourned for one week. So far as could be learned no action was taken on the I.A.T.S.E. convention resolution asking the A. F. of L. to revoke the charters of the talent guilds which are affiliates of the Four A's.

The committe which is working on amendments to the Four A's constitution reported "progress," but also indicated that several additional weeks might be required to complete the work. The changes in process are designed to make a more closely integrated organization for the Four A's affiliates in the performers' fields of stage, screen, radio and music.

Max Markmann Gaining

Max Markmann, Universal Newsreel cameraman connected with the New York office, is recovering at the Medical Center from burns he suffered while filming the trials of the new 20th Century Limited. Markmann was burned by live steam that issued from booster valves while he was making his shots from a location on the engine's tender at Cold Spring, N. Y. He was burned on the face, arms and hands and received emergency treatment at a Cold Spring hospital. He was later transferred to the New York institution which is noted for its treatment of burns. A spokesman at the hospital yesterday said Markmann was "coming along nicely."

Hollywood Preview

"Having Wonderful Time"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, June 13.—Arthur Kober's stage play, prepared by himself for screen use, is scheduled for timely release July 1, in the summer vacation season with which it is concerned. Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., portray the girl and boy principally dealt with in the presentation of summer camp life and the types of people who live it. The picture is an easy one to exploit.

Miss Rogers appears as a New York office girl who goes to a resort advertised as exclusive and finds it otherwise. Mr. Fairbanks plays a law school graduate employed here as waiter. They fall in love and she is willing to marry at once, but he is reluctant to incur matrimonial obligation until he has established himself in his profession. When, in a moonlit discussion of the matter, he offers a less formal proposal, she declines and, to arouse his jealousy, goes with Lee Bowman, the camp Casanova, to his cabin, where he makes a similar proposition which is likewise declined. She falls asleep in his cabin, is seen leaving next morning, publicly affirms her overnight stay there and walks away as Fairbanks and Bowman battle. Fairbanks follows, proposes marriage, expresses trust in her, and she accepts.

Alfred Santell directed and achieved in the handling of crowded scenes in which all talk at once somewhat the effect obtained in "Stage Door." Much of the dialogue is brightly amusing and Richard Skelton, as camp entertainer, offers some unusual comedy. Two songs by Sam Stopt and Charles Tobias are worked into the action.

CEA to Press Plan For Small Exhibitor

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, June 13.—Following the rejection recently by the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) of the suggestion of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association for a special plan applicable to smaller exhibitors, the C.E.A. now is preparing to press the matter.

The intention of the exhibitor group, already put into practice, is to gather factual material and data to use as ammunition. Forms are being sent to all exhibitors, asking the total theatre grosses of the past year and the reaction to a plan such as is proposed. The new campaign is solidly backed by the circuits, representing 1,500 to 2,000 theatres.

The next joint meeting of representatives of the K.R.S. and C.E.A. has not yet been scheduled, but will be following next week's C.E.A. conference at Folkstone.

Canadian Business Holds Up: Nathanson

QUEBEC, June 13.—Business is holding up well in Canada, N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., declared on Saturday before sailing for Europe on the Empress of Britain with his family.

He expressed the belief that the reason theatre business in Canada is less affected by economic conditions than in the United States is a matter of temperament. He declared that Canadians have a more solid, unchangeable attitude about economic conditions, and regard the films as a part of their daily lives. Replying to the recent remark of the British producer that Canadian films are not up to standard, Nathanson said that Canada hardly could be expected to turn out high grade films when the country represents only two per cent of the world market.

[illegible] dissipation policy that blindly plunges ahead and books two important pictures on the same program, as was recently evidenced by the playing in important key runs of 'Bluebeard's Eighth Wife' and 'Jezebel.'"

He declared that if exhibitors had held "hit" pictures for a second or a third week last December, they now would have four or five big attractions accumulated and available for playing.

"Of course, the fact is recognized," he said, "that during recent months there has been a decline in business. But the improvement, in my opinion, cannot come from attacking the problem by dissipating strong starring-and-story attractions on the same program. I feel it is better for the exhibitor to suffer and be patient and try to solve this problem by thinking his way out than to glut his program unnecessarily."

Conceding that there is a famine of big product now, he contended it could have been avoided if exhibitors had had the foresight to anticipate the shortage and conserve the more important releases by playing them singly.

Describes Korda Arrangements

Discussing Alexander Korda's distribution arrangements with United Artists for the new season, Mr. Schaefer said that the British producer was to be given preferred terms for the socalled Empire pictures in order to enable him to make certain films for distribution in England only. While only five of Mr. Korda's most pretentious films will be distributed here, the arrangement permits him to make many more pictures than that for British distribution, Mr. Schaefer explained.

The five-day convention here is being attended by 100 home office executives and managers and salesmen from 14 exchanges. The new season program of 30 features and a series of 12 shorts was discussed at the afternoon session yesterday and this discussion will be continued this morning. A. W. Smith, Jr., sales manager, is presiding at the sessions.

Gold Discusses Recessions

Branch managers were instructed in the proper handling and shipping of prints by Harry D. Buckley, vice-president in charge of exchanges, who spoke at the morning session. He pointed out that with an investment of more than $1,200,000 in prints, improper handling sometimes accounts for an operating loss on exchange books, and reminded the men that a bad print also means a dissatisfied account.

Harry Gold, eastern division manager, in his talk at the first session, emphasized the value of man-power in difficult business periods.

Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, predicted that foreign producers will gain a greater place in the American market and will tighten the competition for playing time in world markets. It may mean that a new phase of the business is at hand, he said, due to the lower production costs abroad which go hand in hand with the improving foreign production technique.

Other speakers at yesterday's sessions were L. J. Schlaifer, western division manager, and Paul Lazarus, contract manager.

Among the U.A. Men

George J. Schaefer, fully recovered from a cold which confined him to his home for several days last week, kept to his convention schedule as planned. His speech at the afternoon session was the highlight of the opening day program.

Murray Silverstone, chairman of the executive committee, was unable to make an appearance at the meeting yesterday because of home office conferences and his preparations for sailing Wednesday on the Normandie. He will wind up his affairs in London and be back here with his family in a few weeks to establish his new headquarters at the home office.

Andy Smith expects to see this year's rivalry between Harry Gold's eastern division and Jack Schlaifer's western division and in a unique challenge for the new season. Mr. Schlaifer's division finished ahead of the east this year.

Arthur Kelly said his speech making is somewhat less inspired this year than it was last. He hasn't been below the Equator since 1937.

Harry Buckley and Lowell Calvert made a good team of camera subjects. Calvert, incidentally, wouldn't discuss more than two Selznick International pictures for 1938-'39.

Monroe Greenthal's department did a swell job decorating the convention hall. Greenthal appeared at the meeting yesterday in a swank new suit that he won on a bet. Wouldn't divulge what the bet was about.

Andy Smith wouldn't spot Bob Mochrie a stroke after seeing the new golf bag which the Atlanta exchange sales staff presented him with. He insisted a bag like that belonged in the championship class. Scores: Mochrie, 125; Smith, 85.

Elmer Donnelly of Indianapolis thought he had lost weight until they asked two page girls to pose with their arms about him. The two pairs of arms failed to circumscribe his girth.

Paul Lazarus swears it was the Normandie they were watching from that window vantage point.

John Hicks, Sr., Stricken

John W. Hicks, Sr., father of the Paramount vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, is seriously ill at his Sedalia, Mo., home, according to information received at the Paramount home office. John Hicks, Jr., who was en route to New York from the Paramount studio when advised of his father's illness, went to Sedalia and will remain there pending a change in his father's condition.

U. A. Welfare Fund

A welfare fund has been established for the lower bracket salaried employes of United Artists, Harry D. Buckley, vice-president, informed the company' sales forces at their meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday. The fund is designed to aid employes in times of financial emergencies, he said.

Carolina Exhibitors To Meet on June 26

Charlotte, N. C., June 13.—More than 80 reservations have already been received for the annual summer convention of the Associated Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina, at Myrtle Beach, S. C., June 26-28, according to Mrs. Pauline H. Griffith, secretary-treasurer, who has offices here.

The officer declared the total of reservations greater than for any previous meeting this far in advance of the convention opening. The first day of the session will be devoted to business sessions and an extensive entertainment program has been arranged for the convention.

Boles Aide to Gross

San Francisco, June 13.—George Boles, former house manager of the Golden Gate here, has been named resident manager for RKO, as assistant to Jack Gross, new coast manager of RKO Theatres. Gross, recently named to succeed Cliff Work, has moved coast headquarters from here to Los Angeles.

"U" to Show "Paris"

Universal will have a trade showing of "The Rage of Paris," starring Danielle Darrieux at the Astor theatre today at 11 o'clock.

Court Supervision Move Put on Shelf

there was no ready forecast, nevertheless, as to how soon a decision for or against the plan could be expected. In addition to the Skouras opposition, it is known that Warners, Universal, RKO, Columbia and United Artists are either cool to the proposal or openly opposed to it. The bulk of the objections appear to be centered on the unprecedented industry plan to invite the Government in to settle clearance, zoning, film buying and any other complaints involving a contempt action under the 1930 consent decree. Some objectors also contend that the proposal would open the way to conspiracy actions against the distributors regardless of the findings of the special master.

Three or four meetings on the proposal were held last week with major company attorneys being given the views on the proposal of the Skouras officials, who included Charles A. Buckley, vice-president and an attorney; Alfred Wright, attorney, and Thomas Page, statistician for the circuit.

Sponsors of the proposal during the next few weeks will endeavor to work out a revision of it which will answer the Skouras objections, it was said.

Circuits Not to Close

Cleveland, June 13.—Heads of the local affiliated circuits—Warners, Loew's and RKO say they are not interested in the proposed plan of independent exhibitors to close Cleveland theatres three or four days a week during the summer months, or until such time as conditions warrant full time operation. Business at the affiliated houses is satisfactory, they state.

Benjamin Bernstein Dead

Cincinnati, June 13.—Benjamin Bernstein, father of Harold Bernstein, manager of the Plaza, suburban house, and director of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, died at his home here today after a lingering illness.

House Vote Set on Air Probe Measure

mittee on June 10, is to be brought up for a vote at the first opportunity. If time permits, a vote will be sought also on the Sirovich bill for creation of a Fine Arts Bureau in the Interior Department, for which the way was cleared by Rules Committee approval.

Both houses, anxious to clean their slates as quickly as possible, disposed of a number of bills today.

The Senate adopted the Wheeler resolution declaring broadcasting powers in excess of 50 kilowatts not in the public interest, after Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, author of the measure, explained that it was designed to prevent the establishment of a monopoly.

Question Wheeler

Wheeler was questioned regarding the effect of the resolution upon existing stations and explained that there would be none. The measure calls upon the F.C.C. not to authorize any station in either regular or other service to use more than 50 kilowatts power.

Following adoption of the resolution, Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio made a motion to reconsider, but did not ask for immediate action. Final approval of the resolution depends on whether he presses his motion.

In the house, the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee voted to table a bill sponsored by Rep. George C. Sadowski of Michigan to require the F.C.C. to consider the question of competition in determining the "public interest" in application for broadcasting licenses.

Ad Federation Hears Edward F. McGrady

DETROIT, June 13.—Edward F. McGrady, former Assistant Secretary of Labor and now labor counsellor for RCA, was the principal speaker at business sessions of the 34th annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America which opened here today.

Mr. McGrady told the federation that industry was falling behind labor in presenting its virtues to the public. He suggested that industry should employ the methods of labor unions and present its side of the conflict between labor and industry through a program of public interest.

A message from President Roosevelt praised the Federation for its slogan "Advertising Makes Work."

Radio is to be the principal subject of discussion at tomorrow's session of the NAB sales managers' committee. Speakers will include Edgar Kobak, vice president of Lord & Thomas, who will compare the American system of radio with tax supported systems in other nations; Dr. Herman S. Hettinger, radio economist; and Charles E. Hicks, sales promotion manager of WXYZ, Detroit, as well as others.

FCC Hearing Takes Up Listener Habi

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The L

Federal Communications Commissi

Going into the second week of hearings, the committee further quired into the effect of superpo

1935 postcard survey of listen preferences made by the F.C.C., it w testified by Meredith S. Runck, he of the Crosley marketing and resear

Due to the development of sunsp

perts of the station admitted, WL might not now be the first choice

the south where the effect of magne disturbances would be greatest.

Listener response, it was point out, is affected to considerable exte by the intensity of signals and, pa ticularly in secondary areas, t listener is likely to tune in the st tion best received or, if a particul program is desired, the station carr signal.

However, it was insisted, progra desirability is a major factor in buil ing up listener response, and ma listeners will stick to a particular pr gram on an inferior signal streng rather than select some other pr gram better received.

Universal to Have 4 "A's" July, August

Blumberg Throwing Dice On Summer Problem

Universal will send four "A" pictures—which it regards as its best entries of the season just closing—to the barrier in midsummer, Nate J. Blumberg, president, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday.

The racetrack allusion is not inappropriate inasmuch as many distribution executives, the Universal president relates, have the same feeling about risking midsummer release of big pictures that others have about eating oysters in an "R-less" month.

"They say I'm crazy," Mr. Blumberg remarked. "But we're throwing the dice this summer. Universal will have more 'A' pictures for release during July and August than any other company. I have been advised to hold some or all of them for later release on the theory that business may improve by the end of the summer and that, even if it doesn't, big pictures will get bigger returns in September

The night before the opening Gaige and Woollcott were in a poker game and Gaige lost a grand to the bard of Sutton Place. He did not pay off that night. But during the first act intermission on opening night, in plain view of all the critics assembled, Gaige decided on a unique revenge. He walked up to Woollcott and handed him a crisp $1,000 bill. Woollcott, however, was not in the least fazed. He took the bill, folded it in half and stuck it in his hat band in plain view of everyone, thus achieving an easy legitimate thousand dollar profit and million dollar last laugh.

List for NLRB Poll Refused By Producers

dustry. They declared that the producers "are unwilling to do any act or thing which might later be held as amounting to a waiver or which resulted in the loss of any right."

The move by Mr. Tuller was made as Mr. Howard, with William R. Walsh, regional board attorney, had arranged all details for the election except the names of the writers who would vote. Present were the attorneys for the producers, Leonard Janofsky, attorney for the Screen Writers Guild, petitioner, and John Lee Mahin and Howard Emmett Rogers, officers of Screen Playwrights, Inc., which the guild is attempting to displace as the bargaining agency for writers. Mr. Walsh intimated that the board might seek a Federal Court subpoena to bring in the studio records but laid no definite plans to this end. In a prepared statement Mr. Tuller said:

Claims Injustices

"As you know, it has been and is the position of the producers that the screen writers are not within the jurisdiction of the N.L.R.B. and the producers propose to resist in the courts any attempt that may be made to enforce the claim that screen writers are subject to that jurisdiction. Furthermore, the decision and order of the board excludes a considerable number of persons whose work is in or connected with writing.

Citing that the board order excludes executives, producers, associate producers, directors, supervisors, story editors, scenario editors and other persons having executive or supervisory powers, also lyricists, composers and readers, Mr. Tuller concluded, "Neither the producers nor their counsel wish to take responsibility for attempting to determine what persons are to be excluded from the right to vote."

See Long Court Fight

Indications are that the vote may be delayed indefinitely if a Federal Court subpoena is asked. In that case, producer attorneys may carry the Federal Court decision, if in favor of the board, to the Circuit Court of Appeals and possibly directly to the Supreme Court should the Appellate tribunal rule adversely.

Three locations, one in Hollywood, one in Culver City and one in the San Fernando Valley were chosen for the voting before Mr. Tuller threw his bombshell. Hours for voting were set from noon to 2:00 P. M. and from five to 10 P. M. Three observers for the guild and three for the playwrights were permitted for each of the larger studio units and less for the smaller. The guild won a coin toss and obtained first place on the ballot.

As Mr. Howard explained the voting, the guild must obtain 51 per cent of votes cast. Should the total of ballots favoring the playwrights and those wanting neither guild nor playwrights to represent them be more than the guild votes, a runoff poll between the guild and the faction getting the next highest number will be set.

Other members of the House, less vocal, are also interested in the question, Congressman George G. Sadowski of Michigan saying today that the fight for the Neely Bill will be carried on next year.

Proponents of the legislation are considerably heartened by the fact that, for the first time in its history, it passed the Senate, and believe that with that background it can be pushed to enactment next session.

West Haven, Conn., June 14.—As a result of refusal of town authorities to reinstate money games, it is estimated the town will lose $100,000 in amusement licenses and allied income, and taxes will have to be raised two mills. "The season 1937-1938 was the most prosperous in the history of the company.

"Recently, at my invitation, two important producing units—the Hal Roach Studios and Edward Small Productions—were brought into the corporation, and next season's business promises to surpass this season's.

"By mutual agreement I am withdrawing from the company."

Prominent as Banker

Dr. Giannini was long active in New York and California banking circles through his associations with the Bowery and East River Savings banks and the Bank of America. In 1932, he returned to Los Angeles and San Francisco where, as chairman of the general executive committee of Bank of America, National Association, he was an important figure in production financing in Hollywood. He became associated with United Artists in the spring of 1936.

Paramount Asks Bar To Hammerstein Suit

Application will be made today to N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck by Paramount Pictures, Inc., to bar Emma S. Hammerstein from proceeding against Paramount on her injunction and accounting suit because of her alleged failure to file a bill of particulars. At the same time the plaintiff will make a cross application to vacate or modify Paramount's demand for a bill.

Paramount is charged in the suit brought by the plaintiff, as executive of the late Oscar Hammerstein, with illegally advertising the name Oscar Hammerstein as the author of "High, Wide and Handsome." The answer to the complaint contends that the Hammerstein intended in the advertisements is Oscar Hammerstein, II., grandson of the first Oscar Hammerstein.

READ CRITICS and EXHIBITORS RAVES

From George Claire, Burgettstown, Penna.

"Just thought I would pass along my impressions of your new serial, 'THE SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND.' We believe this is the best serial since Eddie Polo in 'The Broken Coin.' This latter subject, in our opinion, was the finest serial ever made.

"If Columbia can continue to deliver such serials as this, 'THE SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND,' our serial worries will be over."

From P. H. Gelfand,
Sioux City, Ia.

"In my entire twenty years of being in the Motion Picture Exhibition business, I have never been tempted to write a Film Company praising any of their productions, but after seeing the first two episodes of your serial 'SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND,' I felt it was my duty, not only to the company that was responsible for its production, but to the exhibitors of the country as well, to say that they have here a gem.

" 'The Secret of Treasure Island' is indeed a serial that is top-notch in production and appeal. I must say, that it is the best serial that I have ever played, if the remaining episodes are only half as good as the first two. Judging by the tremendous business on the first two chapters, this serial will no doubt set a box-office record at my theatre."

From Louis Bernheimer,
Washington, D. C.

"Congratulations to Columbia on your new serial, 'The Secret of Treasure Island.' After screening this subject, we booked it for our Newton Theatre and the results after showing the first two episodes have been more than gratifying.

"I believe this subject to be as good as any serial that we have played."

From Film Daily

"A rousing thriller with all the sensational elements to satisfy the thrill fans who like their excitement in weekly chapter doses.

" 'The Secret of Treasure Island' is directed by Elmer Clifton from a screenplay by George Rosener, Elmer Clifton and George Merrick. The original story is by L. Ron Hubbard. Producer is Louis Weiss. The cast is exceptionally good, with such well known players as Grant Withers, Hobart Bosworth William Farnum."

From W. A. Tucker,
New Orleans, La.

"Concerning your current serial, 'SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND,' I wish to say that I have already run the first two episodes and am very favorably impressed. The title is great for kids and it has action aplenty for everyone. It is one of the greatest serials ever released."

RKO Hearings Close; Briefs Go in June 25

gestions before sending the final report to Federal Judge William Bondy for approval.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Mr. Alger stated that there could be no question about the feasibility of the plan because of the provision eliminating all fixed charges. He indicated that the major problems facing him are the fairness of the plan and the constitutional right of the court to deprive debenture holders of their lien on RKO assets.

H. C. Rickaby, attorney for Atlas Corp., proponents of the plan, assured the special master that the proponents could obtain the necessary consents if the plan wins the court's approval. In a brief statement, he declared that the proponents had attempted to avoid extremes and had prepared a plan believed to be fair to all sides.

Spitz Compensation Discused

Testimony yesterday centered around compensation paid by Atlas to Leo Spitz, RKO president, in addition to income received as salary from RKO subsidiaries. Peter Rathvon, former associate of Floyd Odlum, testified that Atlas had discontinued additional compensation in 1938. He testified that the arrangement had been made because Mr. Spitz had given up a lucrative law practice to take over the affairs of the company. Under cross-examination by John Stover, counsel for a Class A stockholder, Mr. Rathvon denied that he had gone to the coast last Fall to arrange a bond issue for RKO. Williem Merrell, consultant to Atlas in the reorganization proceedings, also took the stand to describe his activities with the company. He testified that he receives his compensation solely from Atlas.

Stockholders Listed

According to Rickaby, Atlas held, as of April 30, $2,196,626 in debentures, 327,812 shares of common stock, $481,000 in six per cent gold notes, and a $1,857,000 claim assigned to it by the Securities National Bank of Los Angeles. He said that the Lehman interests held $2,446,663 in debentures and 302,865 shares of common stock, and that Spitz held $24,000 in debentures and 3,028 shares of common stock as of the same date.

Before argument on the plan started, Rickaby offered several minor amendments to the plan to satisfy technical objections. Rockefeller Center, Inc., was granted the right to cancel the Music Hall lease in the event of a merger of RKO with another company and was granted the option of insisting on the product of the consolidated company. Other amendments dealt with sinking fund provisions and dividends on preferred stock.

Due to the fact that Nathan Rosenberg, attorney for a group of independent debenture holders, has questioned the constitutionality of the plan, the U. S. Attorney General will appear in the proceedings when the plan comes up for approval before Judge Bondy.

David Stock, associate of Mr. Rosenberg, argued that the debenture holders could not be deprived of their lien by a 77b proceeding. Under the amended plan, debenture holders receive preferred stock for their bonds. Stockholders asked that they receive a greater share of the common stock than the one for six ratio provided under the plan, and unsecured creditors likewise requested a larger proportion for their claims.

Mr. Stock charged that Atlas would secure almost complete control of the reorganized company and asked for safeguards to prevent the issuance of senior securities.

principal cities of the country. At the outset, it was said, the company expects to have a minimum of 10 and a maximum of about 25 British and French pictures for distribution here, although the actual number, it was said, will depend entirely upon the amount of product available abroad which is found to fulfill the company's requirements.

Associated with Mr. Otterson in the company are R. E. Anderson, former treasurer of Erpi and former financial vice-president of Paramount; Carrol S. Trowbridge, former personal representative for Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks and a former United Artists executive, and Harry Lachman, formerly associated with Paramount production at the company's Joinville studio in France. Mr. Lachman will sail with Mr. Otterson today. Mr. Trowbridge will be identified with the distribution arrangements for the product, which have not been completed yet.

Arrangement Cooperative

It is understood that a certain number of the approximately 90 Brandt theatres in the metropolitan area will be available for the foreign product under the cooperative arrangement which has been worked out. As many as 40 or 50 of the houses may play the pictures, depending on location and type of patronage. Only one or two of the Trans-Lux houses here will be available for the pictures, however. The Trans-Lux at 83d St. and Madison Ave., which recently altered its policy to include features, is regarded as the theatre most likely to be included.

Mr. Otterson emphasized that the company was interested only in a specialized type of foreign product for a "special market." He said that he feels an established outlet for such product here will stimulate French and English production efforts. Most of the product will be edited and supplied with English titles. Some may be remade either abroad or supplied with English titles. Some may be remade abroad or at Eastern Service Studio, Astoria, it was said.

Denver, June 14.—Unusual prizes will be offered in the one-week quota contest to be held by Fox Intermountain theatres, according to Rick Ricketson, division manager. With the addition of Joseph Siccardi's Liberty, Plainfield, the group now has 15 members.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 79
(20th Century-Fox)

Death from the air in the crash of the army bomber, near Delevan, Ill., and the latest bombing horrors from Spain's air raids open the release. The air arrival at Newark of the Baby Panda after a transcontinental hop shows the Chinese teddy bear losing its temper. Rail progress is depicted in the action and interior shots of the new streamlined New York-Chicago Twentieth Century, complete with cocktail bar.

Feminine anglers really landing mountain trout and lovely outdoor shots proclaim the arrival of the vacation season. Social registerites smile and pose at Mrs. Payne Whitney's charity garden party, and Lew Lehr gets into a wonderland of mirrors with side-splitting results on eye and ear.

Hollywood's ultra modern racetrack at Inglewood, Ralph Guldahl's golf victory and the Shriners' parade in the west round out the reel which is finished off by the Ritz Brothers' screaming into the microphone. Running time, 9½ mins. I. K.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 277
(M-G-M)

The aftermath of the Army air bomber tragedy, with wreckage scattered over a wide field, opens the release and is followed by extraordinary action shots of the floods in Southern Austria.

Czech soldiers demonstrate their preparedness in mimic warfare, and Mussolini watches his boys and girls go through Fascist drills.

A cute girl in a shower, another in bed, demonstrate the comforts of the first all-room trains on the new Twentieth Century, Shriners stage a dazzling night pageant to wind up their Los Angeles convention, jitter bugs hop in a wild swing session for charity, and midwest and far west Congressmen stage a milking contest on Capitol Hill with remarks for and against New Deal.

Football on motorcycles, a French pastime, Guldahl's golf victory and shots of the opening of Hollywood Park, Southern California's new track, with closeups of stars and the races, complete a diversified, well photographed, well spoken reel. Running time, 9½ mins. I. K.

Paramount News
No. 90
(Paramount)

Highlights of the current American scene enliven this issue, which is uniformly interesting and gives evidence of careful selection. The monster "jam" session at Madison Square Garden at which 6,000 jitterbugs demonstrated that dancing can also be contortion is one of the more amusing topics.

Also good are Ralph Guldahl sinking the winning putt to capture the National Open Golf Tournament; the new streamlined trains between New York and Chicago; the Shriners' electrical pageant in Hollywood with many stars participating; and the British army show at Aldershot. Gruesome scenes of slaughter and devastation are shown after a Rebel air raid in Spain. Also on the sad side are shots of results of a twister in Texas and the crash in Illinois in which eight Army airmen were killed. Running time, 9 mins. F.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 94
(RKO)

This is a good, newsy release, edited and narrated in breezy fashion. Some good shots of the National Open Golf Championship at Denver last week and of Ralph Guldahl, the winner, in action, lead off the reel. Scenes of the wreckage of the Army bomber which fell in Illinois killing eight service men graphically depict the force of the ship's crash. There are interesting camera views of the new New York Central and Pennsylvania streamline trains and their modernized accommodations, and of the Hollywood parade for visiting Shriners in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Shots of Benny Goodman's benefit "swing jubilee" at Madison Square Garden are psychopathically interesting, and those of the opening of Hollywood's new race track at Inglewood make a good contribution to the reel. A huge public school regatta in Australia is excellent photographically. Running time, 9 mins. K.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 675
(Universal)

For the most part the material contained in this issue is of a light nature that is agreeable and entertaining. The serious side of the news is appropriately taken care of and as a whole the reel is a good job.

Opening shot is given to cadets on parade at the New York State Military Academy. The youngsters go through a number of interesting cavalry maneuvers. The next sequence shows the wreckage of an army airplane that crashed in Illinois. The Cash kidnapping settings follow. Foreign news offers political anniversaries in Rome and Prague. The material shows parades, athletic demonstrations and Mussolini saluting. The camera then takes in the new government silver depository at West Point, scenes of the streamlined 20th Century Limited, daring beach fashions modeled by attractive French misses, a Congressional milking contest, in Washington, Shriners parading in Los Angeles and the opening race at the new Inglewood racetrack. Running time, 9 mins. P.

WLW Charges Defended at FCC Hearing

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Advertising rates of superpower station WLW were defended before the Federal Communications Commission today as not being out of line with those of other stations.

Appearing before the commission committee holding hearings on new broadcasting regulations, Earl Branch of the WLW technical research department testified that while the station's hourly rate in 1938 was 12 per cent above that in 1930, the average hourly rate for clear channel stations in cities larger than Cincinnati had increased 67 per cent in the same period and in cities smaller than Cincinnati were up 74 per cent.

Illustrates with Graphs

In a series of graphs, Mr. Branch showed that present rates of WLS and WBBM were 112 per cent above 1930 and KFI showed an increase of 164 per cent.

Mr. Branch did not present a comparison of WLW rates with those of other stations in dollars, but at the suggestion of Commissioner Craven promised to submit that data.

He testified that the rate of WLW has remained constant since 1934 while the rates of other stations have steadily increased.

Counsel for the commission introduced additional data regarding broadcast stations income, showing that 629 stations in 1937 had net sales of $81,649,718, expenses of $63,389,715, new broadcasting revenues of $18,260,003 and net income of $15,412,128.

It was shown that 443 stations had net sales of $25,000 or more for an aggregate of $79,282,923, with 50 clear channel stations accounting for $29,806,070. On the basis of net sales of more than $81,000,000, the average per radio family was $3.06.

Sales Analyzed

Analysis of the sales of the 629 stations showed $25,751,497 in the northeastern region (from the District of Columbia through New England), $21,610,899 in the Great Lakes region, $9,785,444 in the midwest, $8,255,516 in the southeastern states, $4,913,209 in the south central region of Texas and Oklahoma, $3,027,614 in the mountain region and $8,335,539 in the three Pacific coast states.

Indicating that there will be keen competition among clear channel stations for inclusion in the exclusive Class 1-A group proposed to be established, Ben S. Fisher, counsel for WCAU, Philadelphia, urged that that station should be included in the top group because of its history of service and the fact it is the only Columbia outlet in Philadelphia. Mr. Fisher tomorrow will offer witnesses to testify regarding the station.

Net Motor Gross Up to $9,816,179 From $1,261,922

Network radio grosses for automotive advertising rose from $1,261,922 in 1929 to $9,816,179 in 1937, according to figures compiled for this period. During this same period newspaper automotive expenditures declined from $45,535,613 to $15,623,340, and magazine expenditures declined from $13,725,226 to $9,275,218.

However, motor car billings in network radio have declined considerably in recent months, the figures disclosing that NBC and CBS in the first six months of this year will show automotive billings of but $1,980,000 as against the $3,224,000 grossed in time sales for the first half of 1937.

Packard Heavy Spender

For the five months of this year the tabulations show NBC had motor car billings of $146,220. Primarily this sum represents the time cost of the Packard Motor Co. program which, featuring Fred Astaire, ended last spring. The broadcast of the forthcoming heavyweight championship fight between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling, which will utilize almost 150 stations of the Red and Blue network, will bring the NBC automotive billings for the first half of 1938 to approximately $175,000. The fight description is to be sponsored by the Buick Motor Co., and the time billings for the event will cost the company approximately $30,000. Last year, for the first six months, NBC's automotive billings amounted to $1,250,000. The wide divergence in billings is accounted for by the loss to NBC of the programs of the Ford, General Motors, Pontiac and Studebaker programs.

The CBS automotive billings held up better than NBC, the figures show. With the programs of Chrysler, Nash, Ford and the Pontiac motor companies still on the air in the first half of 1938, CBS will bill about $1,804,600, as against $1,974,120 in the first half of last year.

American Uncensored Radio Praised by Women's Leader

The American system of a "free radio, uncontrolled and uncensored," was lauded over that of the controlled radio of the foreign totalitarian countries by Mrs. Ruth Haller Ottaway, president of the National Council of Women of the United States in a speech broadcast last night over the Mutual network. Mrs. Ottaway spoke on the occasion of the 161st anniversary of the adoption of the American flag.

Citing the value of radio as a political weapon, and the way in which it has been used in foreign nations, Mrs. Ottaway reviewed how in the recent abortive uprising against President Vargas in Brazil, the Fascists seized the Rio de Janeiro station to announce falsely that the Government had fallen; how when Hitler's soldier's soldiers marched into Vienna the Nazis immediately took over the Austrian Broadcasting Co. building; how in Spain the insurgents seized the broadcasting stations even before troops were on the march; how in China the Japanese destroyed the shortwave transmitter of RCA in the first raid on Shanghai and wrecked it again at a later date after it had been repaired.

American radio, she said, is almost completely free of propaganda. There may be occasions when the wary broadcasters may be fooled, she said, but in that event the public itself has two great censoring powers; the ownership of the thumb and the forefinger which can dial out a disagreeable program, and the censorship of written protest.

Mrs. Ottaway praised the American chains for at all times making available its microphones to principals in major issues.

Cowdin States "U's" Weekly Gain $50,000

Increase "Unique" Under Conditions," He Says

Universal's gross from film rentals is running $50,000 a week higher than last year, and if the present pace continues the company's revenue will be increased by $2,500,000 or more during the next year, it was said by J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, before sailing on the Normandie yesterday. Such an increase, under present business conditions, is unique in the industry, he claimed.

Mr. Cowdin was optimistic about the future of Universal and declared that while during the summer the company's net earnings could not be expected to show much improvement because of "the weak pictures which were made under the previous studio administration and which will take time to write off," the betterment in product should be reflected in the company's position beginning in September.

Mr. Cowdin denied that his trip concerns new British investment financing for Universal or that there will be any change in the status of the

Theatre Race Starts At Disney, Oklahoma

DISNEY, Okla., June 15.—A race for construction of two theatres has been started here with the possibility that a third will be begun shortly.

At one end of Main St., M. R. Parks of Ponca City has begun construction of an air-conditioned 450-seat house scheduled to open not later than July 1. On the other end of the street, R. L. Barton, who is mayor of Stroud, Okla., has signed a five-year lease on an air-conditioned theatre being built by the Disney Lumber Co., which has promised occupancy by June 15.

Between the two locations, C. J. Howard of Noel, Okla., has announced plans for a third theatre, but no definite plan or opening date have been specified. Disney is on the site of the $20,000,000 Grand River dam project and is a new town just established this year.

Court Vacates Writ In Action of Baynes

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman yesterday granted the application of Atlantic Film Productions, Ltd., to vacate the service of the summons and a writ of attachment in the $30,000 breach of contract action brought by George McLeod Baynes against Atlantic. Justice Rosenman ruled the attachment to be a nullity because he found "no tangible property was taken into the sheriff's actual custody," and on the same ground also vacated the service of the summons.

The writ of attachment had been directed to Columbia Pictures on the claim of Mr. Baynes that it had proerty of Atlantic, but the reply of Columbia to the attachment denied possession of any property.

Mr. Baynes brought suit charging the breach of an alleged contract made in June, 1936, whereby he was made U. S. agent for Atlantic in the distribution and exhibition of its picture, "Thunder in the City," with a commission of 10 per cent of the gross income. Mr. Baynes claimed that he had obtained the services of Columbia and that the picture subsequently grossed $300,000.

Adjourn Paine's Suit

The suit of John G. Paine against Erpi was adjourned indefinitely yesterday when it appeared before Federal Judge John C. Knox for trial. Paine is suing to recover $149,148 as royalties allegedly due to him as assignee of about 100 music publishers. He claims this sum is due to the publishers for recording rights for motion pictures granted to Erpi.

Say 40 Key Outlets Set on French Films

About 40 key city theatre outlets have been lined up for the showing of French and other foreign product to be brought over by Inter-Allied Films, in which John E. Otterson, formerly president of Erpi and Paramount, is the chief factor.

Mr. Otterson disclosed this information yesterday before leaving on the Normandie to make arrangements for the importation of the films. He said that 15 theatres will show the product in New York, in a cooperative deal closed with Harry Brandt and Trans-Lux. Other theatres will be included, he said, but national distribution will be limited and only selected houses will be added.

Lou and Bernard Brandt, brothers of Harry, also sailed on the Normandie, to return in six weeks. In addition to a deal for French films, they have negotiations under way for Italian pictures which will be discussed in Rome. They will also visit Switzerland.

Harry Lachman, who will advise the group in the selection of foreign films, is also accompanying Mr. Otterson.

Drops Newsreel Policy

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—The News Theatre, operated by William Goldman, has abandoned its policy of newsreels and shorts in favor of feature film presentation. The house started last fall in opposition to the Trans-Lux, which is adhering to its news policy.

I.T.O.A. Demands Cut in Film Rental

The I. T. O. A., through its publication, The Independent, is demanding reduced film rentals in view of curtailed studio costs and business conditions.

"Pictures made during the current season were sold at a higher rental on the basis of increased budgets," according to an editorial, but when lowered box-office receipts reacted in the film companies, orders went out to cut costs.

"There should be some manner in which economy can be within the reach of all when times dictate such a policy," the publication says.

Hollywood Preview

"Cowboy from Brooklyn"

(Cosmopolitan-Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, June 15.—It takes a particularly special grade of comedy to throw a calloused Hollywood preview audience into stitches and tears and that is what this one did. It's as full of gags as the breakfast food broadcasts are of prairie tenors and it is one of these, as phoney as he is melodic, that Dick Powell plays and sings in championship style. The film is fast, loud, tuneful, witty, smart in a very melodious and purposely naive manner. It is characterized by a sound consignment of all-purpose comedy.

Pat O'Brien, in a faster and funnier role than he's had in years; Priscilla Lane, as a crooning cowgirl; Dick Foran, Johnny Davis, Hobart Cavanaugh, Elizabeth Risdon and James Stephenson top a large and competent cast which seems to have enjoyed every moment of their several chores. Their gayety comes across with a bang. Much credit for that happy circumstance should redound to Director Lloyd Bacon, to Associate Producer Lou Edelman and to Earl Baldwin, who wrote the screenplay from "Howdy Stranger," by Robert Sloane and Louis Pelletier, Jr.

Five of the highly singable songs are by Richard Whiting and Johnny Mercer, the latter also collaborating with Harry Warren on the sixth. As threaded through the action in the expert orchestral arrangements by Adolph Deutsch these works, a widely varied collection, highlight the story without stopping it. As sung by Powell and Miss Lane they are quite, quite something.

The story drops a Brooklyn crooner afraid of animals into the midst of life on a dude ranch where he meets the girl. A New York impresario drops in, signs him up for his voice, whisks him across the country to New York and a radio program, and finally, with the assistance of a hypnotist who functions in triplicate, into a Madison Square Garden rodeo.

It's for laughs exclusively and packed with said same.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

New York Preview

"Romance of the Limberlost"

(Monogram)

In getting a first audience to see "Romance of the Limberlost" exhibitors will do well to use the presentation of the Parents' Magazine medal to Monogram for the best family picture of the month as a selling argument. Word of mouth advertising should do the rest. It is a family picture, with a capacity for stirring the sympathy of parents for children who are not getting a fair break in life and arousing the emotions of youngsters who like to see their generation triumph.

The costuming and settings are of the stuffy 1905 period, but the story has plenty of vitality where audiences have not become so sophisticated they think their entertainment should be ultra-modern.

Some fine performances are presented. Marjorie Main's work as the cantankerous, overworked, cabin-dwelling, warped aunt of Jean Parker is a classic—as memorable, in fact, as her performance in "Dead End." And Miss Parker makes her role as the buffeted, misunderstood child so vital there will be tears among those who see the film. Edward Pawley is also outstanding as the cruel widower who beats his "bound" boy, Hollis Jewell.

The screen title says the story was suggested by Gene Stratton-Porter's original, "Her Father's Daughter." Miss Parker, fairylike youngster, is the object of Pawley's affections. The town rises in indignation on the wedding day. Pawley is accidentally shot when seizing a gun held by young Jewell. The boy is acquitted at a trial in which he is defended by Eric Linden.

Running time, 84 minutes. "G."

Wometco Acquires Miami

MIAMI, June 15.—Wometco has taken over the small de luxe Miami which was built last year by Alfred E. Gottesman as a newsreel theatre. The policy will be changed to first run with prices equalling the competitive houses, about 55c top. Stanley Stern, who has been assistant to Sonny Shepherd at the Lincoln, Miami Beach, will be in charge.

Censor Appeal Not Filed

ALBANY, June 15.—Although a show cause order was signed by Supreme Court Justice Gilbert V. Schenck two weeks ago at the request of Arthur Mayer and Joseph Burstyn, distributors of "Remous," papers have not yet been served on the censor board, it has been learned. The film had been refused a license by the state body.

Short Subjects

March of Time, No. 11

(RKO)

This issue is devoted entirely to one subject, "Men of Medicine—1938," in which the reel succeeds in conveying an impression of the benign service rendered by the medical profession in the relief of suffering. Perhaps the material is a bit overdrawn in this regard. In general, the reel is interesting and significant in its explanation and consideration of the fight under way within the profession between the two schools of thought on socialized medicine.

The material briefly sketches the course of the young doctor in school, hospital and his own office, pictures his first night call and first emergency operation to impart dramatic effect, then goes on to show the growth of free clinics, the lack of medical facilities in many sections of the country, the increase in "free" medical service in economic depression, and leads into the problem of the socialization of medicine, which is outlined without prejudice toward either side. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Rise and Sing"

(Vitaphone)

Cross and Dunn, aided by Stadler and Rose, Sylvia and Clemence and John Guy Sampsel, deliver two reels of musical diversion and fun in this short. The action centers in night clubs and a radio station where the featured pair sings. The story concerns Cross' inability to perform due to a nervous breakdown. He needs rest and his manager sees that he doesn't get it. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"Historic Sites and Resorts Along the Norman Coast"

(P. P. Devlin)

This "Screen Traveler" has the usual factually interesting comment but the material that serves as a base is not particularly striking. There are scenes of Falaise, the birthplace of William the Conqueror, the market place and people of Dives, Trouville with its tourists, and Deauville, a beach resort, and the racetrack where the Grand Prix is run. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

Silverstone Says Pact Has No Limitation

the action, therefore, came as "a great surprise" to U. A.'s executive personnel.

Because of the "suddenness" of the move, there has been no time in which to discuss a successor to Dr. Giannini and a decision will be made after he returns, Mr. Silverstone said. In the meantime, the stockholders are to be canvassed on their selections to fill the vacancies.

A board meeting is scheduled for July 5 here to dispose of several matters hanging fire. One is a new long term contract for George J. Schaefer as general manager of distribution in the United States and Canada. Mr. Silverstone has been negotiating the agreement for the company, and it was said that it has been decided upon substantially, with certain details yet to be ironed out. There is no particular hurry on this pact, it was said, since Mr. Schaefer's present contract does not expire until March.

Mr. Silverstone, before sailing, praised Mr. Schaefer highly, saying, "he is the grandest man in the industry and he can stay with U. A. as long as he wants."

Discusses Own Contract

There is no truth to the impression that Mr. Silverstone's contract precludes his election as president or to any other office in U. A., he said.

"I hold an employment contract with the company," he explained, "and under the corporate laws no contract of this nature can sign away a man's rights to his holding office in a corporation, whether as president or anything else."

This is said to be particularly true of the Delaware laws, under which U. A. is incorporated.

Upon Mr. Silverstone's return, the company's headquarters will be in New York.

Morris Helprin, publicity representative for Alexander Korda in America, is accompanying Mr. Silverstone. This is his annual trip to the Denham studios, where he will remain about a month to gather publicity material on new season releases.

Also accompanying Mr. Silverstone are a brother, Dr. Sidney Silverstone of New York, and his bride, who were married Tuesday night and are honeymooning.

the prevention of wage raises among craft unions.

Mr. Steffes stated that the film business here is in better shape by 30 per cent than other industries, adding that nothing is wrong with the industry that good pictures won't correct. He concluded with the assertion that business should pick up in the fall.

Resolutions were adopted pledging support to the Neely bill and to the "divorcement" measures.

Election of officers will be held tomorrow. Percentage and other matters also will be taken up.

Cowdin States "U's" Weekly Gain $50,000

British investment in the company, which is represented by the C. M. Woolf interests.

"The company is fully reorganized and no further changes are anticipated in the executive personnel," he added. "We are not looking for any money. We have all we need. Universal is running smoothly and is in fine condition."

Asked if any deals are in progress or in prospect for the purchase of the stockholdings in Universal held by Robert H. Cochrane, former president, and Charles R. Rogers, former production head, Mr. Cowdin said that there have been no discussions on the matter with either.

"Apparently they are satisfied to remain Universal stockholders," he observed.

He said that his trip is for checkup purposes in London and Paris and that he expected to return in about two weeks. Universal is about the only company that is not bothered by production requirements under the British quota, he said, since they are fully covered by its affiliation with General Film Distributors in Great Britain.

Columbia's Quota Plans Sets

Joseph A. McConville, Columbia foreign manager, who also sailed on the Normandie, said that the company is considering six or seven single quota films or three of double quota to provide for its British production requirements.

Mr. McConville was non-commital on reports that Columbia's British production would be supervised by Alexander Korda and associates, saying that definite plans would be set in conferences with Joseph Friedman, managing director for the United Kingdom.

This is Mr. McConville's first trip to Europe. He said he would be gone from six to eight weeks and his itinerary will include London, Paris, Rome, Prague, Warsaw and other Continental capitals, where he will discuss sales plans with territorial distributors.

Lutherans Condemn Every Chance Game

ROCHESTER, June 15.—The 10th annual convention of the United Lutheran Synod, at a session here today, unanimously disapproved Bingo and all other chance games used for the purpose of raising money.

Paul Terry Named To MPPDA's Board

absence of Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, and a leader in the move to effectuate conciliation machinery, may account for this. It is believed that the subject will be discussed informally at the adjourned meeting next Wednesday. However, definite action on the furtherance of a self-regulatory program for distribution and exhibition appears to be still many weeks distant and, as reported earlier, the ultimate action will be taken by distribution executives rather than the company heads. Discussion of the subject by the M.P.P.D.A. board will signalize only the acceleration of the move to put a plan of trade practice regulation into effect.

The industry's participation in the New York World's Fair was discussed, but no action was taken. The subject will come before the board again at later meetings.

At yesterday's session were: Barney Balaban, Paramount; Harry D. Buckley, United Artists; E. W. Hammors, Educational; Jack Cohn, Columbia; Will H. Hays, Frederick L. Herron, Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's and Leo Spitz, RKO.

Salaries Hit New High Level in '37

1931, when they amounted to $184,076,000.

Profits drawn by individuals in the production branch were very small, because the bulk of the industry is in the hands of corporations, but in the theatre branch they amounted to $10,837,000 compared with $9,941,000 in 1936.

Refuse Consideration Of Sirovich Measure measure was to be taken up for consideration.

Mr. Sirovich made a strong plea for action on the bill, initially speaking to a house so bare of members that he was halted while a quorum was assembled. Not particularly interested in anything but adjournment, the House listened patiently to arguments for and against the measure and then voted to drop it.

Screen Beer Ads Stir Up Wide Protest to permit their children to attend theatres which show beer films, which run a maximum of one minute.

A temperance policy is also urged by the National Advisory Council for Screen Advertising, which includes 10 heads of circuits and advertising executives of a variety of companies. The consensus of the group is that the screen should abandon beer advertising so as not to expose the medium to controversy.

Liquor advertising has never been permitted on theatre screens by the voluntary action of the screen ad companies and exhibitors, according to Mr. Alexander.

Queried on patent medicine advertising, exhibitor members of the council were unwilling to extend the anti-beer taboo to this classification or to lay down a hard and fast rule, declaring that many types of patent medicine screen ads are not objectionable.

Most Prefer 60-foot Film

Seventy-five per cent of the replies in the survey indicated 60 feet as the proper length of the advertising films, with the theatre men overwhelmingly in favor of brevity in releases. Advertising agencies, however, leaned toward the use of 90-foot films in campaigns of limited periods.

The consensus of the council also leaned strongly toward the use of straightforward copy rather than too obvious an effort to conceal the advertising purpose under the guise of entertainment.

Exhibitor members of the council include: E. C. Beatty of the Butterfield circuit in Michigan; Harry Brandt, New York; H. F. Kincey of Wilby & Kincey, Texas; Verne Taylor, San Francisco; Fred Wehrenberg, St. Louis; George Mann, Redwood Theatres, San Francisco; O. K. Mason, Commonwealth Theatres, Kansas City; P. R. Isely, Southwestern Theatres, Tulsa; Frank D. Rubel, Pioneer Theatres, Des Moines, and Ed Rowley of Robb & Rowley, Dallas.

FCC to Push Probe Due to House Vote

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Members of the Federal Communications Commission today were reluctant to discuss the action of the House last night in rejecting the Connery probe resolution, but there was no question of their relief over the removal of the menace of a Congressional investigation.

The only really disappointed member of the F. C. C. was Commissioner George H. Payne, whose charges of lobbying brought about nationwide publicity which practically forced the resolution to a vote, who was described during the House debate as a "disgruntled Republican."

Members of the commission said that with the threat of investigation out of the way they would proceed full speed with their own probe of alleged monopoly in broadcasting, hearings on which will probably begin some time next month, and gave assurances that by the time Congress again meets the whole situation will have been explored and remedies devised for any evils which may be exposed.

affected by WLW's high power programs. It was explained that national advertisers are desirous of cultivating the good will of local distributors and so would continue to patronize the more local broadcasters, while at the same time, it was represented, there is a good deal of feeling in local communities that outside agencies that compete with local interests are detrimental.

A plea for an increase in the number of Class 1-A stations, from 25 to 26, in order to accommodate WCAU, Philadelphia, was submitted to the commission by Dr. Leon Levy, president of the station.

WCAU is the only Columbia outlet in the city, Dr. Levy testified, and relegation of the station to an inferior status would be adverse to the interests of Philadelphia listeners.

Explaining the advantages of network operation, he expressed the view that many of the stations associated with the chains could make just as much money if they broadcast without network service, but the public would suffer, so that the major reason for chain participation is to give the best possible service to the radio audience.

"Inside of Sports" is heard Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 7:30 P. M. over the stations of the Mutual network.

WASHINGTON, June 16. — Super- ower will solve the problem of af- rding efficient reception to all parts the country, will bring about a gen- al improvement in programs and will ell prosperity for the broadcasting dustry, the Federal Communications ommission was told today.

Appearing on behalf of the clear annel group, Joseph O. Maland, ice-president and manager of Station VHO, Des Moines, testified that ad- ertisers would be willing to pay the icreased charges necessitated by iper-power operation, but would not bandon their advertising over less owerful stations because of the lat- er's local appeal.

Heavier charges of super-power sta- ons will be offset by the larger audi- nces the advertising will reach, he ontinued, and the same increase in "Josette" grossed $33,500 at the Roxy in the week ended last night.

"Blockade" opened strongly at the Music Hall yesterday, the first day's take being estimated at $12,000, with standees much in evidence.

Producers and Screen Actors Will Arbitrate

A. A. A. the Third Party In Negotiations

HOLLYWOOD, June 16.—Having failed to agree on some of the demands made by both sides, the Screen Actors' Guild and the producer signatories to the actors' agreement have mutually decided to arbitrate the entire schedule of readjustments in the terms of the contract. Murray Kinnell will represent the guild and B. B. Kahane will speak for the producers. The American Arbitration Association has been selected as the third party as agreed in the contract signed last year.

Although both the guild and the producers are in harmony on some concessions it had been previously decided that arbitration would be resorted to unless all agreed upon the entire schedule of demands. Three or four weeks will be necessary to prepare the cases of both sides.

To Americanize Reel Abroad, Says Talley

Foreign editions of Movietone News will be "Americanized," with tempo speeded up and the stories narrated and departmentalized in the manner of the domestic reel, it was said yesterday by Truman H. Talley, producer of the newsreel.

European coverage has been augmented by the addition of six narrators and other specialists, including three "name" commentators. These are Jean Toscane, the Lowell Thomas of France, who is chief news commentator for the French edition; George Pieters, noted sports writer of the Paris Soir, who is narrating sports as Ed Thorgersen does for the American reel, and Leslie Mitchell, well known BBC announcer and ac-

Congress End Leaves Film Bills in Air

Dead Measures Will Have To Be Reintroduced

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Another Congress is about to pass into history. This will wipe the legislative slate clean, and film legislation which may be sought next year will have to start from scratch.

"In the mill," but not acted upon is the Neely block-booking bill and a number of other measures which had been introduced since the first session started Jan. 5, 1937.

If a special session is called in the fall to act on railroad measures, it might be possible to revive this bill then, however.

Block-booking legislation this year got further than ever before in its history, being passed by the Senate and blocked in the House only by the that it no longer would administrate the contract. The move dissolved the Academy's final tie to the economic activities of the industry. The writers' and Actors' agreements on working conditions which the Academy formerly held were taken over by Screen Playwrights, Inc., and Screen Actors' Guild, respectively, last year.

The letter to 20th Century-Fox, M-G-M, Columbia, Paramount, RKO, Universal and Warners declared that the governors hoped that conditions under the agreement would remain general industry practice as many benefits had accrued to first assistant directors under the pact. The contract was signed in 1934 and in addition to granting assistant directors screen credit established the rule of giving a one week's salary bonus to free lance first assistants upon the completion of the picture.

The special reorganization committee of the Academy has made its report to the board, which is now studying the recommendations.

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 80

(20th Century-Fox)

Loggers at work to prevent jams in the mountains of Wyoming, in the midst of a blizzard, provide a clip of spectacular beauty. The West Point graduates receive their diplomas from Secretary of War Woodring and toss their hats at the conclusion.

There is human appeal in the clip showing Mme. Chiang Kai-shek inspecting a school for homeless Chinese children, war victims. In the San Francisco Mint, Chinese silver dollars are produced on order from the Chinese Government, in an interesting process. Missouri girls engage in a "smile" contest, and Australian girls pick daffodils. Warren Allen, 62, returns to the work of his youth, and drops in a parachute from a balloon. Lew Lehr's comment is amusing. It accompanies pictures of a six-month-old Chicago baby of amazing strength. The sporting division pictures a hardy group of motorcyclists in a European race; "yachting" on the sand at Cairo, Egypt, with the boats mounted on wheels and the wind filling the sails, and surf casting on the beach at Cape Charles, Va. Running time, 10 mins.

News of the Day

(M-G-M)

West Point on parade on graduation day, with the beauty of the setting as a background, makes for an attractice opening clip, followed by scenes of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek visiting a school for Chinese refugee children, some hardly more than three years old; the minting of coins for the Chinese Government at the San Francisco Mint, and the unusually strong Chicago baby, whose father tosses him about on the edge of a roof. The last bit is a feminine spine-chiller.

Shots at the closing of Congress include a strikingly effective night picture of the Capitol, Vice-President Garner and Speaker Bankhead signing bills, and Representatives Snell and Rayburn expressing opposing views on the work of the expiring Congress. The rest of the reel includes pictures of the wedding of a wealthy Great Neck, L. I., girl to a young tradesman; a large-scale calisthenics demonstration of London women; a cross-country motorcycle race in England, and the usual mauling in a Fort Hamilton wrestling bout. Running time, 9 mins.

Bombing planes in mimic warfare, this time in France, appear again in what is getting to be a grim routine of universal preparedness for war in all the newsreels. Nature, resisting man's war fever, brings drought to Europe, possibly insuring peace a little longer, for American's dust bowl is shown in contrasting fertility to Europe and itself, a year or two ago.

Heiress Andra Luckenback's Long Island wedding, exclusive clips of the arraignment of Cash kidnapper Franklin McCall, and lighter spots from abroad, the London Zoo opening and Belgium bachelors being feted by village belles, provide interesting shots.

Divergent opinions of Congressmen on the eve of adjournment are hitched on to a seldom-seen shot of Congress' private subway, and the reel finishes with the always thrilling dress parade before graduation of the West Point cadets. Running time, 8½ mins.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 65

(RKO)

This issue scores with a well composed story of the windup of Congress, showing the leaders in the final hours of the session and members preparing to leave for their homes, some on one-way trips. The newsreels' usual impartiality is evidenced in praise and criticism of the session's accomplishments spoken by opposition leaders.

A good "exclusive" is that of Johnny Vander Meer's no-hit, no-run game at the opening of night baseball in Brooklyn. Some parts of the diamond were not adequately lighted for the camera, but there's enough action to satisfy the fans. Other topics deal with the return of Charlie Yates, who captured the British amateur golf title, and the American Walker Cup team; the U. S. mint producing coins for China; WPA workers wrecking a building by means of a huge metal ball. A style show by the editors of Vogue is also designed to please the men, if the closeups of the models are an indication. Running time, 8 mins.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 10, No. 676

(Universal)

Graduation exercises at West Point furnish the opening clip in this issue. The camera was moved about enough to make the details interesting.

The closing days of Congress are brought to the screen with shots of Vice-President Garner signing bills, of Representative Snell telling what the House didn't do, and with Majority Leader Rayburn telling what it did do. A French air mission arrives in England, but this is nothing to get excited about.

A forest fire at Kuilcene, Wash., photographed both from the air and ground, is spectacular. A subject of especial interest is the initiation of Winthrop Rockefeller into the Saints and Sinners. A Rockefeller being kidded is a novelty. There are some laughs in rodeo shots from Livermore, Cal., and some excitement in a dirt track automobile race at Chicago. Something new in the way of aquaplaning shows devotees of the sport riding the waves at night while carrying flares. Summer skiing at Mt. Hood, Ore., furnishes both thrills and laughs. Europe Has Nothing New for Leonidoff

The entertainment capitals of Europe have nothing new to offer in the way of production ideas for the Music Hall and American producers are fast outstripping their colleagues overseas in ideas and technique, it was reported yesterday by Leon Leonidoff, senior producer of the Music Hall, who returned from a six-week stay in London and on the Continent.

Mr. Leonidoff went over on his annual scouting expedition. He found nothing to brag about in the British capital and the same old stuff, virtually, in Paris, even to the same Mistinguette and her plumes at the Folies Bergere. In all the acknowledged centers of stage production he found the style and form creaking with age. He went as far east as Prague and then south to Florence and the Riviera.

He did, however, spot some fresh faces and talent, chiefly in the cabarets, and may bring some of them over for Music Hall shows.

Higher Power Will Benefit Air, FCC Told audience will be the motivating factor in improvement of programs.

"There are many improvements in detail that may be expected," Mr. Maland said. "There will be, in general, a reduction in the amount of advertising permitted and the elimination of spot announcements. There will be a marked tendency toward individuality and originality in each station, as it competes with other stations of the same class for the listener's attention."

The clear channel group's testimony followed a plea for consideration of the WOR claims for inclusion among the Class 1-A stations by C. M. Jansky, Jr., consulting radio engineer.

As the second week of hearings on the proposed new rules for broadcasting stations drew toward a close, the commission had heard only a small proportion of the many interests which had petitioned for time, and indications are that unless the testimony is speeded up, the hearings would continue well into next month.

have been heard but not yet decided. The same procedure will be followed this year, it was indicated.

With the current series of hearings on new broadcasting rules seen running well into July, little time would remain for discussion of monopoly conditions in broadcasting, for which it is expected several weeks will be required. Accordingly, consideration is being given to postponement of those hearings until early in September, giving the commission staff additional time in which to prepare data on a number of surveys it is making.

Extend Kellogg Program

The Kellogg Co., now sponsoring the serial script, "Don Winslow of the Navy" over five NBC Blue stations, will extend the show to the entire Blue network beginning Sept. 26. The contract is for 52 weeks, through Hays MacFarland of Chicago. The program is heard five times weekly from 7 to 7:15 P. M.

CBS Has New Sustainer

Irene Beasley will begin a new sustaining series, "R. F. D. No. 1," over CBS beginning July 4 from 12:15 to 12:30 P. M., and five times weekly at this time thereafter. The show is designed primarily for the rural audience with appropriate songs and commentary by Miss Beasley.

Added Frequencies Will be Available

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Sixteen additional broadcasting frequencies will eventually be made available for use in the United States under the Inter-American Regional Broadcasting Agreement and Radio Communications Convention ratified last night by the Senate, it was said today by Federal Communications commissioner T. A. M. Craven.

However, the commissioner pointed out, the agreement will not become effective until signed by the other American governments, which he does not believe will be possible in less than a year.

The additional frequencies will not be exclusively for United States use, but this country will be able to do some broadcasting on all of them, and present congestion will be relieved to some extent, he said.

Engineers' Awards Presented at Meet

The medal of honor of the Institute of Radio Engineers yesterday was awarded to John Howard Dellinger for his contributions to the development of radio measurements and standards. The presentation was made at the opening session of the institute's three-day meeting at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

The Morris Liebmann Memorial prize went to George C. Southworth and an award of $100 in cash was presented to A. L. Samuel for having contributed the best paper on a technical radio subject.

WBNX Change Approved

WASHINGTON, June 16.—A Federal Communications Commission examiner today recommended that WBNX, New York, be granted permission to increase its broadcasting power to 5,000 watts during the day and 1,000 watts at night. WMBG, Richmond, won a similar recommendation.

Congress End Leaves Film Bills in Air

refusal of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to report any bill on which it had not held hearings and the lack of time for such hearings.

Several hundred of the more than 15,000 bills introduced during the past session were enacted into law, but only a few directly affected the film industry.

Chief among these was the Revenue Act of 1938, carrying a provision for continuance of the admission tax, with relief for the legitimate stage in an amendment making the tax applicable to the price for which a ticket is actually sold rather than the price printed thereon; the easing of the undistributed profits tax, lifted entirely from corporations with incomes not in excess of $25,000, and a rewriting of the capital gains tax.

Wage, Hour Bill Vital

Of considerable importance to many units in the industry will be the wage-hour legislation, seen as affecting a few employes in the production end, more widely applicable to the distributors, and probably hitting the operators of theatre circuits, although exhibitors with individual houses or purely local chains will be exempt.

Monopoly conditions in the industry will probably come in for scrutiny by the joint Congressional-Executive committee created under the O'Mahoney resolution to make investigations and provide a groundwork for new anti-trust legislation. Couched in broad terms, the resolution gives the committee leeway to probe conditions in any and all industries; $500,000 is provided for expenses of the inquiry, of which $400,000 will be allocated by the President among the Governmental agencies participating.

Representatives of the Justice, Treasury, Labor and Commerce Departments, the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission, with a half-dozen members of Congress, will comprise the committee.

Neely Bill Important

In the field of legislation directly aimed at the motion picture industry, the Neely bill was by far the most important. The only other film bill to receive any attention whatever, in fact, was the measure for creation of a Bureau of Fine Arts, introduced in the Senate by Senator Pepper of Florida and in the House by Representative Sirovich of New York. Both Senate and House committees held extensive hearings on the legislation, the House Patents Committee reporting it favorably and, in the final days of the session, getting a rule from the House Rules Committee permitting its consideration by the House. The measure yesterday was defeated in the House by a vote of 195-31.

The only other measures introduced during the session of interest to the industry were the bills of Senator Thomas of Oklahoma to concentrate all Federal motion picture activities in the Government Printing Office; Representative Hobbs of Alabama for the use of films to record court proceedings; Representatives Connery of Massachusetts and McFarlane of Texas to deprive patent owners of their monopolies; Representative Cannon of Wisconsin to provide Federal guardians for child picture actors to safeguard their earnings, and Representative Celler of New York to repeal the ban on interstate transportation of fight films.

No consideration was given during the session to bills for amendment of copyright law, for exclusion of alien actors or for investigation of the industry, on which measures were introduced during 1937.

Upon arrival Mr. Talley looked over the new studio building under construction back of the Movietone Building at 53rd St. and 10th Ave. and expressed satisfaction with the progress made in his absence. The building, going up under the supervision of E. I. Sponable, technical supervisor, is expected to be completed Oct. 1. Wobber's Contract as 20th-Fox Sales Head to Run Five Years

Herman Wobber

Herman Wobber has signed a five-year contract as general manager of distribution of 20th Century-Fox, the terms calling for his supervision of the company's sales activities in the United States and Canada.

His appointment initially was regarded as a temporary one, as Mr. Wobber had expressed a desire to return to his home in San Francisco but was remaining to supervise the sales department at the insistence of S. R. Kent, president. Mr. Kent subsequently issued a statement declaring the appointment to be a permanent one. The five-year contract indicates that Mr. Kent was successful in convincing Mr. Wobber, who has been closely associated with the company head for many years.

Prior to his appointment on June 6 as successor to the late John D. Clark, Mr. Wobber was district manager with headquarters in San Francisco. His present plans call for the supervision of the western territory from New York.

Estimate 20,000,000 Now Within Television Range

There are now approximately 20,000,000 potential televiewers within the range of major television stations now licensed by the Federal Communications Commission, according to a radius survey conducted by the American Television Corp., makers of the first television receiver sets to go on public sale.

In the New York and Philadelphia region four transmitters are, or shortly will be, equipped to create two overlapping "circles" of television radius. This range will serve two-thirds of a population of 16,000,000 in the territory. The lower west coast is within call of the Don Lee station at Los Angeles.

The General Television Corp., serving Boston, is prepared to broadcast to owners of television home receivers in that area. While the New York transmitter of RCA is being remodeled and the CBS television is being installed in the Chrysler Building tower, the American Television Corp. plans to be the first to intro-

Starr Praises Code Efforts of Quigley

The conferring of the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature on Martin Quigley by Loyola University in Los Angeles brought a tribute from Martin Starr, film commentator, on his program broadcast last night over WMCA and the Inter-City network.

"In an industry that makes a business of commercializing art, an art with a mass appeal more popular than most of the other man-made arts combined, it was natural that many innocent errors were made in the name of the art," said Mr. Starr. "But the movies soon came to the realization that upon its own shoulders

Los Angeles, June 12.—The booking on Friday of "The Birth of a Baby" without Production Code symbol for a run of one week in the Paramount, largest Los Angeles house now open and which is operated under a lease by Fanchon & Marco, precipitated a controversy and resulted in arrangements for an invitational showing Tuesday morning at the theatre, when, it was indicated, members of women's clubs and other organizations will debate the issue of its suitability for public showings.

"Hoarding" of Films Hit by Harry Warner

Asks Higher Quality in Summer Product

Hollywood, June 19.—In a stormy statement which Harry M. Warner directed at other Hollywood producers whom he did not mention by name, the president of Warner Bros. Inc., on Friday excited Hollywood by accusing some rival studio heads of "deliberately withholding their important films until autumn while their course of action has placed the country in a famine for grade-A entertainment, and has seen the motion picture theatres enter a slump."

While bitterly reproaching the "heads of certain producing organizations" for conduct which, he declared, is in large part responsible for the slump which has affected various branches of the film industry, Mr. Warner pledged his own organization to an $8,000,000 effort in which it

Small Theatre Plan Leading Topic at CEA

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, June 19.—A concentrated effort to obtain from the full body of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association approval of the current drive to gain from the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) concessions for smaller exhibitors, will be sought by the C. E. A. general council at the annual summer conference which will open at Folkstone in Kent tomorrow.

That effort and the conversations with the K. R. S. relative to the small exhibitor plan and on other matters will be the highlights of this year's meeting. The general council is expected to ask the rank and file membership of the association to ratify the continuance of the current organization policy of friendly discussion with the K. R. S., and under which care is exercised to avoid embarrassing situations.

Provisions Outlined

The general council has written to the distributors deploring their refusal to agree to the small exhibitor plan as presented by the C. E. A. The plan, in essence, provides that all exhibitors whose average weekly gross does not exceed £150 per week be eligible to participate. These exhibitors would be entitled to book the product of any distributor for a rental of 25 per cent of all grosses up to the theatre's average, and a split of 50 per cent for grosses above that figure.

Such a plan was in effect a couple of years ago, but applied only to features. Also the distributors usually eliminated their specials from the arrangement. Now the exhibitors want all films equally available under the plan. The K. R. S. has refused the plan as an organization and told the C. E. A. separate negotiations must be carried on with individual distributors.

C. E. A. members were circularized during the weekend with propaganda memoranda on the small exhibitor plan, along the same lines, in style and format, to the memos sent out to members by C. E. A. officials during the recent anti-grading campaign which the exhibitor organization waged successfully.

Paramount British Plans Are Delayed

The completion of plans for Paramount's initial production activities in England were again delayed following weekend conferences between Barney Balaban, president, and John W. "Robin Hood" Boston Smash With $21,000

Boston, June 19.—"Adventures of Robin Hood," billed with "Little Miss Thoroughbred," skyrocketed at the Metropolitan and gained for itself the distinction of being the first program ever to be retained for a second week at the M. & P. theatre. Expect More Delay For Tampa Hearing

Tampa, June 19.—The anti-trust suit of Rivoli Theatre, Inc., against United Artists, other national distributors and two local circuits, Casino Enterprises, Inc., and Consolidated Theatres, Inc., which was scheduled to be heard in the U. S. District Court here in June, will probably be continued again until the September term.

N. V. Darley, who was manager of the two theatres operated by the Rivoli company and the principal stockholder, said that when the case came up in January his attorneys had requested a continuance until June. In April the Rivoli attorneys went into Circuit Court here and asked the court to require the two local circuits named in the case to produce certain evidence as to the control of the theatres and as to the leasing of films by them.

Also, Al is interviewed every Wednesday night on WMCA.

Warbling

Joe Rosenfield, manager of the Warner-Saxe Modjeska (that's a theatre) in Milwaukee, and E. R. Brennan, pilot of the Fox Orpheum, Green Bay, Wis., are $50 each to the good, this being their prize for the best all-around campaign on "Everybody Sing," sponsored by M-G-M's branch in that territory. At least those two are warbling.

"Hoarding" of Films Hit by Harry Warner

will attempt, single handed if necessary, to pull the motion picture business out of the industry's present condition.

Mr. Warner was blunt in his discussion of what he termed "the unfair policy of hoarding pictures." Such a policy, he said, helped force the substantial drop in motion picture theatre patronage which has recently been marked in the financial statements of the major film corporations. These figures have within the past weeks disclosed that all film companies were off in earnings for the first three quarters of this year, with some firms as high as forty per cent behind last year.

W. B. Summer Group Large

In his blast at the film companies for "hoarding" their top flight productions, Mr. Warner announced that his own company is making available for rapid release a group of productions aggregating in excess of $3,000,000 in investment in order to supplement the summer production output of $5,000,000 worth of complete pictures, which had already been scheduled for distribution during July and August, making a total of $8,000,000 worth of films available almost immediately for the theatres of America.

Mr. Warner called on other producers to follow suit. "The theatre market must very quickly be furnished with sufficient Grade A pictures to take up the slack which is now forcing exhibitors to play old and reissued films," he said, as operator of more than 450 theatres throughout the country. The executive added that he was so close to the problem that he realized better than some other Hollywood producers the actual state of financial dejection in which the theatre exhibitors found themselves. He declared:

"It is up to the industry in Hollywood to help to do something for the theatre end of the business and it will have to be done fast. With conditions as they are there is no fallacy that could be more expensive to the entire business than adherence to that old policy that used to be described as 'waiting until more favorable business conditions and more favorable weather arrives.' That policy will not avail the business this summer. Quick measures are needed. It is my duty, and it is the obligation of other studios as well, to prime the box office pump immediately. Get your blue chips up on the screens of America's theatres where audiences can see them.

Calls Public Deserving

"The public which has supported this industry since its inception is entitled to our best efforts at all times regardless of weather or the conditions in other businesses. It is not playing fair with the public and the exhibitors to withhold the fine pictures which are being 'saved' for a later time.

"We might have held back our own smash picture 'The Adventures of Robin Hood' for the autumn, but we felt it was our duty to play ball with the theatres and the public, and give it to them just as quickly as possible.

"Warner Bros. already had planned to give the theatres five big productions during July and August. These include 'Cowboy from Brooklyn,' 'White Banners,' 'My Bill,' 'Racket Busters' and 'Four's a Crowd.' Recognizing the deplorable lack of big productions, however, our company has decided also to release an additional group of films during July and August. These are 'The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse,' 'Boy Meets Girl,' and 'Sister Act,' Fannie Hurst's great story.

Says Studio Is Busy

"We are now calling upon our studio organization to go to work on a 24-hour basis to rush the aforementioned pictures to completion so that they can be made available to the theatres throughout the country on the specified dates."

Mr. Warner was caustic in his condemnation of a policy of releasing films made anywhere from five to fifteen years ago to serve as substitutes for the "hoarded" features of the present. In this connection he said:

"Reissuing the old productions which have been played the length and breadth of the country is not going to satisfy the entertainment needs of the public. People pay good money at the box offices and they are entitled to see new fresh screen fare, not yesterday's second-hand entertainment. The public wants films that are new and as timely as tomorrow's newspaper."

Offers Recovery Rule

"Warner Bros.," he said, "have learned through profitable experience that you can lick economic situations only by courageously putting forth your strongest efforts and not by relaxing when things seem bad. When the public tired of silent motion pictures, our company introduced talking pictures and the whole industry benefited by a renewed and greater patron interest in our product. Again, when the depression had discouraged some of our competitors, we gave '42nd Street' to the theatres of the country and the terrific public response ratified our decision, reached against the advice of veteran bigwigs of the industry.

"Again this spring, in the face of recession conditions, Warner Bros. brought out 'The Adventures of Robin Hood.' Public reaction to this production has been immensely gratifying.

"In the face of conditions such as I have mentioned, I now call upon fellow producers, who, I know, have the problems of this industry as much at heart as I, to follow suit. Let us create a new and greater movie season by placing upon the screens of America the finest films which Hollywood can produce."

M-G-M Pleased with Its Checking System

M-G-M's own checking system, which is now in effect at all exchanges, is working out very satisfactorily, according to Alan F. Cummings, in charge of exchange operations.

The results are good, says Mr. Cummings, because the field men maintain an intimate contact with exhibitors and are part of the company's own organization.

M-G-M and Warners are the only major companies maintaining their own checking staffs. The others use Ross Federal Service.

Jerry Jonas, roving field representative under Mr. Cummings, last week completed an eight-month survey of M-G-M's checking operations in the entire country. He will leave on another trip today, starting in Philadelphia, then will travel south and to the coast, expecting to be gone from six to eight months.

Hollywood Previews

"Ladies in Distress"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—The "set a thief to catch a thief" idea handled with becoming regard for the probabilities serves Alison Skipworth, Polly Moran, Robert Livingston, Berton Churchill and Virginia Grey admirably in this soundly conceived and executed comedy drama. The place is a medium sized mid-American city to which big town racketeers have come for easy money. The action has to do with their undoing. It all equals solid entertainment.

Miss Skipworth is cast as Mayoress Bonney of Bonneyville, a city founded by her ancestors. When thugs working in concert with the respected but dishonest civic leader, Churchill, inflict a "merchants' protection" racket upon the business men and open gambling houses as a sideline, the citizens denounce the administration. Declaring a state of emergency, Mayoress Skipworth imports Livingston, former Bonneyville bad boy now grown to big shot metropolitan gambler status, to pose as special investigator under an assumed name and rid the city of its foes. He succeeds in doing so, by reasonable and melodramatic methods, and marries the girl. The things that happen in this one not only could but do happen in a great many towns across the land.

Harry Grey, associate producer; Gus Meins, director; Dore Schary, author, and the screen playwrights, Dorrell and Stuart McGowan, seem to have set out to fabricate a film for the plain American citizens of whom there are so many. They succeeded completely.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Border G-Man"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—Timeliness in plot, in that it is based on breaking of the United States neutrality act by a gang of smugglers seeking to ship arms to an unnamed nation for a revolution, is the essence of plans for exploitation of RKO'S "Border G-Man," second of the series of George O'Brien outdoor vehicles. O'Brien active with fists, gun and horses as ever, plays the role of a Department of Justice agent who poses as a ranch foreman, wins his way into the confidence of the gang, and then breaks up the scheme by which horses, riders trained in calvary tactics, guns and ammunition were to be shipped to South America.

Supporting O'Brien are Laraine Johnson, a pretty young woman who makes an impressive debut in her first leading role; Ray Whitley, radio-film singer who also wrote the three western songs used in the production; John Miljan, Rita LaRoy, Edgar Dearing, William Stelling, Edward Keane, Ethan Laidlaw, Hugh Sothern and Bobby Burns.

Bert Gilroy produced and David Howard directed.

O'Brien, Department of Justice agent, is sent to a ranch along the Mexican border in the vicinity of gun smuggling suspects. When he joins the smuggling gang by a clever ruse, his intentions are doubted by Miss Johnson, sister of a Senator's son, implicated through trickery in a bogus company which plans to smuggle fighters, horses, bullets and guns to South America. O'Brien, in a typical vigorous climax wins out, stops the gang and gets the girl.

Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

"Keep Smiling"

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—Jane Withers continues her adventures with "Keep Smiling," a comedy which fits her many talents. She travels from a girls' boarding school to Hollywood, enters films after many experiences aiding others and becomes a potential star. In addition to the showmanship value of the story's inclusion of Hollywood, there is an unusual peg on which a campaign may be hooked. That is Jane's imitations and burlesques of various entertainers, including Joan Davis, Deanna Durbin, Bobby Breen, Harry Ritz and George Arliss.

Supporting her are Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxon, Helen Westley, Jed Prouty, Douglas Fowley, Robert Allen, Pedro De Cordoba, Claudia Coleman, Paula Rae Wright, The Three Nelsons, Etta McDaniel, Carmencita, Mary McCarthy and Hal K. Dawson. Herbert I. Leeds directed from the screenplay of Frances Hyland and Albert Ray, based on an original idea of Frank Fenton and Lynn Root. John Stone was the associate producer.

Anxious to see her uncle, whom she believes is a famous film director in Hollywood, Jane runs away from school and arrives at the film capital to find her relative, Henry Wilcoxon, bankrupt, his job gone because of his drinking. After repeated attempts to get him work, and to smooth his romance with Gloria Stuart, she succeeds in regenerating him, and gets herself a job as a film actress.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"People of the Cumberland"

(Garrison)

This film is a documentary treatment of the economic ills of the residents of the Tennessee mountain region. The material is fairly unadulterated realism that in successive steps shows the plight of the people at the outset, how they live and what they suffer. The Highlander School is built and the process of educating people for the improvement of their condition begins.

Union organization follows with an insight to the difficulties of organizers who are done away with in the manner reported in daily newspapers. With labor unions comes new prosperity and happiness and the scenario covers a family outing at a typical "union-town" in which the residents are seen in strong contrast to the mountain folk.

The film makes no bones about its intent and at the conclusion the narrator speaks glowingly of the new life of the Cumberland people which they must create with hard work and, the aid of the TVA Government project. It's hardly to be labelled entertaining, but it presents views on problems which are of national interest. Frontier Films produced. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Hunky and Spunky"

(Paramount)

Hunky and Spunky are a couple of cute Max Fleischer mules who are going to win friends and influence laughs. These two new screen cartoon characters are introduced in a charming color cartoon with plenty of laughs and a lilting melody against a Colorado background. Hunky is the ma mule and Spunky is her child, who wanders away and gets lassoed by a prospector who's tired of hauling his own. But the mulelet's frantic cries of "Mummy" bring Hunky to the rescue, and with a couple of well-placed kicks she gives the prospector his comeuppance which is followed by his comedownance on his beam with a resounding thud. A good short. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Clyde Lucas and his Orchestra"

(Vitaphone)

This "Melody Master" offers more music of different types than any preceding numbers. The tunes vary from polished modern numbers, a Strauss waltz, hot swing and Latin rhythms to a jam session. The orchestrations are excellent. There are no dancing or singing specialties to interfere with the melody. First rate entertainment. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Community Sing 10-2"

(Columbia)

This number of the series is an excellent item for the exhibitor to offer his patrons, if they are patriotically minded, for the holiday next month. The numbers involved and which are sung in military surroundings include: "Hail Columbia," "America," "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie," "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" and "The Star Spangled Banner." Running time, 10 mins. "G."

The nominations of management men to fill the two vacancies on the board are expected to center on either Walter B. Cokell, treasurer; George L. Bagnall or John W. Hicks, Jr., vice-presidents.

run house, and Harry Wallen, theatre manager, is uncertain at present what the complete bill will be. He said Mr. Skirball and others interested in the film are "particular what short subjects to play with the picture and double billing is not permitted." The house heretofore played Paramount first-run and some M-G-M product.

Unofficial protests have been lodged with the Hays office here by Representatives of women's organizations, it was learned. Refusing to disclose what action her group would take, Mrs. W. A. Burk, president of the Southern California Motion Picture Council, which reviews films, declared the group's board would go into executive session following the showing. "I have no fault to find with the picture as far as its scientific research goes," she said. "I am still hopeful, however, that the picture will be shown in its legitimate field. It has definite scientific and educational value but motion picture theatres are centers of entertainment and their audiences are made up of persons from the youngest infants to those in dotage, all seeking entertainment. There should be shown in public theatres no pictures presenting controversial or disturbing themes."

Mrs. Leo B. Hedges, state chairman of the California Parent and Teachers Association stated that none of her organization has seen the film but that "our actions will be based upon observations made at Tuesday's preview. If unfavorable, we will do all in our power to prevent the exhibition of the film." Many of the organization, she said, will review the production.

March of Time May Get Out New Films

whatever work is being done along this line is experimental.

Louis de Rochemont, producer of March of Time, said over the weekend that wide approval of the devotion of the monthly release to one subject, as the current "Men of Medicine," may lead to more individual films of this type. He is spending this week with a camera crew in New England.

Stover Given Permit To Study RKO Books

Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday granted an application of John Stover, acting for Ernest W. Stirn, holder of 1,234 shares of unconverted Class A stock of RKO, to examine the books and records of RKO, now in the hands of the Irving Trust Co., trustee, on four counts: first, to inspect the list of Class A stockholders of RKO as of Nov. 23, 1931; second, a list of stockholders' proxies for that date; third, a list of Class A stockholders of March 5, 1931, and last a list of stockholders' proxies as of the same date.

There are approximately 20,000 proxies listed, Stirn stated. It is Mr. Stirn's claim that on Nov. 23, 1931, at an extraordinary stockholders' meeting, less than two-thirds majority was secured by RKO in converting its Class A stock into common. For this reason, Mr. Stirn asserted, he has demanded, although failed to obtain, a preferential treatment in the RKO reorganization plan.

20th-Fox Files a Denial

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. yesterday filed its answer in the U. S. District Court to the $31,930 damage suit brought by nine plaintiffs who claim that they were injured in the fire which occured in the company's warehouse for negatives and prints at Little Ferry, N. J., July 9 of last year.

The answer denied the negligence charged by the plaintiffs and contends that "the fire was occasioned by causes out of the control of the defendant."

Paramount Wins Point in Suit

Application of Paramount Pictures, Inc., to bar Emma S. Hammerstein, executrix of Oscar Hammerstein, from presenting her proofs in her suit to restrain Paramount from advertising the name Oscar Hammerstein as the author of "High, Wide and Handsome," was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck, unless the plaintiff files a bill of particulars by June 25.

At the same time Justice Schmuck denied the plaintiff's application to vacate the demand for a bill made by Paramount. Paramount claims that the Oscar Hammerstein advertised as the author of "High, Wide and Handsome" is Oscar Hammerstein II, a grandson.

Catholics Protest Showing "Blockade"

Catholic organizations have registered protests against the Walter Wanger film, "Blockade," now playing at the Music Hall. Joseph F. Lamb, deputy of the New York State Council of the Knights of Columbus, addressed a telegram to Will H. Hays, president of the M.P.P.D.A., in which he denounced the film as "Marxist propaganda."

The Catholic News on Saturday declared in an editorial that the film "will stir up prejudice, bad feeling and contention among many groups of people."

New York's Quota Bill Languishing

The proposal introduced in th New York City Council early in th spring designed to require producer whose pictures are to be shown withir the city to make 10 per cent of thei total product in New York will b permitted to die in committee, it wa learned from an authoritative so over the weekend.

The measure was introduced b Councilman Hugh Quinn of Queens and had the backing of eastern studic unions. It proposed the licensing b the city of producers or distributors whose pictures were to be shown in city theatres. In order to obtain the license, the producers and distributors would be required to certify that 10 per cent of their product had been or would be produced within the city limits. The measure was referred to the Committee on Licenses and there is insufficient support for it both within the committee and the City Council to get action on it, a city official told MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Seen at the Casa Manana looking over the talent: John Royal. All the acts—many of which have been on the air—seemed to leave him cold, save the "Three Stooges," whose rough, uncouth and entirely "unradio" routines broke him down completely. He grinned like a cat all through their performance.

CBS announcer Bert Parks arrived late at the studio where he was to deliver a news commentary to South America over W2XE, the CBS international short wave station, and consequently he had to omit the usual preliminary reading of the news sheets.

Teletyped reports in hand, Bert was rattling along in headlong fashion when, following copy, he recited: "bust this . . . bust this . . . bust this. . . ."

"Bust this" is an expression used by teletype operators to indicate that a mistake in transmission has been made and that the incorrect message is to be destroyed pending a repeat of a correct one.

Fred Niblo, the old time Hollywood director who now is with NBC, has doped out the percentage of success for radio versus Hollywood. The chances of obtaining a break in Hollywood, he says, are 10,000 to one. The odds for radio are five to one.

Now if Fred will explain why, with the radio odds so much more attractive than those for Hollywood, not one new outstanding personality has been developed on the networks in the last half-dozen years or so, we'll subscribe to his dope sheet.

German Propaganda Called Ineffective

Germany's short wave propaganda broadcasts to Latin America are proving ineffective and in many instances are "back-firing" to the disadvantage of that country, according to Frank E. Mason, vice-president in charge of NBC's short wave division.

Pointing out that the effectiveness of short wave broadcasts to Latin America is difficult to appraise, Mr. Mason stated that semi-official figures indicate that not more than 200,000 sets capable of receiving short wave programs are in use in Latin America.

Regarding the possibility of short wave broadcasting for American advertisers, Mr. Mason believes the most effective way for American advertisers to reach customers in the southern republics is by sending programs from this country by short wave to key stations in Latin America, where they could be rebroadcast on regular wave lengths.

Television Subject At Engineers' Meet

Television was the primary subject of discussion at the Friday sessions of the Institute of Radio Engineers convention at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The reports all were from RCA, and were concerned with the improvement of television pickup and reproducing tubes to make possible brighter and clearer images at the receiver with less illumination of the subject televised.

The reports were by Dr. R. B. Janes, W. H. Hickok, Dr. R. R. Law, H. Iams, Dr. G. A. Morton, Dr. V. K. Zworykin and J. A. Rajchman.

Additionally, beside major telecasting experiments, several universities in various parts of the country are engaged in, or planning, television tests.

Probe Fight Led Congress Activity On Air Industry

Washington, June 19.—The fight for a Congressional investigation of the broadcasting industry and the Federal Communications Commission and efforts to obtain the construction of a Government-owned propaganda broadcasting station were by far the most important features of the session just ended, from the standpoint of the broadcasters.

The half-dozen resolutions for a radio investigation—five introduced in the House and one in the Senate—were the subject of much discussion from time to time on the floor of both houses. The resolution of Senator White of Maine, for a Senate probe, was given right of way by the Audit and Control Committee of that body on May 10, and the Connery resolution for a House study was given the approval of the House Rules Committee, after a number of hearings, on June 10.

Propaganda Discussed

The Chavez-McAdoo and Celler bills for construction of a Government propaganda station were the subject of lengthy hearings before committees of both House and Senate during May. Both bills, however, were tabled as a result of representations that the Administration would find itself continually involved in diplomatic incidents should it permit the same freedom of expression as prevails over the commercial stations and the suggestion that the private industry be given an opportunity to show what it can do with the frequencies for Latin-American broadcasting recently assigned.

Few bills dealing with radio were introduced during the past session, although a large number were carried over from the 1937 meeting of Congress. This year, Senator Johnson of Colorado and Representative Culkin of New York submitted bills to ban liquor ads from radio, Senator Wheeler of Montana introduced a bill giving the Federal Communications Commission authority to regulate the use of radio-frequency using equipment which might cause interference, and Senator Sheepard of Texas and Congressman Peterson of Florida sponsored bills prohibiting duplication of programs.

The eastern branch of the Screen Actors Guild, which now has a membership of 680, will vote at its annual meeting tomorrow on closing its books to new applicants for membership. The limited production employment opportunities in the east are advanced as the reason.

The Hollywood Screen Actors Guild closed its books to applicants for membership last fall. The guild there has begun tests of its members for every possible screen qualification and issues waivers to producers for the employment of non-guild members only when it is unable itself to supply studios with the type and number of extras or players desired. It is believed that a somewhat similar waiver system may be adopted here in the event the eastern branch votes to close its membership list.

The annual report of Mrs. Florence Marston, eastern head of the guild, will be submitted to the meeting tomorrow and nominations will be received from the floor for members of an advisory committee to aid in the administration of the local organization. The election of the committee will be conducted later by mail ballot.

Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the guild, will leave for Hollywood at the close of the meeting tomorrow.

TAMPA, June 19.—The American Federation of Musicians will continue its campaign for the employment of orchestras in film theatres, it was decided at the annual convention here. Closing hours of the convention were devoted to considering plans to increase employment.

polling places June 23 and 24 to make affidavits declaring whether they were under contract or employed in studios as of June 4. Writers will be required to state whether their employment status falls into the classification of supervisor, producer, reader or other group ruled ineligible to vote.

"Failure of studios to cooperate in giving us a list of writers employed June 4 will not deter the election," Mr. Nylander said. "It is unfortunate that we have to go to this trouble to determine eligibility of those who vote."

Casey to Study Need Of Labor Conference

Pat Casey, producers' labor representative, will canvass major company heads and presidents of the five international unions which are signatories of the five-year basic agreement with the studios this week to determine whether or not there is a need of holding the annual negotiations on wages and hours provided for under the agreement, he stated over the weekend following his arrival here from the coast.

Mr. Casey said that no decision had been made yet on the need for a meeting this year and the responses to his inquiries this week would determine the question. It is understood that while some of the internationals desire a meeting others are indifferent due to the fact that increases this year are highly unlikely.

IATSE Operators May Not Handle Propaganda Films

Producers Will Be Asked To Join Committee for Classifying Them

Producers will be informed soon, it has been learned, that the I.A.T.S.E. will not be responsible for the handling of propaganda films by its operator members. This is taken to mean that any projectionist who refuses to handle a propaganda film will not be disciplined by union officers even though the local union may have a contract with the exhibitor.

It is understood that along with the notification there will be presented a request for the appointment of a joint committee of producers and I.A.T.S.E. men to discuss some form of classification of propaganda films and that this committee will function on a permanent basis.

The proposal is believed to be an outgrowth of the stand taken at the 34th convention held in Cleveland. This resolution recorded the organization's opposition to the inclusion in any motion picture of propaganda "whether in the guise of entertainment or otherwise glorifying any other form of government" than that of the

South Africa Circuit Aims At 40 Houses

Stiff competition to the Schlesinger interests in South Africa, which have dominated the film and theatre field there for years, is in the making, with a circuit of about 40 theatres projected. The total capital involved is reported as $4,000,000.

Twentieth Century-Fox will be the Schlesingers' chief competitor, having made arrangements for distribution through its own organization, headed by Otto Bolle. United Artists, which also released through the Schlesinger organization, is setting up its own offices. M-G-M figures in the picture because it handles its own distribution and is the chief theatre operator in Johannesburg in opposition to the Schlesingers.

G.N. Distribution Contract Approved

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—Federal Judge William P. James has approved the Grand National contract with Fine Arts Pictures, Inc., calling for the distribution by Grand National of a minimum of 26 films, including eight westerns, each year for five years.

In the court proceedings, Edward L. Alperson was allowed $500 weekly as trustee of Grand National Films and the subsidiary, Grand National Studios. The law firm of Omelveny, Tuller & Myers, acting for the trustees, was awarded $500 a week in attorneys' fees. The petition of Carpenter, Babson & Fendler, attorneys for Grand National creditors, for $3,500 in fees, was taken under advisement.

Grand National will release four pictures during July, and an additional one has been set for August release, according to Mr. Alperson and Loyd Wright, co-trustees.

Playwrights Refuse NLRB Registration

HOLLYWOOD, June 20.—John Lee Mahin, president of the Screen Playwrights, Inc., has notified Dr. Towne Nylander, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, that the organization's members will refuse to register as to whether or not they were working on June 4, as requested. The registration has been scheduled for June 23 and 24.

The Screen Playwrights contend the position was taken because the association holds that film writers are not employes under the meaning of the Wagner Act, that they do not come within the jurisdiction of the N. L. R. B., and that they do not consider the elections authoritative,

Critics Find "Blockade" Mixture of Fact, Fiction

The New York daily newspaper film critics found "Blockade" a strange combination of fact and fiction, with the effect of the whole hampered somewhat by the situation that finds fiction superimposed on a stark reality. Excerpts from their reviews follow.

Herald Tribune—. . . An engrossing and provocative film . . . romantic spy story against the terrifying realities of the Spanish Civil War.

Journal-American—A dramatized preachment against warfare . . . elaborately produced.

Mirror—. . . A tried and reliable film story, told more elaborately than usual. . . . Fictional characters are placed in situations sadly real.

News—. . .A handsome production . . . might have been slicker and more thrilling melodrama if William Dieterle had stuck to the story.

Post—. . . The picture is surprisingly good . . . smoothly fashioned. Equal doses of entertainment and anti-war entertainment.

Sun—. . . Highly colored melodrama. . . . Spanish civil war as background for a lurid spy story.

Times—. . . A curious unreality about it, considering the grim reality behind it. It goes without saying that you'll want to see it for yourself.

World-Telegram—. . . Fiery propaganda against war . . . leaves a great deal to be desired. . . . Deserves one's admiration . . . unmistakably Loyalist in its sympathies.

Phila. Chance Game Plea Refused Again

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—The plea of the Roxy Theatre for a restrainer against the city authorities relative to the local ban on all chance games, pending a decision by the State Supreme Court, has been refused again.

Report U.S. Plans Film Trust Action

WASHINGTON, June 20.—New Department of Justice proceedings against producers were said this week to be in preparation, and leaders of the industry are understood to be much concerned over the situation, regarding which they have been in communication with department officials.

Executives of the department, following the usual policy of secrecy, refused to admit or deny that new suits were under consideration, pointing out merely that complaints are always being received and investigated and that a more or less constant surveillance is kept over the motion picture and certain other industries.

Possibilities are seen that the next case against the film group may be brought in the midwest, where the department has had considerable success in prosecutions against the oil industry. A large part of the department's strategy lies in picking the right location for prosecutions, it being recognized that it is difficult to successfully conduct cases against certain industries in some jurisdictions.

More Ohio Tax Bills Aimed at Exhibitors

Columbus, June 20.—With the Ohio Legislature floundering about, seeking any solution to the relief problem that will mean the making of the most votes and the fewest political enemies, theatre owners are again threatened with additional taxes.

One of two new bills in the House is gaining support. It calls an increase in the censorship fee from $3 per reel to two cents per lineal foot on all film publicly shown in the state. The author of the bill, Representative Williams of Darke county, says the measure will produce $1,500,000 annually for relief purposes.

The other bill, which also has been sent to the House Taxation Committee, is one introduced by Representative Lody Huml of Cleveland which would give cities and towns authority to levy a seven per cent tax on theatres and other amusement places. It is estimated that in Cleveland alone $700,000 would be collected.

Hartford, June 20.—Trinity College here has awarded a bachelor's degree to Richard Barthelmess, who left the college before graduating. The college confers the degrees on such students if, after 20 years, they have achieved outstanding success.

Musical Duals

Tampa, June 20.—"Living music" will be substituted for the second film of double feature programs, if a resolution adopted by the American Federation of Musicians bears fruit. The federation approved this proposed substitution as one of a number of proposals advanced during the convention to provide jobs for its members.

The federation's executive board was instructed to work out the agreements with exhibitors substituting the "living music" for the second feature in double feature houses.

owners, representing 35 houses, gathered for luncheon at the four-hour session. It was decided to hold a state convention at Saratoga Springs during September.

Speaking on the legislative angle, Harry Kosch, attorney for Allied, appraised members of their need to keep awake. Mentioning the Rossi matron and theatre seating bills, Feld-Flynn and Crews two-men-in-a-booth legislation, etc., Mr. Kosch cited the wisdom of united action. The proposal in New York City for a theatre tax on seats or the alternative positive print film levy for relief purposes also was mentioned, the speaker pointing the possible spread upstate. The Neely bill also was discussed, as was northwestern legislation aimed at Ascap.

Another speaker was Bert Sanford of Altec Service who stressed cooperation.

A local group will attend the New York meeting next month in a body to provide upstate representation.

E. Thornton Kelly, in charge of the Allied drive upstate, claimed more than 60 exhibitors were in line.

SMPE Fall Meeting Plans Are Completed

Says Muncie Holding Up

Theatre business in Muncie, Ind., is holding up well, probably because the city has diversified industries and does not depend on the automotive plants alone, it was said yesterday by Leonard Sower, city manager for Theatrical Managers circuit, which operates five theatres in Muncie. Mr. Sower is here with his family on a two-week vacation.

United States, "or its achievements which may tend in any wise to weaken our faith in democracy." The presentation and passage of the resolution is believed to have been due to the criticism of certain Hollywood groups lamenting the fact that American pictures do not make use of social issues dominant in the world today.

What the attitude of producers toward the proposal will be remains to be seen. It is understood that the argument of the I.A.T.S.E. will be that it will be better to have a committee making classifications of propaganda films than for individuals or locals to attempt to make individual judgments.

Theatre Association Is Formed in Omaha

Omaha, June 20.—Owners and managers of Omaha's 27 theatres have organized the Omaha Theatre Owners and Managers Association. William Miskell, manager of the Orpheum, was elected president at the first meeting.

Sam Epstein of the Epstein circuit is vice-president; Lawrence Grobeck, owner of the Muller, alternate vice-president, and Walter Creal, owner of the Beacon, secretary-treasurer. The group will meet once a month at one of the downtown houses.

The first project will be to oppose Mayor Butler's proposed city ordinance which would give the city censor board extreme powers of control over stage and film theatres and all other forms of amusements. The new group is an outgrowth of the Omaha Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, inactive since the passing of Bank Night a year ago. The group represents about 800 theatre owners, managers and employes.

Opponents of High Power Before FCC contended that 500-kilowatt applications may not be granted by the commission under the Communications Act.

Mr. Spearman told the commission that his group is directly interested in five issues, of which super-power is one. It would, he said, recommend changes in the definition of Class 1-A stations to conform with the new North American Broadcasting Agreement, and would propose that more than one station be permitted to operate on a clear channel, with safeguards for the dominant station against interference.

The association also was anxious to assure protection of regional stations from interference under the new setup, and, further, would propose changes in the rules so that it would be possible for regional stations to operate at night with higher power than now provided for.

In its petition, the American Federation of Labor, which will present testimony later, asserted that the granting of super-power applications would cause "serious and objectionable intereference" to labor stations and other broadcasters, and that an increase in power of clear channel stations will bring about a concentration of economic and social power and influence in that group that would adversely affect other stations and the public interest.

Standard Brands to Broadcast from Fair

An open air theatre where radio programs will be staged will be built by Standard Brands, Inc., at the New York World Fair.

At this early date it is impossible to determine which of the Standard Brands shows will emanate from the Fair grounds. The Rudy Vallee show, however, is likely to come from there. MPTOA WARNS ON FEDERAL CONTROL

Says It's Coming Unless Conciliation Moves Are Speeded Up

Government regulation is the only alternative to conciliation, declares Ed Kuykendall in an M.P.T.O. bulletin to be sent out today. He appeals to exhibitors individually, regardless of affiliation, to bring pressure upon distributors for a conciliation setup.

"Don't fool yourself any about Government regulation, either by statute, commission or court decrees," the bulletin reads. "The Government can and will regulate and control exhibition just as well as distribution, if the industry insists that is the only way out of its attitude on trade practice self-regulation. Invariably it has taken control of retailing as well as wholesaling and manufacturing, as witness the NRA, the Wagner Act, the S.E.C., the liquor business, Social Security Act, and many others.

"If that's what the business wants, it won't be hard to get it. It's squarely up to the distributors, and the exhibitors all over the country will be watching to see what, if anything, they do

Duals Gaining

There is little prospect of the elimination of double features in the near future, Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, declared yesterday in answer to a question put by a stockholder at the annual meeting of the company's shareholders.

As a matter of fact, the executive said, the policy appears to be gaining. He referred to the distributor attempt to eliminate duals by contract in Philadelphia, which was declared invalid by the Federal courts.

Australia Now Has Oversupply of Film

An oversupply of product for Australia has resulted in 172 films awaiting customs clearance with no one to claim them, it was said by Capt. Harold Auten, American representative for Greater Union Theatres and associated companies, who returned early this week from conferences in Sydney.

The films were consigned to theatres but with current needs being met, the surplus is permitted to remain in customs with no application for their withdrawal having been made. The great majority were consigned by American major companies.

Capt. Auten conferred with Norman Bede Rydge, chairman of Greater Union, on plans of the organization

Producers Point to Record In Answering Warner Blast

Hollywood, June 21.—With 52 pictures now before the cameras, which total represents a 30 per cent gain in production over the level of studio activity on May 20, last, Hollywood today appeared quite unruffled by the verbal blast of Harry M. Warner, who last weekend accused unnamed rival studios of "deliberately withholding their important films until autumn."

Although none would reply directly to the Warner accusations, surprise was expressed in some quarters that such a vigorous statement should have been issued at a time when the studios again are enjoying a period of impressive activity, following immediately upon an extremely slack period.

Some of the comments indicated the belief that the statement was part of the Warner strategy of timeliness, serving by indirection to call attention to the Warner product of the moment. Others termed it an unprovoked contribution to internal problems, and were of the opinion

My Word!

By Irene Kuhn

◆ There's a chauffeur in town who combines a nice sentiment with a practical business sense. If you chance to pick up a remodelled Cadillac limousine cab which he drives, you'll notice a card, framed in heavy black, hanging near the driver's identification license. The card says: "Your driver is Siegfried Baum, ex-chauffeur of J. P. Morgan, deceased."

◆ C. C. Pettijohn is building a wading pool for underprivileged youngsters at Rye. He hopes to get government assistance for a bigger pool next year. . . . Mayor F. L. Herron has completed a new residence at Stamford. . . . Did you know Will Hays' hobby is raising soy beans on his Indiana farm?

◆ Douglas Burden and Ilya Tolstoi (grandson of the Russian author), promoters with a few others of the marine studio at Marineland, Fla., near St. Augustine, will be on hand for the big opening tomorrow. The young men conceived the idea of building an underwater studio for motion picture work and they will furnish anything that swims: sharks, porpoises, what have you?

◆ The tank is built on land, with channels leading in from the ocean, and the fish are brought right up and led through the inlets. From ringside seats on "A" deck in the Circular Tank, visitors tomorrow at the Porpoise Cocktail party will be served tasty marine hors d'oeuvres, mostly mullet. The 50-foot expedition boat will tie up at the small dock with a load of fish at 5 P. M. and the catch will be moved from vessel to tanks.

◆ Five colts have been foaled on the Bing Crosby breeding farm in the past two months. The crooner's racing stable now numbers 30. It'll take plenty of notes to supply oats for this stable. . . . What with all Hollywood going ga-ga over the bangtails, pretty soon they'll be naming movie stars for race horses.

◆ George B. Odlum, Paramount exec, enjoys the unique distinction of having two valedictorians in the family. Daughter Betty, born in 1924, was last year valedictorian of her class, P. S. 39, Far Rockaway, L. I. Daughter Beverly, born in 1926, is this year's valedictorian of her class, also P. S. 39. Principal Elizabeth Brame says nothing like it has ever happened before in the school's history.

◆ Richard Brooks of WNEW has solved the problem of writing a play despite two daily jobs which keep him occupied day and night. He's at WNEW afternoons and evenings until midnight. He does a column "The Little Things of Life" for the Paterson Call mornings. But every weekend he takes the train to Boston and has five hours of uninterrupted writing going and five hours of the same coming back. He never even changes his seat, but just does the round trip with his typewriter. The opus is a three-act play named, appropriately enough, "Challenge."

"Adventure" Shorts Screened at Strand

The three short subject candidates for the prize of $1,000 in the Floyd Gibbons "Your True Adventures" series sponsored by Warners were shown last night at the Strand. The titles are "Danger—High Voltage," "The Bolted Door" and "Playing with Danger."

The judges called upon last night to decide by secret ballot the best of the three were Jack Dempsey, Jay Emanuel of The Exhibitor, William Gaxton, Quentin Reynolds of Colliers, Jack Harrower of The Film Daily, James P. Cunningham of Motion Picture Herald and James M. Jerauld of MOTION PICTURE DAILY. The decision will be made known in a few days after their ballots have been mailed to the Warner judges: Major Albert Warner, Errol Flynn and Mr. Gibbons.

Prior to the screening a dinner was held at Jack Dempsey's Eighth Avenue restaurant. Among those present were: Mr. Gibbons, Sam Sax, in charge of Vitaphone production in the east; Norman H. Moray, Vitaphone sales manager; J. F. Dolid, assistant to Mr. Moray; Joseph Henabery, director of the series; Ira Genet, script writer for the series; Chester Bahn, A-Mike Vogel, Sid Rechetnik, Mark Hanna, manager for Mr. Gibbons; Harry Goldberg, director of Warner theatre advertising; Jed Kiley, Albert Howson and Clem McCarthy.

Roach Details Films At U. A. Sales Meet

CHICAGO, June 21.—Delegates to the United Artists western sales conference at the Drake Hotel here today heard an addresss by Hal Roach in which the producer discussed the product he will make for the coming season. He stated that his Laurel and Hardy features hereafter will be four reels each. He left for the coast tonight.

During the afternoon session George J. Schaefer, vice-president in charge of domestic distribution, and A. W. Smith, Jr., sales manager, outlined product for 1938-'39. This followed a series of screenings during the morning.

Chaperau Gives Party

Albert N. Chaperau, French film man, and co-producer of "Mayerling," was host yesterday at a party in the Pierre for Mr. E. L. Lopert, President of Pax Films, Inc.

Mr. Lopert will sail with Mr. Chaperau on the Normandie June 29 to arrange for American distribution of six French films which the French producer is making abroad.

During the two months that he has been in America Mr. Chaperau negotiated with major studios for the sale of re-make rights to his films "Fauteuil 47," "Balthazar," "A Nous Deux Madame La Vie," "Quatres Heures du Matin," "Boissiere," "Le Club des Aristocrates," "Venus d'Or" and "L'Homme a Battre."

American Film Resumes

The American Film Exchange has resumed activity by taking over distribution of "The King of Kings," Cecil B. DeMille production. A sound track with orchestration and choral singing has been added.

Newsreel Parade

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 81

(20th Century-Fox)

This issue offers good coverage of a number of outstanding news events of the past few days that are still alive in the public mind. The makeup in general is a cleverly edited collection of personalities, foreign affairs, sport and the light and humorous.

The recent bombing of Canton opens the reel. Eric Mayell's camera caught much of the frenzied activity, destruction and suffering wrought on the Chinese city by Japanese airmen. Another interesting event in a different vein is the marriage of John Roosevelt to Anne Lindsay Clark at Nahant with the entire first family and other notables present. The train wreck on the Milwaukee Road line in Montana which is still on front pages has good treatment. King George is seen at the ceremony of the trooping of the colors in London. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy arrives on the Queen Mary but has nothing to say. General Franco inspects the rebel fleet at Vinarosa.

Sports offer championship feminine tennis at Wimbledon with many prominent players on the court. Ralph Guldahl takes the Western Open golf title at St. Louis and baseball offers Johnny Vander Meer demonstrating his pitching and Babe Ruth as coach of the Dodgers. Lew Lehr then has his moments with comical dialect narration as scenes come on of a chimpanzee fooling around with a pair of pliers in front of a mirror. Running time, 9½ mins. P.

News of the Day

Vol. 9, No. 279

(M-G-M)

Opening with scenes of the train wreck on the Milwaukee Road in Montana, this issue also includes a number of events which lift it out of the routine category. The material ranges wide and is generally interesting.

King George has second place. He is shown in London at the trooping of the colors ceremony. Ambassador to England, Joseph P. Kennedy, arrives from London for conferences with the President. Apes at a St. Louis zoo contribute merriment as they perform various acrobatics and other laughable stunts. The John Roosevelt-Anne Clark marriage is next with interesting closeups of the groom's family and his bride. The Japanese aerial attack on Canton is exciting, gruesome stuff. Johnny Vander Meer shows his pitching prowess in slow motion. Babe Ruth takes up a new job coaching the Brooklyn Dodgers and the reel ends with a Princeton invitation track meet with Glenn Cunningham and Archie San Romani taking part, among others. Running time, 9 mins. P.

Paramount News

No. 92

(Paramount)

The tragic news highlight of this reel is the pictures of the Montana train crash which cost nearly 50 lives. Taken 12 hours after the crash, the pictures show the high water still swirling about the half-submerged cars in which many were trapped. Impressive, too, are the pictures of the wreckage of a plane lost in the Yosemite hills last March, just now discovered.

The "bowl of rice" parties in New York hold the attention of Chinatown, in one of a series of benefits for Chinese refugees. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy arrives on a visit from England, Henry Ford examines plans for factory expansion by way of celebrating the 35th anniversary of his company, and laughs are provided by a pair of well-trained chimps in the St. Louis zoo.

The reel also pictures the wedding of John Roosevelt and Anne Lindsay Clark at Nahant, Mass.; Babe Ruth on his return to baseball as a Brooklyn Dodger coach; young Johnny Vander Meer, no-hit, no-run pitching sensation, and Glenn Cunningham winning a mile race at a Princeton track meet. Running time, 9 mins. A.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 96

(RKO)

A fast, varied newsreel, opening with headline news, excellent shots of the Montana train wreck, followed by shots of Henry Ford and his one-man attack on the depression. Riveting is a horrendous noise, but it's music when it's making a $35,000,000 plant, creating jobs for men.

The last of the Roosevelt bachelors as a groom is shown with his unsmiling bride. Hoi polloi behind the ropes watch the arrival of the President and the First Lady, and the emergence from church of bride and groom.

Baseball—with Babe Ruth in action on his new job, and Johnny Vander Meer, rookie sensation; tragic shots of the finding of the plane lost four months ago in the Sierra Nevadas.

Pageantry at its best—King George rides to the trooping of the colors and, at home, Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy smiles on board the Queen Mary at quarantine.

Good shots of the world's crack milers at the Princeton Invitational Meet, narrated by Clem McCarthy, show the collision between Romani and Cunningham, and the latter's victory in the mile race, his defeat by Wayne Rideout in the three-quarters, setting a new record. Excellent pace and variety. Running time, 8 mins. I. K.

Universal Newsreel

Disney to Time Shorts; He Also Has Big Feature Plans

Walt Disney, en route yesterday to receive honors from Yale and Harvard, set at rest any rumors that the success of "Snow White" and his plans for future features will change the Disney policy on shorts.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "not only are we not letting up on shorts, we are putting more emphasis on them than ever before. Shorts are box-office. I believe in putting entertainment on the screen. That's my business. It's what the public expects from Disney and it's what they will get more and more of.

"Among the 18 shorts scheduled for the coming season will be six that are 'specials,' shorts of unusual character. Under ordinary circumstances these would be sold as separate subjects. I'm going to put these six specials into the regular group for release."

Aside from the feature treatment and great entertainment value in these specials, Disney is going to back them up with exploitation and publicity on a par with that given "Snow White." With the release of these singles there will be national merchandising tieups worked through the Kay Kamen office. Each special will have its individual press book, something never done before. The subjects will have seasonal appeal and will be released to synchronize with a new series of comics based on the individual pictures to be syndicated nationally by King Features.

Mother Goose Film Set

"Brave Little Tailor" will come out Sept. 23. "Ferdinand the Bull" is set for Thanksgiving and through the Christmas season. "Mother Goose Goes Hollywood" is for Christmas; "The Practical Pig," continuing the adventures of "The Three Little Pigs," will be released Feb. 22; "The Ugly Duckling" is for Easter; "The Autograph Hound," a Donald Duck, for July 21, 1939. The other 12 subjects will all be timed to have definite seasonal appeal and tie up with events. "Donald's Lucky Day" is for June 13, 1939, Friday the 13th, and Donald's birthday.

"Society Dog Show" is timed to show on the screens at the height of the dog show season—the Westminster Kennel Club and Madison Square Garden Shows in New York, and similar dog shows throughout the country.

Mickey Mouse in "The Hockey Champ" will come out March 17, the professional hockey playoff for the championships. "Beach Picnic" will be a June, 1939, release to tie in with summer activities.

Plans Musical Picture

Mr. Disney hopes, he said, to have his second feature, "Pinoochio," ready for next year. The third will be "Bambi," the story of a deer.

His great adventure, however, will be a picture which may be seven years in the making, a musical feature in six units. Two units are in production now.

"When Stokowski returns," he said, "we'll put our heads together on this. I have no definite plans for it, but I think a lot can be done with great music and our medium. We don't have to change the medium. But I believe children and music students and music lovers, generally, will get a lot more out of music if we can interpret the theme behind the music for them. If a story is based on legend, we'll follow it. That's what I mean in a sense, although all this is subject to experiment and change. We'll do lots of research on great music, discover its general interpretation and add ours. I think we can make something really great."

Small Theatre Plan Discussed by C.E.A.

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

FOLKESTONE, ENGLAND, June 21.—The general council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association, in annual summer conference here, today considered the report on the organization's negotiations with the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) relative to the C.E.A. plans for the treatment of small exhibitors.

Considerable discussion was held on the release problem and the showing of two "A" films on one program, and the while several speakers commented on the alleged abandonment of the principle of arbitration. The members of the council appeared unwilling to air their domestic discussion before the press. Ultimately they voted to defer consideration of the whole rental problem to the next meeting of the council in July.

There is a strong impression about here of a lack of unity between the circuits and independents within the C.E.A.

Exhibitors were warned not to place contracts for theatre television apparatus until they are officially advised.

Banquet in Evening

At a banquet held tonight Sir Phillip Sassoon, motion picture commissioner of works, who was guest of honor, pleaded with the exhibitors present to see to it that the influence of films remained predominately British. He paid tribute to the work of the industry in the United States but protested that Britain does not want too heavy an American influence. America, he said, must not be regarded as the universal provider of cinema entertainment.

President Nyman in his address traced the history of Folkestone and compared it with the history of Britain. He paralleled the critical plight of municipalities today with the condition of the industry and called attention to the role of the present day film as entertainer, newspaper and educator.

Presenting Charles Metcalf, ex-president, Mr. Nyman paid tribute to his work during the period when the quota act was being formulated.

A hearty reception by the 545 guests was accorded E. J. Hinge, vice-president.

Important conferences are scheduled for tomorrow. Papers will be read by Philip Guedalla and Mr. Metcalf, the former on "Films and the Nation" and the latter on "Impression and Depression." A luncheon is slated for noon and a screening for the evening.

open Thursday at the Paramount, largest open film house in Los Angeles.

Mrs. W. A. Burk, president of the Southern California Motion Picture Council, composed of representatives of more than 40 organizations, declared following the invitational showing of the film, "our executive board has definitely agreed that the picture has scientific and educational merit but is not suitable for public exhibition."

From Mrs. Leo B. Hedges, chairman of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, came the announcement that her reviewing committee of 25 had reported favorably upon the picture and that the organization approved of control over the showings exercised by the American Committee on Maternal Welfare which bans double billing, stage shows and children under 16 without adults.

While admitting the picture is produced in good taste, Mrs. Burk said, "I see nothing in the film which would tend to lessen any dangers connected with motherhood as sponsors contend but I do see a strong plea that persons employ doctors regularly."

Won't Play Neighborhoods

"It is a shame that legitimate film producers and distributors cannot force a theatre to stop showing 'The Birth of a Baby,'" Mrs. Burk said. "Should they violate the Production Code they would hear about it from all sides. But when a thing like this happens there seems to be nothing that can be done about it. Persons and organizations who endorse public showings of this film are blind to the fact that this is a wedge to open theatres to all sorts of propaganda. We are discouraged about our failure to do anything to prevent it from opening Thursday in Los Angeles but we are determined that the film shall not play neighborhoods and suburbans."

Regents Hear Pleas on 'Human Wreckage'

Argument on an appeal from the N. Y. censor ban on "Human Wreckage" was held yesterday at the State Office Building here. The appeal was filed by Cinema Service Corp. The film was screened June 9 by George J. Ryan and Gordon Knox Bell, members of the Board of Regents.

The picture was denied a license by Irwin Esmond on April 15. He classified it as "indecent and immoral."

Seek Stay on Censor Ban

ALBANY, June 21.—First information that Irwin Esmond, censor board director, has terminated a permit granted in 1921 for showing of "Animated Diagrams of the Human Body" was made public here in an application from Jewel Productions, Inc., Social Hygienic Films of America, Inc., and Samuel Cummins for a temporary injunction in Supreme Court. The application is to be argued Friday.

"Animated Diagrams" is a two-reel film on social diseases allegedly made by the U. S. Government and shown privately during the World War. Together with "Some Wild Oats," it was given a permit Aug. 25, 1921. The permit for "Some Wild Oats" was revoked in 1924. The film has been shown recently in a number of New York theatres.

Para. Board Majority to Management of the Saenger circuit, Paramount's southern affiliate. The non-management directors are: Stephen Callaghan, Harvey D. Gibson, A. Conger Goodyear, Duncan G. Harris, John D. Hertz, Earl I. McClintock and Maurice Newton.

The directors were elected by a tally of 4,151,030 votes cast for each of the 16 nominees for the directorate. Represented at the meeting was more than 71 per cent of the total voting power of the corporation.

Mr. Keough, as secretary of the meeting, opened the stockholders' session, over which Mr. Balaban presided. Mr. Griffis and Mr. Weisl lent him moral support in flanking him at the front of the Paramount projection room, where the meeting was held. Appropriately, those who conducted the meeting sat beneath the projection room screen.

Sees Dividend Possible

Mr. Balaban declared that the company's cash position has shown an improvement each month since the beginning of the current year, and, in answer to a question from the floor, expressed the belief that a dividend on the common stock for the first six months of 1938 is "possible," provided the company maintains the earnings level of 1937, figured entirely on a consolidated basis.

The company's cash position has improved by about $1,500,000 since December, 1937, Mr. Balaban said.

Replying to the criticism of salaries paid to leading executives of the company, leveled by one or two stockholders who made their presence heard in the room, Mr. Balaban declared that Mr. Zukor's salary is $156,000 a year and that he has no contract.

Of himself, the Paramount president declared that his remuneration takes the form of $156,000 per year paid by Paramount to Balaban & Katz for his services, but that Paramount receives a return of approximately $98,000 on that amount in view of the substantial interest which the company has in Balaban & Katz.

Foreign Business Called Good

Foreign business of Paramount has held up "remarkably well," Mr. Balaban said, and is actually running ahead of last year at this time.

The stockholders gave formal approval to a resolution which provided that such shares of first and second preferred stock of the corporation which had been surrendered for conversion into common stock be eliminated from the authorized and issued shares of the corporation.

Mr. Balaban, in a prepared statement read to the stockholders, pointed out that the last year has been unusually trying. At the last meeting the trend was of rising income, he said, but the last half of 1937 brought a direct reversal of trend, and profits were eaten into as a result.

"We have liquidated unprofitable production commitments and concentrated operations, thereby making possible reductions in overhead. We have now established an operating basis which I believe to be sounder than any the corporation has enjoyed for a number of years," he said. Later Mr. Balaban emphasized in answering a question that the company has had "marked success" in cutting operating costs, "especially in production."

He pointed out that thus far, due to the year lag between the planning of product and the return from it, the company has not been able to reduce costs as rapidly as business has come down.

Balaban Laughs

When a stockholder criticized the salaries paid to Paramount executives, at the meeting of the company's annual stockholder's yesterday, Barney Balaban, president, retorted with a good natured laugh:

"If you can hire another president for less than you pay me, I'd like to find one."

Australia Now Has Oversupply of Film

and American product needs for the circuit. Greater Union has commitments with M-G-M, Universal, Republic and Monogram, and thus is at a disadvantage for product in comparison with Hoyts, Australia's largest circuit, which has contracts with other distributors. With a surplus making itself felt, however, Greater Union is obtaining some films which are being released by Hoyts.

He reported that Greater Union has improved its position substantially since splitting with Hoyts a year ago and that a cash dividend of approximately $250,000 is expected to be disbursed to stockholders for the first year of operation under Mr. Rydge at the end of this month.

Greater Union is spending $1,000,000 to build and rejuvenate its theatres and is planning further expansion, said Capt. Auten. This was his first trip to Australia in 24 years.

Cinesound Busy

Cinesound, Greater Union's production affiliate, is making eight films a year, while the distribution outlets, Associated British Film Distributors and British Empire Films, are scheduling the release of a total of 52 features.

A major development in Australia is the formation of J. C. Williamson, Ltd., a circuit of legitimate theatres with the Williamson & Tait group as a nucleus. Kenneth Asprey, formerly vice-chairman of Greater Union, heads the company and joint managing directors include Stanley Crick, formerly 20th Century-Fox managing director in Australia, George Deane of the Snider-Deane circuit and John Tait. Ernest Rolls, former London producer, will put on the shows. He is due here Monday to arrange for bookings.

Capt. Auten brought over three Cinesound films, "Tall Timbers," "Lovers and Luggers" and "Broken Melody," which he may offer for American distribution. While in Hollywood en route he signed Cecil Kellaway, Australian actor who has appeared in RKO films, for Cinesound's "Mr. Chidworth Steps Out."

Report Out Plan To Lift State's Ban on Gambling

by an 8-7 vote. The action assures a vote on the floor for adoption or rejection. Simply drawn, Hirshberg's measure takes out of the Constitution prohibitions against lotteries, bookies and various other forms of chance.

The belief that one week of debate will be necessary to decide the gambling proposal was voiced in Capitol corridors, with many delegates expected to offer changes in the Hirshberg bill once it reaches special orders. In the main, the chances of passage will rest on the number of upstate delegates favoring legalization of gambling. With 85 votes needed to pass, it is asserted that 25 upstate delegates will be required for the "ayes" to insure the measure's chances of success.

Exhibitors concerned with possible inroads that greyhound races, lotteries and the like would make on the theatre-attending public's income are reported to be in a quandary whether to oppose the measure openly or to let the church groups do the opposition work.

Independents Gain By UA Canada Shift

Corp., which has numerous theatre subsidiaries. One year ago Mr. Nathanson and United Artists Corp., Ltd., failed to reach an agreement for a renewal of booking contracts for the circuit theatres and the result was that independent exhibitors, many of them in key situations throughout the country, signed 10-year rental franchises. United Artists productions, such as "The Hurricane," "Stella Dallas," "The Goldwyn Follies," "A Star Is Born," "Dead End" and "Vogues of 1938" played extended engagements in independent theatres of large and small cities apart from chain units.

With the change in Canadian distribution of Korda productions, a number of important British pictures will now be added to the available list as first run attractions for independent theatres which are also in the position of being able to secure subsequent runs of much other product from different exchanges. United Artists Corp., Ltd., has branch offices in six key centers across Canada from St. John, N. B., to Vancouver, B. C.

Producers Point to Record In Answering Warner Blast

that, as recited in the general press, it would have an adverse effect on general theatre business.

Joseph M. Schenck declared: "It has never been the policy of 20th Century-Fox to hold back important product for any reason. We haven't missed a picture scheduled for the season and will not miss any. We are releasing 'Alexander's Ragtime Band' in August and our July schedule includes such pictures as 'Always Goodbye,' 'Little Miss Broadway' and 'I'd Give a Million.'"

Wanger Releasing Two

Walter Wanger, also commenting only on his own product, said, "I cannot speak for anyone but myself, but two of the biggest pictures I have ever made are being released in June and July, and I am not worried in the slightest about the gamble I am taking with the summer slump bugaboo. 'Blockade' is doing splendid business, and 'Algiers' will follow in July. There is nothing wrong with our business that good pictures, properly exploited and presented, will not cure."

Clifford Work, studio head at Universal, pointed to "The Rage of Paris" and "A Letter of Introduction," July releases, and "That Certain Age," planned for August, as evidence of adherence to the precept of Nate Blumberg, company president, that, "We have only one guide, today's box-office." Mr. Work declined direct comment on the Warner statement.

Officials at Paramount merely directed attention to such July and August releases as "Professor Beware," "Tropic Holiday," "The Texans," "Spawn of the North" and "Give Me a Sailor," pointing out that that product was certainly no indication of box-office fears.

No Hoarding, Says Schaefer

CHICAGO, June 21.—George J. Schaefer, United Artists vice-president in charge of domestic distribution, queried today by MOTION PICTURE DAILY concerning weekend statements of Harry M. Warner criticising the withholding of films during the summer months, stated:

"United Artists never did believe in 'hoarding.' We have two big pictures ready for release within four weeks. They are 'Algiers' and 'There Goes My Heart.'"

Warners-FWC Sign

Los Angeles, June 21.—Gradwell L. Sears, Warners general sales manager, today closed a deal with Fox West Coast for the company's entire lineup of 1938-'39 product, including features, shorts and trailers. The contract guarantees 113,736 playing days over the circuit. Mr. Sears left for New York by plane tonight.

New York Executives Retort

Typical of the reactions of home office executives here yesterday to the statement of Harry M. Warner last weekend that other companies are "withholding their important films" are the following:

Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox distribution head, said, "This company has not pulled any punches and we don't intend to. Our pictures are going out to exhibitors on the basis of one a week and we plan to release some big pictures this summer."

Abe Montague, Columbia general sales manager, said it is evident the Warner charges do not apply to it since three of its bigger pictures are scheduled for summer release. These are "Holiday," which was prereleased prior to its general release date, June 15, and is now playing generally; an untitled film with Edward G. Robinson and "The Gladiator," starring Joe E. Brown, which has an Aug. 15 date.

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of Loew's, declared, "Our record speaks for itself. We are not harboring any pictures. We are releasing them as rapidly as we can turn them out. The only exception is 'Marie Antoinette,' Norma Shearer's starring vehicle, which we are holding for a roadshow."

"Marie Antoinette" will start a two-a-day run at the Carthay Circle in Hollywood July 8 and is scheduled for a similar run at the Astor on Broadway beginning early in August.

Grants Stay for "Birth"

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag yesterday granted the application of the American Committee on Maternal Welfare, Inc., for a temporary injunction pending trial against Jewel Productions, Inc., Samuel Cummins and Burt Lewis, officers and stockholders, restraining the defendants from exhibiting any motion or still pictures similar in title to the plaintiff's picture, "The Birth of a Baby."

"Son of Sheik" to RKO

"Son of the Sheik" has been booked through the entire RKO circuit, it was stated yesterday by Emil Jensen, president of Artcinema Associates, Inc. There are 150 prints of the film in circulation, said Mr. Jensen.

Wm. McChesney Buried

Funeral services for William McChesney, 49, for 27 years an employe of the Walter Reade circuit, were held yesterday in Asbury Park, where he resided. He died Sunday in Memorial Hospital, Long Branch, after an illness of two years. He started with Walter Reade as a reel boy and in later years was chief booker and general supervisor. A son, George, is manager of Reade's Strand, Freehold.

CBS took elaborate precautions to prevent a meeting between Norman Thomas and John Matthews, who staged a debate on Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City over the CBS facilities last Sunday. To begin with, the speakers were assigned studios on separate floors, Mr. Thomas on 22, and Mr. Matthews on 21, and each was assigned a private elevator. And to safeguard against a possible demonstration by either faction, CBS had a cordon of police about the building.

The setting was perfect for action, but nothing happened. Demonstrators stayed away in droves, and Mr. Thomas and Mr. Matthews were kept apart, although for a moment it did appear that they would meet in the lobby of the building following the debate. The elevator operators did not time their downward trip, and the indicators showed the cages to be coming down neck and neck. The Thomas elevator slowed down just before it reached the ground and the Socialist leader emerged just soon enough to get a glimpse of Mr. Matthew's back as he swung out the door.

And, oddly enough, there was a dearth of telephone calls following the broadcast. Usually when controversial subjects are aired, the telephone lines to the studios are jammed with calls from partisans of all sides, but the Thomas-Matthews debate drew six telephone calls in all, three for each side.

Biggest pedestrian stopper in town yesterday was that new NBC-RCA television mobile unit parked in Radio City. It was brought up from Camden to be tested here, and it's a beautiful looking bus, chrome plated from tip to stern.

John Holt Baxter of NBC takes us to task for writing that radio has not developed any outstanding performers in the last half-dozen years. He asks, "How about Fred Allen, Charlie McCarthy, Tommy Riggs, Don Ameche, Frances Langford, Jane Froman and Lanny Ross?"

Well, let's look at the record, Fred Allen, a half-dozen years or so ago was very well known in radio, was working in "Town Hall Tonight" then as he is now, and previously had enjoyed a quite successful run as the star of the Linit program on CBS. Don Ameche admittedly was developed in radio, working out of Chicago in the "First Nighter" series before going to Hollywood. But would Don be on the Chase & Sanborn show, and the big name he is now in radio, if Hollywood hadn't built him up to the point where he became an outstanding entertainment name, instead of just another dramatic actor in radio? It hardly seems possible that he would. Lanny Ross? We remember Lanny as the star of "Showboat" as far back as 1932 or 1933, so that eliminates him as a recent development. That leaves Charlie McCarthy, Frances Langford and Tommy Riggs. Here is where Baxter wins a point, although we wouldn't exactly call Tommy Riggs an outstanding radio name. Anyway, the score is at least 70-30 in our favor.

AFRA Pact with NBC, CBS Set for Signing by July 1

The American Federation of Radio Artists, the A. F. of L. organization in the radio field, has practically closed months-long negotiations with the networks here, and NBC and CBS will sign an A.F.R.A. agreement covering wages, hours and other conditions of artist employment by July 1. The pact will cover the key stations of both networks in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, and will afford substantial benefits to the radio performers, according to the provisions contained in the pact, which is now virtually completed.

Talent appearing in coast-to-coast sustaining shows will be paid by the following scale: $25 for a full hour program, $21 for a half-hour, and $17 for quarter-hours. Local and regional sustainers will receive approximately 25 per cent less than the coast-to-coast rate.

Salaries Differ by Cities

Staff sustaining singers on the networks broadcasting out of the New York studios are to receive a weekly wage of $65. Chicago staff singers working for the NBC and CBS stations there will receive $45 per week, with an additional $3 to be added to their weekly wage if their programs are carried over the network.

Group singers on sustaining programs out of New York will receive a minimum of $45 per week. In Chicago they will receive $37 per week, and in Los Angeles, $33 per week. If programs are piped to the networks, the pay will be increased.

For re-broadcasts, the artists on sustaining shows will receive 50 per cent of the salary scales as listed above.

The pact covers an eight-hour day, 24-hour week, and will extend for two years.

Rehearsal time of two, six and eight hours will be allowed for actors on 15-, 30- and 60-minute shows, respectively, at the rate of $4 per hour. In the case of singers, half of the above rehearsal time will be allowed.

All performers will be paid for auditions, according to another provision, and rehearsals must be paid for whether the show is broadcast or not.

Appearance Time Set

Performers will not be required to be in the studio more than 15 minutes prior to the broadcast, another provision states.

Performers working on a weekly basis will automatically be assured of six weeks' work, the contract provides, by stipulating a guarantee of four weeks, plus two weeks' notice of discontinuance.

Meanwhile, it is learned that an A.F.R.A. contract covering the NBC announcers has been completed, although the terms covering this pact are not known.

Following the final settlement of the artists' agreement on or about July 1, at which time the networks will sign the document, A.F.R.A. will resume its conferences with the advertising agencies to obtain an agreement for sponsored artists, following which it will move into the studios of the local independent stations.

Super-Power Use Hit as Handicap For Small Unit

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Efforts o the Federal Communications Commission to limit duplication of program will be totally ineffective if the ge eral use of super-power is permitte members of the commission warned today.

Testifying in behalf of the Nationa Association of Regional Broadcasting Stations, opposing super-powe Dr. G. W. Pickard, consulting e gineer, submitted a number of chart to show how duplication of service o the clear channel stations increase from west to east, reaching its pea south of the Great Lakes.

With 500 kilowatt stations supe imposed upon the present structure, h said, the duplication of clear chann service would be more than doubled i many areas, and if present chain a filiations were retained the duplicatio of network service would be eve more pronounced.

Cites Value of Regionals

Under the present arrangement, h explained, while some sections of th country have less clear-channel se vice than others, that lack is made u by the regional stations.

The regional association witnesse took issue with proponents of supe power who had contended that 50 kilowatts operation would not ac versely affect the revenues of th smaller broadcasters, arguing tha the appeal of super-power stations t the public would be irresistible an would deprive the regionals of muc of the audience they now serve. Thi in turn, would be reflected in adve tising, and the result would be to crip ple the ability of the smaller statio properly to serve the needs of the public.

With the hearings proceeding at snail's pace, interest has materiall dwindled, and of the nearly 200 broad casting representatives present on th opening day less than two score no remain and the hearings, starting o in the vast Department of Commerc auditorium, for the past two week have been comfortably accommodate in a small hearing room in the Pos Office Department Building.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Multiple e of clear channel frequencies was ggested to the Federal Communications Commission today as an alter- tive to super-power as a means of proving broadcasting reception in ctions of the country now inade- ately served.

Guedella Hits British Films Before C.E.A.

Attacks "Hay Fever of Historical Epics"

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

FOLKESTONE, ENGLAND, June 22.—A scathing rebuke to British film production was delivered today by Philip Guedella, noted English novelist and biographer, and recently appointed a non-trade member of the important Films Council provided under the Films Act of 1938.

Mr. Guedella spoke at this morning's session of the annual summer conference of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, in convention here. The subject of his address was "Films and the Nation."

He referred in his speech to the "contemporary hay fever of historical epics and the pretentious absurdities we suffer in courteous silence." He flayed the historical excesses and anachronisms and asked why producers in England do not follow the American example of making historical films about their own people.

He declared the need is not for British or American films, but for good films. He pleaded for trade

U. S. Monopoly Drive May Be Begun in July

New Appropriation to Be Available Then

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Initiation of the long projected monopoly drive against the motion picture and other major industries immediately after the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, when increased appropriations will be available, is planned by the Department of Justice, it was learned today.

The first step in the campaign will be the employment of a number of additional attorneys to handle the cases which will be started. These men, so far as possible, will be selected from candidates familiar with the industries which they will prosecute.

A voluminous report on conditions in the film industry has been on Attorney General Cummings' desk for some time, but department officials said no conclusion had been reached as to whether any action was to be taken immediately. It is now believed that this report will be turned over to the anti-trust division for consideration in connection with its drive and that no proceeding will be started until after July 1.

While department heads refuse to discuss their plans, it is understood

Hollywood Previews

"Lord Jeff"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, June 22.—The gallery crowd applauded lustily when this title and its personnel credits flashed on the screen. Upon the film's conclusion, the expressions of satisfaction for what had been seen were even more demonstrative.

The story told in "Lord Jeff" is rich in human interest. Although its major locale is an English merchant marine training school and its characters are all British, the moral of its story-book theme is one which is recognized as being of strong appeal to modern-minded American juveniles and adolescents. The moral also is of significance and interest to adults.

The underlying motif of "Lord Jeff" is the pointing out of the path to true manhood as traced through the experiences of a youth who at first spurned the opportunity; who, subsequently, upon conquering his rebellious nature, yearned for it eagerly and finally achieved it. Its theme parallels the fancied or actual experiences of many youngsters. It has a down-to-earth character in its portrayal of commonplace living.

In the making-of-a-sailor yarn, Freddie Bartholomew is first the snobbish, sham aristocrat, tool of a pair of jewel thieves. Apprehended, he is sent to a sailors' training school under the condition that he behave or go to a reform school. A "gentleman," he is too good for his associates. To him earnest, honest, ambitious Mickey Rooney is everything that he does not want to be; homeless, fatherless Terry Kilburn is dirt under his feet. He is too mutinous to take interest in the school's fun or lessons. "Chilled" by his mates, even though he steers the school's barge to victory, he is cheered when he learns to cherish the ideals of true loyalty as the story builds to an exciting climax.

Bartholomew gives a performance that matches his work in "Captains Courageous," and Mickey Rooney again demonstrates that he is rightly entitled to recognition as the fastest rising young star of the day. In the person of eight-year-old Terry Kilburn, M-G-M has unearthed a potential new screen personality. He is the kind of youngster women should take to their hearts and in whom youngsters become intensely interested. While this trio carries the brunt of the story, a number of other boys are important in its detailing. In the adult segment of the cast, Charles Coburn, Herbert Mundin, Gale Sondergaard, George Zucco, Emma Dunn, Gilbert Emery and Walter Kingsford handle their assignments capably.

As the material is picturized, it is evident that Bradford Ropes, Val Burton and Endre Boehm, who prepared the original, and James K. McGuinness, who did the screenplay, interested themselves solely in developing a yarn that would be sound in its presentation of understandable and believable humanness. They and Sam Wood, who directed, chose to eschew anything savoring of romantic love interest. Yet practically every other entertainment element and personnel value in which exhibitors might interest themselves when they come to exploit the picture, in ways that will arouse wide audience interest and be particularly attractive to youngsters of the approximate ages of its juvenile principals, has been included.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"Highway Patrol"

(Columbia)

Hollywood, June 22.—Melodramatic action, which at times turns to sensationalism, is the principal ingredient of "Highway Patrol." A well developed romantic love story, together with occasional bits of comedy, serve to accentuate the basic suspense. The original story written by Lambert Hillyer as well as the screenplay by Robert Kent and Stuart Anthony are logical and understandable. In handling his story material, production values and players, C. C. Coleman contrived to keep the theme moving at a swift pace and give it a character that should be appealing to those who like something doing all the time.

The picture derives its title from the fact that the hero, Robert Paige, is a highway patrolman. When Robert Middlemass, oil refinery operator, refuses to join a combine to keep up the price of gasoline, sinister forces led by Arthur Loft, Eddie Foster and Ed Laughton set out either to force him to do so or wreck his business. To prevent this, Middlemass seeks the assistance of Paige. Between helping Middlemass and endeavoring to tame his headstrong daughter, Jacqueline Wells, Paige has his hands full and is in personal danger many times. Loft's desperate plot backfires and he is electrocuted. The remainder of the criminals cleaned out, Middlemass is able to carry on his business in his own way as the stage is set for Paige to marry Miss Wells.

Showmen who like to go in for spectacular exploitation should find here plenty of opportunity to exercise their talents.

Guedella Hits British Films Before C.E.A.

ly before the new Films Council, ning it is impracticable for the public, or non-trade members of the ouncil to give the industry what it wants unless the trade knows and expresses its desires.

He acidly criticized the present level of lay press film criticism. He declared: "The motion picture has the worst criticism of any of the existing arts. There is nothing between a glorified office boy who edits a radio column and the pseudo-intelligentsia who talk about Mr. Chaplin and who applauded "Modern Times" because hey thought it documentary."

The United States has no particular advantage in executive brains, Mr. Guedella said, but is ready to buy hem and even to buy authors. Britain continues to buy second-hand stars and the center of Britain's second-hand trade is still Wardour St., Mr. Guedella stated.

There is an amazing shortage of any British films telling the world how Britain lives, the speaker said. The paper was heard by the largest audience of any conference in the history of the C.E.A.

During the afternoon, Charles Metcalfe, former president of the C.E.A., read a paper on "Impressions and Depressions," in which he surveyed lightly and without acrimony various trade problems, skimming the surface of the majority of the exhibitor problems. He insisted the most important objective is the increase of the aggregate income.

Hits Long Programs

He criticized long programs and blind booking, and expressed the belief that a national advertising campaign to stimulate attendance would cost £250,000 annually. He declared his opinion that the rentals problem had not reached the limit possible under present negotiations, and declared that complete submission of the association's policies to the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) was necessary to the success of negotiations with that body.

Mr. Metcalfe suggested that a solution rested with the individual exhibitors. He said he hoped one day it would be possible to place the majority of independent bookings in the hands of one individual.

A luncheon today was tendered by the London and Kent Branches of the C.E.A., which was attended by about 300 persons. Thomas France, presiding, won the group with a witty speech of welcome which was voted the convention's best.

Tomorrow two technical papers will be read, by K. Knopp on projection, and by F. Watson Mann on lighting. This evening was held the premiere of the Gainsborough-General Film Distributors film, "Alf's Button Afloat." A supper dance followed.

Hollywood Previews

"Tropic Holiday"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, June 22.—The high spot in this light and wholly frivolous comedy is a bullfight sequence in the best Sennett tradition with Martha Raye as the feminine matador. This rates as one of the funniest episodes of the screen year. A preview audience already pleasantly amused by Bob Burns, Binnie Barnes, Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Tito Guizar and Elvira Rios, a Mexican girl of thrilling voice, practically rolled in the aisles during this burlesque. It is at once the high spot of the film and its most readily exploitable angle.

The picture is likewise distinguished by its musical content. Words and music by Ned Washington and Augustin Lara in the Spanish mode lay lasting hold upon the ear. Senorita Rios and Senor Guizar sing them roundly, Miss Lamour taking over occasionally, with the San Cristobal Marimba Band furnishing striking accompaniment.

The screenplay by Don Hartman, Frank Butler, John C. Moffitt and Duke Atterberry from a story by Hartman and Butler is about a scenarist sent to Mexico to write a love story, his stenographer, the Oklahoma politician who loves her, the guitarist who fascinates her, the native girl who fascinates the scenarist and the cinema star engaged to him who comes to bring him back to Hollywood but doesn't. Romantic complications encountered are not unfamiliar and never serious.

As produced by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., and directed by Theodore Reed, the film is easy to look at and listen to, a gay, colorful consignment of summery stuff admirably timed as to release. The music is sure to be well established on the air and the bull ring sequence may be expected to incite widespread word of mouth publicity.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G." William A. Weaver

"Wives Under Suspicion"

(Universal)

Hollywood, June 22.—Of great appeal to women, Universal's "Wives Under Suspicion" is a social drama based on the peregrinations of the minds of husbands who, though faithful, are so busy that they pay little attention to their homes. It is intimate film fare.

The cast presents Warren William, as the hardworking district attorney; Gail Patrick, his pretty wife, who has everything but the uninterrupted companionship of her husband; Constance Moore and William Lundigan, young friends of the pair; Ralph Morgan, as the murderer whose pattern of domestic relations resembles that of the district attorney's.

William, as prosecutor, is faced with the urge to kill when he mistakenly suspects his wife of unfaithfulness. Engaged in prosecuting Morgan who in similar instances has shot his wife, William suddenly realizes his neglect of his own home, and in a dramatic courtroom scene, urges clemency for Morgan. The prosecutor then returns to his own home to effect a reconciliation of his almost shattered marriage.

The original screenplay suggested by a Ladislaus Fodor play is by Myles Connolly. James Whale directed the Edmund Grainger production.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Reformatory"

(Darmour-Columbia)

Hollywood, June 22.—Having as background the introduction and working out of an honor system among boys of a correction institution, "Reformatory," produced by Larry Darmour for Columbia release, offers a novel exploitation campaign basis. Mention of Jack Holt's starring is guaranty for his following that the picture will be fundamentally of the action type, and in this he shares honors with Bobby Jordan, Frankie Darro and Tommy Bupp, well known film youngsters, in a story which tells simply of the seamy side of the lives of some youngsters, the outbreak of criminal tendencies, attempts at correction and regeneration and the struggle of one man to keep politics out of penology.

Supporting these four are Charlotte Wynters, Grant Mitchell, Ward Bond, Sheila Bromley, Paul Everton, Lloyd Ingraham and Joe Caits. Lewis D. Collins directed from the Gordon Rigby original.

Holt, upon being made supervisor of a reformatory, institutes humane methods and fires the brutal guards. One of the men plots revenge and induces Darro, an incorrigible, to make trouble for Holt by escaping. Jordan, having been regenerated by humane treatment, breaks up the plot and Holt and his methods are vindicated.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

that the three major phases of the film industry in which they are interested are, in the order of their importance, the relationship between producers, distributors and exhibitors, block booking and distributor, and fixing of admission prices, the last involved in the Dallas case.

The Government's new monopoly drive will come at a time when it will be of most value to the Administration politically, as the Congressional campaigns get under way, but at the same time will have an important bearing in connection with the monopoly fishing expedition which is to be undertaken by the joint Congressional-executive committee provided for in the O'Mahoney resolution, enacted in the closing days of the Congressional session.

Ticket Tax Shows Sharp Drop in May

1938 and 1937, collections for the first five months of this year, $7,722,309, being but $77,000 above the $7,645,239 collected in the same period last year.

The Broadway sector suffered severely, the bureau reported, collections in the Third New York District last month totaling only $415,798, against $596,035 in April and $484,691 in May of last year. The net loss was entirely in tax collections on admissions, which dropped from $534,561 in April to $350,402 the following month.

Other collections in the district were reported by the bureau as follows: Free or reduced rate admissions, $4,278 last month against $8,345 in April; tickets sold by brokers, $14,440 against $9,602; tickets sold in excess of established prices, $3,643 against $3,326; permanent use or lease of boxes and seats, $55 against $2; admissions to roof gardens and cabarets, $42,980 against $40,198.

Despite the decline in theatre business, admission tax collections for the current fiscal year which ends June 30 will top $20,000,000, it was indicated, receipts for the 11 months ended with May being $19,176,326 compared with $17,865,416 for the same period a year ago, an increase this year of $1,310,910.

Inducement

The latest inducement to attend the film theatre—other than a possible motion picture, of course—happened on Monday. At a house in the Bronx the regular cash prizes were there in the chance game drawing, but in addition, there were tickets to last night's Louis-Schmeling heavyweight bout.

One theatre in the Bronx gave one prize of a pair of tickets, and another of a single at $5.75, the seat for which was just south of Albany.

Loew's to Close 7 Neighborhood Spots

Loew's will close seven neighborhood theatres here July 2. Employes were given two weeks' notice last weekend.

A heavy seasonal decline in business is given as the reason. The theatres may be reopened in September, it was said, but it is possible that some of them may be dark beyond the summer period.

The theatres are the Hollywood, lower Manhattan; Dyckman, Washington Heights; Astoria, Astoria; Boston Road, Bronx, and the Brevoort, Century and Palace in Brooklyn. The circuit has other houses near some of these theatres.

While Loew's has closed a few theatres in other cities in previous summers, this is the first time the measure is to be taken in New York. Closed also are the Cameo, New Rochelle, and the Lyric, Bridgeport, where the circuit has three other houses. Whether the Lyric will be reopened in the fall is now indefinite.

Waldorf to Be Made Into Newsreel House

The first theatre project planned in connection with the rejuvenation of Sixth Ave. which is expected to follow the completion of the subway and removal of the "L" is a newsreel house on 50th St. west of Sixth Ave.

The present Waldorf Theatre, a subsequent run, will be reconstructed, under plans being drawn by a group headed by Joseph Steiner and Stanley Heller, who will open their first newsreel house, the Penn, on 34th St. opposite Penn Station, some time in August.

A traffic check was made before the group decided on the location, and it is believed that the rehabilitation of Sixth Ave. will make the site ideal for a newsreel theatre, according to the sponsors.

The Waldorf, which has 750 seats, will be made smaller and when reconstruction is completed there will be 500 seats. The front will be cut down to make room for six stores adjoining the theatre entrance. It will be air conditioned. Cost of remodeling is put at $75,000 and equipment is estimated to cost $30,000. Opening is planned for September.

Before the year is out there will be four theatres in the neighborhood, with the Music Hall, the Center and a newsreel theatre which will be opened in the new Associated Press Building under construction on 50th St. in Rockefeller Center, east of Sixth Ave. The latter will be operated by Newsreel Theatres, Inc., which has the Embassy on Broadway.

This circuit has withdrawn from the theatre at Fordham Rd. and the Concourse in the Bronx at the expiration of a one-year lease, but is building another at 72nd St. and Broadway, to be opened in September.

"Paris" Pulls $19,000 First Chicago Week

CHICAGO, June 22.—The Premiere of "The Rage of Paris" at the Palace was the outstanding attraction in the Loop last week. The Danielle Darrieux picture grossed $19,000 which is average business in normal times.

Other Loop theatres, most of them with holdover attractions, found the going rather tough. Two new pictures which got good reviews but failed to pull much business were "Yellow Jack" at the Roosevelt and "You and Me" at the Chicago. "Adventures of Robin Hood" at the Apollo and "Three Comrades" at the U. A. were fair as holdover attractions.

Total first run business was $82,400. Average is $103,000.

"The Courier of Lyons"

(Pax Films)

This French production from Eclair Films is a fine theatrical treatment of a famous law case that is as well known in France as the Dreyfus affair. From appearances the handling of the story followed the court record. There is no glossing over with factual distortion in order to bring about a happy ending. Counterbalancing this realism are vivid characterizations by Pierre Blanchar and Dita Parlo, who are familiar to patrons of the foreign film house. It has English titles.

The scenario is based on the prosecution of four robbers who held up the stage coach which was transporting 7,000,000 francs to pay the French army in Italy. Murder was committed. Three of the accused are really guilty. The third, Blanchar, makes inquiries about a friend who is detained and is identified as a suspect by two women who keep an inn. He bears a strong resemblance to the ringleader of the gang and consequently is run through the mill of justice. He cannot explain his whereabouts on the night of the crime. But his wife, Miss Parlo, draws the information from him—he had spent the entire day with a woman. Miss Parlo rounds up the girl and other witnesses. Their testimony fails to convince the court. At length the quartet, convicted on circumstantial evidence, is sentenced to the guillotine and execution is later carried out. Blanchar goes to his death in spite of the protests of his guilty mates. The real criminal is on the sidelines watching the execution. He is later caught and the truth is brought out. The judge in the case is shown in final scenes, a suddenly aged man, with a bad case of conscience.

The historical details are good. Maurice Lehmann directed. Running time, 93 minutes. "A."

Bank Night Is Given Second Florida Blow

TAMPA, June 22.—Bank Night received another setback in the courts here when Circuit Judge L. L. Parks issued a temporary order restraining the Victory and Tampa Theatres from using the game on the ground that it is a lottery in violation of Florida law. He failed to order confiscation of the accumulated money which also was asked in the petition against the theatres.

Attorneys for Gulf Theatres, Inc., Jesse L. Clark, its manager, and Vincent Wade, local manager, against whom the petition was brought, said they would take an appeal to the State Supreme Court and ask the court to suspend the injunction pending the higher court's decision. The Supreme Court has before it another Bank Night case involving a Miami theatre, but has permitted continued staging of Bank Night there pending outcome of an appeal of that case.

Chester H. Ferguson, local attorney who filed the injunction petition in his own name, also had asked injunctions against Screeno and the Question Box, but this was denied by the court since the theatres already have abandoned those activities.

Milwaukee Theatre Man Battles Union

MILWAUKEE, June 22.—A. C. Gutenberg, owner of the Grand, local neighborhood house, has gone to bat with the local projectionists' union. Signs displayed on the front of his theatre read:

"Local Union No. 164, I.A.T.S.E., is trying to force me out of business. Seventeen theatres of greater or like seating capacity are paying for one man operation $60 for a 40-hour week. I must pay $80 for 40 hours work per week for one man operation.

"Sixty-seven theatres in Milwaukee got relief. They refused me any relief. My offer to my employe is $60 for 40 hours of work. The business agent said you must be taught a lesson. What lesson? This theatre has been fair to all unions for the past 25 years. Is this union fair?"

Although the house is being picketed, Gutenberg is operating his own projector and remaining open.

Wilmington Getting Ready for Big Party

WILMINGTON, June 22.—The Delaware Swedish Tercentenary Commission has been granted permission to erect a wooden platform opposite the reviewing stand in front of the Public Building for five newsreel companies to take shots of the Tercentenary parade here next Monday. Fox Theatres Final Report Before Court

Special Master Courtland Palmer yesterday filed his final report on claims filed against Fox Theatres in the receivership proceedings.

He dismissed the claim of Alfred F. Fiegel for $250,000 based on an agreement which he claimed Fox breached, whereby Fiegel was to secure advertising for the "Fox Weekly."

The special master allowed the claim of the Chicago Title & Trust Co., as assignee of Herbert Lubin for $1,110,055 in toto. This claim was based on an agreement made March 24, 1937, whereby Fox agreed to purchase the stock and control of Roxy Circuit, Inc.

A claim filed by Gordon and Violet Grant for $4,000 was allowed to the extent of 50 per cent.

The special master declared in his report that the only other claim not yet passed upon was that of William Fox for $7,000,000, based on an indemnity agreement. Inasmuch as proof of this agreement was not submitted to him, the special master requested that it be submitted directly to the U. S. District Court for adjudication. The report also asked that the special master be finally discharged from any further duties.

Orders Irving Trust Payment

Federal Judge William J. Bondy issued an order yesterday authorizing the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., as trustee under the collateral note indenture of RKO dated July 1, 1931, to pay to the Irving Trust Co. as trustee of RKO, the sum of $127,571 to be used by Irving Trust for administrative expenses and allowances. On May 4, 1936, the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. started to put aside a fund of $15,000 monthly to be used for this purpose.

Ask Multiple Use of Clear Air Channels

Coast, in the neighborhood of Salem, Ore.

While such multiple use of the channel would not reduce the primary service area of WABC, he admitted it might shorten its range somewhat, but pointed out that there were other stations carrying the same chain programs which would fill in adequately.

The regional group also asked the commission to frame its new rules so as to provide flexibility for the power of regional stations so that they might operate with five kilowatts at night where it could be shown such power would not increase interference. This is particularly important, it was declared by Paul D. Spearman, counsel for the group, in areas where it is necessary to overcome a high noise level of urban centers.

It was admitted by Mr. Godley, however, that there are several channels in the eastern part of the country on which interference from regional stations is such as to render service unsatisfactory in some areas. In such cases, it was said, the power limit would of necessity have to be such as to minimize interference, but in other sections of the country the stations are more widely separated and five-kilowatt operation at night would not necessarily cause any difficulty.

Rules Publication Asked

Promulgation of rules to govern the use of broadcasting stations by political candidates has been asked of the commission by WTAR, Norfolk, in a petition pointing out that the commission has never issued such rules, although required to do so by Section 315 of the Communications Act, which provides that, while a station need not allow the use of its facilities by candidates, if it gives such privilege to one it must accord similar privileges to others. The station pointed out that at present broadcasters themselves are required to interpret that section of the law and that they would be relieved of such responsibility under regulations issued by the commission.

Weber Will Carry Theatre Musicians Drive to Studios

before the close of the present executive session, which began yesterday, following the close of the annual A. F. of M. convention in Tampa, Fla.

Mr. Weber indicated that he was not so much concerned with the music problem as it is at present in Hollywood. The Federation's primary concern, he said, was to bring musicians back into the film theatre, particularly in those theatres which are now operated or controlled directly by the major producing companies. He said he would exert the utmost pressure upon those production companies controlling circuits of theatres to return orchestras to their houses.

This matter, he said, would be taken up separately, and not as part of the basic studio musicians' labor agreement. This pact, to which the major studios are signatories, still has some to run, and Mr. Weber said he probably would not negotiate on a renewal of it until some time in the fall.

A.F.M. Meets on Air Reemployment

transcription companies to bring about reemployment of musicians in those fields.

Joseph N. Weber, president of the federation, said yesterday that he would would meet again with the committee of broadcasters representing the unaffiliated stations within 10 days to resume negotiations for a pact for the independents similar to the one completed some months ago for the network affiliates. Mr. Weber said that 140 independent stations had already reported to the committee, giving their yearly grosses and other information necessary to determine the rate of allocation for the independents.

Reminded by newspapermen that several of the network stations which had signed the Independent Radio Network Affiliates contract had since withdrawn from the pact, Mr. Weber said grimly that he thought he would be able to make them live up to the agreement.

He said that within a few days he would resume conferences with the network and recording companies, and said that the license form for those interests would be completed shortly thereafter. He said one of the major subjects at the present meeting of the board would be to deal with the complaints of local bands throughout the country, who have been unable to obtain radio lines because of the "name" bands which travel about the country. Mr. Weber said a method must be devised to help the local bands get back on the air.

Wrong Number

Hollywood, June 22. — A telephone number was needed in a script of the "Scattergood Baines" program, broadcast over KNX-CPN, and Dave Owen, who writes and produces the series, inserted his own number on the broadcast. Thereafter, for two whole days, his home telephone kept up a constant jingling night and day, until he had the number changed.

Mr. Owen will think twice now before using his own phone number again on the air.

Finds Children Like Action Air Programs

Contrary to educators' comment, children prefer blood and thunder, macabre and similar programs, it was asserted yesterday by Louis Wolfe, New York school teacher, who conducts "Let's Get Together," a children's program, over WMCA.

Wolfe circulated a poll which sounded out likes and dislikes among 6,000 youngsters and the results showed the general characteristics of juvenile dislikes to be condescending attitudes in programs, too much advertising, impossible achievements and love interest.

A total of 63 per cent of the participants in the query showed a dislike for child performers. Comedy drew a favorable majority of 81 per cent. Fairy tales were generally rejected with a showing of 82 per cent against and 18 per cent for. True stories received favorite acclaim with 96 per cent in favor, and opera was quite wholly placed on the rejected list with 98 per cent voicing their dissenting vote. However, two per cent found the classics to their liking.

ould Comprise Stronger Units, FCC Told

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The pos- bility that a new network comprised clusively of 500-kilowatt stations, king over the largest advertisers th the most money to spend, might superimposed upon the present oadcast structure if super-power ere adopted, was laid before the deral Communications Commission day by John Shepard, 3rd, president the Yankee Network.

Television Lens Gets Death Leap

The fall of a woman from the 11th story of a building was seen on the television screen of a receiver in Radio City yesterday.

The new NBC television mobile unit was being tested in Rockefeller Plaza, and the camera atop the truck had just swung over to catch a view of the Time and Life Building when Marion Perloff, 28, a stenographer, leaped to her death. The details of the leap were clearly caught in the receiver on the third floor of the RCA Building, where an operator had been stationed to observe the reception of the outdoor scenes caught by the camera.

The studio observer heard the camera operator gasp "My God!" just before the scene was caught on the screen.

English Exhibitors Preparing Now for Possible Bombing Raids

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

Folkestone, England, June 23.—Exhibitors in England already are preparing for possible air raids on the country in the event of war, it was indicated during a discussion at the closing session of the annual summer conference of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association here today.

Two technical papers featured the final day, one on projection by K. Knopp, and the other on lighting by F. Watson Mann. It was Mr. Mann's paper on lighting and the related problems which were likely to arise for the theatre operator in the event of air raids that led to the subsequent discussion on air raid precautions. Then came the revelation that exhibitors are already preparing for any contingency.

With the serious side of the meeting disposed of, the exhibitor delegates to the convention devoted themselves to entertainment. A coach drive along the Kent coast this afternoon, and the annual Star's ball this evening concluded the conference.

Indicative of the authority, it is reported that Mr. Silverstone has been given the power to dismiss any employe of the company as he sees fit without further authorization or consultation with the directors or stockholders. Whether this will apply to executives who have employment contracts with United Artists is not known at the moment.

Mr. Silverstone will exercise the duties of chief executive officer of the company at least until the election of a president, scheduled for the next annual meeting of the stockholders

Shearer and Gable Scarlett and Rhett; M-G-M to Release

HOLLYWOOD, June 23.—Ending what had grown to be a country-wide guessing game, it was stated authentically today that Norma Shearer has been signed by Selznick International for the part of Scarlett O'Hara in the filming of the Margaret Mitchell novel, "Gone with the Wind," and that Clark Gable has been engaged for the role of Rhett Butler. The picture will be released by M-G-M as part of the deal under which the stars are loaned to the Selznick organization. Miss Shearer is a stockholder in Selznick International.

The releasing deal with M-G-M is for this film only. Whether Selznick will shift permanently to M-G-M, stay with United Artists or arrange a new releasing affiliation is still undecided. Two pictures have still to be delivered under the U. A. releasing deal.

Announced some time ago for the cast of "Gone with the Wind" were Walter Connolly and Margaret Tallichet.

Delays Beset British Trade Treaty Talks

Kennedy Words Confirm Facts Known Here

The completion of a reciprocal trade agreement between the Governments of the United States and Great Britain, of which a motion picture arrangement would be an important part, is considered definitely remote at this time, it was indicated yesterday in informed quarters here.

Credence was given to the generally expressed belief that a long delay impends before a settlement of terms is reached by the remarks of Joseph P. Kennedy, American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, on Wednesday in Boston. Mr. Kennedy, in New England to attend the graduation of his son from Harvard, declared at a press interview that, "The present is a difficult time to reach any agreement, because trade is at a low ebb."

He said that while the trade negotiations thus far had been conducted entirely in Washington and he had no share in them, he was certain "that no agreement will be reached, which will be a diplomatic success, that will violate the dictates of common sense."

Delegates from England are working continuously with representatives of the U. S. State Department on de-

Houses in the RKO circuit in Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens and Westchester were playing the films yesterday afternoon.

My Word!

By Irene Kuhn

◆ It's not true what Harry Brand says about Hepburn! "Holiday" the star's new vehicle, opened at the Music Hall yesterday and received a four-star rating. At 4 P. M. the box-office was ahead of "Adventures of Robin Hood" for the first day.

◆ Norris Wilcox, half brother of Douglas Fairbanks, and personnel director of United Artists, had a private showing yesterday of an amateur color film he has been making for years. Mr. Wilcox, a Southerner, has had a lifelong interest in amateur photography, Colonial architecture, and is, besides, fond of motoring. In order to have a definite objective for weekend motoring he began to chart a course which would take in all the historical houses which are associated with the life and career of George Washington.

◆ He covered 4,000 miles before he had satisfied himself that he had a complete record of the buildings Washington occupied as residences and headquarters. The film opens with a shot of the restored house on the original foundations which authorities are agreed was Washington's birthplace at Wakefield, near Pope's Creek, in Westmoreland County, Va.

◆ Quite by accident, Mr. Wilcox said, he found a marker near Fredericksburg, Va., directing him to a dilapidated farm which was proved to be the place where Washington spent his youth and where the legend of the cherry tree was born.

◆ The film is not only exceedingly entertaining but has great value for architects and historians for its views of buildings associated with Washington and Colonial history. No prints can be made of the film, unfortunately, so that it exists only for the pleasure of Mr. Wilcox, his family and friends.

◆ Something new in performing dogs, strictly amateur. Owner of a bull purp showing off his pet's accomplishments on West 49th St. yells "Hitler, Benny!" and the dog goes into a spasm of snarling, barking rage.

◆ Broderick Crawford ("Of Mice and Men") now back in California for picture work, is heaven's gift to booksellers. Brod always goes on a book buying jag when he suffers from insomnia. Can finish a book a night.

Steele, Western Star, Dropped by Hackel

Hollywood, June 23.—Following the failure to renew releasing arrangements between Republic and Supreme Pictures, A. W. Hackel, of the latter organization, has dropped Bob Steele, western star, from his roster. Mr. Hackel is now in New York to sign a new releasing deal. He had been producing the Steele series for Republic for the past two years.

The dropping of the Hackel-Republic deal is believed due to the addition of the new Roy Rogers western series to the Autry and Mesquiteer groups.

Suit Filed to Stop "Birth of a Nation"

Thomas Dixon, author of "The Clansman," and Epic Producing Corp. filed suit yesterday in the U. S. District Court against Stone Film Library, Inc., Marion T. Stone, the Trio Film Exchange of New York, Inc., Esquire Amusement Corp., Max A. Cohen, Major Film Exchange, Inc., David M. Sohmer and Skouras Theatres Corp., and asked the court to restrain the alleged exhibition by the defendants of "The Birth of a Nation." The plaintiffs charge the defendants with having secured copies and prints of the picture on April 1, 1938, and with exhibiting it without permission.

The complaint alleged that Mr. Dixon assigned the motion picture rights of the novel, "The Clansman," on Dec. 20, 1913, to Majestic Motion Picture Co. and that D. W. Griffith then produced the picture, "The Birth of a Nation." Subsequently. it was alleged, Epic secured the rights to the picture. In addition to an injunction, the plaintiffs asked for damages, an accounting of the profits and $250 for each exhibition of the picture.

THE EXHIBITOR AND THE DESERT

AN EXHIBITOR started to the Market to buy his next year's Product. He was warned by he Soothsayers that his Journey would take him over the blazing hot summer Desert in which grew no Good Pictures to give him sustenance. Some of his friends had been lured into the Desert by a Mirage of false promises and there they had sickened and died.

BROKEN PROMISES

But despite the Lamentations of the Soothsayers, he Exhibitor found his road across the Desert an easy one, and he was egularly refreshed at Oases made verdant and comforting by Big Pictures.

At last, full of Happiness, he entered the Market Place. There he learned hat a certain Merchant, in his Wisdom and esire to Please the Exhibitor, had set up these Oases to make his road easy.

"Why should there be Lamentations and tearing of Robes?" asked the Exhibitor. "Lo! here is the Merchant who hath saved my Life. He did not lure me into the Desert with the Mirage of false promises. Instead he provided me with Box-office Food and Comfort."

So the Exhibitor bought all of the merchant's Next Year's Product and eturned to his family rejoicing.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 82

(20th Century-Fox)

This was an off week for the cameramen. But there are three or four clips which hold interest and the Lew Lehr piece is one of the funniest. It's about a farmer in Asheville, N. C., who has a plane pull his plow and do other heavy chores. The commentary makes it funnier.

A shot of a daredevil auto stunt man trapped in a flaming enclosure provides thrills. Other stories are the new Japanese cabinet; a Philadelphia mass celebration on the 150th anniversary of the Constitution; a British freighter wrecked on a barrier reef; herring fishing in Maine; the return of Secretary Ickes and his bride; a steeplechase, a new water wheeling sport and test runs for the Alameda regatta. Vyvyan Donner's fashion show of jewelry is put over smoothly. A good novelty is a clip of an ice skating show at a New York night club. Running time, 9½ mins. F.

News of the Day

Vol. 9, No. 280

(M-G-M)

Joe Louis tells how he put Max Schmeling in the hospital by a deadly right to the kidneys, in a post-fight speech for this newsreel. He is shown interviewed by his managers and congratulated by Doc Bagley, who was Gene Tunney's trainer. A clip worthy of billing.

Up to the minute news on the spy scare is a collection of new clips and stock material developed into an interesting story of how Uncle Sam is taking measures to protect our defense secrets. More of this will probably be coming from the newsreels.

The balance of the reel is of varying interest: Mass dancing and drilling in Philadelphia in celebration of Constitution Day; an aerial tramway at Franconia Notch, N. H.; a Paris bathing beauty show with stunning models; Health Commissioner Bundensen of Chicago inoculating girls in their legs; the start of a 43-yacht race from Newport to Bermuda; an Italian knighthood festival, which is picturesque; Secretary Ickes and his bride. Running time, 9 mins. F.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 97

(RKO)

Generally interesting material is to be found in this reel, led by a clip of Joe Louis, flanked by two managers, prompted into a halting microphone explanation of how he disposed of Schmeling with a handful of punches.

In New Mexico the farmers rally for an attack on the grasshopper pest with poison spray. Dan Beard, the father of the Boy Scout movement in this country, is visited by 3,000 boys on the occasion of his 88th birthday. Beautiful scenic photography makes the pictures of the new aerial tramway in the New Hampshire mountains a notable clip. Secretary Ickes returns to this country with his bride, and delegates from various parts of the country assemble for the third annual Townsend convention in Los Angeles.

Two "exclusives" picture the crew of the Europa donning a new type of asbestos suit before venturing into a smoke-filled room in a realistic fire-drill, and a group of once wandering gypsies, barred from the open road, dancing in traditional fashion on the roof of a New York tenement. Strikingly effective is the clip picturing the start of the Newport-Bermuda yacht race, with 43 trim racing yachts exposing their full expanse of canvas to the sky. Running time, 8 mins. A.

Paramount News

(Paramount)

The pictorial highlight of this assemblage of shots is the start of a yacht race from Newport to Bermuda, with Bill Slater providing the running comment.

The remainder is varied, but not out of the ordinary. Miners at Mahanoy City, Pa., stop an express train in an effort to persuade the railroad to build a spur; Marshall Field, Jr., marries Joanne Bass at East Walpole, Mass.; 10,000 students drill at Praha, Czechoslovakia, and England's royal princesses prepare for their parents' state trip to France.

Nebraska's unicameral legislature adjourns with the state still free of debt, and Gene Marshall discusses it. Running time, 9 mins. J.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 10, No. 678

(Universal)

Two clips, one unique in America, the other unique in today's world of snarling frontiers, distinguish this newsreel, with its healthy emphasis on Americanism. The reel opens with the Philadelphia celebration of the 150th birthday of the Constitution, with 18,000 children in exercises at Franklin Field, and 40,000 spectators. The President's arrival at Poughkeepsie to sign the big relief bill, and Uncle Dan Beard's 88th birthday celebration by thousands of Boy Scouts at Suffern, N. Y., follow.

Next is the spectacle of international amity between the United States and Canada. Thousands of uniformed Canadian soldiers march across the border to Niagara Falls for a parade with Americans to celebrate International Veterans' Magna Charta week. New York skyscrapers in miniature models for exhibit at the World's Fair are shown in the making, and there are closeups of the arrival of Secretary of Interior Ickes and his bride. Franconia, N. H., gets in with its aerial train over the White Mountains. This is the first in America.

New Orleans contributes a clip of its religious procession on the feast of Corpus Christi. Paris shows bathing beauties and the meeting between Max Schmeling and Joe Louis for the weighing-in before the now famous fight is recorded. Reenactment in Arazzo, Italy, of ancient jousting contests to celebrate a 14th century victory over the Turks is unusual, and the thrilling victory-by-a-nose of Derby winner Lawrin over Specify at the new Inglewood track in California provides a sensational finish. Good entertainment. Running time, 9 min. I. K.

Delays Beset British Trade Treaty Talks

tails of the agreement, it is known, but thus far it is understood comparatively little progress has been ma with films as well as other phases of the general agreement.

Indicative of the long delay ahead is the fact that the English group came to this country several months ago, fully intending to complete their business within six weeks, but at this date there is little indication of when their work might be concluded. The groups are understood to be meeting every day, and informed quarters in New York declared themselves not optimistic for an early settlement.

I. A. Theatre Control Limited, Says Vroom

Los Angeles, June 23.—Replying to the assertions of Charles Skouras, head of Fox West Coast, that the I.A.T.S.E. has been granted jurisdiction over theatre employes generally, Lodewick Vroom, president of the Theatrical Managers, Assistants and Treasurers, declares that this control, which he says was granted by the American Federation of Labor in 1935, is limited to doormen, ticket sellers, ticket takers and ushers. Theatre managers and assistants, he said, are being organized by the T.M.A.T.

Mr. Vroom stated that William Green, president of the A. F. of L., has assured him that in organizing the managers and assistants the T. M. A. T. is not encroaching on the territory of the I.A.T.S.E.

When the executive council of the A. F. of L. meets in August, said Mr. Vroom, he will ask that the T.M.A.T. be given jurisdiction over the entire field of theatre employes.

Paul Levi Taken Ill

Boston, June 23.—Paul Levi is ill with chicken pox. Levi, who was former publicity manager at the Paramount, is publicity head at the Metropolitan. Martin Glazer, who is examining his chest diligently at least once an hour, is handling advertising at the Met.

Short Subjects

Louis-Schmeling Fight

(Globe Cinema Corp.)

For the next few weeks this film record of the big fistic event should prove a strong magnet in attracting the multitude that avidly followed the bout over the radio and in newspapers. From the standpoint of photography it is superbly done. There is no narration to detract from the vivid reality of the presentation.

Although the entire affair was of the briefest nature, these pictures nevertheless are thrilling. The main assault in the first round is repeated in slow motion. Louis' punches and their effect leave nothing to the imagination. The dramatic moment when the towel was thrown is captured and the genuine atmosphere of the ring at the conclusion is something that audiences will remember for quite a while. Arthur Donovan and Jim Braddock speak briefly when the excitement is over. Running time, 16 mins. "G."

"The Juggling Fool"

(Vitaphone)

A number of intricate juggling stunts with balls, hats, cigars and Indian clubs are done by Bobbie May in this short. There is a semblance of a story to keep it knitted together and the film as a whole is satisfying entertainment. Good. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 51"

(Universal)

Lowell Thomas takes the audience on a tour of the scenic, architectural and industrial points of interest in New Brunswick, Canada. The material is particularly well filmed and the narration is all that can be desired. Good. Running time, 10½ mins. "G."

"Salt Shakers"

(RKO)

J. C. Flippen acts as master of ceremonies for this group of acts, including an eccentric dancer, a group of singers, a girl soloist and a dance chorus of boys and girls. Added together, they provide only passable short entertainment, and that includes Flippen. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Travel Squawks"

(Columbia)

Krazy Kat has a magic flying carpet in this black and white cartoon with which he visits a number of places that reveal the strange and elastic imagination of the cartoon scenarist. Comic variations, with gags, are introduced with sequences at the North Pole, Holland and Africa. It manages to entertain to a fair degree. Running time, 6½ mins. "G."

"Vitaphone Pictorial Revue No. 10"

(Vitaphone)

The utilization of beavers for preserving natural water supplies and in soil conservation in affected areas; a number of interesting scenes of polo technique, and the manufacture and dyeing of wool, the last in color, are offered in this reel. It is interesting and worth while. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Photographer"

(RKO)

Lively comedy centering around the predicament of Jack Rice. He is sued by an irate subject he "shot" while hanging his red flannels to dry. Various complications, legal, romantic and business, enter the plot, providing humorous moments and, at length, Rice is hauled off to jail. The film has been well produced. Running time, 15 mins. "G."

"Happy Scouts"

(Universal)

Oswald, the Rabbitt, is the leader of a troop of "Duck" scouts and as they pursue their activities a number of clever cartoon stunts are worked into the narrative. The action is exciting and entirely satisfying. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

Hollywood Preview

"Speed to Burn"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, June 23.—Someone has had sufficient imagination and courage to introduce many new entertainment and exploitation features into the familiar racetrack-premised picture. The result is an auspicious start for the one time newspaper man, Jerry Hoffman, as an associate producer, and an exciting, mirthful picture that exhibitors should find easy to sell. Fast moving, yet brimful of action, fun and melodramatic thrill, with a logical romantic love story included, the story was intelligently adapted from Edwin D. Torgerson's original by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan and was directed with a showmanship flair by Otto Brower.

Race horse "War Paint," in which jockey Marvin Stephens has great faith, is a speed demon in workouts, but crooked gambler Sidney Blackmer's henchman, Chick Chandler, so doctors him up that he's always an also-ran in races. The horse is sold to the police department for mounted traffic duty. Chandler continues his devilment, which several times results in panic on crowded streets. Meanwhile, as officer Michael Whelan and Lynn Bari, one of Blackmer's tools, fall in love and opportunity is afforded Henry Armetta, Inez Palange and Johnnie Pirone to provide humor comedy, Stephens continues his plottings to get "War Paint" back on the track. He steals the horse and is saved from a criminal charge by Miss Bari, who has experienced a change of heart. He then buys him and enters him in a big stake race. When news is broadcast that Stephens is missing all the cops who have bought mutuel tickets on the horse go into frantic search for him. They find him just in time to permit him to ride "War Paint" to victory.

With the entire cast turning in high class performances, "Speed to Burn" should prove desirable on all but the most exclusive screens. Where a lot of action, fun and excitement is preferred, it should prove a popular attraction.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Convict 99"

(Gainsborough-General Film Distributors)

London, June 14.—There is more than a touch of the older brand ot Keystone comedy about this extravagant and hilarious British film, in which Will Hay, schoolmaster comedian of radio, stage and screen, postures as a freckled, bespectacled pedagogue pitchforked into the governorship of "Blackdown Prison."

The idea of a schoolmaster reforming prison life with the aid of Turkish baths, evening dress dances, and early morning coffee is a broad one, and Marcel Varnel's development of the theme is on lines even broader than the idea, with a multiplicity of custard pies and kicks, weaving a pattern of unsophisticated nonsense which tends to the undisciplined and exuberant.

Hay, with the aid of Graham Moffatt as a youthful and iconoclastic warder, and Moore Marriott as an octogenarian who has been burrowing out of jail for 40 years, and ultimately breaks through—in the governor's office—succeeds in registering a species of team element in the film, but the extravagance is rather too broad to have point and there are very slow movements in this slapstick piece.

Hay is gradually enlarging his appeal but pending direction of a more resourceful and polished nature such as "Convict 99" will have a predominant appeal on the home market, although there is comedy material here capable of exploitation with the appropriately unsophisticated audience.

Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

Canadian Contract Revision Hits Snag

Toronto, June 23.—The move to revise the Canadian license agreement for booking contracts has made little progress, according to officers of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario, who claim that changes in the standard exhibition contract proposed by the Motion Picture Distributors' Association are either not sufficient in scope or work to the disadvantage of independent exhibitors.

One point has been offered as an example. This is in reference to the clause requiring efficient sound reproducing systems in theatres signing a contract for a season's product. The distributors have proposed an additional phrase to provide that a theatre must have a complete sound system of permanent nature to "reproduce recorded sound with adequate volume and high quality." In this instance the exhibitors demand the addition of a clause which provides that the distributors undertake "to furnish prints of an adequate quality to insure proper exhibition." Various other angles are also under dispute.

Fuel has been added to the fire by a resolution which has been received at the Toronto office of the distributor organization from the Quebec Allied Theatrical Industries, representing the independents of the Province of Quebec, in which strong disapproval of the present standard contract is expressed, including a protest against compulsory arbitration "unless the arbitrators are given more discretionary powers."

Georgia Decides to Test School Films

Atlanta, June 23.—A program of audio-visual education centering in the use of motion pictures seems assured for Georgia with the action this week of the State Board of Education in approving a plan for agricultural vocational training by films in schools throughout Georgia.

The board acted after viewing a sound film showing modern methods of hog raising. The picture, prepared by Dr. John T. Wheeler, director of vocational education in the state school department, is to be shown in schools throughout the rural sections of the state.

Enthusiasm for the new educational method was voiced by the board after viewing the picture and it was suggested other pictures be produced along similar lines.

The Metropolitan, holding over for the first time, collected $10,500 to fall only slightly below average for the week. The bill, because of the present production situation, might have been held again if the Paramount and Fenway, also M. & P., had not been clamoring for it.

Under the new quota regulations the distributor quota is three per cent each for the first and second year of the act, and 2½ per cent for each of the first two years under the exhibitor quota. During the following years the quota percentages will be subject to inquiry by the Film Advisory Committee as to the extent of the production of Australian quota films.

Writers Registering For NLRB Election

writers classed as employes under the N.L.R.B. findings want representation.

In addition to three places in Hollywood, the San Fernando Valley and Culver City, where writers made affidavits that they were on studio payrolls or contracts June 4 and that their work did not fall into the classifications declared ineligible to vote as the Board ruled, the office of Dr. Towne Nylander, regional director, was open to writers who swore they would be out of town June 28 and were permitted to cast ballots. About 10 took advantage of this. Robert Ardrey, a writer for Samuel Goldwyn, was the first to vote.

Registration was made necessary by the producers' refusal to make lists of writers at work June 4 and the Playwrights' refusal to make their membership public.

New Oil Wells Spur Louisiana Building

NEW ORLEANS, June 23.—Two new theatres in this vicinity are under construction and a third has just been opened in what some theatrical folk say is a minor boom caused by development of new oil fields. Half a dozen fields of moderately large capacity have been developed in South Louisiana since Jan. 1.

J. A. Barcelona is constructing his second theatre in Baton Rouge, brightest spot in an economic way in this section. He is building in Istrouma, Baton Rouge suburb. He will operate this and his Istrouma theatre, in downtown Baton Rouge himself.

Joseph Pizzuto, whose building at Lutcher, La., about 40 miles above New Orleans on the Mississippi River, burned recently, is constructing a new theatre building estimated to cost nearly $30,000.

A third theatre costing $15,000 has just been opened at Gramercy, La., a few miles north of Lutcher, also on the river between New Orleans and Baton Rouge, by J. N. Houck, operator of the Strand in New Orleans and other theatres in the state, and L. J. Moran.

MAX SCHMELING wasn't the only one who took it on the chin in the Yankee Stadium Wednesday night. The early finish of Hitler's invincible Aryan cost NBC a pretty nickel. Buick purchased an hour's air time in 15-minute blocks at $12,000 for each quarter-hour. Thus NBC collected the minimum, instead of the $60,000 it would have collected had the fight gone the limit, or the sums in between, had the fight terminated somewhere in the middle rounds.

Clem McCarthy, as stunned apparently as was Der Maxie, erred badly when he said that it was the "shortest fight on record wherein a title changed hands." Under the circumstances Clem's mistake was pardonable, and all in all his handling of the mike was one of the best jobs ever turned in by this veteran sports broadcaster.

When programs such as "March of Time" and "Five Star Final" dramatized news happenings from Germany, local Nazis would call the stations protesting vehemently that Germany was purposely being placed in a bad light by the broadcasters. Since the Nazi spy exposé, however, the telephone calls have ceased to come in.

Some light on a friendly act. The news release merely states that Paul Barron is to be the orchestra conductor in the "Music By" series over Mutual, July 3, and that Jane Froman and Don Ross are to be the guests on the program. Behind the news release, however, is another story.

Paul Barron is the regular piano accompanist for Jane and Don, who are, incidentally, man and wife. The July 3 broadcast is to be Paul's debut as an orchestra leader, and to help him get over, the Ross's are voluntarily giving up their July 4 weekend to appear in the show . . . without compensation, it is needless to add.

Mutual's promotional book, "A Day in the Life of Ray D. O'Dollar," from the pen of the network's promotion director, Bob Schmid, is one of the most effective such volumes ever to reach this desk. The book studiously and in our estimation, wisely, avoids the deadly seriousness with which promotional tomes are usually prepared, and instead gets over its messages via a series of humorous cartoons, humorously captioned. The flexibility of the Mutual station setup is stressed, as is its policy of adjusting hookups to advertisers rather than vice-versa.

To Change Program Time

"Grand Central Station," heard Sundays at 10 P. M. over 25 CBS stations, will move to Tuesday evening, effective July 5. Sponsored by the Lambert Co., the program will be broadcast at 9 P. M. throughout the summer. On Sept. 30 and thereafter it will be heard on Friday at 10 P. M. The agency handling the account is Lambert & Feasley.

General Shift In Offing for Air Channels

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Application of the North American regional broadcasting agreement, following its ratification by the governments involved, will require the shifting of stations on all but 17 frequencies, it is indicated by a tabulation made available today by the Federal Communications Commission.

Unaffected by the agreement will be only those stations now operating on frequencies between 550 and 680 kilocycles and between 700 and 720 kilocycles. Shifts of other stations will run from 10 to 40 kilocycles.

Fourteen frequencies not now used by the United States will be made available to stations of this country under the agreement, including the 690, 730, 840, 910, 960, 1,030, 1,510, 1,520, 1,540 and 1,560 to 1,600, inclusive, kilocycle channels, it was shown.

Rules for Politics On Air Ready Soon

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Spurred by complaints that it has failed to carry out the duty imposed upon it by the Communications Act on issuing regulations regarding the use of stations by political candidates, the F.C.C. within the next few days will turn its attention to that subject, it was learned here today.

The matter will be laid before the commission next week by Chairman Frank R. McNinch and it is probable rules will be issued before the Congressional campaigns get under way.

A petition yesterday by WTAR, Norfolk, for political broadcast rules is said to have climaxed a growing agitation on the subject. The petition was made public by the station itself, but it is understood that a number of communications of like tenor have been received by the commission.

Broadcasters willing to assign time of politicians ask the issuance of regulations for their own protection, so that they may know just how they must handle such programs. At present, the broadcaster must interpret the law for himself, with possible penalty if he guesses wrong.

Congressman's Blast Brings Payne Retort

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Representative E. E. Cox of Georgia has demanded in the Congressional Record that George Henry Payne resign as a member of the Federal Communications Commission. The Congressman declared that Mr. Payne's resignation is necessary to the proper discharge of the commission's functions.

In a sharp retort to the Congressman, Commissioner Payne declared his attack "is so obvious an attempt to befog the issue of radio reform that it deserves little notice."

Congressman Cox, the commissioner said, "Has built his whole case upon misinterpreting what I said; he is trying to make out a case for monopoly and abuse in radio."

Frisco Publishers Oppose Central Log

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—The San Francisco-Oakland Publishers' Association has decided against a central radio log bureau to service all local dailies as a result of recent cutting down of radio publicity. The publishers sent a man south to study central logging practices in Los Angeles, before reaching a decision. A central log would result in inaccuracies and save them no money, the publishers declared.

Ferguson Asks Court Aid

Ferguson Radio & Television Co., Inc., manufacturers of and sellers of radios and electrical appliances, yesterday filed a petition under section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act in the U. S. The petition listed assets as of June 20 aggregating $96,000, and liabilities of $95,000. Eric Hauser, vice-president and secretary, who signed the petition, stated the company wished to retain its license from RCA.

buy practically all of the time of the group.

Such a step, he contended, wo seriously damage the regional and local stations, financially and with regard to their public service. At the same time, the super-power stations would be without competition, since it would be impossible to establish two such networks.

"To maintain the present competitive situation," he asserted, "it is necessary that all of the highest ranking programs should not be on one affiliated station in any particular locality."

"It is the unqualified contention of our association that if the commission were to grant 500 kilowatts power to Class 1-A stations, the result would be a curtailment of service to millions as an offset to improvement in service to a few thousands," he concluded.

WOR Earns Tribute For Education Aid

Tribute to WOR for its "constructive service to adult education" was voiced yesterday in New Brunswick, N. J., by Prof. H. J. Baker, extension service director of Rutgers University, in announcing that three weekly broadcasts from Rutgers will henceforth be presented on a guaranteed time basis.

The programs involved are "Radio Garden Club," heard Mondays and Fridays; and the "Homemaker's Forum," which is heard Wednesdays, and is being returned to the air next week.

Prof. Rogers said WOR's offer to guarantee the Rutgers time, which totals nearly $38,000 in air time, "will obviate any difficulties that might arise from commercially sponsored programs asking for the period assigned for our educational broadcasts."

WHB Asks Extension To Unlimited Time

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Extension of time from day to unlimited and increase of power from 1,000 to 10,000 watts was asked today of the Federal Communications Commission in an application filed by WHB, Kansas City.

Other applications received by the commission included requests from KRIC, Beaumont, Tex., for increase of day power from 100 to 250 watts; and WGRM, Grenada, Miss., for a similar increase of day power. The Civic Broadcasting Corp., holder of a construction permit for a 1,420-kilocycle, 100-watt station at Syracuse, petitioned for a change of frequency to 1,500 kilocycles.

Few Closings Over Country, Circuits Say

20th-Fox Reports More Open this Year

Theatres in the field are holding their own and no wholesale closings are anticipated, despite the larger than usual number of closings in New York this summer, it was said by national circuit heads and distribution home offices which have received reports from branches.

A tabulation by 20th Century-Fox shows that on June 18 there were 385 more theatres operating in the country than on the same date a year ago.

While the situation in New York is aggravated by large overhead, this is not the case in the field, circuit executives say, and in other cities no more than the usual summer closings are planned.

Harry Brandt, president of the I.T.O.A., said that the organization has asked operators' Local 306 for wage reductions to tide the independent theatres over the summer. The

Cooperative Spirit Gains By Talk at White House

Monopoly Moves of U. S. Understood One of Topics Discussed

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Indications of an enhanced spirit of cooperation between the motion picture industry and the Government were seen as resulting from the conference held yesterday at the White House by President Roosevelt with Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association, and executives of eight major film companies.

Will H. Hays

The film leaders were closeted with the President at the executive mansion for a half-hour discussion of conditions and problems of the industry. The group consisted of Barney Balaban, Paramount; N. J. Blumberg, Universal; Harry Cohn, Columbia; Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox; George J. Schaefer, United Artists; Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's; Leo

Key City Grosses Running 15% Below June a Year Ago

Estimates of how much grosses are running below last year's at this time have run all the way from 10 to 40 per cent in recent weeks, depending upon who has made them and why. Actual box-office reports made by MOTION PICTURE DAILY correspondents in 23 key cities show that the drop is actually about 15 per cent and that the number of first run theatres in operation in these cities is the same as last year at this time—135.

For the week ending June 16-17 this year the total for 135 theatres in 23 key spots was $1,077,798. This was $55,300 below the previous week and was the lowest point of the current exhibition year which started in September.

Last year for the same week the total was $1,227,175 for the same theatres in the same cities. The difference between the two totals is $149,377. Last year's total of $1,227,175 also was the lowest figure for that season up to that time.

The cities reporting are scattered from Boston to the Pacific Coast and from Chicago to Oklahoma City. They represent practically all the varied types of exhibition territories and have in the past been found to be representative of general conditions.

Progress for Conciliation Is Faltering

While the major distributors are represented as working "with speed" to formulate a program of trade practice conciliation, no great progress has been made to date in shaping up definite proposals and no formal program is expected to be completed before September.

The heads of virtually all companies have declared informally that they will support conciliation, but many ramifications and company interests have to be taken into account before they will announce the extent to which

◆ Because they are foreigners, guests in our city, and because they were probably inhibited by a strict Continental code of hospitality which prevented their exercising male prerogatives of slugging an insulting crasher with a press card, they shall be unnamed. But it can be pointed out to them, for future guidance at pleasant cocktail parties they may give, that other guests would be most pleased if they'd take a few healthy wallops at that objectionable former vaudevillian who now writes a column and who does not seem to know the gutter from his elbow. It is no offense against hospitality in this country to throw out on an ear, coattails or handiest spot, anyone who so grossly abuses the privileges of a guest. The thrower-outer would be cheered.

◆ Don Ameche, film and radio star, and his wife, the former Honore Prendergast, left Saturday for a long-deferred honeymoon in the shape of a first trip to Europe. When they were married more than five years ago they hadn't the money for the trip; when they got the money they hadn't the time. Meanwhile, they have acquired offspring so that when they could afford both time and money they couldn't leave the children. Now they've parked the young ones here while they visit Italy, the home of Mr. Ameche's grandparents, and Ireland, where the Prendergast clan resides.

◆ Out of a publishing mixup in which Collier's and Life found themselves in possession of similar material, Universal's Praise Agent Leo Pillot has managed to extract one of the biggest picture publicity spreads ever—14 pages in the current issue of Life of the Armand Denis-Leila Roosevelt Belgian Congo expedition to film the Universal picture "Dark Rapture" set for July 15 release.

◆ Armand Denis some time ago sold Collier's an article on his African expedition and furnished photos to illustrate it. The story was set for the July 16 issue. Meanwhile, Life was offered stills including prints of those in Collier's possession. They accepted the pictures, without payment, and made layouts.

◆ Collier's heard about it and protested. After hours of negotiation in which Pillot says Life offered to pull out those pictures which were dupes of the ones in Collier's layout, and to give Collier's a free ad in their captions, notifying readers of the date of publication of the article the situation reached an impasse.

◆ Thomas Beck, president of Collier's, took over the matter himself and handled all details from there on as a gentle reminder to his staff to be meticulous about arrangements hereafter. As a matter of principle, Mr. Beck requested return of the money paid Denis for the article which was pulled from the magazine. Denis acceded to his request and returned the check. Meantime, other picture mags are making bids for the African stills which are said to be unusually interesting.

Florida Visits New Marine Studio Near St. Augustine

MARINELAND, FLA., June 26.—Prominent Floridians, just plain tourists and interested parties spent a large part of the weekend visiting the new Marine Studios here in this development 18 miles south of St. Augustine, which had a formal opening late last week.

The visitors were treated to an interesting view of the unique aquaria which the producers have built to provide realistic settings for underwater film material. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, chairman of the directorate of the studios, who is also chairman of the board of Pan American Airways and associated in Selznick International Pictures, was unable to be present at the opening ceremonies.

There are two of these aquaria, one rectangular, the other circular in shape. It is pointed out by the powers that be here that all kinds of salt water fish are thrown together, without regard to natural fondness for one another—if any—which presents a substantial advantage over other aquaria for film purposes. Surface levels can be reduced from 18 feet in the rectangular tank and 11 feet in the circular, to as low as two feet, and any kind of underwater setting will be provided on request.

Among those participating in the opening celebration were: W. Douglas Burden, company president, and Mrs. Burden; Mayor Frank Couch of Daytona Beach, Mayor Walter Frazer, St. Augustine, and Charles Francis Coe, the author.

A half-hour statewide broadcast was staged in connection with the opening ceremonies.

It was emphasized by the executives of the company that the studios are far from complete, as far as actual construction and the number of species of fish in the tanks are concerned. The fish are being added each day from the daily catch of a trio of specially designed boats which represent approximately 20 per cent of the total $500,000 invested in this studio site. The studios, aquaria and the entire layout are immediately adjacent to ocean and inland waterways, making simple the collection of tropical and semi-tropical fish. It is said that 5,000,000 gallons of water course through the tanks each day.

New Setup for G. N. Is Placed Before Court

Edward Alperson, G. N. trustees, according to Mr. Freedman. He arrived here from Hollywood about 10 days ago to obtain financiers' consent to certain changes in the plan, he said, and will leave tomorrow night for Hollywood to ask the court for ratification.

The group is making available $600,000 in cash for the reorganization, and $1,000,000 will be forthcoming later if needed, Mr. Freedman said. What makes the company attractive to the investors is that it has an exchange system in operation and that it was able to obtain profitable grosses for some pictures, he stated. Mr. Freedman said he spent eight weeks investigating G. N.'s books and possibilities on the coast.

The same group has organized Film Corp. of America to produce 26 low-budget films for G. N. Officers of the company are Frank K. Hale and Harold Goldman, representing the eastern investors, and Mr. Freedman, in addition to another New Yorker, who, Mr. Freedman says, is well known.

He said the court has approved the production program, which calls for 24 westerns at a cost of $17,500 each and two outdoor films to cost a maximum of $75,000 each. Options have been taken on playing talent, and cameras are scheduled to start Aug. 15, either at the G. N. studio or another if it can be obtained at a lower rate, Mr. Freedman said.

Stockholders Must Approve

Two-thirds of the company's 5,800 stockholders must approve a reorganization plan, but Mr. Freedman said the court has tentatively indicated it likes the proposal. The stockholders, who hold 685,000 shares representing a total investment of $1,600,000, will be adequately protected, and the physical structure of the corporation will not be changed, with no new stock issued, he said.

Under the plan, the company will not engage in production, but a certain amount of assistance will be given to outside producers, Mr. Freedman declared.

E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, who owns the G. N. studio, will not figure in the reorganization except that an arrangement may be worked out for release of Educational shorts, Mr. Freedman said. Mr. Hammons is also working on a plan with Nat Levine and others. Phil Goldstone is also interested in the company's reorganization.

product lineup. The deal was closed with R. J. O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager of Interstate, who is in New York. William G. Underwood, partner with Claude Ezell in the Republic franchise in Texas, sat in on the negotiations.

Reviewers Like "Banners;" "Holiday" Wins High Praise

General approval marked the criticisms directed by the reviewers of New York's daily papers toward "White Banners," while considerable and unanimous praise greeted "Holiday." Excerpts from the reviews of both films follow:

"White Banners"

Herald-Tribune—Fay Bainter carves out a memorable performance.

Journal-American—Tender and heart-warming . . . translated to the screen with rare skill and understanding.

Mirror— . . . Superbly acted, an inspirational drama. It has a persuasive charm, a powerful emotional pull.

News— . . . An emotion-arousing drama. . . . Fay Bainter especially fine . . . splendidly acted by all.

Post— . . . Does justice to its original. . . . Stands on its own feet both as entertainment and as a story.

Sun— . . . Will probably please those who like Lloyd C. Douglas's other dramatized sermons.

Times— . . . The mood of the piece is quiet, restful and sincere. "White Banners" is practically a sedative.

World-Telegram— . . . Emerges a frequently touching and moving and always engrossing photoplay. Fay Bainter best.

"Holiday"

Herald-Tribune— . . . The stage success has been turned into a smart and entertaining film.

Journal-American— . . . Has been amusingly translated to the screen again. . . . Excellently acted by a well chosen cast.

Mirror— . . . A film to which Miss Hepburn is entirely suited . . . her most pleasing picture of the season.

News— . . . Remade for the screen into a smooth-as-silk production . . . brilliantly modernized . . . Katharine Hepburn inspired.

Post—"Holiday" is what some of us have been waiting for. . . . No one in the cast lets the picture down from its remarkably high level.

Sun— . . . An amusing picture. . . . Producer, director and cast have done well by Philip Barry's play.

Times— . . . A smooth, workmanlike and thoroughly entertaining film.

World-Telegram— . . . Miss Hepburn at her brilliant best . . . acted and directed as well as any film you are likely to see this year.

Alarm Clock

E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, the other night was awakened by a long distance call from Los Angeles. Someone at the other end had something important to discuss about the Grand National reorganization. The hour was 12:30 A. M., New York daylight time. The caller forgot there is a four-hour difference in time between the coasts. Mr. Hammons reminded him of it.

Samuels Arrives Today

Leo Samuels will arrive from the coast today to take up his duties as assistant to Hal Horne, eastern representative for Walt Disney. Mr. Samuels will be in charge of foreign deals. He was executive assistant to Dr. A. H. Giannini until the latter's resignation as United Artists president.

"Always Goodbye"

(20th Century-Fox)

There is a strong human quality in "Always Goodbye," that of a mother's love for the son she cannot acknowledge as her own. Despite the fact that the theme scarcely can be described as new, the admirable assistance of a handsomely mounted production, a high degree of production value, and expertly turned performances serve to offer a potentially wide appeal in the finished product.

The exhibitor may offer his prospective customers Barbara Stanwyck, as the mother, in a sincere and earnest portrayal; Herbert Marshall, as her friend and adviser, who is willing to sacrifice his love for her happiness, his usual highly competent self; Cesar Romero, in the role of a comedy count, and who is really comic; Johnnie Russell, as the little son, who is an appealing and attractive youngster. In adequate support are Ian Hunter, Lynn Bari and Binnie Barnes, chiefly.

Sidney Lanfield, director, has succeeded in pacing the screenplay by Kathryn Scola and Edith Skouras with admirable skill, saving it at once from being too heavily sentimental or too tearful. He has lightened the touch, and Marshall is of real assistance. The original story by Gilbert Emery and Douglas Doty recounts how Marshall dissuades Miss Stanwyck from suicide when her husband-to-be is killed, how he arranges the adoption of her child, and befriends her to dress-making success. She finds her boy again, saves him from the woman who would marry the boy's legal father, Hunter, and marries him herself, while Marshall is content to give her up that she and the boy may be happy.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G." CHARLES S. AARONSON

George McLeod Baynes Friday filed a second suit against Atlantic Film Products, Ltd., asking for damages of $30,000 and at the same time applied for a warrant of attachment against the sum of $30,000 belonging to Atlantic, and allegedly held by Columbia Pictures Corp. Services of the summons and a writ of attachment in a previous suit was vacated on technical grounds April 29.

The plaintiff claimed that Atlantic breached a contract whereby Baynes was made the agent for the distribution and exhibition of Atlantic Film's "Thunder in the City" in the United States and Canada, at an alleged compensation of 10 per cent of the gross receipts. Baynes contended that he secured Columbia to distribute the picture, which later grossed $300,000, but that he had received no compensation for his services.

Loew's Asks Stay on Suit

Application will be made to the N. Y. Supreme Court today by Loew's Inc., to stay Edward M. Grossman from proceeding with his stockholder's suit against Loew's and 32 of its directors until final determination of eight similar suits against Loew's which have been previously consolidated. Grossman's suit was started May 31 and, according to the affidavit of J. Alvin Van Bergh, a member of the firm of Proskauer, Rose & Pascus, attorneys for Loew's, it seeks an accounting and a cancellation of certain personal service contracts made by Loew's with 12 of its executives.

Burgess Sues Knickerbocker

C. F. Burgess Laboratories, Inc., filed suit Friday in the U. S. District Court against Knickerbocker Broadcasting Co., Inc., and Jacobson & Co., Inc., charging patent infringement of a sound deadening construction device. Knickerbocker, it is alleged, has been using the device for the past six years. An injunction, accounting of profits and damages are asked.

Major Heads Talk Film at White House

Spitz, RKO, and Albert Warner, Warner Bros.

A variety of subjects was discussed by the President with the group, it being understood that the talk turned upon the Government's monopoly moves against the industry, the foreign situation, the reciprocal trade agreement and industry cooperation with the Administration in its recovery program.

Following the conference the members of the group refused to discuss their conversation, leaving to Mr. Hays the task of explaining the trip to Washington.

"The motion picture industry, with its world distribution," Mr. Hays said, "is a particularly sensitive barometer of business conditions everywhere. We were called to discuss with the President the general conditions, industrial activity and the steps to be taken by producers and distributors.

"We were particularly struck by the President's close knowledge of our industry's problems and I believe the President, in turn, received an encouraging picture of production activities and the continued progress in self-regulation by the motion picture industry.

"These are times that call for increased cooperative endeavor, not only within the industry but between industry and government."

"Mice" Take at Roxy Is $34,500 for Week

"Three Blind Mice" grossed $34,500 at the Roxy last week. Business generally was off, the start of the vacation season beginning to be felt, and the broadcast of the Louis-Schmeling fight credited with cutting Wednesday night's grosses deeply.

"The Sheik" garnered $28,000 in a four-week run at the Gaiety. Successive weekly grosses were $12,000, $7,200, $5,800 and $4,000. A French film, "Club de Femmes," started at the Gaiety Saturday.

"Arson Racket Squad" did a fair $8,000 at the Criterion. The Globe netted $4,500 with "The Main Event" and a similar figure was reported as the gross for the "King Kong" reissue at the Rialto.

The Louis-Schmeling fight films were reported to be doing less than expected at RKO theatres. The film was built up to 16 minutes of running time, with slow motion action, an explanation by Referee Donovan and other material to increase its pulling power.

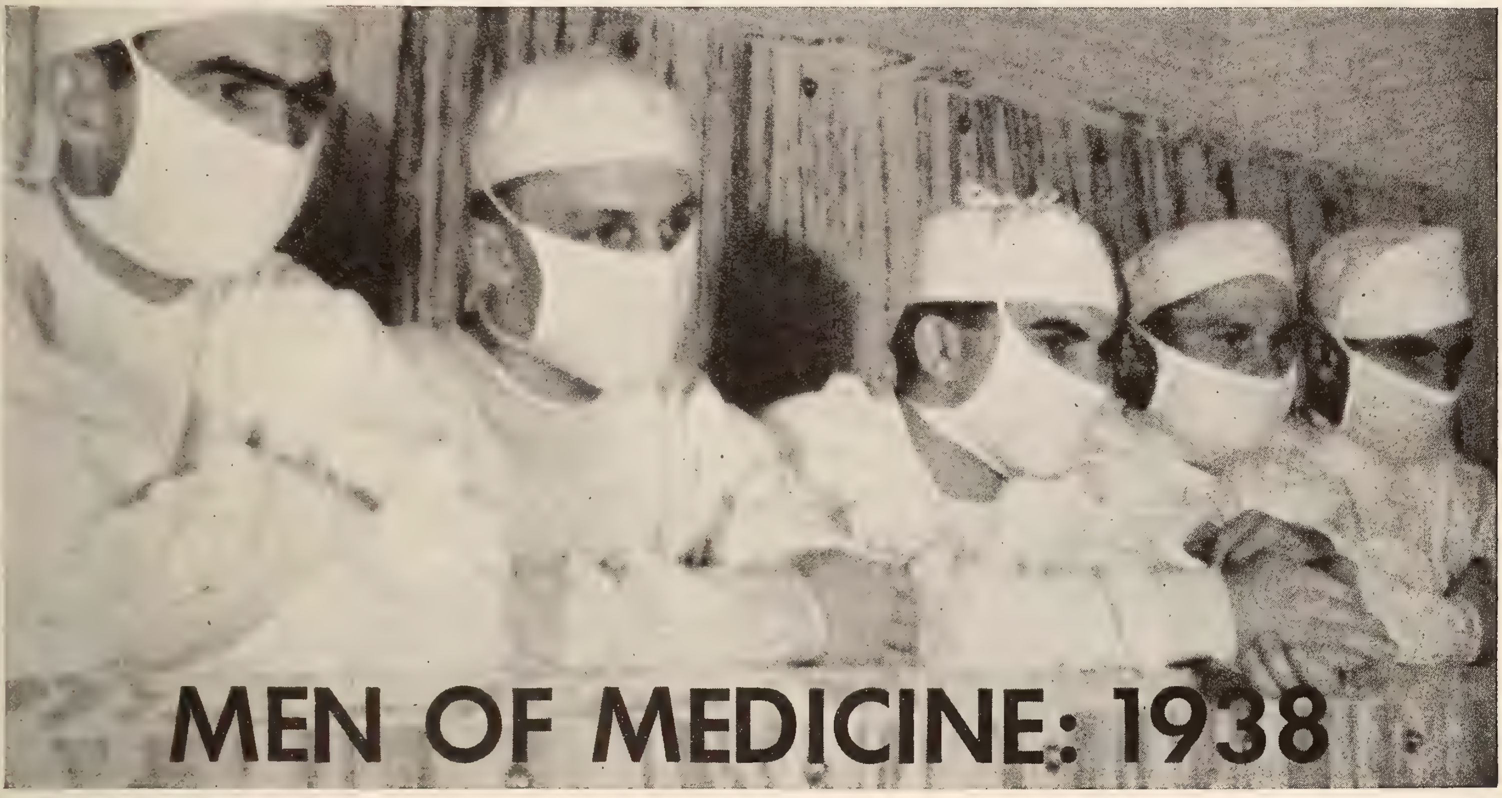
ALREADY THE SUMMER'S MOST WIDELY DISCUSSED MOTION PICTURE



MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938

TODAY the U. S. medical profession is engaged in a thought-provoking debate: how can all the nation receive adequate medical care, doctors adequate pay?

As doctors split sharply on how best to solve this problem, headlined in the nation's press are the phrases: "cooperative medicine," "group practice," "socialized medicine."

So important is this controversy to every U. S. citizen that the March of Time this month has devoted its entire issue to one newsworthy feature—MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938.

Because it presents the first authoritative, behind-the-scene story of your doctor and his problems, MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938 has become overnight the summer's most widely-discussed motion picture.

TRUE DRAMATIC REALITY—A New Kind of Boxoffice

MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938 has for its leading character a real-life doctor. It portrays authentically and accurately the crucial moments in a young doctor's life. And it gives to U. S. citizens a true and understandable picture of modern medicine—its practice, its triumphs and the crisis it is facing today.

MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938 is not only an important film document,—it is exciting entertainment.

ACCLAIMED BY THE PRESS . . .

Unanimous is the trade and U. S. press in its praise for MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938.

". . . most intensely interesting March of Time ever released." —Showman's Trade
". . . its appeal is wide, finely informative." —Film Daily
". . . exemplary in its straight-line adherence to its theme." —Motion Picture Herald
". . . absorbing film fare to every picturegoer." —Film Curb
". . . it ranks among their most intelligent best." —Boxoffice
". . . excellent, engrossing—tie-up opportunities enormous." —Exhibitor
". . . forthright and absorbing, alone worth the price of admission." —Washington, D. C. Herald

ACCLAIMED BY THE PROFESSION . . .

MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938, made with the full cooperation of the entire medical profession, is the only motion picture to be endorsed by the Board of Trustees of the American Medical Association. It is acclaimed by the association of American life insurance companies as "an accurate and splendid interpretation of current medical and health problems," and by all the medical profession as "authentic and impartial."

AND THROUGHOUT THE NATION . . .

Twenty million U. S. citizens have already been notified by bulletins from insurance companies and medical groups, and through pharmaceutical and medical journals to watch for this new issue of the March of Time. This is one of the greatest cooperative publicity campaigns ever completed. Now they are waiting for YOU to tell them when you play MEN OF MEDICINE: 1938 at your theatre.

Few Closings Over Country, Circuits Say

general view is, however, that the union wage situation is only one factor, and that concessions must also be obtained from landlords, film companies and on light and power bills. Mr. Brandt said that the exhibitors are negotiating individually for such adjustments.

Local 306 officials have conferred with I.T.O.A. spokesmen but have no intention of granting a reduced wage scale, it was said. Stagehands' unions have also been approached, but one official said that such requests come from exhibitors at intervals regardless of grosses.

General conditions rather than any particular factor are blamed by exhibitors, and a general feeling that an upturn will be visible by September is expressed.

In addition to Loew's, which will close seven theatres, July 2, RKO will darken 12 in the metropolitan area and one in Columbus and the Brandt circuit will close 11 this week.

RKO intends to reopen all theatres in September. An official said that the closings in the circuit are less than in previous summers.

National Theatres stated the only reports it has received of closings are one in Seattle and one in Denver.

Skouras Theatres in the metropolitan area will close 13 early in July. It is planned to reopen all in the fall.

Theatre Building Falls During May

comment that "theatre building followed the May trend of non-residential work." An average drop of three per cent was recorded for non-residential construction during May.

Seventy-one theatre projects involving 164,000 sq. ft. were reported by the Dodge news staff of 75 reporters during last month. Contract value totaled $1,514,000. The April report covered 82 projects with 256,000 sq. ft. and contracts amounted to $2,071,000.

To this point, theatre building contracts, as reported by Dodge, are approximately $1,750,000 behind the five-month period of 1937. The 1938 figure is $9,205,000, compared with $10,974,000 for the same 1937 period.

Actors Urge Ban on Mexican Film Houses

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, June 26.—The national association of actors here and allied professions and trades have urged upon the Municipal Government a law prohibiting any new film theatres in the city.

They contend that if any more theatres are turned into film houses that many more union show people will be starving. The conversion of houses in the past five years has reduced the number of legitimate theatres from 20 to five. The survivors are in a very bad way, the groups contend, and only one is functioning regularly.

Hollywood Previews

"My Bill"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, June 26.—Plainly told drama of a mother's devotion to her children through crises domestic and financial, Warners' "My Bill" presents Kay Francis, Bonita Granville, Anita Louise, Bobby Jordan, John Litel and Dickie Moore in a vehicle aimed primarily at the distaff side. Applause during the preview at Warners' Hollywood Theatre and at its conclusion indicated that its appeal is not limited to the feminine contingent.

With situations created by unhappy family affairs, gossip of relatives and neighbors, the faithfulness of the youngest of four children despite the misunderstandings of the other youngsters, and the difficulties of raising a family with a half empty larder, the story finds probable counterpart in true incidents in towns big and small. The play, "Courage," by Tom Barry formed the basis for the screenplay by Vincent Sherman and Robertson White. John Farrow directed the Bryan Foy production, which mingles pathos, irony and humor.

Supporting the principals are Maurice Murphy, Elisabeth Risdon, Helen Phillips Evans, John Ridgely, Jan Holm, Sidney Bracy and Bernice Pilot.

Dickie Moore, 12-year-old screen veteran, carries the major share of the story as the boy who sticks to his mother, Kay Francis, when the other children, Anita Louise, Bobby Jordan and Bonita Granville, are influenced by their wealthy aunt to live with her. The aunt despises the little boy because she erroneously thinks her brother, Miss Francis' late husband, is not the child's father. Aiding Miss Francis in her difficulties is John Litel, the town's banker and her childhood sweetheart. By an inheritance, little Dickie patches matters up for the entire family.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Woman Against Woman"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, June 26.—Names like Herbert Marshall, Virginia Bruce, Mary Astor, Marjorie Rambeau, Zeffie Tilbury and Janet Beecher are, on most American marquees, ample inducement for the citizens to drop in and see what their bearers are doing this time. Those who do will find them doing the things expected of them in precisely the type of picture the title suggests. Few pictures are so accurately described by their surface billing.

"Woman Against Woman" is not, in cold fact, the play that oldsters will half remember, favorably, as a staple item of 10-20-30 stock repertoire three or four decades back. It is a screenplay by Edward Chodrov, who also produced the film, from "Enemy Territory," by Margaret Culkin Banning. Yet it is, although contemporary in setting and genteel in manner, almost precisely the kind of entertainment reminiscing adults will recall the dependable old melodrama as having been. An odd and commercially advantageous coincidence.

In the story, Marshall divorces Miss Astor to escape wifely domination. She is given custody of their infant daughter. He marries Miss Bruce and brings his bride to the small town where Miss Astor has enlisted her social associates in a kind of sympathy strike against the newcomer. Her persistence in such direction makes life pretty miserable for the newlyweds, but Marshall finally learns, by discovering that his daughter's represented illness is unreal, that Miss Astor's intent is to wreck his marriage. He and Miss Bruce denounce her and she promises to desist.

Robert D. Sinclair directed. Miss Rambeau furnishes most of the slight comedy relief. Washington and a small American city are represented. Appeal is to the family type audience.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Plan 3 Houses in One

BOSTON, June 26.—A three-in-one policy has been announced for Boston by the F. E. Lieberman circuit. Lieberman is planning to open three film theatres in the old B. F. Keith Theatre. The circuit plans a subsequent-run upstairs house, a newsreeler and a vaudeville theatre.

Mitchley Joins Poster

PORTLAND, June 26.—George Mitchley, states rights distributor in the northwest, has been appointed sales manager for the Poster Service Corp. Foster Blake, Portland, is general manager.

Three Frisco Firms Move

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Three theatrical equipment houses here have moved to new and larger quarters. National Theater Supply is now at 255 Golden Gate Ave., Western Theatrical Equipment Co. is installed at 222 Golden Gate. United Theatre Equipment's new showrooms are at 121 Golden Gate.

Plans Seattle Theatre

SEATTLE, June 26.—W. T. Campbell plans a new 1,100-seat house in the west Seattle business section. The theatre will be leased to John Danz's Sterling Theatres circuit.

Progress for Conciliation Is Faltering

they will support conciliation machinery.

The sales managers and legal co[illegible]sel are to be reckoned with importa[illegible]ly, and in some instances their opinions run counter to those of the heads of the companies. While support of conciliation has been given "in principle," there is no agreement so far on what should be done and the method of putting a program into effect.

Conditions laid down by the M.P.T.O.A. and Allied are being considered individually by the companies. The summer will be taken up with informal discussions on the procedure which is to form the framework on which the conciliation machinery will be built.

Some of the sales heads are said to feel that the assent of all companies must be obtained before a program can go forward, and they contend that the opposition of one company would be sufficient to block the entire program. So far the attitude of Warners has not been clearly defined, though in the past this company has pursued a policy of non-cooperation.

No company would be willing to give up economic advantages demanded by the exhibitor groups without the knowledge that all other distributors would conform, it is pointed out.

The shaping of a definite program will, it is conceded, be a difficult and long drawn out task. After specific proposals have been submitted, there may be the hurdle of negotiations with exhibitor committees representing the M.P.T.O.A. and Allied. The executive committee of the former is authorized to confer with the distributors. Allied's directors were empowered by the Pittsburgh national convention to appoint a committee to meet with the distributors "at the opportune time."

Fight 'Birth' Conviction

BOSTON, June 26.—The appeal of a Cambridge newsdealer from a conviction and $500 fine in Municipal Court for selling copies of Life containing stills from the film "The Birth of a Baby," has been taken under advisement by Judge John P. Higgins of Suffolk Superior Court.

Time, Inc., is defending the charge. Judge Higgins declined to hear a number of nationally known professional and civic leaders, holding their testimony "irrelevant." If the conviction is upheld, Time, Inc., plans an appeal to the Supreme Court.

"Birth" Banned in Omaha

OMAHA, June 26.—Mayor Dan B. Butler, now nationally-known for his censorship ideas, overruled a City Welfare Board order authorizing showing here of "Birth of a Baby" and banned the picture.

In the five-member board of private citizens, two voted for the picture and one against, the other two passing votes. Butler then said he refused to recognize the board's action.

In a special broadcast at 11 P. M. tonight, WDEL placed a microphone at "the rocks," historic landing place of the Swedes who came to America 300 years ago. The splashing of the waters of Christian River was broadcast.

CBS will air a preview broadcast from 9 to 9:30 tomorrow morning, conducting a three-way program with microphones on "the rocks," on the Swedish luxury liner Kungsholm and on an airliner cruising over Wilmington.

A special booth has been built at "the rocks" for a Swedish announcer who will intersperse explanatory comments which will be broadcast by short wave to Sweden.

Gray and Band Join Burns & Allen Show

Glen Gray's Casa Loma orchestra will join the Burns and Allen General Foods Show on NBC on July 4, and will remain on the program until it leaves the air in August.

Although nothing has been said about it, there is a likelihood that the Casa Loma band will remain with Burns and Allen when the comedians start a new commercial series over CBS in the fall.

Jessel Final July 3

"Thirty Minutes in Hollywood," cooperatively sponsored Mutual network show with George Jessel, will present one more broadcast before discontinuing for the summer. The final program will be heard July 3. The program will return to the Mutual network early in September.

Elliott Now Time Buyer

E. A. Elliott, formerly space buyer and head of the schedule department of the Campbell-Ewald Co., has been appointed director of media and will assume charge of radio time buying for the agency.

Start WHN Show Today

Emerson's Mountaineers, who have been featured in shorts for Universal and Warners, will inaugurate a thrice weekly program over WHN today at 12:30 P.M.

Good News Only

Birmingham, June 26.—A news broadcast with only good news is planned by WSGN. The average news broadcast runs about 95 per cent to crime, war, catastrophe and the like, but this newscast will be only of constructive occurrences with a few feature shorts to add interest.

Celebrities' Voices Are Put Into Series

A series of transcribed programs containing the voices of celebrities such as P. T. Barnum, Garrett A. Hobart, John Wanamaker, Andrew Carnegie, William McKinley, Sarah Bernhardt, Theodore Roosevelt, Presidents Taft and Wilson, William Jennings Bryan and others will shortly be offered for sale to radio stations by Robert Vincent of New York, who has accumulated a large collection of re-recorded voices. The series is to be titled "Voice of Yesterday," and may be sponsored by local merchants.

The plays will be of 12-minutes duration with three minutes of music following, which will enable the sponsor to fade in and inject the commercial announcement. Mr. Vincent, who recently produced the transcribed series "Wings Over the World," will direct the plays and the cast will include Don McLaughlin, Ken Delmar, Ray Bramley, Louis Krugman, Charlotte Chain and others.

Crosley Plans Trial Home Facsimile Sets

CINCINNATI, June 26.—"Some home facsimile receiving sets will be manufactured this year to help carry on experiments, but whether additional sets will be manufactured for the market in the future is uncertain," declared Powel Crosley, III, vice-president of Crosley Radio Corp., in commenting on the experimental license granted WLW by the Federal Communications Commission to transmit facsimile signals with 50 kilowatts power until Aug. 1. Signals will be transmitted from midnight to 6 A.M., during which hours regular broadcasting is discontinued.

It is understood that the system to be used by WLW calls for use or sale of a certain number of facsimile receiving sets during the initial year of the contract, with an increase each additional year the contract remains in effect.

New Offices of WGY Will Open on July 9

SCHENECTADY, June 26.—The new five-story broadcasting headquarters of General Electric's WGY, local outlet of the NBC-Red, will be opened officially July 9.

The construction of the new WGY studios is part of the recent building activity by NBC in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Washington. Last week construction crews completed the iron work for the new NBC radio center to be opened in Hollywood.

KNX Coast's Leader In Crossley Survey

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—The Crossley radio and market research organization has completed a survey of the Los Angeles radio market, the largest ever made in this area. A summary of the report, showing the number of quarter-hours during a typical week in which each station has the largest audience, shows KNX, the CBS station here, leading the list with 216 firsts. KFI is second with 165 and KHJ has 18. The other stations, in order, are: KECA, seven; KFWB, six, and KFAC, four.

The survey was based on a total of more than 130,000 attempted telephone interviews. The questions asked were: "To what radio program are you listening?" and "To what radio station are you listening?"

The Crossley researchers completed an average of 285 interviews every quarter-hour, for seven days, 14 hours each day.

KOMA Testing Sites For Big Transmitter

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 26.—Tests to discover the best site for a new 50,000-watt transmitter are being conducted by KOMA, Neal Barrett, general manager, said this week.

The station has an application before the Federal Communications Commission for permission to increase its power from 5,000 to 50,000 watts.

Barrett said that $20,000 has been spent by the station in improvements and new equipment at the studios in the Biltmore Hotel during the last two months.

If permission is granted to increase its power, a $160,000 transmitter and tower will be built near the city. The station would be one of the most powerful in the southwest.

Facsimile Plant Set

The new facsimile transmitter of the Finch Telecommunications Laboratories has been completed and the plant will now undergo a series of tests of the efficiency of duplex transmission and reception of regular broadcast and facsimile programs on a single channel. The transmitter is the first to be licensed by the F.C.C. for transmission of two such services. Its call letters are W2XBF, and it is expected to be installed for operation by the early fall. It will use a power of one kilowatt and is designed to operate in the ultra-high frequency band 31 to 41 megacycles.

Plan Federal Program

The Radio Division of the Federal Theatre, with CBS, will present a new dramatic series based on the writing of Paul de Kruif, to be titled "Men Against Death," Thursdays from 8 to 8:30 P.M., beginning June 30. The scripts will be by Leon Fontaine of the Federal Theatre. George Zachery of the CBS program department will direct.

Dragonette Tops Poll

Jessica Dragonette has been declared the radio "star of stars" by the readers of Radio Guide magazine in a popularity poll. It marks the first time that a performer other than a comedian has won that title in the Radio Guide contest.

Women's Press Unit To Make Air Awards

The National Federation of Press Women, believing women's contributions to radio have never been properly appreciated while men get credit for what they do, henceforth will make nine annual awards to outstanding women in radio. The Federation of Press Women represents local women's press clubs, newspaperwomen and writers generally.

Winners will be announced annually at the Federation's convention in June.

The awards will be as follows: Best interpretation of the news, greatest contributions to radio programs by a woman, good taste and restraint in advertising announcements, most original program idea developed during the year, short wave program or series most effectively promoting international peace and good will, best program designed for rural listeners, children's programs best designed to aid the development of children and youths, best performance or series of plays written or adapted for radio, most effective presentation of American ideals. Awards will also be made to special programs which are endorsed by women writers of the United States.

The federation decision to make annual radio awards follows the step taken last month by the New York chapter, which instituted similar radio awards with some success.

Prepare for Canada Actuality Programs

TORONTO, June 26.—Roy Cahoon, chief special events engineer, and Percy Field, assistant engineer, in charge of the new mobile broadcasting unit of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., have gone to Banff to arrange the first of a series of "actuality programs" every two weeks in different parts of the Dominion. The initial program, which will be aired July 13 over the Canadian network will consist of campfire and fishing presentations as they actually take place, bird songs, interviews with game wardens and other activities in the Canadian National Park.

The unit is equipped with two ultra short wave portable pack sets, a short wave receiver and a portable 40-watt transmitter which is capable of radiating up to 50 miles.

Mutual to Air Concerts

Nineteen Grant Park concerts will be carried over Mutual, beginning July 1 and ending Sept. 3. The schedule for the broadcasts will be staggered and they are to be offered approximately twice weekly from 9 to 9:30 P.M.

Book Dorsey in Chicago

Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra will open at the Bon-Air Country Club, Chicago, Aug. 5, for an indefinite engagement with a Mutual wire. The booking is through Rockwell-O'Keefe, Inc.

Pratt Joins Agency

Benson K. Pratt, formerly night manager of the NBC press department in New York, has been named executive associate with Harris & Steele, Inc., New York talent managers.

YES, WE ARE HOARDING!

If delivery of a picture every week, as we promised, is hoarding—we are guilty!

If delivering two or more A pictures every month through the heat of May, June, July and August is hoarding—we are guilty!

If delivering to Exhibitors in July three of our most expensive A pictures—Shirley Temple in LITTLE MISS BROADWAY, ALWAYS GOODBYE, and I'LL GIVE A MILLION—is hoarding—we are guilty.

Since April 1 our release schedule shows the following class A pictures:

April 15—IN OLD CHICAGO
April 29—FOUR MEN AND A PRAYER
May 13—KENTUCKY MOONSHINE
May 20—RASCALS
May 27—KIDNAPPED
June 3—JOSETTE
June 17—THREE BLIND MICE
July 1—ALWAYS GOODBYE
July 22—I'LL GIVE A MILLION
July 29—LITTLE MISS BROADWAY

With the exception of the Jane Withers picture, not one of these cost less than $600,000. Every one of them had been promised. Every one of our promises has been kept.

If this is hoarding, we are guilty.

Twentieth Century-Fox is not only guilty but proud of this kind of hoarding. Last year, this year, next year—always—we consider commitments for delivery of pictures our most serious responsibility. This responsibility runs through the summer, for it knows no season—knows no break.

We have kept faith with our customers, and they know it. We are not interested in the opinion of any competitor.

Our policy remains the same:

To produce the best possible pictures to get the public into theatres, not to produce statements to keep them out.

Report 65.5% Of Radio Time Is Sustaining

Big Stations Devote 53% To Commercial Use

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Sustaining programs account for 65.5 per cent of the playing time of the average broadcasting station and only slightly more than one-third of the time is devoted to commercial features, was disclosed today by charts prepared by accountants of the Federal Communications Commission.

Introduced as the commission started on the last lap of its hearings on proposed new rules for broadcasting stations, which it hopes to close by tomorrow night, the charts showed that while unlimited time 50-kilowatt stations (including WLW) devoted a fraction over 53 per cent of their time to commercial programs, the proportion dropped rapidly as power diminished, with local day stations re-

France, Reich Renew Picture Pact for Year

French Protest Lack of German Cooperation

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, June 20.—France and Germany have renewed their existing film agreement for one year from the expiration date, June 15. Either party has the privilege of withdrawing from the agreement Dec. 31, 1938.

The agreement originally went into effect June 1, 1936, and was renewed for a year on June 15, 1937. At the latter date, the arrangement included a provision that the German authorities would assist in the importation of French films into Germany, and the sale and distribution of them, as a means of increasing the circulation of French films in the Reich, which was extremely poor during the previous year.

Despite these promises, however, the importation and exhibition of French product in the Reich showed no improvement during the past year. Not more than a dozen French films were shown in Germany during the HOLLYWOOD, June 27.—With officers of the Screen Writers Guild conducting last-minute drives for votes, film writers today awaited the opening tomorrow of polling places at which they will determine by ballot whether the S.W.G. or Screen Playwrights, Inc., shall represent them or whether no representation by either organization is wanted. The balloting will be done in three places and by ballots taken to the Roosevelt Hotel for counting about 11:30 P. M. (P. S. T.), tomorrow night. Only those screen writers who registered and made affidavits of eligibility will be able to vote. The polls will be closed at 11 P. M.

Industry May Use $250,000 On World Fair

Feature Film and Studio Exhibit Discussed

An expenditure of $250,000 or more may be made by the organized industry in connection with its proposed participation in the World's Fair next year.

Of three proposals being discussed by Hays office directors, a feature-length film to be called "A Cavalcade of America" appears to have the best chance. This would depict the development of the country to the present.

It has also been proposed that the industry sponsor a studio where actual production will be demonstrated to the fair visitors. A large theatre to be built on the fair grounds is also under discussion.

The plan for an historical film was submitted by Grover A. Whalen, president of the fair, and it is understood that considerable pressure is being brought to bear to have the major companies, through the Hays office, participate in this or in some other manner.

The proposals are described as in an indecisive state at the moment, but it is said that industry participation has virtually been agreed upon.

My Word!

By Irene Kuhn

◆ Len Gaynor (20th Century-Fox publicist) and wife, Bland (Mirror critic) Johaneson, combining fun with weekend farming at Glen Gardner, N. J., have built the best dressed scarecrow in Hunterdon County. They call him "Lucius Boobe." But the morning coat and top hat and other gaudy raiment affected by their Mr. Boobe have attracted curious crows who have come to gape and remained to eat.

◆ The amateur farmers, loath to expel "Mr. Boobe," yet eager to save their corn, stuck pinwheels on posts throughout the field. But instead of repelling marauders, the pinwheels attracted a new pest, hawks, which assume they are small birds and make swooping attacks. Not finding nourishment in the pinwheels they stay for corn dinners, too. Crop prospects are pretty discouraging at the moment.

◆ Script writers on Shirley Temple pictures have a set of rules worked out in the interests of showmanship and Shirley. The star must appear in every scene possible, and if she isn't in a scene the dialogue must mention her. Adults' opinions when important must be voiced through Shirley. The little girl must never be naughty for it would set a bad example. She must never quarrel with her parents or be spoiled. She can no longer associate with gangsters or uncertain characters. She must be American. She must have big problems to solve. Summed up in the words of one of the producers, "the little girl's hands must be on the wheel (of the story) all the way."

◆ Robert Montgomery, M-G-M actor, banner-carrier among the actor-unionists, is the only representative of the film industry to hold membership in the exclusive Grolier Club. Bob's been in this high-toned company since 1934. The Grolier Club is one of the most exclusive organizations in the world, composed as it is entirely of top register connoisseurs of art and rare book collectors. The actor is a fellow club member of J. P. Morgan, President Franklin D. Roosevelt (honorary), Floyd B. Odlum, Albert H. Wiggin and Owen D. Young.

◆ The National League is under way with its 10-reel picture glorifying baseball from Abner Doubleday's time in the '60's to the present. This is the first time the National League has gone in for promotion-of-baseball-through-pictures, although the American League has often done it. Charles Geis, Chicago cameraman, has just arrived in town for New York material. He'll cover every city in the circuit. The picture will have the support of several boys' organizations, including the scouts, and will be shown in schools and in big theatres at special free performances which will be held during morning hours.

Tom Hogan, cameraman, sailed on the Oriente Saturday to become first cameraman for Peliculas Cubana.

Rutgers Neilson, RKO publicity manager, went up to Poughkeepsie yesterday for the regatta.

David Niven and Clifford Fischer were among the arrivals yesterday on the Normandie.

Jon Hall and Mrs. Hall (Frances Langford) are at the Hotel Astor.

Carl Laemmle Will Study French Films

Carl Laemmle, Sr., plans to view some French pictures while abroad with a view to setting up an independent organization here for foreign film distribution. He will sail on the Normandie tomorrow with his secretary, Jack Ross.

His trip is chiefly for pleasure, however, and he plans to stay three or four weeks at the Vichy baths and also visit Switzerland, returning here late in August. The refugee situation in Germany and Austria has occupied much of Mr. Laemmle's time lately.

He says that Carl Laemmle, Jr., is still reading scripts and preparing for production, but that no definite plans have shaped up as yet.

While here he conferred with Paul Maerker Branden on an original script which will be finished on his return.

Discontinue Metro Suit

The $100,000 damage suit of Harry Delf in the U. S. District Court against M-G-M, General Foods Corp., Maxwell House Products, Ltd., Benton & Bowles, Inc., NBC and others was discontinued yesterday as against Maxwell House without costs. The discontinuance was allegedly due to the fact that Maxwell House is a Canadian corporation not subject to the jurisdiction of the court. Mr. Delf brought suit claiming the plagiarism of his sketch, "The Joker," by the defendants in a broadcast on Feb. 27, 1938, on M-G-M's "Good News of 1938" over WEAF, and asked for $100,000 damages, an accounting of profits and an injunction.

To Ask Suit Dismissal

Application will be made today to Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck by Warners to dismiss two stockholders' suits for failure to prosecute. The first suit, brought in July, 1935, by Joseph Weintraub, alleged stockholder, named Renraw, Inc., Warner Bros. Pictures, and eleven of its directors as defendants. The second, brought in August, 1935, by Adolph Greenberg, in addition to the defendants named in the Weintraub suit, also named the firms of Goldman, Sachs & Co. and McClure, Jones & Co. as defendants. Both suits charged the defendants and its directors with "mismanagement and waste."

Allows Appeal of Verdict

Federal Judge Murray Hulbert yesterday allowed the appeal of Yermi Stern and Casino Productions, Inc., to the Circuit Court of Appeals from a jury verdict, which awarded six cents damages to Mr. Stern and Casino against Warners. The plaintiffs had sought $500,000 damages and an injunction against the exhibition of the defendants' picture, "Go Into Your Dance." They claimed that the picture libeled them in that Casino de Paree, operated by the plaintiffs, was depicted as a hideout for gangsters.

Extend Irving Trusteeship

Federal Judge William Bondy on Saturday approved the petition of Irving Trust Co. and trustee of RKO, granting it an additional six months from July 1, 1938, in which to continue as trustee of RKO for the purpose of affirming or disaffirming leases, contracts and agreements, subject to the supervision of the court.

Republic Closes New Franchise Contracts

New franchise agreements for the Dallas, Oklahoma City and Little Rock territories have been closed by Republic on more advantageous terms to the film company than heretofore. H. J. Yates is negotiating with other franchise holders for new deals on a reduction of the percentage to the territorial distributor.

James R. Grainger, Republic p[illegible]dent, yesterday said that the new distribution deal being offered franchise owners is for five years and goes into effect July 1. He also made known that "agreements have been reached with practically all other important franchise owners with whom Republic had decided to continue to do business."

It is understood that some of the franchise holders have balked at accepting the new terms offered by Republic, which would mean a reduction from the present arrangement. However, Mr. Yates is insisting on a new deal in view of the higher production budgets instituted for the new season.

William G. Underwood and Claude C. Ezell of Dallas signed the new agreement for Republic Pictures Corp. of Texas. Sol Davis and Morris Loewenstein of Oklahoma City closed for that territory and B. F. Busby of Little Rock for the Arkansas area.

Film Men Sailing

Among passengers scheduled to sail on the Normandie tomorrow are David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer of Loew's, who is going over for business and pleasure; Joseph H. Moskowitz, 20th Century-Fox; Sonja Henie and her mother; Grace Moore and her husband, Valentin Parrera; Louise Henry, and Eric and Mrs. Charel.

France, Reich Renew Picture Pact for Year

or, and some of the best French res, such as "The Grand Illusion," were banned by the German censor board.

The French press has instituted a movement of protest, pointing out that whereas the spirit of the Franco-German agreement was one of reciprocity, actually the result always has been to the advantage of Germany.

The newspapers declare emphatically that while France is an excellent customer for Germany's screen product, the Reich buys practically nothing from France. Not only do French interests buy German equipment, but the German producers make films in French versions which are distributed by their French subsidiaries.

French players benefit from that system, since they have the privilege of exporting the money they earn, or, more often, they are paid in Paris in French money by the subisidiary of the German firm for which they have been working. The money realized from the exhibition of these films in France, of course, goes back to Germany.

French technicians likewise complain that French language films produced in Germany give work only to French players and writers, but take work from French studio technicians who would gain if the films were produced in France.

Guaranteed Pictures Co. has purchased "Revolt of the Zombies" and "I Conquer the Sea" for foreign distribution in all territories except the United Kingdom, Egypt and Continental Europe.

Weather Control

John J. O'Connor, head of RKO theatres, hopes for the day when scientists will be able to control temperature and the weather. The hope is occasioned by the sultriness over the weekend which sent the crowds to the beaches and parks instead of theatres, and the rain which finally arrived Sunday night and yesterday, which was two days late in exhibitors' reckoning.

An analysis of all programs of 633 stations, by types, showed that 52.45 per cent of all time is devoted to music, followed by 11.4 per cent for talks and dialogues and 9.1 per cent for dramatics.

With most of the scheduled witnesses not yet heard agreeing to forego oral testimony and to present briefs, the commission tonight was hopeful of closing the hearings within 24 hours. Practically everything has been said that can be, and the agreement to shorten the hearings was made to avoid undue testimony duplication.

Will Report in Writing

Commission witnesses are yet to be heard in explanation of the many exhibits which they have introduced from time to time, but it is not expected that their examination will be lengthy.

The committee in charge of the hearings, consisting of Commissioners Norman S. Case, chairman; T. A. M. Craven and George H. Payne, plan to make a written report to the full commission, on the basis of which interested parties will be given an opportunity to submit briefs. Whether oral arguments will be heard before the commission settles down to make a decision has not yet been decided, but, if so, it will not be before September.

Busy Hearing Week Scheduled by F. C. C.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The Federal Communications Commission has announced its schedule of broadcast hearings for the current week, as follows:

June 29, before an examiner: Application of WMFD, Wilmington, N. C., for extension of time from day to unlimited with 100 watts power night, 250 watts day.

June 30, before the commission: Applications of Joe L. Smith, Jr., for a 1,210-kilocycle station at Beckley, W. Va., with 100 watts night, 250 watts day; Pacific Radio Corp. for a 1,320-kilocycle, 500-watt daytime station at Grants Pass, Ore.; WDNC, Durham, N. C., for change of frequency from 1,500 to 600 kilocycles and increase of power from 100 to 1,000 watts, and WLBL, Stevens Point, Wis., for extension of time from day to specified hours with 1,000 watts night, 5,000 watts day.

such a strong impetus that it was decided to speed up theatrical installations and to make them on a larger scale than originally planned, according to Mr. Cockle.

Installations on a permanent basis in London theatres will begin "almost immediately," he said, in G. B. circuit houses at first but not limited to the circuit. G. B. has no intention of monopolizing the medium, he said.

While the cost of the installations has not been decided, Mr. Cockle estimates that it may be in the neighborhood of $4,000 or a maximum of $5,000, and the equipments will be installed on a leasing basis. G. B. does not consider it fair to the exhibitor to have him purchase expensive equipment which may become obsolete as a result of constant improvement in technique, he said.

The purpose of his trip is to survey the United States and Canada for television and educational film possibilities. G. B. Instructional Films plans to enter the American market, Mr. Cockle said. The company makes 50 films a year that are added to its catalogue of instructional films, a total of 250 being now available.

Other reports recommended denial of applications of King-Trendle Broadcasting Corp., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Pawtucket Broadcasting Co., Pawtucket, R. Y., for renewal of license.

The commission set for hearing, at dates to be announced later, the applications of WEBQ, Harrisburg, Ill., for change of frequency from 1,210 to 1,310 kilocycles, and KVOX, Moorhead, Minn., for increase of night power from 100 to 250 watts.

Ben Bernie Is Sued Over Radio Program

A $50,000 damage suit against Ben Bernie was revealed Saturday in the N. Y. Supreme Court when Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer denied the application of George Picker, the plaintiff, to examine Mr. Bernie, to frame a complaint.

Picker charged Mr. Bernie with "burlesquing" his marital relations in a broadcast over WABC on March 30 of this year, in a skit which portrayed a husband as jailing his wife for failure to pay alimony. The plaintiff had asked to examine Mr. Bernie to obtain a transcript of the broadcast and the names of the writers and sponsor. Mr. Bernie, in successfully opposing the application, stated that he knew nothing of the plaintiff, and that the name of the husband in the skit was Q. Bernie Bicker.

Small Unit Plan May Affect Films

Advisory Council of the Commerce Department, and a number of industrial executives, the former said, have developed that size is not always synonomous with efficiency and that consolidated businesses often do not earn as much money as the diff[illegible] units previously earned.

The matter, it is expected, will be further explored during the inquiries by the joint legislative-executive committee, and application of the principle would, it is believed, call for divorce of exhibition from other branches of the film industry, although it is not believed any effort would be considered to deprive the producers of maintaining their own distribution facilities.

Since the state ruling against Bank Night two months ago, only Bank Night and Cash Night have been stopped, but some 10 neighborhood theatres have substituted Lucky, Honey and other games, while the so-called "charitable" Bingo games continued unmolested.

Reports have it that an unnamed State Supreme Court Justice lodged a complaint at the request of a city resident, citing the Bank Night decision in which the Supreme Court interpreted the Connecticut law as against all risk or chance for money. Dish and other gift giveaways in theatres have been declared permissible.

Kent Heads New Move to Solve Industry Problems

S. R. Kent

Joins with Nicholas Schenck, Leo Spitz, W. F. Rodgers, Ned E. Depinet, Abe Montague to Formulate Program

S. R. Kent has agreed to act as chairman of a committee to develop a program for solution of industry problems. In a statement expressing his willingness to act he said he and other members of the committee were "determined to make an honest effort to seek a solution of our trade problems."

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., and Leo Spitz, president of RKO, will act as alternates with Mr. Kent. Other members of the committee are: William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of Loew's; Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO, and Abe Montague, general sales manager of Columbia.

The committee, Mr. Kent said, "is charged with developing a program for the solution of such trade problems in the industry as are still matters of contention. This, when completed, will be the basis of renewed efforts with representatives of both organized and individual exhibitor interests throughout the country for new steps in the self-regulation required for the further progress of the industry."

In explaining his position further Mr. Kent said: "I have agreed to head the committee for the purposes outlined above with the understanding that I will give to it as much time as I can, but without undertaking a load that I cannot physically carry. The gentlemen who have been appointed with me know the problems as well as I do and are as determined as myself to make an honest effort to seek a solution of our trade problems. All branches of the industry recognize the necessity of an industry program, but finding a method to work it out is not easy. The committee has no arbitrary method or plan in mind. Whatever we do will be done in cooperation with all exhibitor groups. Our first task, naturally, is to canvass the situation and then determine with the exhibitors which steps can be taken best.

"Will Require Patience"

"The work ahead will require patience and moderation. There are tremendous obstacles to be met and these cannot be adjusted overnight. The committee will ask the help and consideration of all. We are determined to do everything possible once and for all to find a solution for our trade problems. If we fail it will not be because we have not tried.

"I am conscious of the fact that many exhibitor organizations have been urging for some time that such a program be undertaken, but there have been many difficulties in the way. However, we wish to assure various exhibitor groups that the moment we

The studio also stated that Al Lichtman in the future will spend most of his time at the studio acting in a general advisory capacity instead of dividing his time between New York and Hollywood.

Hunt Stromberg will continue as an independent producer, the studio said.

Ascap Washington Case Is Dismissed

TACOMA, June 28.—A three-judge Federal court here today denied Ascap permission to give testimony in an effort to show that the society's attack on the constitutionality of this state's royalty law was jurisdictional in that it involved more than $3,000. Judge Bert E. Haney of the Circuit Court of Appeals read the decision, which was concurred in by Judges E. E. Cushman and John C. Bowen. The case previously had been dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. The final order

They include "Stolen Life," starring Elisabeth Bergner; "Royal Divorce," produced by Herbert Wilcox, and "This Man Is News," produced at Pinebrook. Others already have been scheduled. It was emphasized by Mr. Graham that the Paramount British program is essentially elastic in character.

Disney Has New Process to Eliminate "Bugs," He Says

By IRENE KUHN

Walt Disney, wearing his Harvard and Yale honors modestly, and a dark green carnation to set off his emerald-hued polka dot tie, announced publicly yesterday, as reported here last week exclusively, that his program of 18 shorts, including six specials, is ready for release and will get special exploitation.

Proud of his ahead-of-schedule efficiency, which permits wider planning for distribution, as well as a new kind of exploitation of his pictures to tie in with special seasonal events, merchandising promotion, etc., all of benefit to the exhibitor, he added he was about ready to go home.

When he gets there, he said, he expects to start work on the new Disney million dollar studio. The site has been chosen but is a secret yet, since the title to the property is now being searched for clearance.

Interview Illuminating

A Disney interview is as good as a trip through the studio, for the dean of animated cartoons has no apparent secrets from the press, and discusses all phases of his work with clarity and intelligence.

Sample: He wasn't entirely satisfied with Prince Charming, the Princess and the Queen in "Snow White." "While we were working on the picture we evolved a new process to take the 'bugs' out and eliminate that slight wavering of outline. We'll get it the next time. There are so many drawings required, the lines must be so fine between intermediate drawings that you almost need a jeweler's glass to work on them. The artists spent half their time sharpening their pencils, for the points must be needle sharp to get those lines. We've worked out a new process."

He discussed the new technical process with ease. It all sounded very complicated to lay ears, but Disney rattled it off as if it were a recital of the numbers one to ten.

Labor Peace at Studio

There's no union trouble on the Disney lot. He made no bones about the fact that Disney employes are one big happy family and like it. There are 800 persons drawing Disney pay checks now, only 50 of them in New York. Five years ago he employed only 250, which is one way of demonstrating that there's no depression in Disney enterprises.

Some notion of how good one has to be to work for Mr. Disney is found in the fact that three years ago 6,000 artists entered a contest offering employment and training with him. Fifteen hundred were considered; 600 were hired. There are 10 left. One artist in 600, therefore, can make the Disney grade.

"It takes a smart fellow three or four years to learn this business," he said. "That's why I wonder where the other studios who are getting in on this feature cartoon are going to find the material."

He is going to confine himself to one-reelers and features, and hopes eventually to be able to release one feature a year.

He hopes to have "Pinocchio," the second feature, ready for spring, 1939, but no promises. RKO will release under the three-year agreement which is still in force.

Radio City Music Hall tendered Mr. Disney a reception from 4 to 7 P. M. yesterday and showed four of his shorts, and a new one, "The Practical Pig," in penciled animation form, something new for the guests.

A series of articles on gold mines based on an idea by Carl Laemmle, Sr., is being written by Paul Maerker Branden. It is planned to obtain newspaper syndication of the series and after their publication disposition of the film rights will be considered, according to Mr. Laemmle.

He added that he has no plans to re-enter the industry on an extensive scale and no intention to resume production. He will sail today for Europe.

Goldwyn, Wyler at Peace

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.—Differences between Samuel Goldwyn and William Wyler, who was removed as director of "The Lady and the Cowboy," were ironed out today as the producer announced a reassignment of the director to "Wuthering Heights," which starts Sept. 1. Mr. Wyler will return to the studio Aug. 1 after spending July in Europe on a leave of absence.

"Algiers"

(Wanger-U.A.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.—"Algiers" is endowed with a wierdly haunting quality that sets it entirely apart from anything that recently has been or currently is occupying the screens. Without introducing any new fundamentals, this soundly prepared, produced, acted and directed item of showmanship entertainment merchandise gathers itself up into one compact wad of punchy and suspense laden entertainment.

The basic plot is simple. But, shrewdly, it has been embellished with a wealth of sustaining detail. Charles Boyer, in the role of a master thief, a part which he plays with consummate skill, has self-sentenced himself to Casbah. Casbah is a criminal sanctuary in Algiers which the French police will not enter and from which the only escape is death. There is a native police inspector, Joseph Calleia, a friendly enemy, who hopes one day to lure Boyer beyond the deadline. There is, too, a native girl, Sigrid Gurie, whose subdued devotion to Boyer is treated lightly or ignored. Also present is Alan Hale, a suave, self-saving fence; blustering but cowardly henchman Stanley Fields; Johnny Downs, young but daring member of Boyer's gang who becomes a sacrifice to treachery, and Gene Lockhart, an informer, who pays the penalty which by the code of every underworld rule must be paid by every "squealer." To this strange locale comes Hedy Lamarr, an alluring Parisienne to inflame in Boyer's being every passion and aspiration and to be, herself, inflamed. A caged animal, knowing what he wants, yet, humanly realizing he cannot possess it, Boyer is lured to his doom not by a woman, but by the love which he has for a woman. Ecstacy is in the heart of Boyer, seeking a fascinating happiness, as he crosses the deadline; a fatal bullet from the hands of his nemesis, Calleia, is his fate.

Here there is a capable group of actors, writers, technical specialists, a director and producer who had a definite objective in mind functioning and knowing how to attain their aim. John Cromwell directed, from John Howard Lawson's screenplay.

"Algiers" is different. In its melodrama men should find much to whet their interest. In its detailing of one love that was denied and another that was not to be, it has an appeal to women. Adults who believe they have an appreciation of screen art, either histrionically, from photographic values or for the comparative worths of quality staging, should find this production one to engage their attention. Exhibitors who find a satisfaction in offering their patronage an engrossing picture, finely done, should find ample opportunity to display all their exploiting talents as they endeavor to create a market for "Algiers."

"Shopworn Angel"

(M-G-M)

Perhaps it is true that this story is dated for some of us moderns, since it is a story of the war, with its setting in this country in 1918. However that may be, it is a heart-warming, deeply appealing story for any audience, its inherent quality most brilliantly enhanced by three performances, those of James Stewart, Margaret Sullavan and Walter Pidgeon.

Nowhere better has Stewart presented that naive charm of the lad with faith in himself and a boyish faith in others than he does here, as the young buck private from Texas, who has nothing but dreams, and who finds one dream come true in a beautiful actress whose car nearly runs him down.

Once again, following "Three Comrades," does Miss Sullavan demonstrate beyond a doubt that she is one of the leading actresses of the screen. As the devil-may-care girl to whom war and marching soldiers are merely causes of headache, but who learns the meaning of love and faith and purposefulness through her encounter with the boy, she offers a delicately shaded performance of real power.

Walter Pidgeon, seen but little lately, offers a restrained and solid performance as the man in love with Miss Sullavan, who never realized how much he loved her until the boy came, and proves himself really a big man by stepping aside. He permits her to marry the boy as he sails for France, that his dream might come true, suddenly a far less cynical man than before. When Stewart is killed they realize that he has shown them the strength of their own love for each other.

The story was written by Dana Burnet in 1918, and appears but little altered in this second retelling for the screen. Waldo Salt made of it a well-knit, intensely appealing story, and H. C. Potter, who directed, did his job with consummate skill.

The exhibitor may well offer his patrons the performances of the three leading players, concentrating on Miss Sullavan's as a follow on her "Three Comrades" role. It is a clean, straightforward job, and appealing screen merchandise.

Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

Alperson Says New Plan Still Not Set

Edward Alperson, Grand National president and co-trustee with Loyd Wright in the company's reorganization, said yesterday that it was his understanding that the reorganization proposal of Herman B. Freedman and a New York financial group is still in a formulative stage.

Before a plan can be submitted to the Federal Court in Los Angeles, it must have the approval of the trustees and the consent of the majority creditors and stockholders must be obtained for final approval, Mr. Alperson pointed out. He arrived in New York from the coast this week.

He said that the proposal has been discussed with Mr. Freedman, but no formal action has as yet been requested. Mr. Freedman says that his group proposes to invest $600,000 in cash in the company immediately.

Mr. Alperson indicated that no general sales manager will be appointed for the time being. He is supervising distribution himself. Morris Saphier, coast distribution representative, is on a tour of exchanges and is expected here shortly.

Kent to Head New Move for Conciliation

are organized for action we will get in touch with them and arrange our program jointly with them from that point on."

Mr. Kent has been consistently in favor of some form of industry conciliation since the 5-5-5 conferences several years ago. On March 14 he reiterated this stand in an interview with a MOTION PICTURE DAILY correspondent at Chicago, saying that while legal departments of some major companies considered concerted moves for conciliation a violation of the anti-trust law he did not think so and was ready to go ahead.

A short time later, on April 5, he repeated this stand, but told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that he did not feel that his health would permit him to lead the movement.

"I would like to see such a move started," he said at that time. "If someone will step out in front and have everyone sit around the table to talk things over, I think something could be accomplished."

Considered by M. P. P. D. A.

Developments designed to stir up action on the plan have come swiftly since the adjournment of Congress. Ed Kuykendall, head of the M. P. T. O. A., issued a strong statement last Wednesday, warning that Federal control would come if the industry did not act before the next session of Congress. He repeated this in different form Monday in a talk before the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina at Myrtle Beach, S. C.

The directors of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America are understood to have discussed the problem last Wednesday, and the impression prevails that this was one of the subjects touched upon at the conference of industry leaders with President Roosevelt at the White House Saturday.

The attitude of Allied States toward the new conciliation move will not be known until its board of directors acts. The problem was left up to the board at the Pittsburgh convention, stated Abram F. Myers, general counsel, in Washington yesterday.

Terrifying shots of the Mayan volcano eruption, 200 miles southeast of Manila, open this reel with added clips of the aftermath of destruction of a similar eruption a decade ago and aerial views of today's mountain monster in action. Roosevelt, in the rain, welcomes Swedish royalty, come to Wilmington to present a statue commemorating the 300-year-old Swedish-Finnish settlement and unbroken peace and friendship.

News snapshots show the clicking typewriter marathon in Chicago, with a smiling male winner, Italy's king inspecting supersubs, and the intricate designs worked out in flower petals carpeting the streets of the Italian town Genzano for the feast of Corpus Christi.

Touching scenes of family reunion in Castellon as Franco's troops change bullets for bread in the famished captured Loyalist stronghold and 32,000 Czech children in gymnastic revue show the dark and light sides of Europe.

The sporting page shows the thrilling race between Harvard and Yale with the Crimson victorious and an American victory abroad when William Woodward's colt "Flares" breaks the 56-year-old record to take the Ascot Gold Cup while royalty and Mayfair look on. Diversified entertainment. Running time 9½ mins. I. K.

A variety of topics capably handled makes for an interesting reel. Starting with the colorful crowds, including royalty, at England's Ascot races, the scene shifts to the various strata of American Jews voting on a collective security stand, with shots of balloting in Los Angeles, the New York ghetto and Park Ave.

The Eucharistic mass in Quebec is impressive, and the World War is recalled in an Italian ceremony attended by King Victor. Vice-President Garner tries his hand at cranking a camera. President Roosevelt and the Swedish representatives are shown at the Wilmington celebration. Both Loyalist and insurgent clips of the Spanish war are included. Undersea monsters are shown in St. Augustine's new marine studio. The reel ends on a light note with kids registering delight that "school's out." Running time, 9 mins. F.

Most striking and moderately startling event offered in this issue is a story on Norman Thomas speaking in Newark. The Socialist leader in public speaking is given to facial dramatics and interesting variations of voice. What he has to say about Mayor Hague is of the pungent variety. Thomas has his chance here to strike back at Hague.

The other material in the reel is a well-balanced selection that covers the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the arrival of Swedes in Delaware with President Roosevelt and Prince Bertil speaking; a demonstration coal mine is opened for tourist inspection at Pocahontas, Va.; the British Royal Family reviews a Girl Guides parade; the Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles contributes a total eclipse of the sun with its Zeiss Planetarium Projector, a working model of a French transatlantic flying boat is tested on the Seine; Walt Disney is seen at the Harvard commencement ceremonies in cap and gown and the concluding sporting note offers scenes of the French Grand Steeplechase at Auteuil with a spectacular spill at the last water jump. Running time, 8½ mins. P.

Universal Newsreel

A collection of miscellaneous news items, none sensational but all interesting, is included in this reel, starting with the dedication of the Swedish monument at Wilmington. The President defends his activity in state primaries in a fireside chat, dressed informally in his shirt sleeves. There is entertainment in the annual field day of "old grads" at the Harvard Stadium, and significance in the pictures of the ceremonies attending the launching of a flock of new Italian submarines.

The Eucharistic Congress in Quebec makes an impressive picture, and the colorful ceremony of strewing the streets of Genzano, Italy, with flower petals in various designs is pictured. In Kansas City, the True Vow Keepers' Club includes couples married at least 50 years; on the Isle of Man is pictured the annual motorcycle race; in England is seen Captain Eyston's new racing car.

A soccer match for the European championship in France between Hungary and Italy provides sporting action, and the close race in the Yale-Harvard regatta at New London, won by Harvard, closes the reel. Running time, 9 mins. A.

French Import Decree Favors US Companies

for import under the French law during each half-year already had been approved. Many of them were old and cheap pictures.

More than 94 films already have been registered for visas on dubbing during the second half of 1938, which means that the quota for this period already has been exhausted before the period has begun. The new two-year provision for dubbed product will go into effect on Jan. 1, 1939. Exceptions will be made in the case of pictures of outstanding artistic merit or technical interest.

Other provisions are that registration for dubbing visas may be had only after the dubbing work has been completed, that the distribution of visas among importing countries may be decided by ministerial decree, that films not fulfilling the provisions of the new decree and already registered for the second half of 1938 will not be given visas, and that French language films made in other countries must carry the name of the country of origin, the name of the studio and the technicians employed on the film.

Shelve Plans for Short

Plans of M-G-M to produce a two-reel short on the Bill of Rights, that part of the Constitution guaranteeing freedom of speech, press and assembly, have been shelved, it is learned. The reason given is that while certain groups have approved the idea, it is feared that others may express their opposition to certain phases of such a film and that it may become the center of controversy. If a course can be found to avoid controversy, the film may yet be made, it was said.

Censor Decision Reserved

ALBANY, June 28.—Supreme Court Justice Gilbert V. Schenck has reserved decision after listening to arguments on behalf of Jewel Productions, Inc., and Samuel Cummins on application for an injunction against Irwin Esmond, censor head, for recent revocation of a permit to exhibit a Government-made film "Animated Diagrams of the Human Body."

Hearing Ends With Plea for Present Power

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Presentation of inquiry views on proposed new regulations for broadcasting stations was concluded today before the Federal Communications Commission with a plea by the National Independent Broadcasters Association for retention of the present power maxima.

With industry testimony out of the way, experts of the commission were called to the stand to discuss the 55 financial, employment and program exhibits prepared from station answers to questionnaires and letters sent out by the accounting division.

Representing the independent group, E. C. Page, radio consultant, told the commission that far better service could be secured with present power limits by a reallocation designed to reduce cross-talk. Complete coverage of the country, he said, could be secured with even fewer clear channel stations than now operate, but under no arrangement of frequencies could all cross-talk be eliminated.

Suggests Duplicate Operation

Retention of the present 50 kilowatt maximum for clear channel stations was urged by Mr. Page, who also suggested that more than one station be put on such of those frequencies as could accommodate duplicate operation without interference. Maximum use should be made of all facilities, he urged, pointing out that duplication would give improved service to many areas from which complaints are now received.

Admitting that not all freqencies would permit the assignment of more than one station, he declared that a reallocation could be made which would enable two or more stations to operate on a number of the clear channels, but said that in each instance the decision as to duplication should be made on the merit alone.

Mr. Page developed the theory that the appropriate power for a station is that which will give the best signal within its area. He admitted that in summer the southern stations should have a higher signal power level than those in northern latitudes less affected by static, but pointed out that under no circumstances is it possible to give rural listeners, scattered over a large area, service equal to that given in urban areas.

Super-Power Study Scheduled in July

for authority to experiment with that power.

The commission has announced that hearing on the super-power applications will open July 18, probably extending over several days.

Considerable data regarding WLW's operations with 500 kilowatts was secured by the commission during its hearings on new broadcasting rules, but counsel for the commission was prevented from going into details of the station's finances by objections from its counsel.

Teatro al Dia Program Is Short-Waved to Argentina

In honor of the forthcoming celebration of the anniversary of Argentina's independence which will be observed in that country on July 9, the Columbia Broadcasting System, in conjunction with Teatro al Dia, the Quigley Publishing Co. Spanish-language publication, last night broadcast what was probably the most elaborate short wave program to be presented from this country, over W2XE, Columbia's international station, from 9:30 to 10:15 P. M., E.D.S.T. The program was beamed toward Argentine but was heard throughout South America. The short wave transmission was picked up and rebroadcast via long wave by Radio Belgrado, Argentina's foremost radio station.

Last night's Teatro al Dia CBS program marked the first time that an international broadcast in this country has been presented by a major network from a radio theatre with an audience in attendance. CBS Playhouse No. 3, formerly the Hammerstein Theatre, was the origination point of the special broadcast. A capacity audience was in attendance.

Entertainers a Feature

A cast of noted Spanish entertainers and Dr. Conrado Traverso, consul general of Argentina; Major Frederick Herron of the Hays office, Roberto Socas, New York correspondent of La Nacion; H. L. Alban-Mestanza, editor of Teatro al Dia, and Terry Ramsaye, editor of Motion Picture Herald, appeared on the program. Eddie LeBaron's Rainbow Room orchestra furnished the musical background.

The entertainers included the "Los Pamperos Trio," "Chela and Freddie," in a comedy sketch; Eliseo Grenet, Cuban composer, and Adelita Varela, coloratura soprano.

Mr. Socas delivered a message from Dr. L. S. Rowe, director of the Pan American Union in Washington, conveying Dr. Rowe's felicitations to the Argentine nation.

Major Herron, commenting on the cordial relations existing between Argentina and the United States, said, "I like to think that motion pictures, as ambassadors of good will, have done their full part to bring about a closer understanding between our nations. It is such understanding of each others' ideas and problems which makes good neighbors."

Terry Ramsaye Speaks

Mr. Ramsaye said, "A motion picture is an institution of the new world, the world of the Americas," and added that it is a most effective medium for the recreation of events. In conclusion he said, "In many lands of the Old World, motion pictures have been made the voices of special interests, of factions, of selfishness. Let us hope that always, in all the Americas, the screen may be preserved for the whole people, to serve them in their happiness."

Congratulatory telegrams were received from Arthur Loew, vice-president of Loew's, Inc., and from N. Bruski, Quigley Publishing Co. correspondent in Buenos Aires. Mr. Loew said, "May your broadcast cement even more closely the great friendship which M-G-M and its stars have for the Argentine and the sister republics of the Latin Americas." Mr. Bruski cabled that the program reception in Argentina was excellent.

Elizabeth Anne Tucker, CBS short wave director, handled last night's broadcast. Joseph Hill directed and Gene Heit was in charge of production.

A reception for the guests was given by the Quigliey publication at the Bryant Hotel, adjoining Playhouse No. 3, following the broadcast.

Newsreels of the broadcast were taken by M-G-M and Paramount.

NEA Delegates Hear Special NBC Program

also heard addresses by Dr. James Rowland Angell, educational counselor of NBC, and Dr. Joseph Jastrow famous psychologist, and greetings from London by Lord Stanhope, president of the British Board of Education, and Jean Zay, French Minister of Education. The greetings from the European ministers were received by short-wave from the Continent and piped into the theatre. The only feature of the event broadcast by NBC was an address by Dr. Walter Damrosch.

Meanwhile, CBS and Mutual yesterday carried talks by members of the educational association and distinguished speakers not connected with the NEA, at various times during the day and night.

Hold Hearings Today On State Radio Plan

ALBANY, June 28.—Public hearing will be held today in the Senate Chamber here on Senator John T. McCall's proposal to put radio and other industries coming within the "furnishing of facilities" purview under jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

The New York State Association of Broadcasters will be represented at the hearing, with many of the station executives scheduled to appear in person before the Public Utilities Committee of the Constitutional Convention.

The McCall amendment would add a new section to Article 5 of the state constitution, providing that "the Department of Public Service shall exercise general regulation, supervision and control over all matters incidental to the organization, financing, franchising, licensing and operation" of all forms of communication, radio, telegraphy, etc. In effect, adoption of the McCall amendment would mean from $8,000,000 to $9,000,000 annually in franchise taxes, according to the estimate of its sponsor, who also introduced a similar measure in the 1938 legislative session.

Miss Bennett Lux Guest

Constance Bennett will be the guest on the final Lux "Radio Theatre" program over CBS July 4. She will play the title role in "I Found Stella Parrish." Lux will resume its radio presentations Sept. 12.

Goodman Goes on Air Over CKAC, Montreal

MONTREAL, June 28.—Benny Goodman shifted the locale of his regular Tuesday program tonight, broadcasting from Montreal where he is at present playing a personal appearance.

CKAC, local affiliate of CBS, aired the show at 9:30 P.M., piping it to WABC and the rest of the system.

For the event, which was staged in the Forum, Goodman brought [illegible] entire cast, including Maxine Sulli[illegible] When "trucking" in the aisles got out of hand he stopped the proceedings by playing the national anthem.

London Reports Link GB, Odeon Circuits in Merger Discussion

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, June 29.—Persistent reports in the City, London's financial district, link the Odeon Circuit, headed by Oscar Deutsch, and Gaumont British theatres, headed by the Ostrer Brothers, in a combination move. They are two of the largest circuits in England.

The reports associate the names of the Ostrers, Arthur Rank and Philip Hill. It is said that talks have been undertaken relative to the combination spoken of. It is understood also that other interests are involved in the reported negotiations, but the parties concerned are unwilling to commit themselves to a definite confirmation of the reports. However, it is the general opinion in informed quarters in the City that the matter has been under discussion. Mr. Hill is chairman of the board of Philip Hill & Partners, which sponsored the Odeon issue of £1,840,000 not long ago.

Joe's a "Daddy"

When Joe Moskowitz of 20th Century-Fox entered his cabin on the Normandie yesterday, he found suspended from the ceiling a bouquet of balloons—five of them. Imprinted on each was the farewell message, "We will miss our Daddy Joe," and the names, Marie, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Yvonne.

Irving Hoffman, a friend, later broke down and confessed that he was responsible for it all. Mr. Moskowitz returned from Callander last week, where he supervised the shooting on the new Dionne quintuplets' feature, "Five of a Kind."

Guild's Fight Not Yet Won, Is Coast View

HOLLYWOOD, June 29.—Although the Screen Writers' Guild won over the Screen Playwrights, Inc., as the collective bargaining agency for film writers except in one instance, where the results still are doubtful, indications today were that the campaign of the guild, affiliate of the Authors' League of America, to displace the Playwrights, which now has a contract with the producers, has far to go before such a goal even is within sight.

The election of Tuesday which gave the guild a majority at all studio units except Paramount is only one of the primary steps in the anticipated long series of legal maneuvers which in all probability will end before the Supreme Court of the United States.

The attitude of John Lee Mahin, Playwrights' president and other officers of the organization is, "We've just begun to fight." The attitude of producers who have stated through their attorneys their adamant position that writers are not employes under the Wagner Act and that the film in-

Alger Voices Approval of Plan for RKO

Special Master George W. Alger closed the final hearing before him yesterday on the proposed amended plan of reorganization of RKO, remarking that "the general theory of the new plan rather appeals to me," and contrasted it favorably with the original proposed plan of reorganization. He criticized the original plan for not adequately providing for fixed charges.

The special master adjourned the hearing to July 18 at 10 o'clock and expressed the opinion that he would reach a decision on the plan within two weeks, and would make known that decision July 18. He expressed disappointment in the contents of the briefs submitted on the plan, stating that they deal entirely to much with "collateral matters," such as the con-

New Motions Filed In Interstate Case

WASHINGTON, June 29. — George Wright, attorney for Interstate, has filed motions, to be heard by Judge W. H. Atwell, Tuesday, asking additional findings of fact and conclusions at law in the anti-trust suit recently sent back from the U. S. Supreme Court for proper findings and conclusions.

Additions asked include inclusion of dealings in the Rio Grande Valley and the city of Austin and a conclusion which finds agreements entered into between Interstate and individual distributors was not a conspiracy or violation.

Conciliation Moves to Be Made Speedily

Hope to Have Plan Ready For Exhibitors Aug. 1

With a policy of "little talk but much action," the distributors' trade practice committee headed by S. R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, is determined to move with all possible speed in formulating a program that will be presented to exhibitor representatives.

When the conferences with the exhibitor committee or committees will start is at present indefinite, but it was said that the negotiations may get under way as early as Aug. 1. It was also said that formal distributor proposals may not be in shape for presentation until the fall.

The speed with which a trade practice program of concessions and local conciliation boards will be put into effect depends on how soon the distributors will agree among themselves and, then, the rapidity with which agreement can be obtained from exhibitor spokesmen.

The distributors have wide exhibitor opinion on file, from individuals and state and national organizations, on the points to be included and the concessions sought. Numerous requests have been made for local boards to adjudicate disputes. The exhibitors' recommendations have been coming in to the Hays office, distribution home offices and the national HOLLYWOOD, June 29.—Robert Gillham, Paramount director of advertising and publicity, today appointed Herbert Moulton as his personal representative at the studio, making him supervisor over the studio publicity, advertising and trailer departments.

Mr. Moulton had been short subjects and trailer department head. His promotion is in line with Mr. Gillham's idea of closer coordination of advertising, publicity and exploitation campaigns between here and New York.

Cliff Lewis continues as studio advertising director and Terry De Lapp as publicity director.

◆ Ann Rosenthal, another Brooklyn Law School grad who made good in motion picture work, has abandoned the distinction of being the only woman in charge of a picture company's legal department. Miss Rosenthal will leave Grand National today to set up her own offices.

◆ Tomorrow she will push off on a two-girl motor trek to Hollywood, combining business with pleasure. She'll take turns at the wheel with Dorothy Hechtlinger, Darryl Zanuck's assistant.

◆ About August 15 Miss Rosenthal will be at home in New York to clients.

◆ Mrs. Walt Disney, the attractive wife of the animated cartoon genius, will be guest of honor at luncheon today at "21" and will be entirely surrounded by fellow-eaters who are all lady authors.

◆ Her hostess, Mrs. J. P. McEvoy, who used to be a newspaperwoman and radio columnist before her marriage to Author McEvoy, has asked Princess Alexandra (Liberty) Kropotkin, Margaret Case (New Yorker) Harriman, Thyra Samter (best seller) Winslow, and Ursula ("Ex-Wife") Parrott. Others are Amy Vanderbilt whose book, "Hold That Husband," will come out next fall and "Assigned to Adventure" Irene Kuhn.

◆ Richard Abbott and Mrs. Abbott (Iris Barry) returned yesterday from attending the opening of the exhibition of American films, old and new, at the Paris Exhibition. Miss Barry reports that the French visitors to the American film show arranged by Modern Film Library knew as much as, if not more, about old films than Americans. They remembered the old players, even those in bit parts, with affection and sentiment.

◆ James Joyce, the writer, attended the opening and returned for additional views of "The River," in which he was most interested. Even Gertrude Stein showed up for the opening. . . . The Cinematique Francaise gave the Abbotts a gala at the Cité Universite in honor of the American exhibit and had a showing of films, old and new, from their collection.

◆ Phil Laufer, Criterion Theatre press agent and a comparative newcomer in the ranks, handed the oldtimers a challenge when he placed two enormous pictures of Monogram's star, Movita, in recent issues of metropolitan dailies. The World-Telegram glorified the star of "Rose of the Rio Grande" and last Saturday's Journal-American had a page deep picture of her standing on her shoulders.

Film Council Holds Its First Meeting

LONDON, June 29.—The first meeting of the recently appointed Films Council, acting under the provisions of the British Films Act of 1938, was held today, with Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, and Sir Frederick Whyte, chairman of the council, the chief speakers.

The agenda of the initial session was understood to have been largely formal and routine, but it did include a discussion of the procedure to be followed on films offered for quota purposes which fall below the minimum cost prescribed by the Films Act.

Ben F. Judell in Chicago

CHICAGO, June 29.—Ben F. Judell, Chicago exchange operator who recently turned producer, is here for a few days attending to business in his local exchange. Mr. Judell will return to Hollywood after July 4 to start production on his fourth picture.

A similar policy has been successful at the Paramount.

Conciliation Moves to Be Made Speedily

exhibitor groups since the NRA w invalidated in 1935.

The first step in the distributors' move is to study the problem in all its phases and reach a decision on what is to be undertaken and the procedure by which a program may be effectuated. After that is decided, the proposal will be placed before the industry for exhibitor consideration. The next move will be to reconcile the distributors' recommendations with what the exhibitors think should be accomplished.

The fact that only four companies are represented on the distributors' negotiating committee is explained by the urge for speed in completing the program and the belief that a small committee will be able to function with greater rapidity and efficiency than a larger one. The six distributor spokesmen, Mr. Kent, Nicholas M. Schenck and William F. Rodgers of M-G-M, Leo Spitz and Ned E. Depinet of RKO and Abe Montague of Columbia, will act for the other companies.

Kent Leaves Tomorrow

Mr. Kent will leave tomorrow on a vacation in Maine and will be gone at least four weeks, according to present plans. However, the committees' deliberative procedure has been set up and the absence of the committee chairman will not hold up the discussions, it was explained, since Mr. Schenck or Mr. Spitz will act as chairman while he is away.

Hollywood Preview

"The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, June 29.—This characteristic Edward G. Robinson vehicle compares to "A Slight Case of Murder" and to no other previous production. Exploitation conveying that information to the many who enjoyed the first crime comedy to the full, and to any who didn't, seems likely to fill the auditorium with precisely the right company. Then, if preview audience reaction is a reliable guide, showmen who have seen to it that the chairs are nailed down securely will take a frontal position in the foyer prepared to take a bow as the still smiling customers depart the echoing premises.

Mr. Robinson's portrayal of the distinguished professional gentleman of the title intent upon preparing a treatise on the physical and mental changes induced by criminal activity is in many respects his most impressive performance to date. The screenplay by John Wexley and John Huston from the play by Barre Lyndon shows how devotion to his thesis impels the doctor to become leader of a gang, conducting clinical tests of his followers and himself in the course of a series of robberies, and finally to murder the former leader of the band in defense of self and science. Outcome of the ensuing trial for murder is made riotously funny without sacrifice of legal or scientific authenticity.

Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins, Donald Crisp, Claire Trevor, Gale Paige, Henry O'Neill, John Litel, Curt Bois, Maxie Rosenbloom, Ward Bond, Thurston Hall and Irving Bacon are among those giving colorful, capable support. Anatole Litvak directed with a nice sense of values, alternating between humorous and scientific emphasis with telling result. Robert Lord, associate producer for Hal B. Wallis, took excellent care of detail and ensemble.

Bernstein Predicts Loew 6-Month Profit

Earnings of Loew's, Inc., for the first six months of the year will be comparable to the 1937 period, allowing, however, for present business conditions, it was said by David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer, before sailing with Mrs. Bernstein on the Normandie yesterday.

While the net for the second 1938 quarter may not be as good as the first, whatever difference between the two may be shown in the final checkup will not be material, Mr. Bernstein said. On the basis of product yet to come, he predicted that the company would continue its good financial record and was optimistic for an upturn in the fall.

His trip is purely for pleasure, Mr. Bernstein said, and he plans to spend some time at the Vichy baths, returning here in about five weeks.

ith a blazing send-off that reaches a new mark in national advance notice, arner Bros.' 'White Banners' sweeps into general release this week. The over- helming publicity accorded the world premiere last Saturday night at the rthplace of its author, Lloyd C. ouglas, was headed by a stirring lf-hour tribute over the 89-sta- on Mutual Network.

Unprecedented press coverage in- uded wired newspaper stories by .P., A.P., and International News rvice. Newsreel cameras and rep- sentatives of Life, Time and other p-ranking publications were nong the thousands on hand for the gala occasion that marked the first film engagement of this world-famous best seller.

Already held over at N.Y. Strand and major situations from coast to coast, this stirring new drama will unquestionably prove to exhibitors the most important hit since Warner Bros.' release of 'Robin Hood' and 'Crime School'—as the world premiere has already established—as the week's key city box-office receipts will again establish!

WARNER BROS., Proud Producers

Guild's Fight Not Yet Won, Is Coast View

dustry is not engaged in interstate commerce remains unchanged.

While producers made no ostensible move today after results of the guild victory at the polls became known, conferences are scheduled to get under way following official certification of the guild as the writers' choice for a bargaining agency. William Robert Walsh, attorney for the Regional Labor Board office here, who handled the writer case before Trial Examiner William Ringer last fall, today said he anticipated the producers would make no moves to meet with guild officials upon their certification as the bargaining agency.

This would force the N. L. R. B. officials to cite the producers under the Wagner Act before the board for hearing on charges of failure to bargain, Walsh said. In this manner would an avenue be opened for the producers to carry the fight against the N. L. R. B. ruling that the film industry is under Wagner Act jurisdiction and that writers are employes, to the circuit court of appeals and thence to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Balloting Peaceful

No disorder marked the election held at three polling places. Of the total of 351 voting, the guild amassed 267 votes for itself. The Playwrights received a total of 57. Fourteen desired no representation. Thirteen are challenged and decision on these is up to Dr. Towne Nylander, regional N. L. R. B. director, at present out of town. Four ballots cast previously by writers who were out of town Tuesday remain uncounted. Of 18 studios named in the original petition of the guild only 14 were represented in the voting as four, Trem Carr, Grand National, Schulberg and Major are inactive.

The balloting was by studio unit under N. L. R. B. definition that the bargaining be done by separate studios. The surprise even to guild officials was the M-G-M vote, which gave the guild 63 to the Playwrights 33. M-G-M had been described in satirical election talks of Dorothy Parker and other guild leaders as the "ivory tower stronghold" of the Playwrights. Three challenged votes of the Paramount writers may cause a runoff election there. The Playwrights already have 14 votes to 17 for the guild. Two writers desired no affiliation. Should the challenged votes be allowed for the guild that organization would have a clean sweep.

Hearing on Friday

The regional office of the N.L.R.B. this afternoon stated that a hearing will be held Friday, at which time the guild and playwrights will present arguments on the ballots which were challenged during the course of the voting. Representatives of both organizations have been invited.

Following Friday's hearing, the regional officers will make an intermediate report to the N.L.R.B. which will then name the guild officially as the writers' bargaining agency under the terms of the Wagner act.

Unions Debate Proposals for Cuts in Wages prompted the unions to consider the request seriously. Local 1, stagestagehands' union in Manhattan, took the matter up at a membership meeting Sunday and an answer may be formulated at an executive board meeting Friday.

Local 306 is scheduled to consider the proposal at a membership meeting next Wednesday and Local 4, Brooklyn stagehands, on July 11. Meanwhile, the circuits are going through with their intention to close the theatres, as announced, regardless of wage concessions. If the unions refuse the cuts, attempts will be made to negotiate concessions for the fall. Members of the operators' union have individually expressed opposition to the proposal.

Similar negotiations being conducted by the I. T. O. A., through Harry Brandt, president, are apart from the circuits. The independents so far have not received any definite indication from the union groups.

The meeting inaugurated a new business drive which will get under way July 3. More than $750 in cash prizes will be awarded the winning managers with a special prize of a 10-day trip to Hollywood with all expenses paid, going to the manager whose record is the best.

Other Warner theatre executives present were: James E. Coston, zone manager here, zone supervisor Charles Ryan, Thomas Saxe, Al D. Kvool and L. F. Gran of Milwaukee.

Ecuador Bans 'Birthday'

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, June 29.—Exhibition of RKO's "When Is Your Birthday?" has been prohibited here at the request of the El Salvador government which has instructed its representatives in Latin America to protest the showing of the film because it is regarded as offensive to the dignity of that country.

The action taken yesterday by the Ecuadorean government in banning the film apparently is one of many pending acts. The reason given by a spokesman at the company's home office was that the picture has a jibe concerning a boxer who hailed from El Salvador. The offended country, it is reported, desired suppression elsewhere, but the film enjoyed a run within its borders.

Zanesville Shows Free

ZANESVILLE, O., June 29. — Free sound films are being offered four nights weekly at Moxahola Park here. The screen has been installed at the upper end of the midway and is visible from a large portion of the park.

Cashier Queen

It takes all kinds of publicity stunts to amuse Broadway. The latest is the selection of Helene Beck, who makes change at Loew's State, as "Queen of Broadway Cashiers." She won the "title" over entrants from other theatres, in a contest sponsored by the Hotel Piccadilly and others. The hotel will throw a midnight champagne supper for Helene tomorrow, following which she will leave via American Airlines on an expense-paid visit in Boston.

stitutionality of the plan, and did not sufficiently analyze the plan itself for a factual basis to demonstrate whether the plan fairly allocated the assets of RKO to the conflicting claims of debenture holders, common stockholders and unsecured creditors. He stated that his major concern in considering the plan would be the fairness of the allocations made, and told the proponents of the plan that "the burden of proof is on you to establish the fairness of the plan."

The debenture holders were entitled to preferential treatment to the extent of $4,258,722 in interest charges, the special master said, and would receive 637,925 shares of common stock at an estimated book value of $10.19 per share.

The order will make Empire Trust act both as transfer and script agent. "Personal History" Delayed by Wanger

HOLLYWOOD, June 29. — Walter Wanger has postponed production of "Personal History" and will substitute Sascha Guitry's "The Illusionist" for the Vincent Sheean story on his studio schedule. Decision to postpone the film was arrived at, according to the studio, when it was determined a prior commitment to lend Henry Fonda to 20th Century-Fox for one picture would allow insufficient shooting time. The "Personal History" script and all preparations had been completed and will be held intact until such time as starting the film is practicable.

Studio spokesmen denied the experience being encountered by "Blockade" had any bearing on the postponement.

York Metropolitan area, and in Kansas City, Boston, Atlanta, Buffalo, Indianapolis and New Haven.

The contract with Loew's is described as being in line with the Columbia sales policy of closing franchise agreements instead of one-year product deals. Negotiations were handled by Louis Weinberg for Columbia and Charles Moskowitz and Gene Picker for the Metropolitan theatres and Joe Vogel for the Loew out-of-town houses.

Clear Channel Closing Power Is Challenged

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Presentation of testimony on proposed new [illegible]s for broadcasting stations was concluded before the Federal Communications Commission today with a challenge by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt of the commission's authority to close the clear channels to all but one station on each frequency, and the presentation of statistics showing that more than 21,000,000 people are outside the night time primary service area of any broadcasting station.

Mrs. Willebrandt's strictures were directed at the proposed new rule that only one station shall operate at night on the high-power clear channels. Her client, station WHDH, she said, has had pending for more than two years an application for experimental operation on the 830-kilocycle frequency, and the proposed rule will "pre-judge" that application adversely.

Authority Questioned

Declaring the rule to be legislation rather than regulation, she challenged the commission's right to usurp the privileges of Congress contrary to the provisions of the Communications Act instructing the F. C. C. to encourage experimentation.

Statistics prepared by commission experts showed approximately 10,000,000 people, about 1,500,000 of whom are in the urban population, are outside the primary range of any station during the day and that over 21,000,000, including less than 4,000,000 in urban centers, are outside the primary service area at night.

The dominant clear channel stations serve all but 30,000,000 of the 122,775,000 population on which the figures were based, during the day, and all but about 32,000,000 at night, it was shown. All other stations serve all but 16,650,000 of the population during the day, but at night cannot give primary service to over 50,000,000.

Coverage Limited

The primary service of all American stations—clear channel and other—however, fails to cover 8.1 per cent of the population during the day and 17.4 per cent during the night. In terms of area, 38.5 per cent of the continental United States is outside the primary service of any station during the day and 56.9 per cent is outside at night. The listeners outside the primary service areas are dependent upon such programs as they can pick up from distant stations. It was not claimed, however, that all listeners within the primary areas of any station always received satisfactory service.

Fairbanks Station Is Granted Permit

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Construction permit for a new broadcasting station to operate on 610 kilocycles with 1,000 watts power has been granted the Midnight Sun Broadcasting Co., Fairbanks, Alaska, by the Federal Communications Commission.

Examiners' reports have been submitted recommending the granting of applications of KUJ, Walla Walla, Wash., for change of frequency from 1,370 to 560 kilocycles and increase of power from 100 to 250 watts; WBNX, New York, for increase of day power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts; WMBG, Richmond, for increase of power from 500 watts to 1,000 watts night, 5,000 watts day, and WHBF, Rock Island, Ill., for increase of day power from 250 to 1,000 watts.

A report by Examiner George H. Hill recommended denial of an application of William H. Huffman, for a 580-kilocycle, 250-watt station at Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., and in a report on a three-cornered contest for a station at Savannah, on 1,310 kilocycles, Examiner Hill recommended granting of the application of Arthur Lucas, with Colonial Broadcasters, Inc., and Seaboard Broadcasting Corp., as second and third choices, respectively.

Convention Takes Up Gambling, Air Bills

ALBANY, June 29. — Headlining Wednesday's proceedings in the Constitutional Convention here was the beginning of discussion on possible elimination from the state laws of the ban on gambling, while in the Senate Chamber a bill of paramount importance to the radio industry received public hearing before a convention committee.

District Attorney Henry Hirshberg of Orange County moved to advance his amendment striking out prohibitions against gambling. Debate had hardly begun, however, before the matter was put over until next Wednesday, when the subject will be deliberated and voted on. An amendment to Mr. Hirshberg's proposal was introduced by Delagate John T. Dooling, and incorporated into the bill which had been reported out by the Bill of Rights Committee last week.

Committee Discusses Bills

Meanwhile, the convention's Public Utilities Committee, headed by Chairman Martin W. Deyo, Jr., held a public hearing on six bills, including a proposal of Senator John T. McCall to put all forms of communications, including radio, under rules and regulations of the state Public Service Commission.

With Senator McCall unable to attend the hearing, the bill found no backers. A statement was filed with the committee by Duel Richardson, an official of WOKO, Albany, who appeared on behalf of the State Association of Broadcasters. Vigorous opposition was expressed by the radio group to the McCall proposal.
